let's get down to business!

¶ Election's over. The verdict's in. The country's settling down to business again. The tumult and shouting dies. No more political speeches to keep the family home, glued to the radio. No more campaign orators competing with motion pictures from packed halls and soap-boxes. Your Theatre business is due for a big boom. ¶ That is, provided you're showing the right pictures. Provided you didn't book a program that bloomed in August and passed out at the first nip of frost. Provided you bought Paramount, which started with hits like "Wings", "The Fleet's In" and "Docks of New York" and is building steadily from there. Provided you've got surefire material like "Interference" (the first big quality all-talking picture), Clara Bow in Elinor Glyn's "Three Week Ends", Emil Jannings in "Sins of the Fathers" (American role and happy ending), Richard Dix in "Redskin" (Technicolor and sound), Anne Nichols' "Abie's Irish Rose" (talking, singing, sound), "The Canary Murder Case" (most talking) and "The Wolf of Wall Street" (also mostly talking) coming in the next couple of months. ¶ Provided you bought Paramount and can start 1929 with the greatest line-up of all-talking features and shorts (silent too) ever seen! Yes, boom days for picture theatres from now on and Paramount offers you the only quality product with which to cash in on them! Paramount, alone of the producing companies, knew the season didn't end November 1st. Paramount saved its choicest numbers for release now. ¶ Paramount's Greatest Year means week after week from now till August 1, 1929!

Showmanship

The Telephoto Stunt and Its Real Meaning

By William A. Johnston

AS our readers are well aware, we published, overnight, last week a complete four-page advertisement, by telephoto, of the world premiere in Hollywood of "Noah's Ark."

It was, we believe, an outstanding bit of showmanship, typical of the spirit that has put this industry far to the forefront in the history of the show world.

It is symbolic, we also believe, of the Future, a most wonderful one, that immediately faces the motion picture.

The picture has ceased to be a mere triumph of photographic animation. That is but a period, remarkable as it is, in its forward march. We must, sensibly, regard it as such; and holding fast to all that has been so creditably accomplished in the technique and business of picture entertainment, be eager to add to that entertainment the new accomplishments of these marvelous days of science and industry.

That is the real problem facing us. The headaches of the day are minor ones; so are the bugaboos that loom up. We are allied today with the great popular forces of electrical transmission. We are in a new entertainment era and, luckily, we are a, perhaps the, basic part of it.

If we seem to boast a good deal about our telephoto accomplishment the reader, I believe, will understand our state of mind when he reads the story, following this editorial, of just how the trick was done.

The deed itself was more dramatic even than the results.

It was the first time in the history of the industry, and the first time in the history of any trade paper in any field, that such an undertaking was made, and carried through to a successful conclusion.

Furthermore, the "first time" angle ran right through the doing of the job. It was the first time that the Telephoto Laboratories in New York were kept open all night and into the business hours of the following day, on a stretch, to handle such an event as this.

It was the first time also that any motion picture trade paper heralded from the stage of a great premiere, before the performance started, that it was about to make history in which all who heard the message read would participate.

Likewise, it was the first time that New York saw within a few hours after it happened, scenes of a picture premiere in Hollywood 3,000 miles away, and read, in their own handwriting, the comments of celebrities on the picture as they came out of the theatre.

And the first time that a telephotoed advertising section, complete in itself, appeared overnight in any publication anywhere.

But here's the story:

News Telephoto Scoop

By WILLIAM A. JOHNSTON

A LITTLE beam of light, tracing its way across a cylinder of celluloid in the Telephoto Laboratories in New York at four o'clock Friday Morning, November 2, presaged the success of a daring undertaking.

The beam traced its way many times, until seven photographs and thirty-five facsimile comments, were delivered, by this modern miracle of communication, three thousand miles across desert and mountain, from Los Angeles to New York.

Back of the beam lay a mobilization of mechanical resources; whole-hearted co-operation from a great picture company—the Warners; preparation covering several days; and the calling into play of complete trade paper staffs on both Coasts—all without precedent in this industry.

All great ideas have their origins, of course. And the creation of this idea belongs to Earl Hudson, the assistant publisher of Motion Picture News who, by the way, will arrive in New York November 10 to take up his duties at the home office of The News.

The wheels were immediately set in motion, after the idea was flashed from the Coast. The Warner Brothers, pioneers in sound, at once grasped the opportunity to pioneer in telephoto advertising.

With all possible preliminary details completed, then, the dramatic story of "how it was done" begins

A Sensation at Premiere

JUST before the world premiere performance of "Noah's Ark" began at Grauman's Chinese Theatre, Hollywood, Conrad Nagel, Warner star, read a telegram to the audience which created a sensation. It was addressed to Sid Grauman and was as follows:

"To Jack and Harry Warner and their production staff responsible for 'Noah's Ark' and to you for the honor of presenting it in its world premiere I extend congratulations. Warner Brothers are making history not only in the development of sound pictures but in the exploitation of them.

"Every motion picture executive in New York will have on his desk tomorrow a copy of this week's issue of Motion Picture News containing an insert announcement by Warner Brothers composed of photographs taken tonight of the crowds going into the Chinese Theatre, of groups in the lobby and facsimile reproductions of opinions that will be written in longhand by a great number of the celebrities present after seeing the production.

"Therefore, 'Noah's Ark' has the great distinction of being both the first super-production with sound and the first for which the recently perfected telephoto system is used to transmit written statements and photographs of its premiere presentation.

"Wm. A. Johnston,
"Publisher, Motion Picture News."

at Grauman's Chinese Theatre, Hollywood, Thursday night, November 1.

The willing co-operation of some 75 stars, directors and production heads, a fleet of motorcycle policemen, a battery of cameras, photographers who kept their studios open all night to aid, plus the indispensable aid of officials of the Western Union and the American Telegraph and Telephone Company, were all-important factors in making possible the doing of the job.

All night long, messenger boys dashed on motorcycles from Hollywood to the telephone building in Los Angeles twelve miles away with photographs and photograms. Graflex cameramen, stationed in the forecourt of the Chinese Theatre, grabbed "shots" of the various celebrities pointed out by a Motion Picture News staff man who stood with them all evening. A speed truck, on which other still photographers were mounted, was up and down the street in front of the crowds, also accompanied by a News staff reporter. In this manner, various phases of the thousands roped off in the streets were photographed for telephoto purposes. The policing was exceptionally fine and in no instance did the truck encounter difficulties in getting through the crowds so effectively roped off.

A Race Against Time

It was past ten o'clock in the evening (1 a.m. Friday New York time) when all photographs from the truck cameras and the Graflex men, were rushed to the studio and developed. Hal Wallace, Warners' West Coast publicity director, gave fine co-operation in getting photographers and quick developing plants. Prints, still wet, were hurried to the Telephone Building, where still another Motion Picture News man was stationed and at 12.30 o'clock a.m. (three thirty a.m. New York time), the transmission of the first telephoto began.

Meanwhile, four of the Motion Picture News staff were still in Hollywood holding down the fort at Grauman's Chinese Theatre. Immediately after the final fade-out of "Noah's Ark" was flashed, the men stationed themselves at the different exits. During the intermission the News men had sought out various stars, directors and executives and told them of the stunt and asked them to write in their own handwriting after the show, what they thought of the production. Hence, it was a simple matter, during the final exit, to secure the messages for photograms, which were written on Western Union blanks for that purpose and provided in a temporary Western Union office set up in the forecourt of the theatre.

By the time the last message was written and the last person had left the theatre, it was almost one o'clock (4 a.m. Friday New York Time). Some seventy-five messages had been written, with hundreds willing to co-operate. Only lack of time and space prevented the acceptance of many.

Acclaimed by Industry

The photogram messages were then rushed to Western Union's Hollywood office. By the time they were stamped and marked for filing, it was 2 a. m. (5 a.m. New York time). Then a motorcycle messenger created new time records in covering the twelve miles between Hollywood and the Telephone building, downtown in Los Angeles, where the telephoto sending station is located.

Several Records Broken

Three thousand miles away from this feverish activity, at 15 Dey Street, New York, the Telephoto Division of the A. T. & T. went into action. A complete staff of experts, both Western Union and A. T. & T., were on hand. As rapidly as the little beam completed its magic job, the cylinders were rushed into the developing room and prints came forth. Members of the Motion Picture News home office staff were on the job throughout the night and the following morning. Handling the details of advertising layout and lending splendid co-operation throughout was George Brown, advertising manager of Warners, detailed by A. P. Waxman, chief of the Warner advertising and publicity forces.

It was six o'clock Friday morning when the final telephoto was received, developed and turned over, and then the race to the engraving plant, on Forty-Second Street, several miles away, began. The making of the plates went through in record time. Meanwhile, the transmission of the facsimiles proceeded. It was 8.45 o'clock when delivery of these to the engraver was made. They were turned into halftone cuts, with a speed which the newspaper men present had never seen equaled.

Then, there was another race, this time to the printing plant in downtown New York, again several miles, and just before noon the presses began to hum. In the early afternoon, complete bound copies of Motion Picture News, containing the telephoto section were on the desks of executives and others in the film district, and the telephone began to ring with messages of congratulation.

The Telephoto Section in Motion Picture News created a sensation in the industry. Praise for this unprecedented journalistic achievement was expressed on every hand. Typical expressions follow:

Will H. Hays, (By Wire to William A. Johnston from Mr. Hays at Philadelphia, Nov. 5, en route to Indiana): "I note with the greatest interest the transmission by telephone of the scenes at the premiere of 'Noah's Ark' appearing in the Motion Picture News. This is another example of the splendid enterprise and energy with which the industry adapts to its needs the successive wonders of science. Congratulations and best wishes."

Sam E. Morris, General Manager of Distribution, Warner Bros: "Your stunt in telegraphing scenes attending the premiere of 'Noah's Ark' in Hollywood together with facsimile written testimonials of celebrities present at the premiere and bringing same out in a bound edition of Motion Picture News within a few hours—I might almost say minutes—after the premiere, is amazing. It took imagination to visualize it and brains to carry it out. When it comes to news you have made Hollywood nearer Forty-Second Street than is the Bronx. Your enterprise is on a par with what one would expect from the old London Times or from James Gordon Bennett when he was editor of The New York Herald. It is the most conspicuous stunt in a news way since the war. Warner Brothers congratulate you."

S. R. Kent, General Manager, Paramount-Famous-Lasky: "I have read your special issue of November 3 and want to congratulate you on this step forward. I think you showed a great deal of resourcefulness and showmanship in getting out this issue."

George Kleine, film pioneer: "Harnessing the telephoto to your chariot—publishing photos and facsimiles of letters in the Motion Picture News a few hours after the first presentation of a notable film and placing them before the industry three thousand miles from the event, is an innovation of which you and your associates should be proud. Vision to see an opportunity, courage to seize it and the power to carry through are the qualities which mark the pioneer. You are richly endowed with them. You have started something. Congratulations."

Carl Laemmle, President of Universal (By Wire to William A. Johnston from Mr. Laemmle at Winslow, Arizona, Nov. 5): "Hearty congratulations. Your telephoto stunt shows highest grade press enterprise."

Colvin W. Brown, Executive Vice-President, Pathe: "The Telephoto report on 'Noah's Ark' represents an achievement in progressive journalism and I congratulate The News on this example of sensational enterprise."

Ned E. Depinet, Vice President and General Sales Manager, First National: "Warner Brothers and the Motion Picture News are to be congratulated upon their enterprise in letting the trade know about the marvelous opening of 'Noah's Ark.' It was a great stunt."

P. L. Thomson, Advertising and Publicity Director, Western Electric: "One of the ways we judge the progress of the world is by the great advance in the art of communication. The use of wires for the telephoto reproduction of scenes at Hollywood during the premiere of 'Noah's Ark' is a striking piece of journalistic enterprise and I congratulate Motion Picture News upon it."

First Time in History

Joe Brandt, President, Columbia Pictures: "Congratulations on your journalistic initiative and enterprise. Telephoto insert certainly a great stunt."

R. P. Matthews, Vice-President and General Manager, Robert Morton Organ Co.: "I wish to congratulate you on your enterprise in creating a new thought in advertising. The Warner advertising employing telephoto, appearing in your last issue, sets a high water mark in advertising published for its value as news."

News' staff with a stunt unique in film journalism—telephotos and facsimile comments published Friday covering the premiere Thursday of 'Noah's Ark' on the Coast. This marks an important step in bringing East and West film activities closer together. "The NEWS is to be congratulated on being first to utilize the quick transmission facilities offered by the telephoto system."

Editorial in Exhibitors' Daily Review: "Through journalistic enterprise that arouses our enthusiasm, MOTION PICTURE NEWS covered the world premiere of 'Noah's Ark,' the new Warner Brothers colossal picture yesterday by Telephoto and Fotogram, so that pictures and statements made in Hollywood at Grauman's Chinese Theatre on Thursday were reproduced in New York the next morning. Warner Brothers forwarded advertising copy by the same processes and the result was a matter for entire industry congratulation."

"John Barrymore, Dolores Costello, Harry Rapp, Jack Warner, E. W. Hammons, Sid Grauman, Clarence Brown, Al Christie, Charles H. Christie, Efe Asher, Joseph M. Schenck and J. Stuart Blackton all signed enthusiastic tributes to the new picture and these were reproduced in their own handwriting."

Arthur M. Brilant, Managing Director, Colony Theatre, New York: "Congratulations on the Motion Picture News' enterprise in showing telephoto pictures of the premiere of 'Noah's Ark' in Los Angeles. It's certainly a marvelous step forward in trade paper service and efficiency."

First in the Field!

THE WESTERN UNION TELEGRAPH CO.
Metropolitan Division

New York,
November 7, 1928

Mr. William A. Johnston, President,
Motion Picture News, Inc.,
729 Seventh Avenue,
New York City.

Dear Mr. Johnston:

Please accept my sincere thanks for your letter concerning the part we played in transmitting telephotographs of the scenes taken at the Chinese Theatre, Hollywood, on the occasion of the premiere of Warner Brothers new masterpiece, "Noah's Ark" and the photograms of the endorsements of the thirty or more celebrities and film stars who were present.

Warner Brothers and your publication have the honor of being the first to use the telephotograph and photogram services of the Western Union in advertising in the motion picture field and there is no doubt that the example you have set will be followed in many other fields.

One of the most surprising things about this rapid transmission of pictures and facsimile messages was the fact that your publication containing the four-page advertisement was off your presses within an hour or two after their receipt here in New York. We were equally pleased with the way in which the telephotographs and photograms reproduced, in view of the fact that the photographs taken in Hollywood were flashlight pictures.

Please be assured that we shall be pleased to cooperate with you on any future transmission you or your advertisers may contemplate.

Cordially yours,

(Signed) J. F. NATHAN,
General Manager.

Foreign Talker Market Planned

Hollywood Intensely Interested in Result of Warner Vitaphone Picture Done in Three Languages

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, November 4.—Plans for the solving of the foreign market problem in regard to dialogued films were given impetus this week with publication that Warner Brothers have just completed a Vitaphone picture in three languages—French, German and English. Producers and distributors, who have been discussing various ideas, are now intensely interested in the result of the Warner experiment. While other companies have been discussing ways and means, the only action taken without any preliminary announcement is Jack L. Warner's in the making of this Vitaphone subject. None of the dailies went into detail as to cast or type of the picture.

Contrary to the belief given by the daily papers who reported the making of the tri-linguaged production, the Warner experiment is not with a feature length film. It is a Vitaphone short subject, made by Ann Codee and Frank Orth. Miss Codee and Orth have been a standard vaudeville attraction for the past 15 years or more. Ann Codee is billed as a "French music hall comedienne," this background being furnished her by the Shuberts on their disastrous venture into vaudeville about seven years ago. Prior to that she was simply Ann Cody, of Orth and Cody, in private life Mrs. Frank Orth.

This bit of biography is furnished only to prove that American artists can speak foreign languages convincingly, for both the German and French versions of the Ann Codee and Frank Orth subject are said to be perfect linguistically.

Producers are generally unaware of this, believing that "language doubles" were used by the Warners in the making of their foreign language prints. This has given rise to one plan under discussion regarding foreign distribution of sound films made in America.

This plan calls for the engagement of foreign stock players by American producers. Artists thoroughly conversant with French, German, Italian, or the tongue of whichever country has a market big enough to warrant the synchronizing of that particular language. An assistant director, also thoroughly conversant with the language of each country, would be necessarily engaged. Under the plan, the foreign players would move right into a set vacated by the American players, and make the same scenes with the same action immediately after the English-speaking artists were through. In this way the American methods and direction would be followed closely. The method would add a week or two to the time required for production, but would give the producers synchroniza-tion in all the languages necessary.

Other producers claim simply that American actors will just have to learn whatever foreign languages are necessary. They point to operatic and concert artists, and the fact that they must study several languages before they can appear before the public. If the operatic singer—why not the motion picture actor? They see no reason why it should be more difficult for a screen personality to learn a language than it is for an artist who depends entirely on his vocal chords for success.

Still another method suggested to producers is the one which has been in use by legitimate stage producers ever since there has been an exchange of plays between one country and another. This is the simple expedient of selling foreign rights to a play to a foreign producer, either outright or on a royalty basis. If it can be done with plays, why not with scenarios? American producers can make their pictures for consumption in English-speaking territories and sell the French, German, Italian, Russian, Scandinavian, etc., rights to a producer in any one of those nations. He can secure just as much money on a royalty basis as he can by distributing his film abroad himself.

In this matter there is the equation of personalities. American legitimate theatre stars have their appeal to America alone, whereas, screen personalities are international in appeal. This is the one big factor which producers raise as an objection to the royalty system of disposing foreign rights in regard to talking pictures. It will mean simply that screen stars' prestige will be restricted to nations instead of continents, which means further an eventual lowering of salaries paid to film personalities on the strength of their reduced following. The Warners' experiment is the first physical attempt to determine which is the best method. Hence the interest of all executives in the industry.

U. S. Linked in Foreign Deal

Powerful American, German and British Interests Combine for World Distribution of European Films

AN agreement has been reached among American, British and German motion picture interests whose purpose it is to build up a world market for foreign pictures. Powerful interests are behind the project, and it is understood that financial arrangements are being concluded through Dillon, Read & Co.

The agreement links the largest producers of Germany and England, UFA of Berlin, and British International Pictures, Ltd., with the recently organized World Wide Pictures, Inc., which will undertake the distribution of foreign pictures throughout the United States and Canada.

In connection with the deal, Educational Pictures, Inc., through its president, E. W. Hammons, announces the acquisition of a half interest in World Wide Pictures, Inc., and an arrangement with the latter whereby it will handle the actual distribution of foreign films throughout its thirty-six exchanges in this country and Canada. To finance the transaction, Educational Pictures has raised additional funds by an offering of 35,944 shares of common stock to its shareholders. This issue has been oversubscribed.

The plans projected by the new group mark a reversal in the trend of motion picture distribution. For many years the United States had been able to market a large part of its film output abroad because European producers lacked the equipment to compete with the American product. With the past few years, foreign production facilities have been so improved that the European companies are now turning out pictures able to compete with ours both in Europe and this country. The best of these are to be selected for distribution in the United States. In addition to contracts with the largest producers of Germany and Great Britain, agreements have been concluded with other foreign film companies for the showing of their pictures on this side.

One of the first results of the arrangement is expected to be a breaking down of quotas recently imposed by foreign countries. Certain of these restrictions require that at least 50 per cent of the pictures shown be of domestic origin. Because of the wide distribution which will be assured by the new arrangement, however, it is expected that a larger percentage of American films will again be admitted abroad in return for the increased foreign showings guaranteed in this country.

Regarding the announced purpose of World Wide Pictures, Inc., to include UFA Pictures among the foreign films to be distributed through Educational Pictures, Inc., David Brill, who is the president of UFA Eastern Division Distribution, Inc., issued the following statement:

"Important developments are being foreshadowed by the inclusion of UFA films among pictures to be distributed by Educational Pictures, Inc., as part of the ambitious progress announced by World Wide Pictures, Inc., to build up a world market for foreign films. UFA films have already become an important factor to be reckoned with in the territory covered by UFA Eastern Division Distribution, Inc., which includes New York, New Jersey,

Rumor Mary Pickford Has Leased Music Box for "Coquette"

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 6.—Mary Pickford, according to rumor, has leased the Hollywood Music Box Theatre for the purpose of presenting herself in a stage version of "Coquette." Miss Pickford, the report has it, will star and the production will be handled on a percentage basis.

Despite denials from Music Box officials, the report is that Miss Pickford intends playing a several weeks' run at $3.30 top prior to making the talking picture version of "Coquette." As is well known, she was on the stage under the direction of David Belasco.

Fox Said to be Clinching Expansion Deals

Negotiations for Stoneman and Schine Chains Closed; Netoco, Reade, Feiber and Shea Circuits Approached

WHILE official confirmation is lacking, it is understood that Fox is making strong headway in his series of negotiations with various theatre chains in the Eastern part of the United States for the enlargement of his circuit of theatres. Some of the deals have been completed and others are still in stages of negotiation. Formal announcement of their completion may be forthcoming at almost any time.

It is understood that last Tuesday, New York, the Fox interests closed the deal for the Stoneman circuit of New England, which includes the following houses:

Massachusetts—Revere at Revere; Crescent Gardens at Revere; Capitol at Somerville; State at Milford; State of Stoughton; Colonial at Brockton; Orpheum at Canton; Embassy at Waltham.

Connecticut—Bradley and Victory at Putnam; Orpheum at Danielson; Palace and Princess at Rockville.

Fox is reported negotiating for the fast-growing Netoco circuit, headed by Samuel Pinanski. This organization has been buying theatres in all sections of both Massachusetts and Maine, and also has several construction projects under way. Only recently it acquired three Boston theatres, the Warren at Roxbury; the Casino on Hanover Street, and the Globe on Washington Street.

If Fox, therefore, succeeds in getting the Netoco chain and adds its houses to the Poli and Stoneman theatres, which he has already nailed, he will automatically become the second largest theatre holder in New England, exceeded only in number of holdings by Publix. Such a deal would give him about 60 houses. It would also give him absolute control of the situation in Portland, Me.

Besides his New England efforts, Fox is angling for theatres in New Jersey and Ohio. Deals are now pending for the acquisition of the Walter Reade, Schine and Feiber and Shea circuits. None of them have been officially announced as closed so far, although the Schine deal is declared to be all set despite a denial from Gloversville. The Reade and Feiber and Shea negotiations are not wet in their final stages, it is understood. Fox, if successful in closing these deals, will tack on something like 136 theatres onto his total.

Theatres involved in the three deals number 93 up-state New York and Ohio in the Schine circuit; 12 up-state New York and Ohio houses in the Feiber and Shea circuit, and 31 New York and New Jersey theatres in the Reade holdings.

Ontario Fills Vacancies on Its Censor Board

Following the presentation of an ultimatum to the Ontario Government by the film distributors of Canada regarding censorship conditions in Ontario, action was speedily taken by the Ontario Cabinet in the matter of appointments to the Board of Moving Picture Censors. One complaint made by the exchange managers was that there had been vacancies on the board for three years.

J. Chancellor Boylen, a former Toronto newspaperman, has now been appointed permanent chairman of the Ontario censors while Edward Joseph Byrne, Barre, Ontario, has been added to the board, making the personnel complete.

No announcement has yet been made regarding the demand for the appointment of a county judge as a controller of all moving picture matters in the Province of Ontario, which was also a point put forward by the distributors.

Less Restriction on Our Films in Europe

American pictures are in no danger of further restrictions as Europe is realizing that the distribution of all films has become international. That is the opinion expressed by Michael J. Gourland, president of the Affiliated European Producers, Inc., who has just arrived from Europe where he stayed for five weeks. Nothing will be done in America, Mr. Gourland feels confident, that will hinder their release on the mere grounds that they are European.

Among the films obtained by Affiliated for release in the United States are "The Passion of Joan of Arc," regarded as one of France's foremost special productions; "The Chess Player"; "Miracle of the Wolves," shown at the New York Criterion several years ago; "Chopin," which the company hopes to synchronize; "Unholy Love" and "Russia."

Survey Shows Talkies Popular

THE survey of box-office results of sound pictures as compared with the silent version, started last week in MOTION PICTURE NEWS, is continued with reports from additional cities this week. As in the initial installment of the survey the reports indicate generally that sound pictures have proved a splendid box-office stimulant.

Additional key cities report as follow:

ATLANTA

That sound pictures have brought a healthy stimulus to the box-office is obvious even to the casual observer. Those theatres in this immediate territory that were sufficiently fore-handed with installations have doubled and even trebled grosses.

To predict that sound pictures can continue to double and treble grosses would be stupid and short-sighted. Their immediate pulling power depend upon novelty first, and non-competitive situations, second. Where sound pictures have been the vogue for many months the novelty is gone. Already patrons are "comparing" and they will discriminate between the average sound picture and the outstanding sound picture exactly as they discriminated between the mediocre silent picture and the exceptional silent picture. In the end sound pictures must stand on individual merit just as silent pictures stand on individual merit.

CLEVELAND

In Cleveland some sound pictures have broken records, others have just done satisfactory business and in some instances have run behind figures made by silents running during the same period. The Loew houses here, with Vitaphone installations are the only ones which have been equipped to present first run sound or talkies productions. Recently, Keith's Hippodrome re-opened with "Mother Knows Best," reproduced by R C A Photophone but inasmuch as this house has been closed since last August and has never played big feature pictures before it is impossible to compare the current run with any other and too early to get a true line on the matter.

The first talkie shown at the Cameo, "State Street Sadie," broke the house record and while "Lights of New York" did big business at the Stillman, it did not break any records. "The Jazz Singer" did make a record at the Stillman. On the other hand, "The Fleet's In" did as much at the State as sound pictures did at other houses the same week. "The Docks of New York," silent, also did big business at Keith's Palace.

At present it is thought that the novelty of sound pictures is drawing business somewhat out of proportion to value and the fact remains that good pictures, sound or silent, have gotten away with the big business.

KANSAS CITY

A check-up of first run houses in Kansas City shows that sound pictures have resulted in a general increase in attendance of about 10 per cent. There are some exceptions in the case, however. The Midland theatre, 4,000-seat house operated by Loew, has suffered a decrease of about 10 per cent following the substitution of sound vaudeville pictures for stage programs. On the other hand, sound pictures of political addresses and important news events have attracted persons—probably 15 per cent of the total attendance each week.

The Newman theatre, first run, downtown house, which virtually was unable to pay operating expenses with strictly silent pictures, following the opening of the Midland about one year ago, and which recently installed equipment for sound pictures, has been doing a big business since re-opening as a sound picture house. The Pantages theatre and other houses which have installed sound pictures, retaining their former policies in so far as the remainder of the program was concerned, have shown no such increase as the Newman has been enjoying. The Newman, it has been estimated, since re-opening as a sound house has shown an increase of between 40 and 45 per cent.

The Mainstreet theatre, which previously operated as a first run house with a stage program, has shown a slight increase since the installation of sound pictures, but the stage programs have been retained and sound vaudeville programs are not included in the new policy—only features and news reels being of sound. The increase is about 10 per cent.

BALTIMORE

Four of the nine first-runs report good business with the adoption of sound picture policies, business that is much higher than formerly; one has had an increase which cannot be attributed to sound alone and another has fallen off due to sound policy.

Drastic Action on Fan Papers

Academy, Wampas and Producers Association Investigating Alleged Scurrilous Attacks on Film Players

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 4.—Recognizing that drastic action must be taken to curb the continued practice of several fan magazines launching personal attacks on individuals in the motion picture industry, the Board of Directors of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences authorized the appointment of a special committee to investigate every fan magazine article published during the past year, that carried a personal or unwarranted article of attack upon any individual or group in the producing branch of motion pictures.

The committee will conduct the investigation in cooperation with the Wampas and the Association of Motion Picture Producers.

In a statement announcing the pending investigation, Frank Woods, secretary of the Academy, said: "The oft-repeated practice of some types of magazines to deliberately misrepresent the motion picture personnel, individually and as a class, has not been greatly abated. Nine months ago certain offending publications were called to account by the Academy in cooperation with the Producers Association and the Wampas, with the result for a time of less defamatory reading matter. Recently, however, there has been a recurrence of unjust gossip and comment, calling for protective measures. Criticism of pictures, performances, directing and writing is, of course, legitimate and constructive. It is the nasty personal attacks when unjustly made that are deeply and rightfully resented."

It is expected that the Academy committee, together with a committee from the Wampas and Producers Association, will delve thoroughly into the matter of fan magazines and the large group of writers now associated with those publications.

Action will undoubtedly be taken to inform publishers of all fan magazines that malicious attacks on film personages without foundation of fact, will result in the industry believing offending publications are not honest and sincere, and all producer cooperation and player interviews will be discontinued entirely.

Prominent players and others that are members of the Academy have resented recent personal attack articles on various well known individuals appearing in fan magazines, and some have gone so far as to absolutely refuse to be interviewed by any writer on the staff of the offending publications. With the fan magazines going out after star "names" for greatest reader interest, a group of about fifty prominent players could materially hurt circulation by refusing to allow publication of photographs and all interview requests.

Academy Reviews Work

Woods Report Points Out Many Satisfactory Results Achieved During the Past Year

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 4.—At the second annual meeting of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, the report of Secretary Frank Woods proved to be the outstanding highlight. In reviewing the work of the Academy for the past year, his report pointed out satisfactory results achieved along many lines.

Summarizing the report, the Academy's work included: successful negotiation of a standard contract for free lance actors; negotiations for a standard writers contract which was discontinued at request of writers' committee until the sound picture situation was stabilized; settlement of more than fifty complaints submitted to the Academy for adjustment, four-fifths of these complaints being presented from non-members; the demonstrations of studio mazda lighting conducted in association with the American Society of Cinematographers, which was highly instrumental in advancing studio lighting technique; 14 meetings of various branches holding discussions on sound pictures; and results obtained by the Committee on College Affairs, which had gained full cooperation with Stanford, California and University of Southern California on motion picture matters.

Secretary Woods also announced in the report that the Board of Directors expected to close a contract with a fan magazine publisher that will provide the Academy with effective magazine representation, so that the organization's relations with the motion picture public may be properly safeguarded and promoted for the benefit of the industry as a whole.

Speakers included Douglas Fairbanks, Conrad Nagel, C. B. De Mille, William De Mille, M. C. Levee, Mary Pickford, and Louis B. Mayer.

Legislators Will Meet

43 State Sessions Planned for January With Usual "Reformers" Measures Reported Under Way

MANY questions of interest to the motion picture industry will be up before various state legislatures when 43 of those bodies meet in January. It is reported that a number of legislative matters affecting motion pictures and their exhibition will be submitted for consideration of the law-makers.

In a number of states the question of admission taxes, censorship and Sunday closing will probably be productive of bills. Distributors and exhibitors are preparing to combat any action they deem unfair.

The states that have legislative meetings set for the month of January, together with the dates of the meeting are the following:

Harry Marx Resigns from Publix

AT the weekly Publix inter-council meeting, Sam Katz announced the resignation of Harry Marx as the Executive Associate of the President and Vice-President. That Mr. Marx's retirement from Publix came as a surprise would be indicated from the fact that he only recently had been promoted from his duties of General Director of Theatre Management. It is understood it is Mr. Marx's desire to operate a group of his own theatres, the controlling interest of several having been offered him recently.

The former Publix official had been associated with Sam Katz for approximately ten years and was brought to New York City from the Balaban and Katz interests of Chicago when the latter took over the operation of Famous-Players and associated theatres. Recognized as one of the foremost theatre management and personnel executives in the country he is given credit for the development of Publix Service and the managerial conduct of their theatres. The Manager's School was conducted under Mr. Marx's supervision and the Manual for the Training of Theatre Employees in his work; this book is considered the foremost contribution to the problem of theatre administration ever published. Plans are being formulated for a testimonial dinner.

James Crang, Canadian Showman, Dies Suddenly

The death has occurred at Chicago, Ill., with tragic suddenness, of James Crang, owner of the Oakwood theatre, Toronto, for 12 years, in his 56th year. Mr. Crang, who was one of the outstanding exhibitors of Canada and prominent in community life, was visiting at the home of a relative when he was seized with an attack of acute indigestion, passing away almost immediately. He is survived by his widow, one son, three brothers and a sister.

Mr. Crang was a life-long resident of Toronto. He was a well-known figure, being a member of the Board of Education, president of the North End Athletic Association and was associated with many clubs and societies, including the Rotary, Granite and Oakwood clubs. He was a member of the Ashlar Lodge, A. F. and A. M., the Scottish Rite, and was prominent in the religious life of the community, being a member of St. Clair United Church.

The deceased had been an officer of the former Motion Picture Exhibitors' Protective Association of Ontario, which was succeeded by the Ontario Division of the M. P. T. O.

Woody - Adler Exchange Opens at Buffalo

Woody and Adler, distributors of the feature, "Fighting the White Slave Traffic," have opened an exchange at 440 Normal Avenue which will temporarily serve as the Buffalo branch. George Moeser, recently manager for United Artists in Buffalo, is in charge.

J. H. Cook, Pennsylvania Exhibitor, Dies

The death of John H. Cook, general manager of the Equity Theatres Circuit in Reading, Pa., and one of the best known and most popular exhibitors in this territory, was a decided shock to his hundreds of friends, although he had been bedfast for many weeks preceding his death. For 22 years Cook had been associated with the theatrical industry in Reading and was regarded as one of the best showmen in the state. In 1907 he started his career as general utility man at the old Victor Theatre in Reading, operated by Carr & Schad on the site now occupied by the Astor Theatre. Promotions came rapidly and he became successively chief messenger for the firm, manager of the Empire Theatre and later when Carr & Schad incorporated, a director and assistant general manager of the firm. In 1920 he was chosen general manager of Carr & Schad, Inc. and finally when the corporation leased its holdings to Equity Theatres, he retained the position of general manager for the entire circuit, which position he held up to the time of his death. Five hundred friends and associates attended his funeral and all the Circuit's theatres were closed until 1.30 on that day. The M. P. T. O. A. dispensed with all regular business at the first meeting of the season held on October 25th out of respect for Johnny Cook. Those present stood for one minute in silence out of respect to his memory and a motion was passed that a resolution of condolence be written into the minutes and a copy of the resolution sent to his family.

Toronto Theatremen Ask Suspension of Charges

A resolution to have the charges against 30 exhibitors of Montreal, Canada, for alleged offenses under the defunct anti-juvenile law suspended until the test case has been disposed of was made before Mr. Justice Coderre in the Superior Court, Montreal, by solicitors of the 30 moving picture men.

The new Quebec law prohibiting the admission of all children to moving picture theatres became inoperative when Jules Duhamel, of the St. Denis Theatre, Montreal, secured a writ of prohibition, thus rendering the law inoperative, when he was about to be tried for an infraction. It is expected that the appeal from this writ will finally go to the Privy Council in London.

Another Illinois Town to Have Sunday Movies

Following the lead of Champaign, Illinois, which voted for Sunday movies, about three months ago, Urbana will get Sunday shows, its citizens having given a majority of one hundred votes in favor of the ordinance allowing movie houses to open on the seventh day of the week. At the same time Fairbury, in one of the hottest elections ever held in that community, defeated the Sunday movie measure by a vote of 675 to 470. This is the first instance, as far as is known in the central part of the state, where voters decided against Sunday shows at special elections this year.

Wampas May Discontinue Insurance With Canadian Company

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 4.—Unless changes in the present arrangement of Wampas with the Canada Life Insurance Co., whereby each member is covered for $1,000 for each year of membership up to $10,000, can be made, there is a possibility of this blanket policy being discontinued. The arrangement has been in force two years and now the West Coast press agents organization find the premium mounting to a sum which they cannot handle comfortably.

For the past few weeks the Wampas have held special sessions and closed meetings to find ways and means out of their dilemma. The fault, they point out, is neither the insurance company or their's. It is simply that the present arrangement prevents their increasing membership as they would like to, and that the amount of premium compounds itself automatically to the point that becomes a decided strain on the Wampas treasury.

Policies issued to Wampas members now cover individuals in sums ranging from $1,000 to $9,000 under the system of adding $1,000 for each year of membership. The Wampas are trying to lower the mounting premiums and one course, which may be adopted, is to fix a maximum of $5,000 life insurance to any individual member.

Another question which has the organization conferring, is what to do with policies of Wampas members who leave the ranks of publicity for other fields. They feel, in the case of many charter members, that to discontinue the policies with the resignations of individuals, is unjust in view of the years of service such members have given the association. Plans are being discussed under which such persons could continue their policies at their own expense, with the Wampas having paid premiums up to the time of resignation.

New Developments in "U" Sales Department

Ted Schlanger Appointed Assistant General Sales Head; Larger Apportionment of District Sales Managers

THE appointment of a new executive in the sales department of Universal Pictures Corporation and the enlarging of the number of district sales managers were items of interest in the announcement from the Laemmle Company of a new rearrangement in its selling organization.

Ted Schlanger, highly recommended by Lon B. Metzger, Universal general manager, and M. Van Praag, general sales manager, was appointed Mr. Van Praag's assistant. For the past eight months he has been Eastern sales director for the Laemmle Company.

Another step in the sales department was the move to get away from the three grand division plan—East, West and South—which marked Universal's sales territories a few years ago and to further establish a two grand division plan—East and West, divided by the Mississippi—brought about, it is said, to conform with changes in the distribution and sales end of the motion picture industry.

Using this new method, Universal will seek closer contact with exhibitors and closer supervision over the various territories. Instead of two sales directors in the home office, who have been heretofore dividing the supervision of the entire country and Canada between them, with but one or two assistants or district managers each, the new arrangement will enable an increase in the number of district managers to come about, these managers to have increased supervision over their respective territories.

It is said definitely that at least three new districts will be created.

Paramount Figures in N. Y. Australia Radio Talk

The ten thousand miles between New York City and Australia were spanned during the week and the conversation that ensued gave prominent mention to Paramount pictures. This because the participants in the conversation were John W. Hicks, Jr., general manager for Paramount, and Albert Deane, of the Paramount foreign department in New York.

The radio talk was made possible through the experimental department of the General Electric Corporation and was sent on low wave-length from the Schenectady, N. Y., station WGY.

Paramount's "Interference" was one subject that was dwelt on during the talk, which lasted altogether a quarter of an hour. The speakers at Schenectady spoke at 6:30 A. M. on Monday, while the speakers at Sydney were speaking at 9:30 P. M. Monday, according to their time.

Angelo, Lina Basquette, Alberta Vaughn, Marion Nixon, Diane Ellis, Raymond Hatton, Margaret Livingston, Leslie Fenton, James Aldine, Carol Lombard, Mitchell Lewis, Joseph Girard, Philo McCullough, Lloyd Whitlock, Lee Shumway, Russell Gleason, Jimmy Adams, Frank Reicher and Ned Sparks are among those whose voices have recorded effectively.

All of these players are either playing in current Pathe productions or are scheduled to begin work within the next few days.

K. C. Theatres Reverse Bad Season Prophecies

THE downtown theatre situation in Kansas City is a puzzle to those who labor under the impression they are familiar with business conditions in the screen industry. Not more than three weeks ago there was a general prediction of a "tough winter." Then came the announcement that the Orpheum theatre, first run and vaudeville house, would not re-open this winter. That was followed by the re-opening of the Newman theatre, which had been losing money for more than a year, and a good attendance following the re-opening.

Now comes the announcement that the Royal theatre, which has been closed for more than a year and which was Kansas City's first and finest downtown first run house, will re-open under the management of Publix, which now is operating the Newman. The Orpheum, it also is said, will re-open as a dramatic stock company house. The Mainstreet and Pantages theatres, showing first run pictures and five acts of vaudeville, are doing a capacity business while the Midland, the finest first run house in Kansas City, is not doing such a business with sound pictures and vaudeville.

Film Industry Hit in Storm Area

THE havoc caused by the recent hurricane in Porto Rico has not hit the film business in the stricken territories to the extent that the reports of the damage would lead one to expect. This is the opinion held by F. H. Knocke, president of the Medal Film Co., Inc., of New York, who has just signed a contract for the entire Pathe program of 1928-29 for Cuba, Porto Rico, the Dominican Republic and the Virgin Islands, and who is now sailing for a tour through the exchanges of these districts.

Mr. Knocke stated that Cuba has been suffering for some time from a severe general business depression which has affected the film business. He thinks that within a couple of months, when the new sugar campaign starts, a general improvement in the trade will be noticeable.

Mr. Knocke believes that it will take about six months before the motion picture business in Porto Rico will be near normal again. Many of the theatres on the island were either completely or partially destroyed by the storm.

VOGEL, vice-president and general manager of Pathe International Corporation, foreign distributors for Pathe, arrived in New York last Friday, November 2, on the SS Mauretania after a two months' tour of Europe. JOHN W. CONSIDINE, Director Alan Crosland and Scenarist C. Gardner Sullivan arrived in New York on Monday, November 5. Within a few days they will place the Harry Richman-Irving Berlin production in work at a New York studio.

NAT ROTHSTEIN, advertising expert for Universal, accompanied by Mrs. Rothstein, returned November 1 from a tour of England, France, Italy, Switzerland and the continental resorts.

Interstate Takes Over 2 New England Houses

THE Interstate Theatre Corporation, Boston, last week added the Capitol Theatre, Somerville, and the Revere Theatre, Revere, both Universal houses in the New England territory, to its group of eight other houses in this district. Both the Capitol and the Revere will be wired for sound pictures next month. Two of the other Interstate houses have already been wired. Edward Ansin and E. Harold Stonman, both of Brookline, are the officers of Interstate.

They first formed the Interstate circuit two years ago when they took over three Connecticut towns, Putnam, Danielson and Rockville. All three of these houses have been renovated and re-decorated. The company then built the State theatre in Milford, Mass., and the State in Stoughton, Mass. They also took over the Orpheum in Canton, Mass., and the Colonial in Brockton. This summer they acquired the Crescent Gardens, Revere Beach, where it operates a theatre and a ballroom. This also was a deal with Universal.

Argentina Heaviest Buyer of Our Films in July

Exports of motion picture films from the United States in July, totaling 27,620,453 feet valued at $772,924, were slightly less in quantity but had a higher value than exports for the corresponding month in 1927, which totaled 27,903,405 feet valued at $741,831, according to figures just compiled by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Washington, D. C.

Included in the month's exports were 18,700,200 feet of positive film, valued at $44,168, against 21,772,389 feet valued at $511,234 in July, 1927. Exports of raw stock during the month totaled 8,175,317 feet valued at $184,594, and shipments of negatives totaled 744,936 feet valued at $144,162.

Argentina was the heaviest purchaser of positive films during the month, taking 1,550,253 feet valued at $35,232, followed by Belgium with 1,481,518 feet valued at $26,079; Australia with 1,365,161 feet valued at $32,994, and Brazil with 1,276,756 feet valued at $31,288.

Special Meeting Called to Clarify Agent-Manager-Producer Situation

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 6.—Attempting to clarify the Agent-Manager-Producer situation in West Coast studios, Fred Beeton, executive vice-president of the Producers' Association, called a special meeting which was attended by all agents and personal representatives.

Mr. Beeton explained that the present conditions were not satisfactory to producers' agents or artists and asked that representatives submit ideas for solution. He also stated that the producers were discussing the establishment of a central booking office to act as a clearing house as one remedy for the situation.

In conjunction with the possibility of producers establishing a central booking office to deal with agents is a plan to franchise agents in a limited number. Under this plan only franchised representatives will be recognized by producer members of the association for business dealing, thus cleaning out the smaller fry who now clutter up studios. Lesser agents will have to submit clients to recognized representatives to secure producer attention for them. The plan is still in the discussion period.

EXHIBITORS of Ontario are adamant in their stand against the amusement tax of the Ontario Government. They claim through J. C. Brady, head of the Canadian M. P. T. O., that the Government is making a profit of some $10,000 yearly on theatre licenses and censorship fees, and that the amusement tax, therefore, is available for general revenue.

But to their contention Premier Ferguson responds with the assertion that exhibitors have not passed their savings from the tax on to the public, and that consequently he is strictly against any further reduction in the amusement tax.

Mr. Brady has vigorously attacked the tax on admissions of 25 cents and up, and the Canadian exhibitors at their recent convention in Toronto voted to campaign for the abolition of the tax. They realize that they have a hard fight on their hands.

The present amusement tax was begun during the late war as a measure necessary for the times, and the Canadian Government is one of the few continuing to collect such a tax, which Mr. Brady says has developed into a nuisance tax. The leader of the Canadian M. P. T. O. has branded as ridiculous the claim that the removal of the tax on tickets up to 25 cents has benefited the theatre owners of Ontario to the extent of $600. A promise was made when the Ontario Government balanced its books that the theatre patrons would be extended some relief.

The committee which is organizing the deputation to meet the Government in a few weeks comprises Arthur Cohen, Toronto, chairman; J. C. Brady, J. M. Franklin, A. A. Bugg, Mr. Filman, T. H. Moorehead, Don Stapleton, J. A. Stewart and Col. J. A. Cooper, the latter president of the Motion Picture Distributors of Canada.

He left on Saturday on a flying trip to the coast. It is expected that the director, Edward Cronjager, Dix's cameraman, and the star will all be on hand at the date expected.

Bomb Outrage Averted in Minneapolis

THE lives of about 100 theatre-goers were imperiled last Saturday night in Minneapolis, due to the perception of some small boys who reported the location of a smouldering bomb beneath one of the seats of the Vista Theatre in time to allow Donald Cole, part owner of the theatre, to throw it into the street where it exploded.

The Vista had just been opened a week. Police are busy trying to round up the would-be perpetrators of the outrage, but theatre owners are not optimistic that they will be captured. During the past eight years, Minneapolis has had almost a dozen theatre bombings and no convictions have as yet been secured.

News and Comment on All Phases of "Sound" Pictures

Talking Films Stimulate Box-Office

Under its old policy the Stanley averaged around $12,000 on good weeks. With the addition of sound to the program averages shot up to $27,000, operating costs being reduced 33 1/3 per cent.

The Rivoli, after being closed, opened with sound late in July with the result that business for that period was 60 per cent better than the same of last year. The August intake was 15 per cent better than last August's, and September's figures showed an income increase of 40 per cent over the corresponding period of last year. Overhead expenses have also been decreased 30 per cent.

Warner's Metropolitan has decreased overhead expenses 10 to 15 per cent with a sound policy, the orchestra being eliminated. Jolson pictures have been the best money makers.

With the adoption of sound the New's overhead remains the same, this because they only had a small orchestra which was eliminated along with the organist. It is understood that the house would have been forced to close had they not installed sound equipment. The Century and the Valencia, Loew houses, have not been heavy winners with the sound installations. The former had been pulling strong even before sound, so it cannot be said that sound boosted trade. The latter eliminated its orchestra and reduced its prices, but it was noticeable that whenever a good sound feature played there business showed an increase.

The consensus seems to be that the public does not want to return to the silents.

SEATTLE

John Hamrick's Blue Mouse Theatre has shown a tremendous increase since the installation of sound pictures and at West Coast's Fifth Avenue Theatre, while box office averages remain about the same. Weekly operating costs have been reduced approximately $2,000 with the elimination of stage revues.

DENVER

Harry E. Huffman, manager of the Aladdin and American Theatres, the first Denver houses to install sound equipment, states that sound pictures have unquestionably increased box office revenue. Huffman believes that the dialogue picture is the peak of production and that it will double and treble receipts as compared with the same picture in silent form. The next in value, Huffman believes, is the purely synchronized picture and that revenue here for this type will be from fifteen to twenty per cent greater than that of the same picture silently produced. But Huffman further believes that the adding of sound effects, etc., to a silent picture already made is dangerous practice and that it might seriously detract from its original value.

A survey of Denver territory shows that from one hundred to one hundred and fifty per cent increase in receipts has been shown with the advent of sound pictures. Revenue of the Federal Theatre is two and three times as great as that done with silents and the same increase can be applied to Webber and Oden Theatres. The Denver and Rialto Theatres have only recently installed sound devices.

NEW ORLEANS

Since the installation of sound equipment in New Orleans downtown first run theatres business has shown a huge spurt over that done previously with silent films, managers report.

The new Saenger Theatre reported that business had jumped twenty per cent while at Loew's, across the street, trade increased twenty-five per cent over the best week done by a silent picture. The Liberty Theatre recently reopened with sound equipment and is doing thirty per cent better than the Strand, which recently reopened with silent pictures. Two neighborhood houses opened with sound last week and a forty per cent increase was recorded. Five others will shortly reopen with sound. Business at the Tudor Theatre is twenty per cent greater with sound than as a silent picture theatre.

SAN FRANCISCO

It is the opinion of theatre managers in San Francisco that the public does not care for sound pictures unless they are good. The Embassy Vitaphone theatre has done excellent business ever since it opened. The El Capitan theatre has just completed their installation of sound, and no report has been obtained as yet.

HARRISBURG, PA.

Reports from Harrisburg and vicinity indicate that wherever sound films are being shown business has increased materially. At the Regent, Harrisburg, receipts have been on the upgrade since that house was wired last July.

With taking over of the Strand, at Carlisle, by the Comerford chain, sound was instituted, and the profits have grown. This in spite of the fact that admission price was jumped from 30 to 50 cents.

Two Reading theatres, Loew's and the Astor, the latter owned by the Equities Corporation, have done increased business since their sound installations.

Because of the huge success being enjoyed by the above mentioned theatres with sound, a number of other houses in Harrisburg and Reading are at present being wired.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Introduction of sound films in Washington has apparently made but little difference in box office receipts. On the whole, the consensus of opinion appears to be that receipts from sound pictures are subject to the same influences and fluctuations as those from silent films.

The Metropolitan, carried Al Jolson's "The Singing Fool" for four weeks, and did a whale of a business, but other sound films didn't do so well. The Earle put on an "all sound" picture and showed a 300 per cent increase, but didn't keep to that level with subsequent offerings.

Little difference has been noted at the Fox since the introduction of Movietone feature pictures, and the same might be said for the Palace and Columbia.

All of the first-run houses in Washington are equipped for sound pictures and are exploiting them, but, on the whole, the public is not rushing from theatre to theatre in a mad frenzy to see and hear them. The good pictures are bringing them in, and the poorer ones are not, and the exhibitors said the same thing last season, when only silent films were available.

ALBANY, N. Y.

There are but two theatres in Albany and Troy that can be analyzed as to the effect on attendance since the installation of sound, a third house having been wired but recently.

From an authoritative source it was learned that both the Mark Strand in Albany and the Troy Theatre, in Troy, have improved their grosses with sound pictures. It remains that only one sound picture, "The Singing Fool," has ever exceeded receipts of "The Big Parade," "Ben Hur" and "McFadden's Flats" at the Troy Theatre. Albany has always been a "tough" city as far as any kind of a show is concerned. The folk here not only know legit but know their movies as well and the result is that a poor talking or sound picture will get no further than a poor silent picture. Word of mouth advertisement, good or bad, gets around fast and as soon as the public are sufficiently wised up that a picture is not what it should be in the way of entertainment value, attendance falls. The fact that people in this city will not come to a theatre merely to hear sound if the picture does not please was recently demonstrated during the recent showing of "The Patriot." However, talking pictures such as "Lights of New York" draw better in this section than mere sound pictures.

Pathe Sound Production Active in Both East and West

PATHE is busy with production activities under the RCA Photophone process both in the eastern and western studios of the company. At the Culver City studios the cast and sets are about ready for shooting first scenes in "The Missing Man," Pathe's first 100 per cent talkie, and the five other features that will have dialogue sequences.

At the Sound Studios in New York musical and sound accompaniment are being recorded for several features, and a prologue and epilogue are being produced for "Annapolis."

Benjamin Glazer, production manager of the sound division, who will personally direct "The Missing Man," has about completed his cast. George Barraud will be seen and heard in the leading male role, Ned Spark will supply comedy relief and others chosen thus far are Frank Reicher, Mary Forbes, Robert St. Angelo, Russell Gleason and Claude King.

Dialogue sequences for "Geraldine" and "The Shady Lady" are under way. In the former, Marion Nixon, Eddie Quillan, Gaston Glass and Albert Grand are talking and those to be heard in the latter are Phyllis Haver, Robert Armstrong, Louis Wolheim and a newcomer, Russell Gleason.

Other pictures in the making, for which dialogue sequences will be provided, are: "Noisy Neighbors," with Eddie Quillan, the Quillan family, Alberta Vaughn, Theodore Roberts, Russell Simpson and others directed by Charles Reisner; "The Office Scandal," starring Phyllis Haver, with Leslie Fenton, Margaret Livingston, Raymond Hatton and Jimmy Aldine, under the direction of Paul Stein; and "The Leatherneck," starring William Boyd, with Alan Hale, Robert Armstrong, Fred Kohler, Mitchell Lewis and others, directed by Howard Higgin.

Josiah Zuro, musical director of Pathe sound pictures, has completed the Photophone sound and musical accompaniment for "Captain Swagger," and "Annapolis" and is now scoring "Marked Money" and "Show Folks" at Sound Studios in New York. The special song-and-dance-dialogue sequences for "Show Folks" were performed by Eddie Quillan and Lina Basquette under the direction of Benjamin Glazer on the West Coast. Zuro is making his Pathe recording with a symphony orchestra, a brass band and a corps of effect men, under the direction of Morris Manne.

"Donovan Affair" First for Columbia

COLUMBIA'S first talkie production will be "The Donovan Affair," from the stage play by Owen Davis. It will have both sound and dialogue. In addition to being the first talkie of the company it will be one of the ten specials on Columbia's current program.

Preparations are already under way for the production of the picture. Frank Capra will be the director and Jack Holt the star. A supporting cast is being carefully selected. The screen version of this well known Broadway stage success is in the hands of Johnnie Grey, prominent as a playwright and author. Shooting will be done at the newly erected sound stages at the Columbia studios and the Western Electric system will be used.

"The Royal Family" in Los Angeles, and John Cromwell, well known New York stage actor, are others in the cast. The picture will be directed by Robert Milton, for many years an outstanding stage director on Broadway.

Reeltone Ready to Make Installations

The Nathanson Reeltone Corporation announces that it is ready to make installations of its sound reproduction device in theatres. Present releasing plans of the company call for the production and distribution of 52 single reels covering dramatic, vaudeville and novelty subjects which will be released on the basis of one a week. There is no initial cost to theatre owners for the installation of this device.

In addition to the short subjects, Reeltone has already synchronized "The Ghost Train," which was imported from abroad and will be released as a road show attraction. It is said to be booked over the entire Pantages Circuit.

Van Buren Product All to Be Synchronized

Amedee J. Van Buren, president of the Van Buren Corporation, announces that the entire Van Buren output will in the future be synchronized with sound or put into talkies. This will be in addition to the silent version of the subjects released.

Included in the Van Buren list of subjects are, Aesop's Film Fables, Topics of the Day, Grantland Rice Sportlights, Smitty and His Pals, and Walter Futter's Curiosities. All of these subjects with the exception of the last, are released by Pathe. The "Curiosities" are F B O releases.

Dick Talmadge Vehicle to Be Synchronized

"The Bachelors' Club," Oscar A. Price's production starring Richard Talmadge, will have a synchronized accompaniment. Upon the arrival of the print from the coast negotiations will be closed with a sound company for recording the accompaniment. Talmadge's three subsequent productions will also be synchronized, it is said.

Tonefilm Road Show Special Is Now Under Way

PHIL GOLDSTONE, in charge of production at the Metropolitan Studios at Fort Lee, N. J., where the Tonefilm is being applied in the making of sound pictures, announces that the first Metropolitan Road Show special is now under way. The studios were officially opened on Monday of this week, when production was launched on both the road show special and the program of short subjects that are to be supplied exhibitors.

Tonefilm, it is claimed, is interchangeable with any other sound-on-disc device.

The company plans to produce two sheet subjects weekly, in addition to a number of the so-called road show specials. The shorts will consist of sketches, playlets, short operettas and orchestras and singers. The first of these releases will be announced shortly.

Tonefilm is of the more moderately priced sound reproducing devices, and is being manufactured in three models. These models are for houses seating up to 600, from 600 to 1,000 seats and over 1,000 seats. As a part of the regular equipment is a non-synchronous apparatus, which, it is claimed, will play regular records to be used with pictures that are not scored. Installations are promised within a period of from 30 to 45 days.

Alfred Weiss is president of Tonefilm Corporation, while the picture production end is in the hands of Phil Goldstone, prominent as a director and producer of silent pictures. Mr. Goldstone has made a complete study of talking pictures. As soon as he felt himself qualified in every way he took over the Peerless Studios in Fort Lee, and remodeled and renamed them the Metropolitan Studios. All of the product of the company is to be produced there.

Ruth Chatterton to Play in "The Dummy"

Ruth Chatterton, now completing work in "The Doctor's Secret" for Paramount, has been assigned by that company to play the heroine in "The Dummy," former Broadway stage success and first all-dialogue comedy. Frederick March, now playing in

First National "Show Girl" Trailer Ready

THE advertising and publicity department of First National has prepared a talking trailer on "Show Girl," the company's first Alice White picture, adapted from the J. P. McEvoy novel.

The little man who appears in the First National trade-mark has been animated for this trailer. After talking about McEvoy's book and the picture, he calls upon Miss White who appears on the screen. She is first seen dancing in a cabaret scene, and then with her dancing girls is seen and heard singing, "She's One Sweet Show Girl," the theme song of the picture, and "Buy, Buy for Baby or Baby Will Bye, Bye You."

The First National Ad-Man is also being animated into a talking trailer for the mystery picture, "The Haunted House."

French Sound Films Score in Debut

Register Big Success in Initial Showing at Paris Cameo Theatre

By LARS MOEN

European Correspondent, Motion Picture News

PARIS, October 31.—More than a month before the date fixed for the opening of American sound films at the Paramount Theatre, Paris was initiated into the modern "talkie" on the evening of October 18, when an invited audience was shown a group of films made by the Gaumont-Petersen-Poulsen process, including a feature film with synchronized orchestral accompaniment. The following day the doors were thrown open to the public, for three performances daily, at the Cameo Theatre, an 800-seat Aubert house on the Boulevard des Italiens.

Furore Created

The result can only be labelled "success." Paris is talking of nothing but sound films; every newspaper, every magazine, is devoting columns to the showing. And the house is selling out.

American sound film activity has created a great deal of theoretical discussion here, all of which has helped create advance interest in hearing the "film sonore."

The program at the Cameo is well varied, and shows most of the important applications of synchronized recording.

The program opens with a scenic. "Une des plus belles gorges des Alpes francaises," with synchronized orchestral accompaniment. It cannot be said that the device shows up to best advantage in orchestral recording. There is some tendency to blast with an increase in intensity; and the tone color would indicate that a speaker of the cone type is employed, giving a tone "tubbiness" characteristic of such speakers.

Pathe Sound Meetings in L. A. and Chicago

THE western and central divisions of the Pathe sales organization held their sales meetings simultaneously on Sunday, November 4, in Los Angeles and Chicago respectively. They discussed the sound picture program of the company and were addressed by Joseph P. Kennedy, official advisor, and Colvin W. Brown, executive vice-president.

With these sessions, Pathe has decided to continue the special regional sales meetings on its product. Another of these meetings will be held in New Orleans on November 11. This gathering will be addressed by Phil Reisman, general sales manager.

At the Chicago session were Phil Reisman, Harry Scott, short subject sales manager; J. F. McAloon, manager of exchange operations; Stanley Angeles were E. J. O'Leary, feature Jacques, central division sales manager, and branch managers. In Los Angeles were L. S. Weir, western sales manager and branch managers.

Dan Michalove, southern division sales manager, will be present at the New Orleans meeting.

Sixty Dates for Vitaphone Pictures in Greater New York in November

THE rapid increase in the number of houses now equipped for Vitaphone is reflected in the announcement this week by Sam E. Morris, General Manager of Distribution for Warner Bros., that there will be more than sixty exhibitions of Vitaphone talking pictures in theatres throughout Greater New York during the month of November.

Three Broadway houses are now devoted to first runs on Vitaphone productions. Al Jolson in "The Singing Fool" continues at the Winter Garden while George M. Cohan's "The Home Towners" is forced in spite of big business to withdraw this month from the Warner Bros. Theatre in order to make room for an all-talking Vitaphone version of Elmer Rice's drama, "On Trial" starring Pauline Frederick with Bert Lytell and Lois Wilson. The Mark-Strand has just presented "The Midnight Taxi" and will show "The Terror" beginning November 10th.

The second subject is much more successful. It is an address by Mr. Leon Gaumont, telling briefly of his researches for more than twenty years in the sound film field, and his pleasure in presenting the present perfected device. The synchronization is flawless, and the clearness of enunciation such that the writer whose comprehension of French is naturally not as quick and intuitive as that of a native, was able to understand every word without difficulty. This number was followed by enthusiastic applause and a buzz of excited comment.

Follows "Toi et Moi," a dramatic scene built around a poem of Paul Gerdal and interpreted by two well known actors. This, too, was clearly understandable.

Fourth is a cello solo, "Sonate," by Henry Eccles-Salmon, and it was here, perhaps, that the device showed up to best advantage, the reproduction being practically perfect.

A Nocturne by Chopin, on the piano, which follows, again shows the synchronization to good advantage, and the tone was, in general, good.

The balance of the program includes an Alsatian scenic with orchestral music; the "Air de Mimi" from "La Vie de Boheme," sung by a soprano; a piano improvisation by a young Czechoslovakian composer; and a street scene in Copenhagen, recording the march of the Royal Guard with its band.

This last subject, incidentally, was markedly inferior to many of the Movietone outdoor recordings which we have heard, and shows that this particular field has been little explored as yet.

After the entr'acte the program continues with an Aubert feature, "L'Eau du Nil," with synchronized orchestral score. This is little developed—a few effects are introduced, such as the grinding of a hand-organ, rushing water, and a desert song, but the possibilities of sound recording have been little applied.

Reviewing the quality of the program as a whole, we should say that it compares favorably, though in no particular excels, that of the Vitaphone programs at the time that device was first launched; reproduction is inferior to several Movietone subjects that we have heard. This may be due to the loud speaker employed, because theoretically the process admits of as perfect sound registration as Movietone or other American processes.

The process is sponsored here by the Societe Francaise des Filmoparlants (Procédes Gaumont, Petersen and Poulsen.) This company includes the French Gaumont firm, the Electrical Fono-Films Company of Copenhagen, and various engineers. The company is authorized to exploit the device in all French-speaking countries, a liberal interpretation of which takes in France, with its colonies and protectorates; Belgium and its colonies; Switzerland; Monaco; Roumania, and Egypt.

The company is, in effect, one to market and exploit apparatus based on a patents pool by a French and a Danish company, the two making possible the present device. The manufacture of apparatus has already commenced, and its commercialization will be pushed rapidly.

Gaumont's Statement

A long interview with Raymond Gaumont makes clear, however, that the plans of the company are similar to those with which Vitaphone started at the inception of that company—namely, the leasing of apparatus, the making of short musical subjects, and the addition of synchronized music scores to features after they are made. There is no intention at present to utilize the enormous possibilities of synchronized sound recording during production.

But just as Vitaphone quickly discovered that musical subjects and scoring represented but a tiny and relatively less important application of the art, it is not unlikely that the same may happen here—especially when sufficient time will have elapsed for some of the newer American subjects to arrive here.

The application in England seems, at the moment, to be more enterprising. It is announced that "Balaclava" will be made for Gainsborough by Maurice Elvey, to be accompanied in part by sound recording by the Danish process being exploited by the International Acoustic Films Company. Details are lacking, however, and may be misleading as to the application to be made.

Next week we shall be able to give the interesting technical details of the G-P-P process.

Fanchon, Marco Will Produce Series of Movietone Short Subjects

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 4.—Fanchon and Marco will produce a series of Movietone short subjects which will be released through Fox. This is coincident with their announcement last week that West Coast and Fanchon and Marco have formed a corporation for the production and staging of theater presentations on the Pacific Coast. Stock in the company will be held jointly by Fanchon and Marco and the theatre operating company.

While the announcement of the new organization was made in regard to producing and staging acts, no mention was made of Fanchon and Marco's entree into the field of Movietone productions. Motion Picture News secured this information exclusively.

The intention is to take these stars and attractions who will be used in their theatre presentations, and use them in specially written and produced Movietone subjects. These Movietone shorts will not resemble in any manner, the stage presentation in which the artist appears. In this way, many new names, under contract to Fanchon and Marco, will be seen in sound films.

Harold B. Franklin, as head of West Coast, is affiliated with Fanchon and Marco in the new corporation. It is capitalized at $1,000,000 with 50 per cent of stock held by West Coast and 50 per cent held by Fanchon and Marco. Through West Coast's affiliation with Fox and its interest in the presentation company, Fanchon and Marco "Ideas," as their prologues are known, will be seen from Coast to Coast.

Bi-Lingual Montreal Adapting Itself to Talkies

PRODUCERS of talking pictures have unconsciously added an entirely new angle to the bi-lingual situation in Montreal, Quebec, where the Palace Theatre has been providing an audible screen since September 1. Montreal is probably the largest two-language city in the world, with more than half of its 980,000 population speaking French and the remainder employing the English tongue.

For years a requirement for silent moving pictures in the Province of Quebec has been that all sub-titles were to be in both English and French, special titles being printed for thousands of pictures because of the regulation. Incidentally, all official publications, notices and other printed matter is printed in both languages. At times there is a real bi-lingual issue.

The introduction of talking pictures has added an entirely new color to the situation in Montreal, and the comment has already been made that the many French residents find themselves faced with the necessity of learning English or do without their favorite film pastimes. It has also been said that Montreal may soon be talking English exclusively, thanks to the talking pictures. Further, it has been pointed out that talking pictures form a very pleasant medium of conversational instruction with the film action indicating the talk a la Berlitz method.

No objection has yet been taken by the French residents of Montreal to the English language as spoken by the film stars, and the Palace Theatre continues to double its gross receipts and more. The Provincial Government probably realizes that bi-lingual films are impossible, and that difficulties would arise in ordering a French-speaking quota of moving pictures for the Province of Quebec. The only possibility in this connection is that some theatres will cater to French residents with all-French speaking films. In the meantime, all Montreal is learning "film English."

O. P. Heggie Signs Year's Paramount Contract

O. P. Heggie, character actor of the legitimate stage, has signed a year's contract to appear in Paramount pictures.

Heggie will appear in three other Paramount pictures in addition to "The Letter," in which he is now working at the Long Island studio.

"The Letter" is Heggie's third venture into moving pictures. Fifteen years ago in London he had the leading role in one of the early British pictures. About a year ago he had a part in the film version of came to the screen titled "The Actress."

Tonefilm Changes Name to Biophone Corp.

Tonefilm Corporation has changed its name to the Biophone Corporation, according to announcement by Alfred Weiss, president of the organization. The change was made because the original title of the company was too similar to that of other companies now in operation.

Biophone, whose device will from now on also be known by that name, will have equipment installed in exchange cities by December 1 for the convenience of exhibitors.

Stage Director Trains "Desert Song" Chorus

Ernest G. Grooney, musical conductor, has been engaged by Warner Bros. to train the chorus of a hundred men and women who furnish the ensemble background in the first Vitaphone operetta, "The Desert Song." Grooney has had charge of rehearsing and conducting many musical successes for the stage, among them "Castles in the Air" and "Lady Be Good." Roy Del Ruth is directing the Vitaphone version of "The Desert Song."

John Barrymore's First to Be "Tavern Knight"

John Barrymore's first Vitaphone all-talking picture will be "The Tavern Knight," by Rafael Sabatini, and one of that author's best known works. It should be a good vehicle for Barrymore as it relates the adventures and romance of a soldier in the service of Charles II when that monarch attempted to regain the throne of England from the parliamentary rule of Oliver Cromwell in the seventeenth century.

New Acoustic Chief for "U" Theatre Chain

Fred A. Flader, general manager of the Universal Chain Theatrical Enterprises, Inc., has appointed H. M. Messiter manager of the Acoustic Department of the "U" Theatre Chain. Messiter will supervise equipment installation and the contracting of synchronized scores and acts for the "U" Chain. Within a short time fifty of its theatres will be running sound and talkie programs.

Paramount Changes Title Barrie All-Talkie

The screen version of the Sir James M. Barrie play, "Half an Hour," which Paramount is making with Ruth Chatterton, H. B. Warner and Robert Edeson heading the cast and William C. de Mille directing, is to reach the public under the title of "The Doctor's Secret."

Production has been under way by Paramount for two weeks.

U. A. Theatre in Los Angeles Adopts Prolog

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, October 15.—The slogan of the non-presentation theatre, "the picture's the thing" was sharply challenged by one of its strongest supporters recently. The United Artists Theatre, Los Angeles, which opened on the basis propounded by that slogan, adds prologs to its programs October 17. Heretofore the house has confined itself to a policy of all-motion pictures, supplemented occasionally by a soloist or specialty, but never going strong for elaborate or pretentious revues or even the playing of "name" appearances.

The change in policy, adding presentations, goes into effect with the opening of Norma Talmadge in "The Woman Disputed." Hal Horne, who was recently appointed managing director for the house, will supervise the staging of the prologs. He intends to make them revue style entertainments, similar to those made popular on the West Coast by Larry Ceballos in Warner's Hollywood Theatre, thus eliminating entirely the stage bands and masters-of-ceremonies.

Maxwell Shane has become publicity director for the house. He was formerly attached to Columbia's West Coast studios in a similar capacity. William Henry will assist him.

Universal to Make Harry Reichenbach Story

The story of a young man who recently got his name in the headlines by becoming a stowaway on board a trans-atlantic zeppelin, will serve as a future movie on the Universal program, it is planned. P. D. Cochrane, secretary of Universal, decided to call the story "The Stowaway," while Harry, Reichenbach, press representative for the Colony theatre in New York, conceived the plot. The story was quickly registered and sent to the coast where it will be made with sound synchronization and accompaniment.

Newspapers Get Second Vitaphone Ad Smash

The second volley of Vitaphone advertising in big city newspapers began this week when two more full-page advertisements were nationally released. The first series of Vitaphone ads plugged Al Jolson in "The Singing Fool" and other Warner features but this second series will be confined to institutional copy on Vitaphone. One hundred and seven dailies will carry the copy for the second series.

New Vitaphone Branch in Cleveland, Ohio

Vitaphone's seventh branch distributing station was opened recently in Cleveland, Ohio. The new point will service Cleveland, Cincinnati, Detroit and intervening cities.

Three or four more Vitaphone distribution offices will be opened in the United States shortly, it is thought. At the present time they are located at New York, Chicago, Atlanta, Dallas, Philadelphia and San Francisco.

New Bristolphone Corporation Combines All Interests

THE various interests identified with

Bristolphone sound producing and reproducing devices have come to an amicable understanding, as a result of which a new company will be organized as a combination of all of these interests. It is reported that this company will be a ten million dollar corporation through arrangement with Hayden-Stone Co., bankers of New York. That first part of the announcement was forthcoming from P. L. Deutsch, president of Acoustic Products Company and the Sonora Phonograph Company, Inc. According to the plan agreed upon, Acoustic Products Company has the right to acquire full rights and interest of the William H. Bristol Talking Picture Corporation, the Gotham Bristolphone Service Corporation and the Lesser-Warner Productions in the world-wide Bristolphone patents.

As soon as arrangements are completed, the statement says, Acoustic Products will take over all the contracts which the Gotham Bristolphone Corporation and the Lesser-Warner Company have outstanding for the distribution of Bristolphone machines, and all outstanding licenses for producing pictures with sound under the Bristol patents.

When the new corporation is formed Charles E. Rogers will be actively engaged in the managerial end. The corporation will probably combine the names of Sonora with Bristolphone, and will have exclusive distributing rights on the Sonora Bristolphone for the entire world. The company, it is also said, will have the sole rights for the licensing of producers to employ the Bristol process of synchronizing sound with pictures. The Acoustic Products Company will manufacture the machines which the new company will sell and service.

It is the hope of the new organization by licensing of producers to have an output of from 50 to 60 feature pictures a year in addition to a program of 104 short subjects planned for production during the next twelve months. Present plans call for the production of pictures by Asher, Small and Rogers, by the Gotham Bristolphone Photoplays Corporation, Lesser-Warner Co.

The corporation plans to supply at least 250 Sonora Bristolphones a month, ready for installation in picture houses.

Powers Ready to Launch First Cinephone Production

EASTERN production activities continue to expand, the latest producing company to launch a program being the Powers Cinephone Studios, located in the heart of New York's theatrical district at the headquarters of the Powers Cinephone Equipment Corporation. The entire upper floor of the Powers Building at 48th Street and 7th Avenue is now being reconstructed as a sound-proof studio for the production of sound pictures and the synchronizing of subjects made in unequipped studios.

One stage is already completed, with sets, lighting equipment and apparatus for producing by the sound-on-film method already installed. Work on the first subject to be produced will be started within a week, it is announced.

The first production, it is said, will be a sound picture version of a current Broadway stage success, with a cast made up of stage celebrities, who will perform under the direction of Harry Revier, veteran stage and screen director, who has been signed by Mr. Powers to serve in this capacity.

While not ready to disclose the title of the play selected for sound production, nor to state whether it is a musical or straight dramatic vehicle, Mr. Powers said the musical score for the new play has already been adapted for synchronization.

Mr. Powers has been busy building up his production organization and is now ready to proceed without further delay. In addition to Harry Revier, who will direct, Mr. Powers has signed Jack Livingston as production manager, and James Bradford to arrange the musical scores. Both have long been identified with the motion picture industry.

"On Trial" Premiere November 14th

WARNER BROS. will have another all-talkie world premiere on Broadway the evening of November 14, when "On Trial" will be presented at the Warner Theatre for the first time. The screen adaptation is from the Broadway stage success of the same name by Elmer Rice. It was first presented by George M. Cohan and Sam Harris in 1914 when it enjoyed a run of forty-six weeks.

The Vitaphone production of "On Trial" was directed by Archie Mayo and stars Pauline Frederick with Bert Lytell and Lois Wilson. The cast also includes Holmes Herbert, Richard Tucker, Jason Robards, Edmund Breese and Vondell Darr.

Montagne Writes Vehicle for Laura La Plante

E. J. Montagne, scenario editor for Universal, has written an original drama for Laura La Plante entitled "The Compromise." Production will start around the first of the year. The story is now being put into scenario form by Charles Kenyon. No director has been definitely chosen as yet.

:: "The Check-Up" ::

"The Check-Up" is a presentation in the briefest and most convenient form of reports received from exhibitors in every part of the country on current features, which makes it possible for the exhibitor to see what the picture has done for other theatre managers.

The first column following the name of the feature represents the number of managers that have reported the picture as "Poor." The second column gives the number who consider it "Fair"; the third, the number who consider it "Good"; and the fourth column, those who consider it "Big."

The fifth column is a percentage figure giving the average rating on that feature, obtained by the following method: A report of "Poor" is rated at 20%; one of "Fair," 40%; "Good," 70%; and "Big," 100%. The percentage ratings of all of these reports on one picture are then added together, and divided by the number of reports, giving the average percentage—a figure which represents the consensus of opinion on that picture. In this way exceptional cases, reports which might be misleading taken alone, and such individual differences of opinion are averaged up and eliminated.

No picture is included in the list which has not received at least ten reports.

Cameramen Organized 100 Per Cent

Holdout Members Join; New Wage Scale Under Way

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 7.—The newly-formed cameramen's union, which is affiliated with the I. A. T. S. E., this week declared that 100 per cent membership had now been attained, the twelve first cameramen who had not joined now having become members. The membership embraces workers in all branches of film production.

Announcement was also made that previous to the affiliation of the twelve new members, all cameramen employed by the Fox studios had joined. These men, as a studio group, had held out from joining the organization, but finally capitulated and took up the regular union cards.

The union collected questionnaires from all members, getting data on salaries, number of weeks employed during the past year, hours worked, weekly contract or free lance, and also covering all other details. The union will use this data in negotiations for minimum wage scale when new international agreement discussions get under way.

It was stated that representatives of the union will go East in order to be present during negotiations between representatives of the five internationals associated with the theatrical business and members of the Hays organization. A new agreement between the latter organization and union representatives will have to be negotiated to replace the present one, which expires on November 28. It is likely that the I. A. T. S. E. executives will present to Hays and his organization a demand for a minimum wage scale for the various classes of cameramen working in Coast studios, together with provision for overtime. Under present conditions first cameramen in the studios receive salaries ranging from $75 a week upwards with no overtime.

The union minimum wage under consideration is $250 weekly, plus overtime for first cameramen. Second cameramen, assistants and still photographers would also work under a minimum scale with overtime provisions.

addition to staging the tale as a playlet for many years in the legitimate theatre. Sam Jacobson, Universal's West Coast publicity director, will supervise the production. Jacobson is responsible for the origination and production of the "Laemmle Novelties."

Universal intends to have "A Christmas Carol" set for release in time for the forthcoming holidays. There is also a possibility of its being reissued yearly as a seasonal attraction.

Gilstrom with Christie

Arvid Gilstrom is now directing "Melancholy Dame" for the Christies on their newly completed sound stage in the Metropolitan Studios. It is one of the Octavius Roy Cohen short stories. Gilstrom, to insure proper sound-direction, spent the past month in a school of electrical research.

Denny to the Rescue

Reginald Denny's yen for any form of athletics has resulted in his purchase last week of the "Hollywood Merchants," a local semi-pro league team. The team recently hit into financial difficulties, whereupon Reg came to the rescue. They now have changed their name to "Reginald Denny Hollywood Stars."

Carewe Back in Hollywood

"Evangeline," which is Edwin Carewe's next production starring Dolores Del Rio, goes into actual shooting next week. Carewe returned to Hollywood from his European trip last week. Miss Del Rio, who also toured Europe, is due in the film colony Nov. 10. Meanwhile Finis Fox has completed the script and adaptation of the Longfellow poem.

Turner Promoted

N. O. Turner has been promoted to the post of San Francisco booker and assistant to Arch M. Bowles for the West Coast Theatres. Turner fills the post vacated by Charles M. Thall who became Seattle Division Manager. Heretofore Turner has been manager of West Coast's Stockton, Calif., theatres.

Cannon's Second

Raymond Cannon's second production for Fox will be "Tragedy," which he also wrote. Cannon recently completed direction of "A Slice of Life," which was his first for Fox.

"The Cock-Eyed World"

"The Cock-Eyed World" announced over a year ago by Fox as a sequel to "What Price Glory?" is finally in preparation and will be the next production directed by Raoul Walsh. Walsh is practically fully recovered from his recent eye injury.

Victor McLaglen and Edmund Lowe, male leads of "What Price Glory?" will head the cast of "The Cock-Eyed World." The story has been written by Wilson Mizner, Carl Harbaugh and Raoul Walsh. It was originally slated to be written by Laurence Stallings, co-author of "What Price Glory?"

Another girl, not yet cast, will be seen in the female lead. It had been intended, a year ago, to use Dolores Del Rio again, but now she is not available.

"U" Starts Dickens Talkie

Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" goes into production next week at Universal in the form of a two-reel Movietone. It will be made under the direction of Tom Terris, who also will play the role of "Scrooge." Terris has appeared in this character in

New Clause Forbids Dialogue "Double"

Must Have Written Consent from Actor If One Is Used

FILM producers cannot "double" a film actor's voice in dialogue pictures without the player's written permission, according to a new clause added to the free lance actor standard contract, and adopted by the Producer and Actor branches of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

This important clause in the contract will prevent producers from engaging a player for a picture part, and then decide to dialogue the production with substitute players speaking the lines. It will prevent producers from making a "talker" in English, and then attempting to translate the dialogue into French, German or Spanish, by engaging "voices" to speak the particular languages in place of the registered English. Even though all but one player in a "talker" would consent to such a substitution, the one player could hold up the dialogue translation of the production entirely. Producing executives have discussed the feasibility of "voice" substitution to translate talking pictures into other languages, but the new clause will prevent such an attempt.

Another vital point brought out by the added clause provides that any voice registration in connection with the making of a picture, is to be used solely for synchronization with that particular production, and cannot be cut into any other film at any time. This will prevent a studio from having a player sing or recite a selection in front of the camera a number of times, and then use the cut-outs for two or three productions over the period of a year or more.

Another point which the clause clears up is that of payment for time consumed in rehearsal of talk for a picture. Provision is made that players receive full salary while engaged in rehearsals of dialogue for the picture the contract covers.

Employment Bureau

The Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Southern California are establishing an employment bureau for the convenience of its members. They intend, through this bureau, to supply all members with organists, operators, managers, cashiers, in fact all types of employees even to ushers. Listings will be made at the office of the association where exhibitors can telephone their needs instead of hunting employees themselves.

New Sea Melodrama for Rayart

Next to Rayart's Box Office Twenty to go into production at Mack Sennett Studios is "Ships of the Night." Producer Trem Carr has lined up a cast headed by Jacqueline Logan, Sojin, Arthur Rankin, Andy Clyde, Glen Cavender, J. P. McGowan, Frank Moran and Tom Curran. Shooting starts this week under the direction of Duke Worne.

New Vitaphone Talkie

Archie Mayo is to make Leon Zurado's "She Knew Men." Graham Baker has

Mac Lean Had Case of "Mike Fright"

"MIKE FRIGHT" caused Douglas MacLean no end of "imagine my embarrassments" last week. MacLean suddenly became very "talkie conscious" while shooting talking scenes for "The Carnation Kid" on the Metropolitan sound studio. His reaction was the result of suddenly looking up into the glass windows surrounding the monitor room and noticing a visitor present. The visitor happened to be the guest of one of the studio officials who was escorting him about the new stage.

MacLean grew confused in his lines and refused to continue until the visitor left. Incidentally Doug made some remarks anent the visitor in which he thought was a low voice. The microphone, however, picked everything up and amplified it several times in the monitor, which is present just for that purpose. Hence the visitor heard what MacLean had to say louder than MacLean said it. And there was much excitement.

just finished the script. Edward Everett Horton and Betty Bronson have been chosen for the leads and John T. Murray for one of the principal roles.

Denny and "U"

Reginald Denny will continue as a Universal star for another year, all other reports to the contrary. Denny and Universal executives reached a new agreement last week, following the expiration of Denny's last contract.

Dotty Jottings

By Jerry Hoffman

IT'S been a big week for Hollywood . . . with two openings . . . "Noah's Ark" at Grauman's Chinese and "Interference" at the Carthay Circle . . . a great week for the laundries and a tough one for the bird with only one dress shirt. . . "Interference" is the picture reported dedicated to production supervisors . . . however, aside from the cast and the picture itself . . . I'm tickled over the break Evelyn Brent gets . . . this is not at the expense of others in the cast . . . but Betty is splendid, and she's such a regular feller . . . Betty, by the way, being Evelyn. . .

SOME producers have a trick of scowring players towards the expiration of their contracts . . . the players are ignored in every manner . . . aren't cast in pictures . . . and spoken to very coldly by studio executives . . . the idea being to make the artist think the company isn't going to renew the contract . . . and also to get them to accept the new contract when the time comes . . . without the raise in salary . . . one company made the mistake of pulling it on a player who was married to an executive . . . and she knew all the tricks and laughed it off . . .

WITH Robert Milton staging pictures at Paramount . . . and Jimmy Gleason in Hollywood . . . together with the craze over sound pictures . . . the story can be revised here about the time Milton was putting on a play in which Gleason appeared . . . Milton is very fussy about tone and enunciation, and he impressed his cast with how he wanted words spoken . . .

"Now, Mr. Gleason," he said, "in your next lines—I want to hear a 'pear-shaped' tone. Do you understand? A pear-shaped tone."

"Yes, Mr. Milton," replied Jimmy, "but which end of the pear do you want first? . . .

MAURICE CHEVALIER was introduced to the local scribes at a luncheon in the Roosevelt Hotel last week . . . seems to be a nice guy and very clever . . . at any rate he impressed all with a fine personality and excellent sense of showmanship. . .

WILLIAM DE MILLE has completed "The Doctor's Secret" . . . nee "Half-Hour," and is yachting at Catalina . . . "Hool" Gibson and Director B. Reeves Eason are hunting in the Big Bear Mountains . . . 's a tough existence . . . E. H. Griffith has started production on "The Shady Lady," starring Phyllis Haver . . . which reminds me . . . Opinions on Pictures

Man, Woman and Wife You've Seen Its Like a Score of Times (Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

THERE'S no hiding the light under a bushel in this story—the title of which clearly indicates a triangle. And as it unfolds and develops, one can easily say "old stuff." Now the eternal situation has always been with us—and will continue to be with us whether it concerns reality or make-believe. Ordinarily it can be done exceptionally well. But when it hasn't much conflict, action and suspense there's nothing that can give it a great deal of recommendation.

This particular triangle is very obvious—very cut-and-dried in its plot, with everything shaping it into dramatic form being conventional. The idea revolves around an unhappily married woman whose husband goes to war and is reported killed in action. So the natural thing for her to do is wed again. What follows is a situation which has served the screen and the stage and the story-book world countless times. The report of the husband's death is false. But since he is a no-account he is checked out conveniently. Serving a term in prison he tries to escape and is killed.

The picture has been mounted fairly well, though many of the settings look artificial. It is well cast—though the players don't extract much dramatic stuff from it.

Drawing Power: Title has a lure about it. Suitable for average trade. Exploitation Angles: Tease the title and bill as domestic drama featuring two of the prettiest women on the screen; namely, Pauline Starke and Marion Nixon.

THEME: Domestic drama based on eternal triangle with unhappy wife marrying again and finding happiness when husband dies.

Produced and distributed by Universal. Length, six reels. Released, November, 1928. Director, Edward Laemmle.

Show Girl

Peppy Picture and Sure to Please Them

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

WHILE First National's presentation of J. P. McEvoy's story doesn't hit the bull's-eye so accurately—the characterization not being so sound still it carries a punch, plenty of color—and incident—and shapes up as something sure to please them. The author's wisecracks seemed to us to be clicking all the way in the original. While many of them are reproduced here, there are times when the title-writer tries to improve on McEvoy. The result, then, is not so good.

The picture like the story, carries many, many laughs. And no one more suited for the title role than Alice White could possibly be found. She is the wise, little chorine to the life—pert in manner, and possessing the personality necessary to the correct interpretation of the role. She has plenty of appeal. She has what might be called for want of a more appropriate name, a Fisher body—and a Fisher body is supposed to be the last word in trimness and style.

The story hasn't so much plot. It is strung together on its characterization and its wisecracks. So Alice White steps out and does her stuff—making the boys eat out of her hand—and that includes a dub of a salesman (the traveling type) and a sugar daddy or two—as well as a young cub reporter who knows how to talk "turkey" to the girl. And he's the boy who wins.

The picture is well mounted—it shows some chorus ensembles. It is crowded with incident—and its sound effects shape up as entirely satisfactory—the sounds registering a couple of solos and the girls helping out. You should please the fans with this number.

Drawing Power: Title and personality of star. O. K. for any type of house. Exploitation Angles: Tease the title. Bill as smart picture of wisecracking chorus girl. Play up the show angle. Bill Alice White.

THEME: Comedy-Romance of chorus girl who kids her men friends but eventually falls in love with youth.

Produced and distributed by First National. Length, six reels. Released, November, 1928. Director, Al Santell.

"Be My King"

(Educational—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

THIS is the best Lupino Lane comedy the writer has seen to date. It is extremely funny, its comedy situations are handled with rare skill and the performances of the star and his brother, Wallace Lupino, offer a horde of opportunities for laughter.

This reviewer remembers the first Lane comedy that he saw in a projection room. It was "His Private Life" and it was very, very funny. Lane has several other successful comedies to his credit and only a few weeks ago the writer saw an exceptionally good one, "Fisticuffs." But this new one he unrestrainedly declares the best of the lot.

The clever work is well directed and interpreted, smooth in its action and continuity, containing many high-explosive laughs on the one hand and worthwhile, subtle little flashes on the other. Both of these different types of humor are efficient as this comedy will bear out. Lane, no doubt, has much to say about his vehicles which possess individual touches that are not in the portfolio of the average gag man. This number has class.

The story shows the brothers wrecked on a tropical isle inhabited by cannibals. They fall into the clutches of the man-eaters but by employing guile they escape the pot. Their antics are rich, effervescent and extremely intelligent. You'll have to keep a score board for the variety of laughs they produce.

The Woman from Moscow Negri in a Heavy, Sombre Drama—Fair

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

SARDOU'S "Fedora" has been given a new monicker in its screen dress. Several years ago it was filmed and at this day it looks old-fashioned despite the costly production given it. It becomes draggy in its exposition of melodrama as it concerns Russian nobles, Nihilist plottings—and the sentiment which always accompanies time-worn situations.

But pictorially it is exceptionally good—the settings being rich and impressive. The director has very evidently tried to bring it up to date through the settings and costumes. These in a way take the sting off it—but no amount of expensive dressing can overcome the plot which is heavy and tiresome—and the acting which is as old-fashioned as the story. The interpretation is very much old school.

So Pola, in a role wherein she has to suffer and suffer, never rings genuine. The character is too stilted—too much of the type which went big back in Bernhardt's day. So the situations which she has to enact don't become her. They are too out of date.

Drawing Power: Negri still has a following. Play her up in picture which once served Sarah Bernhardt on the stage. Suitable for all theatres except those in factory districts. Exploitation Angles: Play up Negri whose appearance here is last before she set sail for Europe. Feature Norman Kerry. Bill as screen version of Bernhardt play, "Fedora," written by Sardou.

Produced and distributed by Paramount. Length, six reels. Released, November, 1928. Director, Ludwig Berger.

"Hot or Cold"

(Educational—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

THIS Mermaid comedy goes collegiate with good results. Headed by Al St. John the cast does uniformly good work. In the company of Estelle Bradley, Harold Goodwin, Eva Thatcher, Robert Graves and Al Thompson, Al cuts up like a real inmate and dishes out nuttiness with freedom. His vehicle is fast and snappy, has its share of slapstick and is quite capable of successfully carrying out the job of making an audience laugh. Stephen Roberts is credited with the direction of the frolics.

The college boys and girls are assembled for a get-together dance. Al and Harold have a private feud which grows more intense as the dance progresses, finally winding up in a free-for-all snow fight.

St. John is particularly effective in a scene where the assembled guests expect him to say a few words and where, instead, he meets much embarrassment because of rebellious clothes.

"All Parts"

(M-G-M-Roach—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

CHARLEY CHASE stars in this new laugh skit from the Hal Roach studio. It's a good one.

Nina Quartaro, Gale Henry and Ed Kennedy have supporting roles. The quartet are involved in a little drama, laughably presented in which they all have splendid chances to put over some good comedy. Chase has an able companion artist in Kennedy, who is also an excellent foil for Charley's high class brand of fun.

The story has some fine points. Gale Henry, wife of Kennedy, has her face lifted. A ravishingly pretty girl is mistaken by Charley and Kennedy as the wife, newly endowed with youthful beauty through the surgeon's skill. Miss Henry is blissfully unaware that another woman has been mistaken for her. Kennedy becomes very proud of the supposed wife and Charley becomes smitten with her. This leads to a lot of complications that crystalized into real laughs. The gentle satire rises to a climax where Kennedy and Charley decide that one of them must die because they both are desperately in love with the lady they mistake as Kennedy's wife. A lot of complications and a lot of laughter.

There are ideas in these Roach comedies, ideas that are valuable for comedy. These ideas are handled with skill by the Roach outfit and their possibilities seldom go to waste under the able direction and work of the comedy constructors. Patrons who appreciate a high class, sophisticated comedy will undoubtedly be tickled by this one.

"Murder Will Out"

(Educational—Two Reels)

VERNON DENT, a comedian with ability, is featured in this Cameo comedy, purely slapstick and appropriate material for the neighborhood screens. Jules White directed and Georgia Dell, Al Thompson, Ford West and Jackie Levine are supporting players.

Of course in a piece of this type there are mostly falls and tumbles, bodily mix-ups, and general roughhouse. The story has to do with a hubby who tries to fool his wife that he is sick and is consequently treated by a pair of doctors who claim he is the victim of various ailments.—RAYMOND GANLY.

Dry MartiniFairly Interesting But Not Very Heavy

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

IT isn't a very meaty picture—is this "Dry Martini," but it doesn't make any pretensions of being something extraordinary. It has a slight little yarn which it tells without exacting any work from one's brain cells. The idea is rather original in that it exploits a giddy papa who tries to hide his sins from his daughter. But the girl has some modern ideas, too. So much so that she tries to go through with a companionate marriage. The girl has an admirer—a young man who joins forces with the daddy to prevent the girl from carrying out her designs. But the youth doesn't fare so well in the end even though he becomes reconciled to her.

The picture has pep enough, but it never seems to get going on the promise of the early footage. It carries a fine production—is well cast and the incident is dashed off speedily enough. But it doesn't get very far in arousing one's interest. The piece will afford amusement without making screen history as something out of the way.

The best feature is the sound accompaniment. The score is perfectly synchronized. And the acting is up to requirements, Mary Astor as the daughter, Albert Gran as the daddy, and Matt Moore as the boy friend giving well-rounded performances.

Drawing Power: Cast and title. Should prove entertaining in majority of houses. Exploitation Angeles: Tease the title and bill as romantic comedy, thoroughly sophisticated in design. Mention players.

THEME: Comedy-romance of daughter who is as peppy as her daddy. How she outwits him proves to be the crux of the plot.

Produced and distributed by Fox. Length, six reels. Released, November, 1928. Director, Harry D'Arrast.

"Pathe Review No. 45"

(Pathe—One Reel)

THIS is a good entertaining Pathe Review reel, that carries a strong appeal, especially for the women folks. The film presents as its highlight a Parisian fashion featurette, giving an intimate pictorial interview with Paul Poiret, noted master of style creation in Paris. Scenes are shown of the famous Poiret at home with his children and at his elaborate fashion Salon in Paris. Other sequences calling for mention in this subject are: "Brown Autumn," a beautiful Pathe study of the effects of Fall weather on the average farm, and "The Minister Gull," showing the wariest of sea birds in their habitat.—GEORGE J. REDDY.

"A Polar Flight"

(Pathe—One Reel)

CARTOONIST PAUL TERRY has taken the "Polar Flight" idea for his theme in this Aesop Film Fable, and has done some fine work in penning the humorous adventures of Farmer Al and the animal characters in their endeavors to fly to the top of the world. This reel is crammed-full with the talented cartoonist's clever brand of animation, and as usual will please all types of audiences.—GEORGE J. REDDY.

The rumor is out that the K & F Amusement Company, owners of a chain of some twenty theatres in the Denver district, are about to acquire four more theatres, all located in Cheyenne. This means the Carl Ray theatres, namely, Princess, Atlas and Capitol, and the Lincoln Theatre, which is owned and operated by the Plains Theatre Corporation, will pass to the ownership of the K & F Amusement Company, and that this company will then control all the motion picture houses in Cheyenne.

New England

SUCCESSES THREE!

This is a three-ply report on a trinity of Educational two-reelers that are actual feature pictures of definite box-office value and it's by way of a top-off to exhibitors on three entertainment bets that will please the high, the middle and the low. Well, here they go:

"THE QUIET WORKER"—Educational—Ideal comedy, director Charles Lamont, featuring Jerry Drew, with Betty Boyd (a pip), Estelle Bradley (another good 'un), Eddie Featherstone and Stanley Blystone. Production by Jack White. This is a fast-moving story of a bridal couple on a honeymoon aboard ship with all the pretty bridesmaids and a lot of the pretty slicker and a monke. It is funny all through and the feminine beauty trimmings should delight the most fastidious. A thoroughly acceptable comedy.

"THE SKY RANGER," starring Reed Howes as Russ Farrell, aviator. Cast features Marjorie Daw (easy to look at), Tom Sant-schi as a villain, Roy Stewart, Henry Barrows and Bobby Dunn. Director Harry J. Brown from the "Russ Farrell" flying stories in The American Boy Magazine by Thomson Burtis. This is a thriller—an air story of daredevil feats that raise the hair and slip a pleasant shiver up the spinal column. It deals with smugglers and the Border Patrol and that boy Reed Howes does his own dangerous stuff without a double. An absolute entertainment cocktail to go with any show! It's likely to prove much better than the big feature. Recommended without reservation as a knockout. There are to be six of these and this is No. 1.

"PIRATES BEWARE," a Lupino Lane comedy starring Lupino Lane. Director, Henry W. George. Featuring in the cast Wallace Lupino and Betty Boyd—ooh, wotta go!! This is an ingenious, bell-ringing comedy almost stripped for action and Lupino Lane better than his absolute best. It has stunts of natural acrobatics and running series of fights that are breathless and unique. No better acted comedy has come to our view in many a day. It has the comedy IT that without which no fun offering clicks. This is of highest quality and that's the highest praise we know. Recommended absolutely as a money-maker that will entrance audiences.

It's refreshing to see three in a row all in one day and be able to unqualifiedly endorse all three. We couldn't do anything else. No wonder E. W. Hammons is smiling every time he thinks of product. ARTHUR JAMES

DEVELOPING AND PRINTING MOTION PICTURE FILM

Canada

A MORE or less startling development at Montreal, Quebec, has been the action of Manager H. W. Conover in forsaking a policy of two-a-day vaudeville exclusively at the Imperial Theatre and returning to a continuous combination program starting November 4.

When the Province of Quebec adopted the law prohibiting children from attending a theatre where moving pictures were shown, Manager Conover dropped films and adopted an all-vaudeville bill, all seats being reserved. This was a real bid for family patronage and it was successful until the constitutionality of the new law was questioned, the statute becoming inoperative. The Imperial has now returned to pictures.

BROADWAY went Sound last week. Every theatre, with the exception of the small Cameo on 42nd street, had something in the way of sound pictures to offer but all in all it was just an average week as far as business was concerned. With Election day but a week off, the usual interest in the presidential campaign undoubtedly hurt the week's receipts at most houses. The several candidates could be heard over radio at every turn of the dial. The weather was favorable.

"The Singing Fool" (W. B.) at Warners, again held to record-breaking business. No sign of any let up here where, what is spoken of as "the biggest money-picture of the time," is showing at $1 to $3 admission—and seats selling in advance.

The Capitol, with a second week of Chaney's "While the City Sleeps," (M-G-M) did fair business but could not hold to the mark for the first week and the Roxy, with "Mother Knows Best" (Fox) was also down a bit lower than usual. Just fair business for the big house. Pictures at the Paramount for the past few weeks have not been any too hot as real box office and this house has also been behind its usual gait. The week's offering was "Varsity" (Par). Again, just fair business. The Colony, with "Melody of Love" (U) also felt depression in its second week and let go. "Man Woman and Wife" is in.

"Wings" (Par) showed its strength at the Rialto during its first week at popular prices and will undoubtedly stay there for several weeks. There are many repeaters showing up for this picture. As stated last week, "The Wedding March" will finish its run the current week to make way for the latest Norma Talmadge picture, "The Woman Disputed." Von Stroheim's "Wedding March" grossed better during its four weeks' stay at the Rivoli than many predicted and all in all did very fair. The Cameo finished a three week's run of "Three Comrades and 1 Invention" to nice trade for the entire run. Tiffany-Stahl's "Cavalier" spent the week at the Embassy, as advertised, and on a short week did fair business. Newspaper critics were not too kind about this picture, one of them even insisting that it was burlesque—but believe this writer that no producer would ever attempt to put over anything as subtle as that with a theme such as "Cavalier." "Marriage by Contract," another Tiffany-Stahl feature and given excellent reviews by the trade press, is in the current week. The Strand had "Midnight Taxi" and this picture did very well. Previous to its showing, an excellent talking trailer with Moreno, nicely paved the way for a good week's business.

Warner's all-talkie, "Home Towners," while not causing any excitement like the "Singing Fool," has no reason to complain. Business steady for the past two weeks. At the Gaiety "Four Devils" (Fox) is also doing a satisfactory business and bids to stay out the month. M-G-M's "White Shadows" is going right along in the money class at the Astor, but, as announced last week, will soon be succeeded by "Alias Jimmy Valentine." First National's "Lilac Time" also had a fair week's trade.

Philadelphia

"THE TERROR." Warner Brothers' second 100 per cent talking picture, lined them up at the Stanley last week without much aid from the surrounding features, which consisted principally of a number of songs by Tom Waring, formerly of Waring's Pennsylvanians.

Al Jolson, in "The Singing Fool," continued to draw capacity audiences in its fifth week at the Aldine, with a long queue at each evening performance, but was withdrawn at the end of the week and booked into the Stanley for the week of November 12th. It is estimated that in the neighborhood of 200,000 patrons saw the picture at the Albee.

"Wings" came to the Stanton direct from the Stanley and again attracted large audiences.

"Dry Martini," a good surrounding bill, featuring Jack Osterman, Moss & Frye, and Martha Vaughn, brought only fair business to the Fox this week.

At the Little Theatre "The Cabinet of Dr. Caligari" had a very successful second week, but was withdrawn at the end of the week.

At the Fox-Locust, "Mother Knows Best" is proving very remunerative, and because of its drawing power will be held over for another week.

At the Carman, "The Perfect Crime" and an elaborate and diversified stage show, "Harvest Days," were responsible for a good week's business.

The Karlton, with "The Man Who Laughs," was well patronized.

The Forum had an average week with "The Hawk's Nest" and a stage show, "The Power of Music," featuring the famous Marimba Band.

Chicago

HOLD-OUTS continue to be the rule at McVickers Theatre, where "The Singing Fool" will probably be found to have made a new house record upon the completion of its run, the end of which is not yet in sight.

"Mother Knows Best" had a good week at the Roosevelt, where a Fox Movietone comedy also was a pleasing feature of the program. The Oriental had fair business, "The Perfect Crime" being the feature picture, and Paul Ash and his gang in "Pickin' Peaches" on the stage. "The Woman Disputed" completed its run at United Artists Theatre to fair business, giving way to "Revenge" on Friday. The first two days of the latter's showing went over big.

"Wings," recreated in sound, was the production at the Tivoli, Fox Movietone News and Bennie Kreuger also being on the program, the box office turning in a good report for the week. The same feature was shown at the Uptown with Movietone News and Verne Buck and his orchestra heading the stage bill, where business was also good.

"Tempest" drew well at the Paradise Theatre, where Red Grange made a personal appearance. The talking picture, "Women They Talk About," Charles Kaley in "Sparkles of 1928," and Francis X. Bushman in person, went over big at the Marbro Theatre. This picture was also the screen attraction at the Granada, where Benny Meroff, with his stage band and a big show, continued to pull the big crowds this house has recently been enjoying.

"Moran of the Marines" held the screen at the Capitol Theatre, and, backed by an elaborate stage program, had an average week, while the Avalon was enjoying big business with "Our Dancing Daughters."

Cleveland

WITH weather conditions favorable, and film attractions well above the average, business was good here last week, but not startlingly so. Diagnosis of the situation reveals the possibility that the motion picture fan hasn't the money to go to three or four shows a week, so that all of the theatres get their share, but none of them are taxed to take care of the overflow. If the pictures were not as good as they are, and the sound movies didn't draw so well, there appears to be well grounded thought that the picture business would not be up to average.

"The King of Kings" playing its first local popular priced engagement, played to big business at the Hippodrome, opening to 10,686 people. Needless to say it is being held over another week.

"Wings" closed its fourth week at the Stillman holding up well to the very last performance. This was the 17th week of "Wings" in Cleveland, having previously played a record road show engagement of seventeen weeks.

"The Wind" did well at the Allen. The picture produced opposed opinions as to its entertainment value. Many thought it depressing. All agreed that it is an artistic masterpiece.

"The First Kiss" was well liked and well patronized last week at the State. Interesting and entertaining, was the verdict. Gary Cooper gains in local popularity.

"Mother Machree" played to big houses both matinee and evening at Keith's Palace. A box office hit, with strong audience appeal that makes unusually good popular entertainment.

"The River Pirate," a tale of New York's waterfront, was well liked because of its human attributes. It did satisfactory business and won new laurels for Victor McLaglen. It was shown at Keith's East 105th St. the first half of the week. "Win That Girl," the attraction the last half of the week, proved diverting and did nice business.

"The Wedding March," playing its first neighborhood engagement at the Park was a great success and business was fine.

"Beggars of Life" shown the last half of week, and inaugurating the Vitaphone installation in the theatre, played to large crowds.

"The Midnight Taxi" held up most satisfactory to the very end of its two weeks run at the Cameo.

Indianapolis

DROP of the mercury here last week continued to boost downtown theatre box receipts. All downtown houses did pleasing business due to the general pick up in theatre going and the better type of pictures brought here by sound policy.

George Bancroft in "The Docks of New York," brought a good week's return at the Indiana.

The Circle, another Skouras-Publix house drew heavily with "Wings" in its second week.

Norma Talmadge, in "The Woman Disputed," picked up over the previous week.

Al Jolson in "The Jazz Singer" continued to draw capacity audiences in its fourth week's run at the Apollo.

Neighborhood houses got their share of the increase.

Albany

"STATE STREET SADIE," running for the week at the Mark Ritz, in Albany, easily commanded first attention from the standpoint of business and played to capacity crowds each afternoon and evening, with lines standing each night. It was the first week of the Vitaphone at the Ritz, and although prices were jumped, this fact apparently made no difference to the thousands who flocked to the theatre not only for the feature, but for an extremely interesting and well balanced bill of entertainment.

The Strand used Ronald Colman and Vilma Banky in "Two Lovers" to what might be termed satisfactory business, although nothing exceptional by any means. This house also used a couple of Vitaphone presentations, as well as the Movietone News.

The Leland slumped during the week with "Win That Girl," although nights witnessed well filled houses, though it marked contrast to the mobs that have been packing this theatre during the fall.

The Clinton Square used its program of double features during the week, including "So This is Love," and "Top Sergeant Muligan."

The carnival crowd on Hallowe'en night cut into business at the downtown houses but did not noticeably affect the neighborhood theatres.

Proctor's Grand in Albany found "Baby Peggy" in person as a good business getter for the latter part of the week. In the neighborhood city of Troy, "Our Dancing Daughters," running for four days at the Troy theatre, proved a disappointment from the standpoint of business done. For some unknown reason the picture did not draw. The house was only fairly well filled, with the exception of Sunday night, when there was the usual crowd. The last of the week was given over to "The Whip" and this picture seemed to please the Troy crowds better if one is to judge from the business done.

The Lincoln reported only fair business with "Excess Baggage" for the first three days, and the same held true with "Varsity" for the last of the week. Neighborhood houses in Troy report business as but fair. Weather was good.

Boston

OPENING of the five million dollar Keith Memorial Theatre by the Keith-Albee-Orpheum circuit was the big event of the week and brought to Boston the elite of the profession from the entire East. Never before in Boston's theatrical history was so notable a gathering of film and vaudeville stars gathered at one place at the same time.

"Oh Kay" was the film chosen for the opening week. Needless to say, it played to capacity audiences the entire week and hundreds were unable to gain admission to the theatre. Use of the reserved seat plan excepting on Saturdays and Sundays, resulted in the SRO sign being placed at the ticket window very early every day of the week.

While some of the other first run houses expected to take a drop in the box office totals during Keith opening week, the results were just the opposite. Even on the opening night of the new house, every first run Boston theatre showed a jump in receipts. Apparently some of the hundreds who expected to secure one of the 2900 seats in the new theatre went elsewhere.

Keith-Albee's Boston Theatre inaugurated sound pictures during the week with "Hit of the Show" as the feature film, with the result that receipts at that house exceeded anything in months.

Metropolitan Theatre observed its third anniversary week with a gala program and "Moran of the Marines" was the film, playing to the season's heaviest business.

"The Perfect Crime" was the sound film presented at the Netoco twin theatres, Modern and Beacon, playing to such good business that the film is held over for another week.

"The Singing Fool" which broke records at several first run theatres weeks ago, is still in Boston, playing simultaneously at the Fenway and Washington Street Orpheum, both Publix theatres.

"Our Dancing Daughters," played to capacity business at the Loew's Orpheum Theatre and will probably be brought back at a later date for another run.

"Submarine," at Loew's State Theatre, did one of the best week's businesses of any film in months at that theatre.

"While the City Sleeps" at the Bowdoin Square, "The Fleet's In" at the Scollay Square Olympia and "If I Were Single" at the Exeter all report better than average receipts for the week.

"Beggars of Life" played simultaneously at the Allston, Central and Codman Square theatres, all Publix theatres, while other films reporting good business include "Freedom of the Press" at University and Lancaster Theatres, "Women They Talk About" at the Strand and Fields Corner and "Driftwood" at the Embassy.

Pittsburgh

LOEWS PENN had another big week as usual. The screen attraction, Richard Dix in "Moran of the Marines," was below the average of usual film fare; however, it pleased fairly well. The Publix Unit show, Beaux Arts Frolic, proved to be a classy offering and saved the show.

Billie Dove in "The Night Watch" played to disappointing business, and the production proved but ordinary entertainment.

"The Singing Fool" in its third and last week at the Grand and in its first week at the Regent continued to bring sensational business. The Regent house record was broken and the production was held over for a second week. This will be the sixth consecutive week for this production in Pittsburgh first run theatres. It also broke records at the Stanley and Grand.

Loew's Aldine turned in a good week with "Me, Gangster." This one is real entertainment, enhanced greatly in value by the use of sound.

Clara Bow in "The Fleet's In" got but average business, although the fans seemed to like it muchly.

The Cameraphone had a poor week with "Excess Baggage."

The Alhambra had "Sally's Shoulders," which pleased fairly well. Business was fair.

The Olympic had "The Street Angel" (this being the third showing in downtown Pittsburgh). Business: fair.

Oklahoma City

OKLAHOMA CITY first run picture theatres enjoyed some very good business this past week, with some exceptional and highly satisfactory reports made.

Al Jolson in "The Singing Fool" at the Capitol, with sound synchronization, together with Movietone features, had a good week in the aggregate, business fluctuating from day to day, but excellent as a whole.

The Criterion had as its feature picture, William Haines in "Show People" a Metro-Goldwyn production, and a stage show. The program drew well.

"King of Kings" was the feature at the Empress, with Pathe News and Educational comedy, and the business was good all week.

"The Melody of Love," at the Liberty enjoyed excellent business all week.

Baltimore

WITH the exception of Warners' Metropolitan Theatre, where "The Singing Fool," starring Al Jolson, offered as a sound and talkie, did excellent business during its fourth week and was still standing them up, business at the other first-run houses was sliced into badly during the week beginning Monday, October 29, by politics and the opening of the racing season.

Al Smith's parade and speech on Monday, and later the speech of Senator Borah, hurt patronage.

At Loew's Century, the feature film attraction was "The Night Watch," starring Billie Dove. Business starting good, gradually built during the week to very good.

"Mother Machree," offered as a sound and song film with Belle Bennett featured, proved a good pulling attraction at the New Theatre.

"The Midnight Taxi," offered as a sound and talkie, at the Rivoli, with Helene Costello and Antonio Moreno, pulled them in fairly well at that house.

Due to the personal pulling power of Norma Talmadge in Baltimore, her latest starring vehicle, "The Woman Disputed," did very good business at Loew's Stanley, despite the fact that it was another war picture.

"Wings," the sound air epic, moved from the Stanley to Loew's Valencia with the same prices prevailing and business started fair but mounted to good before the week was over.

At the Keith-Albee New Garden, "The Night Bird," starring Reginald Denny, was on the same bill with five acts of Keith-Albee vaudeville. Patronage was only fair for the week.

"Dawn," the British production, starring Sybil Thorndyke, started off poorly at the Little Theatre, but toward the end of the week began to catch on, and wound up good. It was held for a second week.

At the Keith-Albee Hippodrome, "Driftwood," featuring Don Alvarado and Marceline Day, with five acts of Keith-Albee vaudeville, went over only fairly well.

Minneapolis

BUSINESS ran along on an even keel in the Minneapolis picture houses last week, with nothing sensational developing in the way of box office sensations.

The much touted "Wedding March" came into the Strand but this Von Stroheim picture wasn't good for more than a week; it didn't seem to click with the public. The Strand is a small house, and if a film pleases the public at all, it usually holds over for a second week.

The Minnesota enjoyed excellent business, thanks to a good, all-round program. "The Air Circus" was the picture attraction, and Marion Harris, the world famous recording artist, was listed among the stage attractions, along with the Publix show, "West Point."

Wallace Beery, in "Beggars of Life," was at the State, and this did only the average business.

Richard Dix and Ruth Elder, in "Moran of the Marines," proved a good drawing card at the Lyric. The Hennepin-Orpheum had a very good week from a box office standpoint, and this was partly due, no doubt, to the photoplay, "Tenth Avenue."

The Granada, Minneapolis' newest neighborhood house, found "Lilac Time" a very popular attraction, and was forced to hold it longer than it had been originally intended. "Four Sons" did a very nice business at this house, too.

Other neighborhood houses found nothing to complain about in the week, showing good grosses with such pictures as "Fazel," "Hot News," "The Mating Call," "Four Walls," "Half a Bride" and "The Fleet's In."

Portland, Ore.

WITH the football season now on in full swing and a number of Halloween home parties during the week, the attendance at the first run houses, wavered and in some instances took a decided slump, and the reports from the various box offices were only fair to good.

On of the screen at the Portland theatre, Richard Barthelme's "Out of the Ruins" proved to be another war picture that registered only fair.

For the first three days at the Broadway, "The Wedding March," Von Stroheim's stupendous undertaking drew capacity night audiences but fell off considerably at the end. Favorable comments made on technical scenes.

Now in its third week "The Singing Fool" at The Music Box shows no signs of depression, and will be continued for a fourth week. Public's attitude seems whetted for Vitaphone offerings in preference to sound effects.

"Blameless Men" and "The Chorus Kid" were the bills for the week at the Capitol Theatre. A fairly good week.

"Battle of the Sexes" was continued for a second week at the United Artists, but with only fair attendance. Metro movietone acts helped the bill.

"The Land of the Silver Fox" at the Blue Mouse had not only a good cast of human actors, but also used Rin-Tin-Tin to advantage and drew good business. Vitaphone offerings were also interesting including an old favorite Henry B. Walthall in "Retribution," "Hot Tamales" with Billie and Elfa Newell; "Cronanders" in a night club entertainment.

Harrisburg, Pa.

HUGE crowds were drawn to the centre of the city by the Halloween celebration last Wednesday night, and after the fun of parading the streets, thousands found their way to the theatres, practically all of which did capacity business.

The feature picture at the State was Dorothy MacKail and Jack Mulhall in "Waterfront," which proved popular throughout the first half of the week. The last three days the screen attraction was Charles Murray in "Do Your Duty," a comedy that took very well.

At Loew's Regent, the feature presented was "White Shadows in the South Seas," and although the Pennsylvania censors deleted some of the scenes, the picture chalked up nice returns at the box office.

The Victoria did quite well with Richard Dix and Ruth Elder in "Moran of the Marines."

The Colonial Theatre did excellent business with Milton Sills in "The Crash," and "A Bowery Cinderella" brought good business to the Broad Street Theatre.

Esther Ralston, in "Something Always Happens," was well liked at the Royal.

Seattle

"WINGS" did the land office business in this city last week, playing its first local popular price engagement at the Fifth Avenue Theatre. Business came close to setting a new house record, reaching well over $20,000 for the week, and putting this film in about the first six that have played this house in more than two years.

The Seattle Theatre fared comparatively well only. "Out of the Ruins" was the film attraction, and it was not particularly well liked. On the stage, Fanchon-Marco's "Temptation" Idea with Armand Kaliz was pretentious but not "box office." An average week.

John Hamrick's "sound" houses continued to play to packed houses. "The Singing Fool" in its fourth capacity week at the Music Box Theatre showed only a slight let-up in business from the beginning of the engagement. At the Blue Mouse Theatre, "The Home Towners" opened a two-week run to very big business.

The "regular" film houses had mediocre attractions, "Lady Be Good" at the Coliseum was lacking in punch, and "Wickedness Preferred" at the Columbia was another program release only. Business at these houses was quite slight. "Foreign Devils" at the Embassy was another weak attraction.

The Orpheum got the break as far as the vaudeville houses are concerned. "Captain Swagger" was a better-than-usual film for this house, and showed better results than "The Scarlet Lady" at the Pantages Theatre. "Street Angel," playing a second run at the Egyptian Theatre in the University residential district, with Movietone score, played to big houses and showed its duplication of the tremendous box office success of the same film at the Fifth Avenue Theatre two months ago.

Seattle

(Previous Week)

THE two key houses in this city were both up in the strong financial columns last week, with business that should have been pleasing to West Coast officials. At the Fifth Avenue Theatre, "The Wedding March" was the screen attraction, and despite the fact that it was generally disliked for its lack of action and slowness, it did play to big houses, especially the opening three days. After it was publicly discussed, business fell off, but the profits were already registered.

At the Seattle, on the other hand, John Gilbert's "Four Walls" showed a tendency to build up during the week, and showed a very pleasing gross report at the end of the run. Fanchon-Marco's stage revue, featuring Chez Chase, was also well liked. Generally, a very good bill playing to good business.

"The Singing Fool" continued to play to capacity business at Hamrick's Music Box Theatre day and night, and showed no signs of slumping. At the Blue Mouse Theatre, "Two Lovers" finished its second and final week to average good business, everything considered.

"Tillie's Punctured Romance" failed to create much enthusiasm at the Coliseum Theatre, where business was mediocre.

"The River Woman" at the Columbia and "Prowlers of the Sea" at the Embassy were fair money-getters only.

"Show Girl" at the Orpheum was rather disappointing to all who expected a production on a par with the story, but it did a good business in conjunction with one of the season's best stage bills—one of the best weeks this season.

Tampa

ANOTHER big Sunday for all Tampa houses. Practically every house in the city had waiting lines for the night shows, and the Tampa was turning 'em away at 7 P. M. with "While the City Sleeps." Lon Chaney always goes over good here. "Show People" also pulled strong for the last half, giving this house an over average week.

"The Air Circus," with some talking scenes, was the feature of the Victory program, backed up with the usual Vitaphone acts and the Movietone News. Business was just about the average for the house.

"Beautiful But Dumb" drew a very good Sunday for the Strand, and Monday held up nicely. "Power" did just a shade better than average for two of the three days run, and "The Painted Post" closed the week to average.

The second runs shown this week at the Franklin all did well. They had, "The Black Pirate," "Rough House Rosie" and "Walking Back." Business was average.

Dallas

COLD weather has at last made its appearance in Dallas and was more than welcome. The past week included some rather sharp weather, which might have kept a few patrons away from the theatres, but business at all down town theatres was on the safe side of the ledger for the past seven days. No big business was reported.

At the Melba, "The Battle of the Sexes," which is D. W. Griffith's first synchronized picture, and featured Phyllis Haver, Jean Hersholt, Belle Bennett, Don Alvarado and Sally O'Neill, was one of the best liked pictures of the week and checked off good business.

"The Wedding March," with Erich Von Stroheim, Fay Wray and George Fawcett, at the Palace, failed to bring in the expected patronage, although business was good for the week's run. Comment on this picture was both good and bad. The unusually beautiful scenes more than pleased, but the chief objection to the attraction as voiced by patrons was that it was 'draggy' and the action too drawn out for the length of the picture.

At the Majestic, "The Air Circus," with David Rollins and Arthur Lake and Sue Carol, accounted for a good gross for the week and was well liked. A large part of the week's good business was due to the Kiddie Revue, which was a stage offering composed of local children under the direction of Ruth Laird, a local dancing instructor. An Interstate Vaudeville bill was also included on the program.

"The Man Who Laughs," with Mary Philbin and Conrad Veidt, at the Capitol, received unusually good comment and was successful in turning in good receipts for the week.

At the Old Mill "The Midnight Taxi," featuring Helene Costello and Antonio Moreno, brought an exceptionally good gross to this theatre for the seven day run. This was the first sound picture to be offered by the Old Mill since installing sound equipment, and, backed by good publicity, it received a good send off.

At the Ritz, the second run sound theatre of Dallas, "The Perfect Crime," featuring Clive Brook and Irene Rich, brought only fair business. No big gross was expected from this picture and the receipts showed that money had been made, which was all that could be expected.

The Arcadia continued its usual good business with "Oh Kay," featuring Colleen Moore and Lawrence Gray, and "Forgotten Faces," with Clive Brook and Bacalanova. The Arcadia has been more than successful as a de-luxe suburban house.

Kansas City

AL JOLSON in "The Singing Fool" continued a second week of crowds and waiting lines at the Newman Theatre, while virtually all other first run houses shared proportionate good crowds.

At Loew's Midland "The Battle of the Sexes" did a good week's business, surpassing the average weekly attendance mark by a comfortable margin.

At the Mainstreet Rod La Rocque in "Captain Swagger" played to filled houses each afternoon and night, the matinee business being exceptionally good.

"Prowlers of the Sea" drew big at the Pantages, which offered an unusually strong stage program in addition to the picture, while "Mother Knows Best" did about an average business at the Globe.

"Runaway Girls" proved a drawing magnet for the younger generation at the Uptown, while "The Wedding March" did a good business at the Royal.

Nothing other than the usual newspaper advertising and lobby displays were used by any of the theatres in the exploitation of the pictures.

Ottawa

TICKET vending machines in the box offices of Ottawa, Ontario, worked like flashers all during the week of October 21. The cashiers were tired but the managers happy. There were no outstanding film attractions but all were popularly received.

Alice White hit a popular note at the Centre Theatre in "The Show Girl."

Lon Chaney, in "While the City Sleeps," at the Regent Theatre, more than paid its way.

B. F. Keith's Theatre, showing "The Cop," with William Boyd, had big crowds at every performance.

"The Lion and the Mouse" clicked at the Imperial Theatre in decisive manner, this feature being well liked by the substantial crowds. Patronage for this one was the best in some weeks.

New serials caused a real flurry among the neighborhood patrons, and the chapter plays got away to a fine start. The Columbia launched "Yellow Cameo" during the first half and "Haunted Island" during the last three days, the features being "Simple Sis" and "Smile, Brother, Smile," which were fair.

The Rex Theatre also started the same serials, but at opposite ends of the week. The Rex features were "Paid to Love" and "The Gay Defender," the latter drawing heavily because of Richard Dix.

The Fern Theatre also cashed in on a Lon Chaney feature, "The Big City," during the first half, while "Golden Snare," with Lewis Stone, also packed the house. "Vanishing Rider" and "Man Without a Face" are two serials here which are being followed closely.

Atlanta

KEITH'S Georgia rode out at the head of the picture parade this week, grossing the biggest business in town with "The Battle of the Sexes." True, the vaudeville bill was excellent, but experience has proved one point beyond doubt—that is, that the feature picture is the one real drawing card.

Loew's Capitol, with a strong vaudeville bill headed by Emil Boreo, took a painful flop with "The Melody of Love."

"Varsity" was disappointing at the Howard, and receipts slipped off sadly.

The Metropolitan Theatre did not measure up to expectations on the second week of "The King of Kings," though receipts picked up during the latter part of the week.

"The Singing Fool" opened at the Rialto Monday, beginning the third consecutive week of its Atlanta first-run. Receipts were about half the takings for the previous Monday. Then Tuesday brought a dismal drop in all box offices. A cold, mean rain kept cash customers at home all afternoon and evening while theatre managers groaned in the spirit. The Rialto management questioned its good judgment in holding "The Singing Fool" for a third week. But to the general amazement it picked up appreciably Wednesday, gained more strength Thursday, spurred forward again Friday and closed a big Saturday.

Salt Lake City

SOME unusually good theatre reports were received this past week regarding the Salt Lake first run houses, with motion picture patronage picking up generally throughout the entire city.

The Victory Theatre did a tremendous business with "Lilac Time," First National's first all-talking production, which was heavily exploited.

The Capitol Theatre experienced packed houses throughout the week in presenting Dolores Del Rio in "The Red Dance," the latest Fox dramatic spectacle, as well as the stage presentation Fanchon and Marco's "Dream Song Idea."

Owing to public demand the picture "Two Lovers," a United Artists special, has been held over at the American Theatre this week, with continued large attendance.

The Pantages Theatre offered "Laff Weck" with Alexander and Olsen and their company of merrymakers in addition to the film presentation "The Baby Cyclone" with Lew Cody and Aileen Pringle.

"Companionate Marriage" with Betty Bronson, Alec B. Francis and all-star cast, drew heavily at the Paramount-Empress.

Claire Windsor in "The Grain of Dust" was a very good drawing card at the Gem Theatre.

Second run and neighborhood houses are all enjoying splendid patronage.

Cincinnati

BUSINESS for the week in Cincy was all that could possibly be desired, with a line-up of attractions that could not possibly be resisted.

The high-water mark for attendance goes to the Capitol, where Al Jolson, in "The Singing Fool," had 'em standing in line long before the doors opened for the initial showing. This condition continued to be the rule rather than the exception throughout the week. In fact, the picture is being held over for another week. Business has been little short of phenomenal.

The second week for "King of Kings," with sound and synchronization, at Keith's did a land-office business, and it is likely that this would have continued had the picture been held.

The Albee, featuring Julian Eltinge as the stage attraction, together with other good acts, and the picture, "Moran of the Marines," sent their receipts way up. Eltinge is a local favorite in Cincinnati, and his admirers said it with attendance.

The Lyric did nicely with "Docks of New York," which was in its second week. The engagement, as a whole, has been satisfactory.

"Kit Carson," on view at the Strand, drew good sized crowds, which also is true of "Shadows of the Night," for first four days at the Family, and the last half attraction, "After the Storm."

Neighborhood houses report business fair.

Birmingham, Ala.

BUSINESS was fairly good in Birmingham the past week. The Ritz, with a personal appearance of Ben Turpin, had excellent business the entire week. The Ritz feature was William Fox's "River Pirate."

The Alabama fared but indifferently well with "The Wedding March," with Erich von Stroheim as the star and director, and Fay Wray in support. The picture was undoubtedly a masterpiece of technical detail, but the consensus of opinion was that it was not particularly box-office.

The Strand packed 'em in all week on the marvellous "Singing Fool," starring Al Jolson, and there appeared no let-up in public appreciation for this picture.

The Empire got by fairly well with "Take Me Home," with Bebe Daniels in a picture directed by Marshall Neilan.

The Trianon did not hold up to its previous week's performance, with "Court-Martial," starring Jack Holt and Betty Compson.

The neighborhood theatres reported that business generally was below average.

Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE down town theatres had a very satisfactory week. The beginning of the week was especially conducive to good picture business.

The Garden is still crowding them in to see "Singing Fool." The theatre opens at 11 and soon after its opening is crowded and continues to be crowded until late at night. The picture is now in its fourth week.

"Wings finished its second week at the Strand and will continue there for some time longer. It too is packing the theatre at every performance.

Business was just fair at the Wisconsin where "Me, Gangster," was featured. "Uncle Tom's Cabin" finished its run at the Alhambra this week. It was very well attended throughout its stay.

"Loves of an Actress" was featured at the Merrill where it brought in fair results.

"Battle of the Sexes" was moderately well attended at the Majestic. The Orpheum did an unusually large volume of business this week, with "Through the Breakers." The Riverside too was a popular place. Its feature was "Power."

Neighborhood houses had a remarkably good week.

"Street Angel" brought excellent results to the Modjeska, Garfield and Uptown. The Oriental and Tower theatres showed "Warming Up" with fair returns. "The Cardboard Lover" at the Milwaukee, Savoy, and Colonial was a good business getter. "Tempest" brought good patronage to the National and Venetian theatres.

Des Moines

"WINGS" playing at the Des Moines theatre after having already shown here as a road show, broke the previous records which had been established at the Des Moines before the showing of "The Singing Fool." "The Jazz Singer" was thus put into third place. "Wings" will continue for a second week.

At the Capitol "Our Dancing Daughters" which was exploited by one sheets, billboards and added newspaper advertising, did a good business but did not come up to expectations.

The picture opening at the Strand was "Women They Talk About" with Irene Rich. Business was entirely satisfactory.

San Francisco

THE past week in the local motion picture first run theatres was recognized as good by some and fair by others.

"Wings," shown for its eleventh time in this city, the last few weeks at the St. Francis Theatre, continued to draw well.

"The Wedding March," shown at the California Theatre, did not do as well as contemplated, although the first few evenings the theatre was crowded.

The Granada Theatre reported good business with "The Water Hole," in which Jack Holt starred. Here also the public was attracted by the Publix Revue.

Loew's Warfield Theatre was crowded, as it usually is, with "Show People," together with Fanchon and Marco's presentation, "Up in the Air," and Rube Wolfe's Band.

The El Capitan reported excellent business with "Making the Varsity" on the screen and the presentation act, "Moonlight Frolics."

Al Jolson brought crowds to the Embassy in "The Singing Fool."

Union Square Theatre reported excellent business with "No Babies Wanted" and "My Wife's Relations." The reason for an exceptional week in this theatre was the fact that Nat Holt's singers and dancers appeared in "Hello, Everybody."

Schwartz Opens Brooklyn Patio

With all the pomp and ceremony worthy of the theatre and the occasion, A. H. Schwartz opened his latest and most certainly his finest theatre, bringing his circuit total up to twenty-four.

Being fairly well acquainted with many of the theatres which Mr. Schwartz has built in the past, I was rather expecting to find "just" another nice house, but I no sooner arrived near the block of the theatre when the feeling came over me that I was going to be agreeably surprised. And I was.

The Patio Theatre is, in my estimation, one of the finest neighborhood theatres in this country. Built on a large and elaborate scale, no expense was spared to make it outstanding in every detail. That this procedure met with success in the final outcome is evident on every side.

As the name implies this house is Spanish in almost every respect and if they have departed here and there from this scheme of things, it was only done to improve on the finished article.

The front is ornamental terra cotta giving the house a distinctly Spanish effect from the first view. Through the beautiful entrance foyer you pass into a magnificent rotunda. This part of the theatre will leave a lasting impression on every patron who visits the Patio Theatre. In the centre of this rotunda is a large and effective fountain and aided by clever lighting it is bound to draw them like a magnet. I don't believe any one will enter that theatre without walking over and standing by that fountain regardless of how many times they attend. Natural greens and pretty plants encircle this treatment and the trickling of the water lends a perfect touch to what greets the eye.

From the lobby you pass through a smaller foyer into the theatre proper and if first impressions count for anything then the Patio has started off on the right foot. Surely we on the inside of the business must stop and ask ourselves whether such a magnificent house is not worthy of a spot on Times Square or the loop in Chicago, notwithstanding the fact that both of the above mentioned places boast of theatres costing in the millions. But I would not hesitate to say that the Patio is as good as any of them and I say it feeling that it cost a whole lot less than many of those "picture palaces."

Every single detail had been carefully planned and worked out with the satisfying

The Truth—and Nothing But the Truth

Dear Mr. Lewis:

I BELIEVE I am one of the first few that joined the Manager's Round Table Club and have never missed the NEWS both before and after the CLUB was formed.

I've been in the show business since 1910 and consider I know a little about same.—But, never in all my years have I read such plain facts and truth as you stated in Oct. 20th issue of the NEWS—"Let's Get Down To Mother Earth."

My hat's off to you, and here's hoping some General Managers clip same out and stick it in their hat bands for future use.

Regards from a member,

result that a wonderful theatre has been built. Even high up on the walls a touch of originality has been injected by the use of leaded glass Spanish windows, properly lit from the back. The lighting fixtures show every sign of having been carefully thought out well in advance and the loge seats are bound to become popular in the Patio as soon as they have been sat upon for the first time.

For the premier performance Mr. Schwartz selected a tasteful program and placed the entertainment burden upon the shoulders of Howard Emerson and his orchestra, an organization composed of clever entertainers and musicians.

An Inquiry As to Sound Effects

An exhibitor in Springhill, N. S., writes for information on how to produce and imitate sound effects, such as waterfalls, aeroplane effects, etc. All of these things can be purchased so reasonably that with few exceptions it hardly pays to build them. Any reliable drummer's supply house can furnish quotations on these items and since we never make it a practise of recommending any particular dealer we can only suggest that he get in touch with the nearest supply house to his theatre. Any musician can give him several addresses.

He tells us in his letter, that he has kept a scrap book of the various exploitation stunts described in the Club pages of the NEWS and has found many of them feasible and profitable.

Armistice Day Tie-Up

L. J. Carkey, Manager of the New Olympia Theatre in Watertown, N. Y., arranged a great

Armistice Day tie-up that brought him some valuable publicity in his papers. We are reproducing part of the story that appeared in the Syracuse Sunday Herald mentioning this tie-up.

"L. J. Carkey, manager of the New Olympic, and a member of the Watertown Post, has made arrangements with the post officers, and every person with an American Legion card and a ticket which will be presented to them before the parade, will be admitted to the theatre free of charge. By special arrangement 'The Fleet's In,' a Clara Bow feature which will be of special interest to army and navy men, has been booked for that day. Arrangements are also being made for the show of a special American Legion film."

Mr. Carkey is a member of his local Legion Post and gained entree to their activities and arranged for the showing of "The Fleet's In" as his feature for the day of the celebration.

In addition to the clipping above the paper carried his picture together with the Legion officers and again mentioned, under the pictures, that he was inviting every member of the Legion to attend his theatre after the parade.

This is but one of the many angles that present themselves to the live-wire manager who is ever on the lookout for such tie-ups at the appropriate time. There are very few communities that have no activities on Armistice Day and if you are on your toes you should certainly be able to cash in on such things. Don't be bashful or reluctant about inviting Legion, or similar groups to be your guests, if you can get some free publicity in your newspapers. And don't forget that those invited generally bring friends or relations who do pay an admission.

A Story That's Still Being Told

I have devoted so much space to different sorts of exploitation from every corner of the earth that I thought I would steal a little room, for a story that is still going the rounds out in Brooklyn, in which I figured as the centre of the discussion.

Some years ago while managing the Faragut Theatre for the A. H. Schwartz Circuit, we had booked "Adam's Rib" a Paramount feature from which we all expected big things (in the line of business).

Using a different kind of an advertising campaign every week made it hard to dope out something different for this one, so I instructed my assistant to get about 50 beef ribs from some local butchers and hang them under the marquee. That same morning I left for my weekly visit to the exchanges in New York and I returned to the theatre at about 5 P. M. and as the trolley car approached the corner where the theatre was located I noticed a large crowd both under the marquee and across the street. Naturally I was a bit curious and when I alighted from the car I was stunned to see about twenty dogs barking and jumping under the marquee. The crowd was roaring in laughter and it was but another minute when I discovered the reason for this circus. The dogs were all jumping for the meat bones hung under the marquee.

The stunt attracted more attention than any previous exploitation used all that season and there are still folks living in Flatbush who "kid" me about it. Business was NOT bad and I think the bones and the dogs are entitled to a lot of credit for the box office results.

I would add in closing that the "powers that be" did not entirely approve of the stunt and I had to take the bones down the next morning. Maybe they were right.

"The Voice of a Nation"

NOTE: This is the third group of letters received by the Manager's Round Table Club on the important topic of "Sound." They are worth keeping and a careful study of these letters will show the trend of public opinion on this subject.

October 18, 1928.

My dear Mr. Lewis:

This will acknowledge with thanks your letter of October 5th requesting a short letter on the importance of Sound Pictures. Of course I have a number of personal views on this subject, but looking at it from a business standpoint I am going to try to enumerate below a few ideas that I have along this line:

First—In my three theatres here, none are as yet equipped with sound, however, when the new Capitol opens it will be equipped with both Movietone and Vitaphone. This will be one of the smallest towns in the country operating Movietone and Vitaphone before January 1st. This is going to mean a great deal to not only the theatre but to the theatre-going public of this town. Through a very clever teaser campaign we hope to have everyone talking about the marvelous opportunities afforded them through these two processes. I have not as yet definitely or clearly explained to them the exact method and means of sound pictures or impressed upon them the difference in sound, synchronized or talking pictures. The advent of sound pictures in a small town means a great deal to us. The papers of Baltimore and Washington have a large circulation in this vicinity and of course the first run houses there are equipped with Movietone and Vitaphone and are advertising extensively.

Second—The synchronization of pictures affords the small town the finest of music to accompany the picture, whereas, in the past we have had to rely solely on the pianist, organist or a small incompetent orchestra, one not sufficiently large or competent enough to cue properly. Now with the advent of Movietone and Vitaphone it will be possible to have the finest of pictures properly cued by excellent orchestras. That means something to them and something to us as good music is an asset in any picture. Good music will make a fair picture even better, whereas, poor music will make the best of pictures worse.

Third—The novelty of sound or talking pictures, such as we hope to play here will never wear off. It is my idea to present sound and talking novelties in the way of single reel comedies, acts and news reels regularly, possibly three or four times per week but actual talking pictures will be presented only once a week. This will mean that we will keep our patrons hungry for more of this kind of entertainment and as a result of this it will never become tiresome. This is one of the faults of the City Managers in presenting talking pictures. In presenting them too often, the novelty will soon wear off and they will soon lose the appeal that they had when first presented. For instance in Washington and Baltimore, both situations which I am familiar with, practically every down town first run theatre has sound equipment, they are advertising sound pictures and talking pictures regardless of the fact whether they are in every sense of the word talking or sound pictures. I am sure the attendance is going to fall off if the theatres are presenting nothing but sound pictures. What is going to happen to the people who desire the silent drama? Surely there are a great percentage of these left. The outstanding pictures, whether sound or silent will always be the backbone of any theatre program, whether in the small town or the city.

A new era has been created by the advent of sound pictures and I am looking at it from the standpoint of the small town. I feel it is going to be a successful era if properly handled but the larger cities should beware, they should be careful not to cram the people. Their patrons are going to be better satisfied with a proper mixture of sound and silent pictures. I hope that I have made clear the above points and my letter is not too tiresome; that you can gain from same the expressions desired. If I can be of any possible assistance to you please do not hesitate to call on me.

With kindest regards, I remain, sincerely yours,

Signed, F. M. Boucher,

Clip Sheet on Film Source for Featured Articles

Through information supplied by the press book issued in connection with "Fighting the White Slave Traffic," the N. Y. Evening Graphic carried the story of this motion picture as the lead story in the magazine section of their publication.

The press book is supplied with a sheet written in syndicate style and based on the findings of the League of Nations' investigation of the White Slave menace.

The Graphic in reprinting the articles merely condensed them into one story to fit the space and ran the material word for word as it appeared in the press book. The idea of a syndicate page was that of Edward F. Hurley. It was written by him in strictly a straight-away newspaper style and the make-up was the same as that which the average editor is accustomed to receive as news agency matter.

Window in Gimbel Brothers Store, New York City, featuring tie-up with Educational short subject series.

Gimbel Display Sets Style for "Russ Farrell" Exploitation

A TIE-UP between Educational Film Exchanges, Inc., and Gimbel Brothers store in New York City on the "Russ Farrell, Aviator" series, released by Educational, serves as an example of effective exploitation on this new group of aviation pictures which can be employed in any good-sized city in the country. The New York tie-up is based primarily on the fact that the Junior Aviation League is being sponsored in New York by Gimbels. This League is affiliated with the Airplane Model League of America, which promotes a nation-wide activity, the New York organization being virtually a local unit of the larger organization. Consequently, wherever there is a unit of the Model League, which is sponsored and backed by The American Boy Magazine, such a tie-up is logical.

Featured In Newspaper Ads

The tie-up between Educational and Gimbels consists of advance newspaper advertising, an unusually attractive and prominent window display, a "Russ Farrell" book exhibit and special showings of "Russ Farrell, Aviator" pictures. Gimbels used twenty-six inches of display advertising in a New York newspaper to tell Junior Aviation League members of the special showing of "The Sky Ranger" last Saturday (October 27) morning. This was on Page Three in an ad that dominated the entire page.

Probably the next most important phase of this tie-up is the window display in one of Gimbels' most prominent windows on West 33rd Street. Many thousands pass this window each day, for it is located only a few steps from the main entrance to the Hudson tubes, less than a block from the entrance to the Pennsylvania Station and a few doors from the Pennsylvania Hotel. This window display links up the picture, and four volumes of "Russ Farrell" stories, published by Doubleday, Doran and Co., and the league activity. Enlargements of outstanding scenes from "The Sky Ranger" together with announcement cards telling of the Saturday showings for Junior Aviation League members, form the background. Several typical airplane models and "Russ Farrell" books are used to complete the exhibit.

Book Department Cooperates

The book department installed a table display in the recreation hall featuring the "Russ Farrell" books. This is backed up by three big cards on which regular 8 by 10 stills are mounted along with the information that the books contain the same stories as found in the "Russ Farrell, Aviator" pictures.

The showings of "Russ Farrell, Aviator" subjects began Saturday (October 27) morning, with "The Sky Ranger" in the recreation hall at Gimbels. Approximately 500 Junior Aviation League members, in attendance at this show, greeted the picture with enthusiasm. Not only did the young aviation enthusiasts literally "eat up" the picture, but they were eager to know when the next subject was to be shown. The publicity that will be given "Russ Farrell, Aviator" pictures as a result of word-of-mouth advertising by these youngsters is inestimable. Special showings for Junior Aviation League members are to be conducted on other Saturday mornings until the entire series has been projected.

A SEARCH for new musical talent in Grand Rapids, conducted under the joint auspices of the Grand Rapids Sunday Herald and B. F. Keith's Theatre in that city, developed into a bang-up exploitation stunt for the vaudeville and picture playhouse. The contest was wide open, any sort of musical instrument would do, and offered two prizes, $50 first for the winning group or organization, and $25 for the individual judged the best musical entertainer. The stunt was exploited in conjunction with the appearance of Henry Santree and his orchestra, the band leader acting as judge. Contestants entered by making formal application and appeared at the theatre for the matinee or night performance at which they were to appear. Thus elimination contests were held throughout the week with a final held on Saturday night.

H. M. ADDISON, managing director of the Great Lakes Theatre in Buffalo, started a new craze called "Squee-Gee" which took the town by storm. The fact that the only requirements to produce what might be a prize "Squee-Gee" are a sheet of paper, pen and ink, and the ability to write one's name, may be largely responsible for the hearty response which followed the announcement of the prizes for the best squee-gees submitted to the Buffalo Evening Times. 5,000 entries were sent to the newspaper in five days, a record for the publication. A "Squee-Gee" is made by writing your name with black ink—India ink preferably—on a sheet of white paper. The paper is then folded over approximately in the horizontal center of the signature, pressed down while the ink is still wet—and that is all, save to have luck in producing unusual shapes and designs by this simple method of designing. The Buffalo Evening Times gave the contest a prominent display.

WARREN IRVIN, manager of the Carolina theatre in Charlotte, N. C., sent one of his ushers to the various schools of the city as a good will ambassador in connection with a special presentation of "The Air Circus" at a Monday matinee. The usher carried a letter from the Superintendent granting permission for an announcement regarding the showing at which all school children, including high school students were eligible to attend for a special admission of 10 cents.

AN immense throng of children gathered in front of the Ritz Theatre in Birmingham for the opening performance of the weekly Saturday children's matinees under the auspices of the Birmingham Better Films Committee. The Birmingham police band played marches and popular airs in the street demonstration which preceded the showing of a specially selected program of films. The Committee and the Parent-Teachers Association have co-operated to the end that each matinee will be announced one week ahead in all schools in the city.

WHAT could be better to exploit the City of Mexico Motorcycle Cossacks in a theatre than to invite the Mexican consul and all the city officials? That is what Louis Charninsky of the Pantages Theatre, Kansas City, did. Plenty of publicity resulted.

Managers Fly High to Exploit Aviation Film Attractions

THEATRE managers are taking the air to exploit aviation productions. It is well enough to have some extra distribution heralds as mere groundlings, but when it comes to throwing them out of a plane, there are special publicity advantages in the manager himself hopping into a ship and flying over the town as the passenger of some celebrated local pilot.

The aviation pictures are being exploited for all they are worth to a public whose interest in flying is not being permitted to flag any so long as there are so many records to be made.

Two managers whose campaigns for air pictures induced them to become active members of flying expeditions are Marsline K. Moore of the Joie Theatre in Fort Smith, Ark., and H. M. Addison of the Great Lakes theatre in Buffalo. Moore was exploiting "Wings" and Addison "The Air Circus."

Moore's exploitation for "Wings" had many angles of powerful publicity appeal, but nothing he attempted exceeded in local interest the tie-up with ten newspapers in surrounding towns in which each of the publications ran announcements that an aeroplane would fly over their city at a certain time on a certain day and would "shell" the town with interesting printed literature about "Wings." Moore chartered a plane from a local company and tricked it out with large banners suspended under the wings with the title "Wings" displayed in large letters. A fire siren was connected to the landing gear, and as the plane neared the various towns it flew low, the siren was sounded long and loud and a shower of special heralds was released by Moore from his place in the cockpit.

Addison flew over Buffalo and distributed 50,000 heralds the day before his opening of "The Air Circus" at the Great Lakes. In addition to this stunt, the Great Lakes had the co-operation of the post office department and a special ticket booth in the lobby was used to sell air mail stamps. A total of 22 window tie-ups, a special show for the members of the Buffalo Evening News model airplane builders' club, a lobby display of airplane parts, and a heavy poster campaign, were other features of this drive.

Among the highlights of Moore's exploitation was the planting of realistic planes in front yards in the residential district. These planes were made out of beaverboard and were of huge proportions. These planes contained copy about the picture, theatre and play dates and were so placed to give the effect they had fallen out of the sky. These plane-signs were unusually effective and gained plenty of publicity for the picture by causing lots of favorable talk.

A real aeroplane was secured and placed with its nose buried in the ground—in the City Plaza which is in the center of the business section of town. This plane had a broken propeller and looked as if it had fallen from the clouds.

New York Capitol Celebrating Ninth Anniversary

ADVERTISEMENTS for the current program at the Capitol theatre in New York City this week are featuring an illustration of a birthday cake with nine lighted candles adorning the white frosted decorations which are the hall marks of the traditional dessert of the anniversary banquet.

The big playhouse under the direction of Manager Bowes has rounded out nine years of popular appeal to Broadway picture patrons. And it is a tribute both to the motion picture and the motion picture theatre as it is exemplified in the Capitol that the public responds now in greater numbers than ever—only a few weeks since, the Capitol set the greatest record for attendance it ever has known, this with "Our Dancing Daughters" and a new sound installation as the attractions.

When this theatre first opened its doors to the public nine years ago it was the hope and aim of a group of idealists who were responsible for its being, of which Messmore Kendall was president, and Major Edward Bowes, Vice-President and Managing Director of the theatre, that the Capitol should stand, in the years to follow, as an inspirational force in the field of entertainment. To this end neither effort nor expense were spared and the management has built diligently and tirelessly in every direction photoplays, music, diversissements, personnel and service.

A theatre depends, pre-eminently, upon the motivating spirit of its management for its psychological effect upon the public as a living factor in the community. The cycle of nine years finds the Capitol maintaining this unique position, and this position was won by virtue of its high and unimpeachable principles.

The Capitol is more than a mere theatre, it has become an institution. Its slogan, "Our True Intent Is All For Your Delight" is the Capitol's working principle—the keynote which guides and directs every department of this theatre. In entering on its ninth year of service the management hopes the future holds as rich a harvest of friendship and confidence as that so cordially extended by patrons in the past.

Pyper Writes Book on Old Salt Lake Theatre

"The Romance of an Old Playhouse" is the title of a book recently published by former Manager George D. Pyper regarding the historical Salt Lake Theatre. The writer has given to the public a veritable Treasure Island of reminiscences and interesting facts of this, as termed by the late Henry Miller, "Cathedral in the Desert."

Radio Salute to Paramount Theatre in Brooklyn

Nearly 200 Radio stations all over the United States, Canada and Mexico, and four in Europe, will broadcast "salutes to Brooklyn" during the week starting November 18th.

Brooklyn radio fans who compile the five largest lists of stations "received" during that week, will each receive an annual complimentary ticket for the new Brooklyn-Paramount Theatre, good for two admissions, with the compliments of the theatre and the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce.

The huge radio salute was arranged by the Brooklyn-Paramount Theatre, which opens at Paramount Square, Flatbush and DeKalb, on Saturday noon, November 24th.

It is estimated that during the week of "saluting" each of the 200 stations will "salute" at least half a dozen times, and a total of 100,000,000 listeners will have heard the glories of Brooklyn and its newest wonder-theatre extolled.

The new theatre, through the Publix theatres chain of which it is a part, has arranged with its actors and musicians and stars who will be playing in each city, to broadcast from a local station, singing or playing a song in salutation to Brooklyn, to Paul Ash who is to be master of ceremonies at the new theatre; to Harry Murtagh, who is to be solo-organist; or to "Gamby" the famous radio ace who will make a personal appearance as premiere ballerina on the opening week's program.

Phonograph Plays Theme Song for Trailer

A talking film effect was sprung at the Capitol Theatre, Peterborough, Ontario, when Manager J. A. Stewart placed a Brunswick Panatrope behind the screen for the playing of "Laugh, Clown, Laugh" during the presentation of an advance trailer for the feature of the same title. This little stunt caused a lot of "talkie" around town and the film production had three big days.

"Novelty" Takes Queer Form But Works

THE public demand for novelty, particularly in stage shows at the presentation houses has the "masters of ceremony" at many of these theatres at their wit's end to supply the want. Since anything "different" gets by as "novelty," bending over backward, literally as well as figuratively.

One of the queer stunts evolved for a stage act came to light in Regina, Sask., at the Capitol Theatre, where Mike Goodman, master of ceremonies, staged a "backwards week."

The wording in a number of advertisements was run backwards, these announcing that the Capitol orchestra would play backwards for a change. For this he had the orchestra seated on the stage with their backs to the audience. Mr. Goodman also ran across a popular song that sounded fairly good when played and sung backwards and this was featured as a novelty. "It's a wow!" Mr. Goodman reported.

Inquiries and Comments

The Projectionist's Interest in the S. M. P. E.

THE increasing interest among projectionists in the activities of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers is evidenced by the number of inquiries received regarding the qualifications necessary for membership in this Society.

The reason for this interest is two-fold. In the first place, the widespread installation of synchronized equipment has brought many projectionists to realize that they require considerably more knowledge in order to handle such apparatus intelligently.

Once this fact is established in their minds, the next logical conclusion is that membership in the Society is essential because of the wealth of authoritative information which is presented to members at the bi-annual meetings of the Society.

It is true that much of the information presented at the Spring and Fall meetings of the Society eventually finds its way into trade journals and allied literature but a delay, of from three to six months is not at all uncommon in the reprinting of many papers.

Attendance at the meetings, therefore, is essential if one wishes to keep posted on the up-to-the-minute facts presented in the technical papers which are prepared by experts in the respective fields.

Take, as an example, the meeting recently held at Lake Placid, N. Y. The program, for the large part, was composed of papers which dealt either directly or indirectly with subjects bearing on "talking movies." The first three days of the meeting, in fact, were devoted exclusively to the new branch of motion picture projection.

To the person whose interest, even temporarily, lay strongly in this direction, these three days were invaluable. Aside from the many new facts brought to light in the reading of the papers, others of equal importance were uncovered in the extended discussions which followed most of the papers.

Indeed, it is generally conceded by persons attending the meetings that the discussion of papers is a principal reason for their attendance at the meetings since in no other way can a clear understanding of the contents of papers be obtained.

Membership Open to Projectionists

With the realization that membership in S. M. P. E. offers an excellent opportunity to the projectionist as a direct means for increasing his knowledge, there arises a doubt in the mind of all projectionists concerning their eligibility for membership. Obviously, the structure of the Society, as its name implies, is essentially of an engineering character and it is equally obvious that a projectionist is not an engineer.

Occasionally, a motion picture projectionist is encountered who describes himself by the rather fanciful name of "Projection Engineer." To the uninitiated, this self-imposed title may seem rather impressive, if somewhat vague, in character. It falls quite flat, however, upon the ears of the bona fide engineer because engineering circles recognize the existence of no such creature as the "Projection Engineer." Not, at least, until positive proof of the capabilities of the individual are forthcoming.

The Society of Motion Picture Engineers has, however, provided for the contingency of including non-engineering members within its body by creating the class of Associate Member. It is through these portals which the projectionist must pass into the Society.

As regards actual benefits to be derived from the Society, the only difference between an Associate and an Active Member is that Associate Members are not entitled to a vote in Society matters.

The requirements for admission to the Society as an Associate Member are as follows:

"An Associate Member is one who shall not be less than 21 years of age, and shall be a person who is interested in or connected with the study of motion picture technical problems or the application of same."

The entrance fee for admission to the grade of Associate Member is twenty dollars ($20.00) and the annual dues are ten dollars ($10.00).

Requirements for Membership

Enterprising projectionists may consider the requirements for Associate Members to be rather tame and this, no doubt, explains why so many aspire to the grade of Active Member. Then, too, the fact that several projectionists are enrolled in the Society as Active Members leads them to believe that they, too, possess the necessary qualifications for this grade.

At this point a serious stumbling block is encountered. The requirements for admission to the grade of Active Member are as given below. The applicant shall be (a) A motion picture engineer by profession. He shall have been in the practice of his profession for a period of at least three years, and shall have taken responsibility for the design, installation or operation of systems or apparatus pertaining to the motion picture industry.

(b) A person regularly employed in motion picture or closely allied work, who by his inventions or proficiency in motion picture science or as an executive of a motion picture enterprise of large scope, has attained a recognized standing in the motion picture art. In the case of such an executive, the applicant must be qualified to take full charge of the broader features of motion picture engineering involved in the work under his direction.

Section (b), because of its greater generality, is the favored route for projectionists aspiring to the grade of Active Member. It will be observed, in this section, that persons employed in motion picture or closely allied work who, by reason of inventions or proficiency in motion picture work, are eligible to admission to the grade of Active Member.

It will not do, as many projectionists have already attempted, to describe oneself as a "projection engineer," and hope, thereby, to convince the Board of Governors of the applicant's capabilities. The vote of the Board of Governors must be unanimous and the plea of the applicant is considered purely upon his qualifications as specifically set forth in his application.

If his application is vague as concerns his accomplishments in the motion picture field (projection is logically a branch of this field) it may be rejected immediately or else investigated further to bring forth the real facts.

Nor is it possible for the average projectionist to rightfully describe himself as a "motion picture engineer" for the very simple reason that he cannot classify himself as such.

The Society welcomes applications from projectionists but is careful to place them in the proper classification for reasons so obvious as to require no further explanation.

The projectionist can derive many benefits from membership in the Society and in these days of rapid developments in every branch of the industry it behooves him to acquire a source of authentic information which will permit him to accumulate facts far in advance of their publication in the general trade press.

Cumberland Chain, Tenn. Merges with Sudekum

The Cumberland Theatre Company of McMinnville, Tennessee, have cast their interests with those of Tony Sudekum, who holds a strong position in Nashville. The new company will be known as the Cumberland Amusement Company. R. T. Hill will be in charge of all the buying and the headquarters will be located at Tullahoma. Mr. Sudekum will be president of the firm.

The Cumberland company plans to expand its holdings throughout the state of Tennessee.

New Kenmore is One of Most Elaborate of K-A-O Houses

THE new Kenmore theatre of the B. F. Keith circuit which opened recently in Brooklyn with a gala performance is easily one of the most elaborate and ornate of the Keith-Albee Orpheum houses and this goes for its scientific equipment, its size, beauty and luxurious completeness.

Fronting on Church Avenue, the vestibule, lined with multi-colored marble, leads into the lobby which gives upon the main floor of the auditorium. The interior is 100 x 150 feet in area and will seat about 2,500. A paneled wainscot is carried around the side and rear walls, and the space above is divided into a series of arches framing carnival parade scenes. The smaller panels are in polychrome relief and above is the vaulted dome of the auditorium done in tones of warm gray with gold ornamentation. The dome is 60 feet in diameter, with dancing figures fresco painted on the surface.

In the cove running around the margin of the dome concealed lights are arranged and there are also multi-colored glass panels in the ceiling behind which groups of variously colored lights may be used separately, in groups or all together giving a dozen color combinations. The central chandelier of cut-glass and crystal garlands is 10 feet in diameter, to which are added side chandeliers. The grand staircases leading from lobby to mezzanine lounge and balcony as well as to loge boxes, are of marble, cornices and walls here, as throughout and the interior is finished in gray, old ivory and gold. The ladies' retiring rooms give upon the mezzanine promenade.

The orchestra pit is 40 x 10 feet and will accommodate 30 musicians, and is fitted with an "elevator orchestra platform." The stage has a depth of 30 feet. The console of the grand organ is located in the orchestra pit. The motion picture projection room is a specially constructed sound-proof compartment at the top rear of the balcony.

Construction Notes and Theatre Openings

Edward B. Baron and Carol A. Nathan opened their new Marina Theatre, San Francisco, on Chestnut Street, between Steiner and Pierce, recently. The Marina is a beautiful theatre of Spanish design and is a stadium type without balcony. It seats 1250 in its comfortable chairs which are widely spaced on the roomy aisles. Edward B. Baron was formerly manager of the United Artists' Film Exchange.

The newly opened Capitol, Marshalltown, Iowa, has some unusual ideas incorporated into its construction. Charlie Dunsmore, owner and manager, planned the dome effect of the ceiling himself in which the dome is brought into the circular effect which is painted blue with twinkling stars. Moving cloud machines are also to be used. Nearly all the seats are on the main floor, a few being reserved on the balcony at advanced prices.

The Waverly Theatre, newly built in Waverly, O., by Katherine R. Roush and Thomas Edwin Jones, opened auspiciously last week to crowded houses. The opening was made a big social event. The show was preceded by speeches from the city's mayor and prominent citizens. The theatre is built on the keynote of modernity. The newest style in architecture and decorations have been followed. "Theatre of Distinction," is its slogan.

A new theatre has been announced to be built in Washington Courthouse, Cleveland, by John G. Gregory, who also has the Palace. The new theatre will be located on North Fayette St. on the site of the Arcade Garage. It will be a three story building with the theatre auditorium on the street level, office suites on the second floor and dance hall on the third floor. Plans prepared by Fred D. Jacobs, Columbus architect, call for an atmospheric house, with sky effect. It is understood that the general contract will be let this week.

Rexy Theatre in Philly Opened by Stanley

Irving D. Rossheim, president of the Stanley Company of America, has announced the opening of the new Rexy Theatre, a half million dollar house at Eighth and South Sts., Philadelphia, with a seating capacity of 2,200. The Rexy is one of the handsomest houses recently erected and every effort has been made to provide the latest ideas in equipment of the house for the comfort of patrons. Hodgins and Hill are architects of the Rexy, which is in the Italian Renaissance style of architecture, the interior being finished in Rosato marble and Caen stone while Indiana limestone has been used for the exterior. The large entrance vestibule is finished in marble with mirrored walls. The lobby, finished in Rosato marble and Caen stone, is rectangular in shape with two grand staircases leading to the upper floor.

$1,000,000 Capitol Opened in Williamsport, Pa.

Proclaimed as the finest in the Comerford Amusement Co. chain, the new $1,000,000 Capitol Theatre was formally opened in Williamsport, Pa., on the night of October 22. The theatre was erected under the direction of Charles Ryan, superintendent of construction for the Comerford interests, and George Morris, general construction engineer.

More than a score of prominent theatre men were present, including M. E. Comerford, head of the Comerford theatres; Frank Walker, vice-president of the corporation; M. E. Comerford, general manager; Lieutenant-Governor of Pennsylvania Arthur James, who is financially interested with the Comerfords in some of their enterprises; Mayor Daniel L. Hart, of Wilkes-Barre, and theatre managers and exchange men.

Large Theatre Planned for Aurora, Illinois

A large, de luxe motion picture theatre will rise on the site of the Rialto Theatre, Aurora, which was destroyed by fire approximately four weeks ago. Great States Theatres, Inc., are back of the new project and plan to wreck the adjoining Fox Theatre, damaged in the fire, to expand the site for the new structure. It is reported that the new theatre project will represent an investment of one and one-half million dollars.

— is still another of those famous Kilgen Wonder organs which so distinctively express the personality and individuality of the outstanding modern theatre. These, a theatre must have, to succeed. Their lack bespeaks the mere location of just another motion picture.

Experienced exhibitors know that the Theatre Organ is today as great a "box office factor" as it was before the advent of "sound" equipment . . . People like to see the artist perform, as well as hear his music . . . Nothing, for them, can ever replace the Organ.

- box office Value!

Exhibitors who keep a watchful eye on the "box office," find that Robert Morton music has a definite and permanent place in successful theatre operation, and that it is an investment that pays for itself in increased "box office receipts."

No other make of organ approaches Robert Morton in Quality, Volume, Distinctiveness of tone, Orchestral Resources or Variety of Effects. It is the most powerful single factor any Exhibitor can employ to provide a complete Picture Presentation Program.

Yet for all its unquestioned superiority the Robert Morton is among the least expensive theatre Organs to own - not only because it is more durable - and costs less for up-keep - but it pays for itself through increased patronage.

Mr. Hoover and the Industry

The President-Elect's Friendly and Significant Attitude

By William A. Johnston

PRESIDENT-ELECT HOOVER gives to the industry, through Motion Picture News, a most important message.

The interview, we are pleased and proud to say, is the first obtained by any trade paper since his election.

Mr. Hoover stresses his friendliness toward the industry and his appreciation of the dominant force of the motion picture in the world relations of today and tomorrow.

These are no idle words; they are seriously meant and, in our opinion, they are deeply significant.

* * * *

The Hoover administration, we take it, will fully recognize the new era of international commerce, of world trade expansion. In this great development, international amity and understanding are indispensable factors and in this important respect, the motion picture is the one great facility today of all the nations of the world.

No one knows this fact better than Mr. Hoover; but also the statesmen of the world are alive to the situation. As Mr. Walter Marks of Australia so impressively stated at the Will Hays luncheon this week, the picture itself is greater in power than all the leaders of government.

Mr. Hoover will make, in the very near future, a survey of the industry. That is characteristic. Approaching the subject as he does, I believe, with a clearer knowledge of the industry's structure and economics than any other world leader has ever had, he will nevertheless thoroughly gauge its resources before he indicates its opportunities.

* * * *

A number within the industry will recall, as does the writer, a meeting with Mr. Hoover in Washington during the war and when he was a cabinet member, his clear appreciation of the power of the picture and his concise and ready application of it to the needs of the hour.

It will be a pleasure, which we are confident each individual in the industry will feel, to work with and for such a leader and such a platform.

Great strides will be made in the next several years. A good many social and business barriers will be levelled across the globe and it will be a satisfaction that no man will ever forget to feel that he, through his part in the motion picture industry, has contributed his mite.

It behooves us, therefore, to look beyond our office, studio and theatre roofs and realize that the objectives of the film are not merely those of trade and quick profits made regardlessly. We are intimately and basically concerned with a world-wide public, with the commerce of the world and the governments of the world. It is our first and foremost duty to make, distribute and exhibit pictures with this fact always in mind.

Stereoscopic Pictures in Color Reported Achieved

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, NOVEMBER 14.—Stereoscopic motion pictures, the dream of countless inventors and the picture industry, has been achieved, according to word received from a reliable source.

The Fox studios for the past four months have been secretly making a stereoscopic picture—a real third dimension picture in color that is said to be amazing in its results.

It is a development of the Spoor-Thompson process and is said not to require any special theatre projection equipment. The earlier Spoor-Thompson process required a special projection machine and extra-width film. The new development is said to require only standard width.

Not even members of the Fox organization knew the picture was being made. The rushes were projected for only a select few high officials, the inventor and Frank H. Hitchcock, former Postmaster General, who brought the invention to Fox. Niagara Falls was photographed in colors and the result is said to have been so amazing that Fox officials decided upon the greatest secrecy—the officials realizing, so the story goes, that they had an invention that may turn the business topsy turvy just as the first talkie did.

The Fox organization is said to have achieved third dimension pictures in sound and color. The patent, according to information, eliminates all distortion on the screen and makes the figures life-like and natural and astounding to the spectator. The public announcement which will be made within a month, it is said, will react favorably to the Fox stock and it is to beat the speculators that the invention is being kept a secret, it is reported. The Fox organization hopes to spring the stereoscopic picture as a surprise to the world and that is why not one word has leaked out about the invention till now.

will be a gathering of men prominent in the industry of both countries. From England have come handsome expressions concerning the significance of the affair. The viewpoint here is also praiseworthy.

Edward L. Klein is chairman of the Banquet Committee of the A. M. P. A. At a recent meeting of the Board of Directors it was deemed necessary to revise the original plans and extend the banquet to ladies also. There has been an excellent demand for tickets.

Among those sending cablegrams of felicitation from the other side are Victor Davis, chairman of the Cinematograph Exhibitors Association of Great Britain and Ireland; Charles M. Wooll, chairman of the Kinematograph Renters Society of Great Britain and Ireland; H. A. Wallis, of First National Pathe, Ltd., and chairman of the British M. P. Advertisers; Murray Silverstone, head of the English subsidiary of United Artists.

Fox Shake-Up on Coast Under Way

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, Nov. 14.—A shake-up in several departments of the Fox Coast organization is apparently under way. Joseph C. Shea, who recently arrived from the New York office, has succeeded Robert M. Yost as the West Coast Publicity head. Other changes are slated with Earl Wingart also coming in as associate head of Fox West Coast publicity.

It is reported that J. L. McCarthy will be appointed executive head of the new Fox Hills Movietone plant, with Ben Jackson officiating as the Movietone head at the Fox Hollywood studio. Dave Thompson, according to reports will remain as the Fox Hills studio manager.

Barthelmess Signed to New First National Contract

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, Nov. 14.—Richard Barthelmess has signed a new contract with First National, the agreement covering six pictures to be made in the next eighteen months. Barthelmess is reported to be receiving $150,000 per picture salary, which ranks among the highest contract salaries paid a male star. Plans provide for all Barthelmess pictures to carry dialogue.

Paramount Adopts New Technic for Talkies

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 14. — Paramount is abandoning the policy of spotting dialogue in various sequences with remainder of the picture silent. An example of the new method to be followed is offered in "The Wolf of Wall Street," which has the first three reels entirely silent with the following reels from that point to the finish entirely in dialogue.

Studio executives after seeing this picture believe that this practice offers a solution of the problem of combining dialogue with motion pictures. "The Wolf of Wall Street" was produced by B. P. Fineman with Rowland Lee directing.

Giannini to Receive Cup

He Will be Awarded the Harris Trophy at Anglo-American Dinner; Many Notables to be in Attendance

SPECULATION concerning the identity of the individual in the motion picture industry who will be awarded the Harris Cup at the Anglo-American dinner of the A. M. P. A. to be held at the Biltmore Hotel in New York on November 20 was put at rest last Friday when the Board of Directors of the A. M. P. A. decided on Dr. A. H. Giannini, chairman of the Bank of America, as the person most meriting the honorary trophy for establishing good will between the film industries of Great Britain and America. Mr. Harris, the donor of the cup, is editor of The Cinema of London.

Will Hays will be toastmaster at the banquet and there will be many others of prominence lending their presence to the affair. All of the speakers have distinguished careers and their names are all to be found in "Who's Who." Major General Robert Lee Bullard, of the War Department at Washington, D. C.; J. E. Otterson, president of the Electrical Research Products, Inc.; Nathan Burkan, and Ralph Blumenfeld, editor of the London Daily Express, are some of the figures who will deliver addresses.

It is generally accepted that the trophy could go to no man more deserving. Mr. Giannini has the distinction of being the first banker to finance American film production and the first American banker to finance British productions. Due largely to his efforts British bankers have become increasingly active in the business in the British Isles.

The A. M. P. A. banquet is being looked forward to as a brilliant event, being as it

Hoover's Attitude Toward Picture Industry

President-Elect Friendly to Screen World, Sees Films as Big International Force; Will Make Survey

(Copyright, 1928, by Motion Picture News, Inc., Republication Rights Granted Provided Full Credit is Given)

By A Staff Correspondent of Motion Picture News

PALO ALTO, CALIFORNIA, November 12.—President-Elect Herbert Hoover will, in the near future, make a thorough survey of the American motion picture industry in all its branches, both here and abroad. He will then issue a statement for general use on the importance of motion pictures and their place in the life of the nation.

Furthermore, Mr. Hoover, as the occupant of the White House for the four years beginning March 4, next, will be friendly to the industry. Not only does the President-Elect hold a spirit of kindness toward the industry, but he realizes it is one of the dominant factors in education and the making of opinions in all walks of life.

These facts, of vital importance to the whole screen world, were learned exclusively by Motion Picture News here today from the spokesman for Mr. Hoover. The interview granted to the Motion Picture News representative at Mr. Hoover's home is the first obtained by any trade paper in any field, since his election.

Just how soon the survey will be undertaken it was impossible to learn, but presumably it will come shortly after the inauguration. Undoubtedly, the new Secretary of Commerce will have a very large part in the Hoover survey.

Apparently, Mr. Hoover is following the precedent set by President Coolidge in the use of a spokesman in the communication of his views via the press to the public, instead of being quoted in the first person.

Mr. Hoover recognizes the tremendous importance of the motion picture industry as a factor in creating better understanding between other nations and ours. He hopes that the industry will continue to bend every effort toward securing good will for our country as a whole from other peoples over the face of the earth. He feels that the world wide influence of the motion picture can aid the nation greatly in tying closer bonds of friendship between the United States and other countries

Through his experience as Secretary of Commerce, the President Elect is well versed in the economic problems which face both the production and distribution branches of the industry. At the same time, he is not unfamiliar with the fact that producers as well as distributors have many delicate questions to handle in the making of subjects for foreign territory.

It is believed, for example, that on his forthcoming tour of Latin America the President Elect will, among other things, observe motion picture conditions, doubtless with particular reference to the influence of American pictures in Central and South America.

It was inferred by the spokesman that Mr. Hoover regards the motion picture as probably the greatest of all forces for international good will.

Mr. Hoover's keen appreciation of what the motion picture business has meant and can mean in the future in the promotion of good will and commerce throughout the world was arrived at during his eight years as Secretary of Commerce. It was in the Hoover Regime that the Motion Picture Bureau of the Department of Commerce was developed—a bureau which has been of very great aid not only to American producers, exhibitors and distributors but also to kindred industries.

Mr. Hoover believes that to the world distribution of American made motion pictures can be traced a large portion of the foreign importation of American clothes, furniture and other domestic products in such countries as Japan, China and Asiatic Russia, where the visual acquaintance with our products was made possible by the movies.

"Abie's Irish Rose"

(Sound Version)

Reviewed by Anna Aiken Patterson

Publisher, The Weekly Film Review, Atlanta, and Special Correspondent of Motion Picture News

A FAIR silent film version of a great stage success has been turned into a fine picture attraction by the addition of a sound synchronization plus dialogue sequences. We are speaking of "Abie's Irish Rose". Paramount has now come through with an exceedingly fine job.

In its new form, Anne Nichols could not have asked for a more sympathetic handling of her tremendously successful play.

Sound gives a greatly increased charm to the picture. It has a pleasing synchronization throughout, with a pretty love theme. In the handling of the dialogue there is no "forcing a point". Jean Hersholt is very impressive in two speaking sequences wherein he intones the Hebrew prayer for the dead; and Nancy Carroll sings two songs and does a neat little tap dance. Her singing, be it known, was by way of entertaining the A. E. F. in a Y. M. C. A. hut "back of the lines" in France, and with Charles Rogers playing her accompaniment at the piano.

In "Abie's Irish Rose" Paramount employs the method of recording developed by Roy J. Pomeroy. There is no surface noise whatever. And the music score synchronizes perfectly with the action.

Meeting Called on Sound

Paramount Executives Convene to Decide on Sales Policy for Audible Films

A SPECIAL convention was called by Paramount during the past week in order to establish more firmly with the sales department the new sound policy of the company. The convention was held in the Paramount home office and is being attended by about 60 out-of-town men and about 15 of the local sales force.

At a meeting held recently and attended by every important executive of the Paramount organization, a new policy was suggested and drawn up regarding the future activities of the company in producing and selling pictures. The sound situation was thoroughly discussed from all angles. The policy determined, Sidney Kent, general manager of Paramount, instructed his men in New York and showed them what has been accomplished by Paramount in so far as sound is concerned.

The convention, which was addressed by Mr. Kent, Adolph Zukor, Jesse Lasky, Sam Katz, opened on Monday morning, November 12. The evening was spent at a theatre. On Tuesday the convention witnessed screenings of new Paramount pictures. That evening also was devoted to amusement. On Thursday and Friday the same program was in effect, with the exception that on Thursday the gathering will meet on the links of the Winged Foot Golf Club where they played in a tournament which was followed by a dinner.

Brown to Star in Act and Film at U. A. Theatre

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, Nov. 14.—United Artists theatre, downtown Los Angeles house, will star Joe E. Brown in a revue presented in conjunction with the screening of "The Hit of the Show." Instead of the usual procedure of staging revue ahead of the picture, Brown and his company will follow the film on the program.

"U" Signs Reichenbach to Publicity Contract

Harry Reichenbach has been engaged on a permanent basis by Universal Pictures Corporation, having signed a long-term contract to stay with Universal and to relinquish all other publicity enterprises in which he has been engaged. He also gives up the offices he has maintained in the Strauss Building for the last three years. On September 20 Universal engaged him for eight weeks to preside over the publicity destinies of the Colony Theatre's new policy.

Mr. Reichenbach will devote his time to the Universal special productions as a specialist in publicity ideas and campaigns. He is already at work on ideas for "Show Boat," "Broadway" and other Universal specials.

Says MacLean Observed Carol Option Clause

Irrespective of published reports that Sue Carol was free from her term contract with Douglas MacLean Productions as a result of the company failing to give proper notice of taking up option, Bogart Rogers, manager of the company states the contract was not broken and the actress was given proper notice November 1 of option for additional period starting in December.

Rogers further states this fact will hold true in due course of time, even though Miss Carol apparently is getting different advice.

Director Sets Two-Day Record for Talker

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, Nov. 14.—Eugene Walter, well known playwright, has established a record as a director of a two-reel talker that no director so far has equaled. Walter directed the picture for Fox called "Friendship" with Robert Edeson starred, in two days. The entire cast is composed of seven men and the action takes place in a single scene.

"U" Denies Rumors of Welsh Replacement

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, Nov. 14.—Rumors that Robert E. Welsh was being replaced as general manager of Universal Studios by Julius Bernheim were emphatically denied early this week by Carl Laemmle, Jr., who stated that Welsh was proving his value as head of the studios, and would continue.

Anna Aiken Patterson Addresses A.M.P.A.

ANNA AIKEN PATTERSON, publisher of the Weekly Film Review, Atlanta, and special correspondent of Motion Picture News, was a guest of honor at the weekly luncheon of the Associated Motion Picture Advertisers in New York City on November 15.

Mrs. Patterson pointed out a lack of proper selling angles in distributor advertising in the trade papers. Too much attention was given, she said, to adjectives and superlatives and billing credits of stars, etc. What the exhibitor wants, she declared, are facts and definite exploitation material by which the exhibitor can sell the picture to the public. This need exists just as much in the case of the local manager of a producer-controlled circuit house as in the case of the independent exhibitor, she declared.

Paramount Stock Put on $3.00 Basis

THE Board of Directors of Paramount-Famous Lasky Corporation this week declared a quarterly dividend of 5 per cent on the new common stock payable December 29th to the stockholders of record on December 7th. This places the stock on a new $3.00 basis. The Paramount stock was recently split three for one and prior to that the old stock paid a cash dividend of $8.00 per share.

Production Boom in Hollywood

Usual Winter Depression Offset by Sound Picture Schedule; Paramount and M-G-M Will Have 50 in Work

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 11.—Hollywood's production panic is ending. Oddly enough, for the first time in years, the period during which there has generally been less production than at any other time of the year, will be the busiest one of the current season. Despite the fact that three or four studios are rumored closing, one shut-down being definite, the amount of production which will be held on the other lots more than makes up for those which will be closed and will offer more employment than has been open to Hollywood's film colony since the inception of sound-hysteria.

The boom is due next month, by which time practically all studios will have completed the sound stages under construction and will place into production, stories which have been withheld until equipment is ready.

In former years, the months of December, January and February witnessed a minimum of production. For this year, each producer is planning more pictures to be in work during that period than have been at any other time for the past year. The one definite closing is the Warner Brothers studio, which goes dark in December, its entire program completed. F B O is reported slated to close and rumors state that Pathe and First National may follow a similar course for a brief period.

Paramount and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer will make over fifty pictures during the next three months. Twenty-two of Paramount's planned productions were announced this week twelve of them to be 100 per cent talking. The dozen are "The Doctor's Secret," "The Dummy," "Tong War," (also silent version); "Close Harmony," "Drums of Oude," "The Genius"

Bebe Daniels Seeking Contract Release

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 14.—Bebe Daniels is negotiating for a release from her starring contract with Paramount in order that she may do a dialogue picture immediately. Although she is making the first of four productions for Paramount to be released this season, none of them are slated for dialogue. Miss Daniels feels she should not risk loss of popularity by delaying dialoging, on account of the present widespread demand by exhibitors for "talkers."

Although Paramount has already sold the series of four Daniels star pictures to theatres for the current season; it is said the company will come to terms with the star whereby she will be granted a release from her contract after the current picture is finished.

(not Dreiser's but a William Robson story); an untitled Wallace Beery (silent version also); "The Concert" (silent version also); "Darkened Rooms" (silent also); and three more to be announced. The other ten, which will include synchronized song and dance scenes, are "The Shop-Worn Angel"; "The Wolf of Wall Street"; "The Four Feathers"; "Wolf-Song"; "Innocents of Paris"; "Two Shall Meet"; "Sins of the Fathers"; the next Jannings, which is an original story by Victor Schertzinger; "Manhattan Cocktail" and "The Canary Murder Case."

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's list contains no "all-talkies," as all production will be made in both silent and synchronized versions. The productions, to which many more names will be added, include "The Last of Mrs. Cheney," "Spite Marriage," "Thirst," "Broadway Melody," "Hallelujah," "Wonder of Women," "The Bridge of San Luis Rey," "The Pagan," "Desert Law," "The Duke Steps Out," "The Five O'Clock Girl," and untitled Lon Chaney, "Dynamite," "The Bugle Sounds," "The Green Ghost," an untitled Fred Niblo production, "College Days" and "Hunted."

This list is only complete as far as the two studios themselves have their plans, and there will undoubtedly be many added to the number nailed here. Universal, Fox, Tiffany-Stahl, Columbia, Hal Roach, Christies, Educational, in fact, all independents and short subject makers are planning a greater number of productions than ever before.

The news, which is not yet known to Hollywood, is seeping out slowly. It is bringing new life and new hope to the thousands who have been hanging on throughout the darkest period Hollywood has known in many years, hoping for a "break." And it's due before Christmas.

RCA Starts Production in Jan.

Now Equipping New York Studio and Will Experiment With Features; Shorts Also Contemplated

THE Radio Corporation of America will start actual motion picture production on its own hook with the Photophone system of recording right after the first of January. It is not doing this with the idea of entering into competition with any of its licensees, but largely along experimental lines, which, however, will be productive of features that will be available for exhibitors, and which, it is claimed, will be the equal or better than any on the market.

RCA has taken a three-year lease on the entire building covering practically a block on 24th street between Madison and Lexington avenues, in New York City, and is now converting it into what will be known as the Gramercy Studios. It will have the very latest equipment in every detail, and will have a staff of experts qualified in every manner to produce high-class pictures. It is said that at many of the sound studios there is a serious handicap because of a lack of knowledge of technique in the making of talkies on the part of the cameramen and others.

The sound stage at the Gramercy studios will be 170 by 170 feet and 45 feet high. It will be equipped with multiple recording facilities and every modern convenience that will add to its effectiveness. Not only will feature pictures be made, but much time will be devoted to the making of short subjects, educational and industrial films. The studios will be available to outside producers, and every assistance will be given them by the RCA experts.

While the RCA staff is busy with preparations for opening the new studio, it is also making rapid progress with theatre installations of Photophone equipment. According to the schedule of installations as now arranged up to the first of the coming year, there will be twenty-six Keith-Albee houses equipped and fifty-one outside houses. Following is the schedule for the K-A-O installations:

Harris Majestic, Johnstown, Pa., Oct. 29;

Proctor's Fifth Avenue, New York, Dec. 1; Proctor's 125th Street, Nov. 18; Coliseum, N. Y., Dec. 5; Franklin, N. Y., Nov. 18; Chester, N. Y., Nov. 28; Madison, Brooklyn, Dec. 14; Keith-Albee, Youngstown, Nov. 28; Keith-Albee, Akron, Dec. 5; Hill Street, Los Angeles, Dec. 15; Golden Gate, San Francisco, Dec. 1; Harris, Pittsburgh, Dec. 5; Hennepin, Minneapolis, Dec. 15; Orpheum, Omaha, Dec. 20; Proctor's 86th Street, N. Y., Dec. 10; Riverside, N. Y., Dec. 12; Proctor's Mount Vernon, Dec. 12; Proctor's Yonkers, Dec. 12; Proctor's Grand, Albany, Dec. 21; Proctor's Fourth Street, Albany, Dec. 22; Proctor's Fourth Street, Troy, Dec. 17; Proctor's, Schenectady, Dec. 17; Proctor's Palace, Newark, Dec. 20; Proctor's 58th Street, N. Y., Dec. 20; Belmont, Chicago, Dec. 23; Victory, Providence, Nov. 20.

In addition to the equipments to be installed by RCA by the first of the new year, the company is planning to have at least 650 Photophone outfits in theatres by May.

"The Viking"

Reviewed by Edwin Schallert

(Editor of the Los Angeles Times Preview and Special Correspondent of Motion Picture News)

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 11.—Beauty is emphatically disclosed in Technicolor Company's first all-color film which is to be released with sound effects and probably dialogue by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. I saw this picture in the silent version. It is called "The Viking," and is adapted from the novel, "The Thrall of Leif the Lucky." It deals with an early discovery of America by northern sea rovers, and tells a romantic tale of love and adventure. Principal players include Pauline Starke, Donald Crisp, Le Roy Mason, Richard Alexander and Harry Lewis Woods. The film was directed by R. William Neill.

From a semi-historic standpoint there are several underlying points of interest in this picture. One of these concerns the early spread of Christianity through the Icelandic region. Another the daring venture of a band of intrepid warriors into the unknown regions of the Atlantic in quest of a new land. The theory that the vikings actually did visit the shores of America is established through a view of a monument erected presumably by them ere Columbus came, and still standing in Turo Park in the town of Newport, Rhode Island. Thus the tale purely imaginary has some substantiation in fact, and is rather adroitly tied up with the present at the close of the picture.

However, it is as a screen novelty that "The Viking" will most appeal. The period and place in which it is laid are absolutely new. Plot interest has not been sacrificed to a remote locale. Any audience will find inviting the romance between the Saxon nobleman, Alwin, and the defiant daughter of the Vikings, Helga, who buys him as a slave. There are some scenes of battle and contention, and a theme of sacrifice in which Leif Ericson commander of the expedition figures. In love with Helga himself Leif gives her up to Alwin, who saves his life during a mutiny of the superstitious crew on the voyage to an unknown world.

Such a story as "The Viking" could perhaps only be effectively produced in color. It strikes a new note, proving the development which the process has undergone in the past year. The most notable performances are those of Miss Starke and Donald Crisp, although Anders Randolph, as the father of Leif who attacks his son's adoption of Christianity in an actual contest by sword, is strikingly well done. Le Roy Mason is effective.

Kennedy Not to Quit

Rumor He Was To Leave Pathe Definitely Quashed; Is Busy Lining Up Next Season's Plans

HOLLYWOOD, November 14.—Joseph P. Kennedy is here busy lining up Pathe production plans for next season. This definitely ends the rumors that Kennedy is quitting Pathe.

He is spending his time between the F B O and Pathe lots and on this trip is formulating Pathe's future policies in conference with studio executives which was not typical of past visits made by Mr. Kennedy here.

As previously reported in Motion Pic-

TURE NEWS, it is believed that John Gilbert has been added to the roster of stars now under contract to him personally, the others being Pola Negri, Gloria Swanson, Tom Mix and Eric von Stroheim.

Mr. Kennedy declines to be interviewed. Nothing definite can be learned beyond the fact that stories for next year's Pathe production schedule are being selected. There is a possibility of a definite statement next week.

L. A. Theatre Grosses

Business Better Than Usual Despite After Election Let-Down and Rain Spell

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 15.—Los Angeles motion picture houses marked up better than average grosses over the 8-day period following election, doing better than expected in the face of the usual post-election let down and several rainy days, which interfered with trade.

Grosses for the full week from Friday to Thursday of regular run houses which open new bills Fridays are as follows:

Metropolitan, featuring Richard Dix in "Moran of the Marines," $25,000. Loew's State, with the greatly ballyhooed Marion Davies vehicle "Show People," grossed in its final week at Warner Brothers Hollywood, took $32,000.

The two-a-day attractions now current are "Interference," at the Carthay Circle, which did a total of $15,500, while Grauman's Chinese with "Noah's Ark" was doing a business that ran up to $25,000 for the week. Both are sealed at $1.65 top.

Gross for the week from Wednesday to Tuesday last at the United Artists, featuring "The Awakening" was at $24,000. This house under Hal Horne's direction is steadily increasing its business.

Mayer Pleads for Better English Pictures

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, Nov. 11.—A plea for better pictures from English producers was made by Louis B. Mayer to the fourteen visiting British editors and publishers at the banquet tendered them last week by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences. There is plenty of room in America and the rest of the world for good pictures, Mayer told the assembled elite of the industry who came to honor the visitors, and England's film industry will find its product welcomed according to its merit.

Mayer was one of many speakers. Douglas Fairbanks presided, with William de Mille officiating as master of ceremonies. Speakers included William Randolph Hearst, Cecil B. De Mille, Harry Warner, Commodore J. Stuart Blackton, Ralph D. Blumenfeld, Alan Pitt Robbins and Sir George Armstrong, the latter three being among the honored guests.

D'Arrast Given Release by Paramount

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, Nov. 14.—When Harry D'Arrast, director, disagreed with Paramount officials over the type of story that should be used as the first starring picture for Maurice Chevalier, he asked for, and received, a release from his five-year contract with the producing organization. D'Arrast has been with Paramount a year, previous to which time he was assistant to Charles Chaplin. No other director has yet been selected to replace D'Arrast in the direction of Chevalier in his first picture to be made in this country.

Talkies Close Broadway Legits

Producing Managers' Picture Production Bubble Bursts, Leaving Them Holding Bag With Valuable Stage Hits

TALKING motion pictures have played havoc with the legitimate theatres along Broadway. No less than thirty-three of the seventy-two first class legitimate show places along the Great White Way have been dark during the current week and for the past two or three weeks. Some along Broadway attribute this condition to the Presidential election and the radio addresses made by the candidates and others. The legitimates were no doubt hurt by these addresses. Box-office figures show the falling off conclusively on the nights that Governor Smith and President-elect Hoover spoke over the radio. But the fact remains that the first run picture houses along Broadway did at least a pleasing business in the face of this competition.

These are hard times in the legitimate show business. The producers hoped before the season started to reap big profits from the production of their stage successes into talking pictures. A number of them had banded together for that purpose, according to an early announcement from the Al H. Woods offices. That bubble of expectancy has apparently burst completely and the producers are now more or less in a panic.

Early last Summer William A. Brady, veteran Broadway legitimate producer, predicted in an interview in the columns of Motion Picture News that there would be more legitimate houses dark along Broadway in October and November of this year than ever in the history of theatricals. He said that would be the effect the talkies would have on the legitimate drama.

In the Brady interview, the producer said that the legitimate producers along Broadway would make a lot of noise about the plans they would have for reproducing some of their stage hits as talking motion pictures, but that those plans would probably get nowhere and in the end the picture industry, as usual, would reap the harvest from the stage plays.

The Brady prophecies seem to be materializing. Shortly after his interview Al Woods rallied together several of the Broadway producers, including Mr. Brady, the Shuberts, Arthur Hammerstein, the Selwyns and others and the official announcement was issued from the Shubert offices that they would produce their stage plays as road show attractions by the Vocafilm process of recording. They had completed arrangements whereby they acquired the rights to Vocafilm. An official statement was made by David R. Hochreich, president of the Vocafilm Corporation to the same effect.

An injunction against Vocafilm halted the proposition temporarily, but within a short time this injunction was vacated. Meantime the enthusiasm of the Broadway legitimate producers was evidently on the wane. Al Woods got busy with his legitimate productions. He no longer cared to discuss the Vocafilm productions. William A. Brady met with an accident that incapacitated him for several weeks. The Shuberts were rumored to be dickering on production arrangements with Warner Bros. and P. A. Powers. A few of the Broadway successes were disposed of on the outright sale of picture rights to motion picture producers.

Now comes the announcement from David R. Hochreich, President of the Vocafilm Corporation of America that he has closed a thirteen year exclusive recording license on Vocafilm to the Maurice Schwartz Yiddish Talking Pictures Corporation, of which Maurice Schwartz is director general. Mr. Schwartz is also director general of the Yiddish Art Theatre. The productions of that organization are to be made into all-dialogue pictures to be shown in all parts of the world. They are to make a minimum of six a year to be done in Yiddish.

Meantime the Broadway legitimate producers are holding the bag. Their shelves are warped with the weight of material easily adaptable to sound and talking pictures. They are in a quandry as to what to do with it. With them the proposition seems to be similar to that of the stock market. There is now a watchful waiting policy. They are trying to figure whether the market is going to rise or fall.

Discussing the subject a Broadway executive connected with one of the leading producers said there was enough material on Broadway shelves to keep the talkies supplied for a number of seasons. But they are awaiting the most advantageous time to

M. P. Relief Fund in Distress

Has Deficit of $15,000 on Current Year on Account of Cut from "Chest"; Outlook Even Darker Next Season

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 14. — Facing a deficit of at least $15,000 for the current year, the Motion Picture Relief Fund, the industry's charity organization on the coast, has been forced to turn down all requests for assistance except actual hospital cases.

Last year the film industry's quota for the Community Chest was $200,000. The amount raised was $160,000, or in other words, subscriptions made by members of the motion picture industry only fell twenty per cent below quota. This year its quota is again set at $200,000 and, according to present figures, the Relief Fund may expect a fifty per cent cut on its share of the Chest.

The Relief Fund has been operating as a member of the Los Angeles Community Chest, and last year is said to have received written assurances from Chest officials that the latter would provide a budget of $70,000 to the Relief Fund for the current year. Last year's Chest drive, however, did not reach its expected quota, and the Relief Fund was cut down in its revenue to the extent of $15,000. In order to carry on necessary charity work among members of the film colony, the Relief Fund was forced to borrow the $15,000 from outside sources to meet its obligations.

As a member of the Community Chest group, the Relief Fund is not allowed to hold any benefits, or solicit income in any other way aside from that revenue received from the Chest. The contract further does not allow the Relief Fund to use future Chest allotments to make up past deficits, and a number of Relief Fund members have voiced disapproval of having the Relief Fund continue under the Chest jurisdiction beyond the present campaign for funds which started Nov. 12th.

This year, under the budget system, the Relief Fund can expect $38,000 from the Community Chest to carry on its work, if the Chest is able to reach its quota of $2,644,185. If the quota is not obtained, the Relief Fund can expect an even smaller figure. This income to the Relief Fund would be only half of the necessary amount needed to carry on its year's charities; and would place the Fund in a position of not being able to take care of any requests for assistance except hospital cases. One official of the Relief Fund is quoted as declaring that the Fund really needs at least $100,000 yearly to function properly.

Relief Fund officials are reluctant to pull away from the Chest, but are faced with the necessity of obtaining other income than that doled out under the Chest budget. Meetings have been held between officials of both organizations to work out a satisfactory solution, with little success resulting so far.

In the current Community Chest campaign, solicitation of funds in the film colony is under the general head of Cecil B. De Mille, with captains in each studio to do the collecting from employees. The film industry quota is set at $200,000, with each studio holding a sub-quota according to size. Although Community Chest officials declare all donations are to be voluntary, some studios have sent out circular letters to employees informing them that they are expected to give a certain amount as their quota, and subscription blanks with the named amounts are enclosed to be signed and returned to the studio head.

A number of studio employees resent this method of solicitation.

Three Fan Paper Writers Barred from West Coast Studios

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 11.—The first definite step taken by producers as a protective measure against fan magazine writers who are alleged to have abused privileges extended them, was the barring of three writers last week from studios. While official, the closing of the studio doors is not called a "ban;" the publicity departments have notified doormen that these three writers are not to be permitted into the lot, have withdrawn their names from publicity mailing lists and will refuse all cooperation in the future. Any interviews or copy any one of the trio needs in the future will have to be secured by direct contact with players. The publicity departments have gone further by notifying all players under contract that the writers are not in good grace.

The measure is a direct result of the recent article anent Conrad Nagel in one of the fan publications. The writer of that article is one to whom cooperation is being withdrawn. One of the others has been writing "love life" stories.

Practically all studios whose publicity men are part of the Wampas ethics or credentials committee are closing their doors against the offending writers.

a decision was rendered in favor of P. A. Partridge, operating the Coliseum Theatre at Tillamook, Ore., on account of the late delivery of the United Artists production, "The Gaucho," on June 11. Some weeks ago the Arbitration Board had rendered a decision in favor of United Artists, but after J. J. Fleming, secretary of the Northwest Independent Exhibitors Association presented the case on behalf of Partridge, the decision was reversed, with the result that Partridge was awarded the decision.

The case sets a precedent in the Portland section.

50% Amusement Firms Pay No Income Tax

NEARLY half of the corporations engaged in the amusement industries pay no income taxes to the Federal Government, it is disclosed by an analysis of the 1926 income tax returns just made public by the Bureau of Internal Revenue, Washington, D. C.

Returns were filed by 7,165 such corporations for 1926, but only 3,725 reported taxable income. This does not mean, however, that the other 3,440 corporations made no money or paid no dividends during that year, but merely that their allowable deductions were in excess of their gross income.

The 3,725 corporations which paid taxes had an aggregate gross income of $696,468,939, and net income totaling $86,631,003, from which they were permitted deductions of $2,261,983 as net losses for prior years, the taxes paid on the remaining income aggregating $10,819,151. The corporations which were free of tax had gross income aggregating $194,282,110, but after deducting all allowances had deficits, for tax-paying purposes, of $31,562,815.

Warner Net for Fiscal Year $2,044,841

Tremendous Gain Made Over Last Year's Business; New Stock Issues Under Way

FOR the year ending Aug. 31, 1928, Warner Bros. financial statement shows a net profit of $2,044,841. In contrast to these figures is the previous year's report which showed a net of $30,426, pointing out the tremendous gain made by this company for its fiscal year. 550,000 shares of combined Class A and Common produced $3.72 per share.

On Tuesday, Nov. 13, Warner Bros. gave notice to the New York Stock Exchange that it was the company's intentions to increase the present authorized 550 shares of common stock to 2,500,000 shares. A new issue of 785,604 shares of preferred stock will also be created. Moneys accrued from these issues will be used to finance expansion moves already made or under way. 171,000 shares of this issue will be used to finance the recent purchase of Skouras' St. Louis and Indianapolis' theatres. Directors of Goldman, Sachs & Co. have agreed to accept common stock in payment for underwriting and have recommended that six year contracts be made with Warner Bros.

Referring again to the financial statements it is estimated that Warner Bros. profits for the current quarter will exceed $2,500,000 or about a half million dollars ahead of last year's profits. The 199,140 shares of outstanding Class A stock are called for redemption Dec. 1, current year. By the close of this year, holders of $3,681,000 principal of three year 6½ per cent notes availed themselves of redemption before maturity. The balance has been paid. The company retired the $799,000 6 per cent obligation covering Vitaphone Corp., acquired from minority interests thereby releasing the stock of this corporation and also made additional reductions of $500,000.

Trowbridge to Act as Pickford Eastern Agent

Carroll S. Trowbridge has become eastern representative for Mary Pickford. He now serves in a similar capacity for her husband, Douglas Fairbanks. The business of both the Pickford and the Fairbanks organizations will be handled by him from the headquarters of United Artists in New York. No change in the policies of either organization is contemplated. Mr. Trowbridge declared, although additions to the staffs are contemplated from time to time.

Mr. Trowbridge expects to leave late this month on an extended tour of the United Artists exchanges.

Northwest Exhibitors Win in Case Against U. A.

Dan Michalove, Southern Division sales manager, and the following managers were in attendance: W. W. Anderson, Atlanta; E. L. McShane, Charlotte; E. C. Leeves, Dallas; L. J. Duncan, Memphis; C. C. Brown, New Orleans; and C. W. Allen, Oklahoma City.

Ohio M. P. T. O. Meet in Columbus, Nov. 20

THE motion picture exhibitors of Ohio will congregate on November 20 and 21 at the Deshler-Wallick Hotel in Columbus for their eighth annual meeting at which will be discussed the present vogue of sound films in the industry. A large attendance is expected.

There will be demonstrations and addresses by experts from the Electrical Research Products, Inc., and the Bristolphone Company of Waterbury, Conn. The convention will discuss the question of how soon talkies are to enter the smaller towns and villages, not only from the angle of the manufacturer of sound equipment but from the standpoint of the exhibitor.

The Rev. William M. MacLeod, of Pinehurst, N. C., an ardent motion picture enthusiast, has accepted an invitation to address the gathering.

In addition to William M. James, president of the M. P. T. O. of Ohio, the following officers and trustees of the theatremen's body will be present: J. J. Harwood, H. T. Palmer, J. A. Ackerman, Henry Biberson, Sam Lind, F. J. Wood, M. B. Horwitz, F. A. Kelly, John L. Damm, C. W. Miller, John A. Schwalm, and A. C. Himmelein.

2 Birmingham Theatres Bombed by Vandals

The Princess and the Rialto, two theatres of Birmingham, Ala., were bombed with glass vials of verelium, an unpleasant smelling chemical, on last Tuesday and Wednesday nights, November 6 and 7. Two shoe shops were also victims of the vandals. The odor was very noticeable along the vicinity of the theatres but it did not penetrate to the interior of the houses.

The only reason that R. M. Kennedy, manager of both houses, could assign for the throwing of the bombs was his refusal to hire union musicians to change phonograph records on the new synchronizing machines which both theatres had installed.

Jerome Novat Now Poster Art Chief for Paramount

A Paramount worker for ten years in various capacities, Jerome Novat this week was named to succeed Frank Blakely, resigned, as manager of the Paramount poster department.

Early in 1925 Mr. Novat was appointed ad sales manager of the Brooklyn Paramount exchange. In 1927 he was recalled to the home office where he confined his activities to creating original sales items of the herald, and novelty stick classification.

Only 1 Firm Incorporated At Albany, N. Y.

The only company to incorporate in the motion picture business in New York State at Albany during the past week was Movie Editors, Incorporated, which will be located in New York City. The company was incorporated with stock having no par value and did not specify the amount of capitalization with which it will begin operations. The stockholders and directors include Arthur H. Loucks, John A. Norling and Walter Ball, all of New York City.

Skouras Chosen Warner Theatre Head

All Houses to Come Under His Control Through Recent St. Louis Deal With Warner Bros.

AS a result of the recent deal whereby Skouras Bros. St. Louis and Indianapolis theatres will pass into control of Warner Bros. about Jan. 1, it is reported that Spyros Skouras, for a long time prominently identified as a St. Louis exhibitor and First National factor, will assume charge of all Warner theatre activities, which will include the Stanley circuit, the Skouras Bros. holdings in St. Louis, embracing Skouras Bros. Enterprises and the St. Louis Amusement Co., and the Skouras Bros. houses in Indianapolis jointly operated by Publix-Skouras. The salary to be paid Skouras is said to be $100,000 per year.

The complete details of the financing of the purchase of the Skouras holdings by the Warner Brothers have not been made public, but it is stated that the Skouras A stock taken over will be on the basis of $70 a share and the B stock at $60. The Skouras Enterprises are said to hold 51 per cent of the St. Louis Amusement Company stock. The St. Louis Amusement Company has not been paying dividends recently.

Some inkling of the probable price to be paid for the Skouras properties is given in the notification to the New York Stock Exchange that Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., will increase its common stock from 550,000 to 2,500,000 shares and will also create 785,604 shares of new preferred. It is understood that 171,000 shares of the common stock will be used to purchase Skouras Brothers Enterprises, Inc., and the St. Louis Amusement Company.

The Skouras houses to be taken over include the Ambassador, Missouri, Grand Central and Empress and the various neighborhood houses controlled by the St. Louis Amusement Company, about twenty-five in all.

The deal also involves the Skouras interests in the Circle, Ohio and Indiana theatres in Indianapolis.

So far as the motion picture public of St. Louis and Indianapolis is concerned the change of control of the theatres will have absolutely no effect whatsoever. Spyros, Charles and George Skouras will assume management of the string of theatres throughout the country controlled by Warner Brothers and the houses will continue on the same plane as established by Skouras Brothers.

It is understood that Warner Brothers have not acquired title to the physical properties of the theatres taken over but merely the rights of operation and management. The big asset taken over by Warner Brothers is the services of the Skouras Brothers, who the recognized leaders among the motion picture exhibitors of the world. In order to land the Skouras Boys the Warners naturally had to bid high as owners of large chains were seeking their services.

What price was actually paid and how it was divided in cash and stock is in a measure purely a private matter.

In Indianapolis, little change of policy is expected. Local officials, according to report, have not yet been officially advised of the consummation of the deal. George Tyson, director of advertising for the St. Louis company stated: "We have understood that in event the deal went through, Mr. Spyros Skouras would become head of Warner's theatre department. In that event there will be no actual change in management or policies here."

Limited Franchising of Agents Now Latest Coast Plan

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 14.—The latest possibility, as the result of a series of conferences between players' representatives and producers to clarify the present unsatisfactory conditions, may be the franchising of a limited number of personal managers and agents who alone will be permitted to deal with studios which are members of the Producers Association.

Under such franchising, the smaller fry among the agents and those under suspicion of shady deals would be eliminated from dealing with the larger producers. Representatives displaying initiative and honesty at the end of a certain period will eventually be given franchises to deal direct. This method would do away with so-called "chiseling" on actors, writers, directors, etc., under contract to representatives by unscrupulous agents. It would also protect casting directors from arguments as to who sold the services of an actor and who had the right to do so.

The committee meeting of agents slated for Monday was postponed because of the sudden death that day of Ernest Cowell, committee member and well known representative who passed away as a result of a brain tumor following a nervous breakdown.

A general meeting of representatives and producers is to be held later this week.

Publix to Resume Operation of Own Coast Theatres—Crabill in Charge

RALPH CRABILL will assume charge of the Publix theatres on the West Coast when the company resumes operation of its own houses, now operated by West Coast Theatres, Inc., on December 1.

Arrangements for the divorcing of the Publix theatres from Westco operation were completed by Harold B. Franklin, president of the latter company, on his present visit to New York. The two Loew theatres, the Warfield in San Francisco, and Loew's State in Los Angeles, will continue under Westco operation as heretofore.

Nine theatres located in Coast cities will revert to Publix own operation when the present arrangement between that company and Westco terminates next month. These are the Metropolitan and Million Dollar in Los Angeles; the California, Imperial, Granada, St. Francis and Portola in San Francisco; the Seattle theatre, Seattle, and Portland in Portland. The resumption of the Publix operations will return the Publix stage units to these houses it is believed.

Crabill, who will be in charge of bookings and policies, has been a member of Publix since its inception, coming to the merged B & K-Famous Players chains as a member of the former organization. He was sent from Chicago to the Metropolitan theatre in Boston when Publix opened that house, later receiving promotion to the executive staff at the home office.

Publix Managers Class

Fifth Session Will Assemble in February and Consists of Twenty-five Hand-picked Men

THE fifth class of the Publix Theatre Managers Training School will assemble in February, 1929, it was announced last week by Sam Katz, president of Publix Theatres Corporation.

The class will be limited to twenty-five men and the majority of these will be men now in the employ of Publix, whose record and ability have won for them an opportunity to avail themselves of special training at the expense of the corporation. Many applications have also been received from those who are not members of the Publix organization and a limited number from this group, whose educational and business experience made them particularly suited for the work, will be selected for the coming season. Age limits are from twenty-five to thirty-five and further details can be obtained from Manager Jack Barry in the New York Theatre Building.

New York City will again be the home of the school and regularly throughout the six months course, men will be assigned to Publix houses in New York City and elsewhere, and to departments of the Home Office where they will assist in the preparation and execution, of the daily routine.

Among the subjects included in the course are:

Principles of Management, Policies of Operation, Community Analysis, Selection and Training of Theatre Staff, Equipment Maintenance, Projection, Theatre and Stage Lighting, Stagecraft, Public Relations, Advertising (copy, Layout, Media, Rates, Advertising Materials, Mechanics of Printing and Engraving, etc.), Publicity, Relations with Newspapers, Exploitation, Selective Merchandising, Theatre Forms and Accounting, Insurance, Fire and Accident Prevention, Program Arrangement, Schedules, etc.

Mr. Katz issued the following statement: "The Publix Theatres' Managers' Training School which has completed four sessions and graduated about one hundred men now engaged in theatre operation in this country and abroad, has proved itself of inestimable value in its work of providing a definite and complete course in practical motion picture management training. I have great hopes in the future of the Managers' school."

U. S. Films Lead Abroad

They Will Retain Their Supremacy in Face of Existing Conditions Says Harry Cohn After European Survey

AVIEW extremely optimistic as to the future of American films in Europe is taken by Harry Cohn, Columbia vice-president in charge of production, who has just returned to America after a four-months' tour of England and the continent during which time he made a first-hand survey of the European situation.

The furor created by the sound film in the United States is not being echoed in Europe Mr. Cohn found. The opening of "The Jazz Singer" in London created only a momentary flutter. The continental movie-goer is not sold on the talkie, although he is susceptible to the picture equipped with sound effects and synchronized score. It is this type of film, he asserts, that will successfully market abroad.

Mr. Cohn found England, France, Germany and Italy leading in the movement to increase production to give the home product a chance, but in spite of conditions

American films do not suffer any danger of losing their supremacy abroad, in the opinion of the Columbia executive.

Germany is striving hard to achieve dominance over the European market by means of negotiations of a reciprocal nature which will open the German theatres to a certain ratio of films from other European countries in return for a continental market for her own product. The arrangement is simplified by mutual customs concessions. Such an arrangement is now being consummated between France and Germany, says Mr. Cohn.

However, as Mr. Cohn points out, these reciprocal arrangements will only work out successfully if the publics of the various countries involved will be satisfied with the films of other countries. Mr. Cohn surmises after visiting the leading studios on the continent that the American film will find a greater response with the European motion picture goer than will a European production.

FBO Distributing 6 Shorts During December

Six short subjects will emerge from the FBO exchanges during December as new releases.

On December 2, "Honey Bálks," the fourth of the Barney Google comedies will be issued; Philip Davis and Barney Hellum have the leading roles. The sixth release of the Curiosities series produced by Walter Futter will be shown on December 5. On December 9, "Casper's Week-End," the fourth release in the Toot sand Casper series will make its appearance; Thelma Hill and Bud Duncan are featured. The seventh Curiosities will be shown on December 19 and on December 23 "Mickey's Big Game Hunt," the fifth of this series, will be distributed. "The Beef-Steaks," another of the Google comedies, will be shown on December 30.

First National Earnings Show Large Increase

The net earnings of First National Pictures, Inc., for the first nine months of 1928 show an increase in profits of $92,576.94 over the same period of 1927. The net earnings for the period were $976,810.92 as compared with $884,233.98 for the same period of last year.

The Board of Directors at a meeting held this week voted on the first preferred stock, the regular dividend of $2.00 per share, payable January 1, 1929. The regular dividend of $1.75 per share, payable January 1, 1929, was voted on the second preferred A stock. It was voted to retire 1,000 shares of second preferred A stock, series five, on January 1, 1929, at $100 per share.

Universal Financial Report Shows Increased Net

Universal's financial report for the nine-months' period ending August 4 indicates a net profit of $1,286,516 after charges and Federal taxes, comparing with $1,026,772 in the corresponding period of 1927.

For the quarter ending on September 4 the net profit was $635,383 as compared with $482,958 in the corresponding quarter of 1927.

Broadway Legits Hit Hard by Talkies dispose of their wares. There apparently is no longer any concerted effort being made by the producers. They are merely watching the market. They cannot make up their minds whether the talkies are here to stay or whether they are just a flareup that will subside after the novelty has worn off in a few months. They want all the traffic will bear for their productions and they are trying to figure at just what moment they can collect the greatest tolls from the picture producers.

The average Broadway producer seems to fear to let his plays go to the movies at the present time because he does not figure that the new science has developed to a point where the plays will be done full justice in the movies. He seems inclined to think that if he waits a while there will be vast improvements and if these improvements come his manuscripts are bound to be that much more valuable.

Meantime practically all of the Broadway producers have their agents out in efforts to establish the right contacts with the motion picture producers. The Hammerstein office has dispatched emissaries to the coast with the idea of disposing of product. They are feeling out the market.

Shuberts are rumored to be in negotiation with P. A. Powers with the idea of producing their stage successes under the Cinephone process. Shubert artists are reported to be working in the Powers studio in New York City. Rumor also has nego-

Pat Rooney, Marian Bent, Pat III Sign for Universal Talkie Series

PAT ROONEY, stage comedian, song and dance man, and vaudeville star, has been signed by Carl Laemmle for sound pictures. Marian Bent, his wife and stage partner, and Pat Rooney III, their son, also have been engaged by the Universal Pictures Corporation. The Rooneys are now playing their vaudeville act around New York. They will start work for Universal about January 15.

The Rooneys are to make a series of high class comedies, with full dialogue, sound effects and music. The exact length of the individual pictures has not yet been determined. They may be of feature proportions.

Edgar Allan Woolf, playwright and stage producer, is to write the stories for the Rooney-Universal pictures.

The present plans call for two series of six comedies each during 1929. The Universal-Rooney contract, is for a year, with options.

tiations pending between Shuberts and Warner Bros.

Al Woods is commuting in Europe again. He disposed of the picture rights to "The Trial of Mary Dugan" and apparently has lost all of the enthusiasm he once displayed in producing his own shows for the talkies and exhibiting them as road shows with the original companies instead of sending his troupes on the road.

George White was interviewed on the talkies some months ago and he was emphatic in the assertion that talking pictures were the bunk and would never get anywhere. He was not interested in the production of his "Scandals" in pictures and if any of his artists were used in pictures it would only be after the motion picture producers had paid him plenty for the use of such artists as he had under contract. Harry Richman, one of the stars of the "Scandals" is to make a picture, "Say It With Music" for United Artists. George White, it is also said, will go into his dance as another attraction to the picture.

William A. Brady said the legitimate producers would never be able to get together on any sort of concerted action by which they might profit handsomely through motion pictures. He said the picture producer was too smart for the legitimate producer and would reap the major portion of the profits. It looks as though Mr. Brady was a wise prophet.

"Smitty" Comedies to Have Dialogue

"SMITTY AND HIS PALS" comedies will have dialogue and sound effects, according to the announcement of Amedee J. Van Beuren, who with this addition now has four Pathe releases with RCA Photophone accompaniment. The others are Aesop's Sound Fables, Grantland Rice Sportlights and Topics of the Day.

"Stage Struck," the second Photophone Aesop's Sound Fable, has just been recorded.

"Winning Patterns" is the first dialogue Sportlight in which Grantland Rice tells about the sporting events pictured on the screen.

"Smitty and His Pals" comedies with Photophone accompaniment will be made on the West Coast.

"Movietone Follies" May Be Annual Screen Fixture

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 4.—Plans for a yearly institution in motion pictures akin to the Ziegfeld "Follies" of the theatre, are under way at the Fox Movietone Studio. At present, the Fox executives are working on story, scenic production and cast, the idea being to make the first "Movietone Follies" as fully elaborate in entertainment and scenic value as the Ziegfeld institution.

On the success of the forthcoming "Movietone Follies," which will be ready for release early next year, depends making the idea an annual feature with new editions and casts each year. Melody and lyric writers who have contributed in past years, to not only Ziegfeld's "Follies," but to George White's "Scandals," Earl Carroll's "Vanities," and the Shubert annual "Passing Shows," the Bohemians' "Greenwich Village Follies"; in fact, almost every type of attraction which has made New York's Broadway "The Great White Way," are among those under contract to Fox. Dave Stamper, Bud de Sylva, William Halligan, who are not only responsible for songs, but for black-outs, sketches and monologues used in such shows are now on the Fox lot.

The first cast will be assembled from both the musical comedy and motion picture fields. Several screen personalities have successfully taken singing and instrument-playing tests, with a view towards being engaged for the "Movietone Follies." The title "Movietone Follies" is not permanent.

Sound Picture Reviews

By CHESTER J. SMITH

TIFFANY-STAHLS sound feature, "Marriage by Contract," came to the Embassy theatre last Friday evening for its first New York showing and received an enthusiastic response from patrons, members of the film trade and press representatives. This picture has already been reviewed by this publication which makes comment, in this respect, unnecessary. With its capable cast, theme and exploitation possibilities, it looks like a sure money-maker.

Synchronization, including a few incidental songs, has been well handled. The producer took no chances with an attempt to time song words with movements of the player's lips. Songs that were used were sung as the action went along, with occasional flashbacks to the supposed singer.

The musical score, recorded by RCA Photophone under the direction of Emanuel Baer, appears to mark a further step along these lines. A perfect piece of cue-work has been accomplished, musical excerpts following the picture's moods in a surprisingly faithful manner and almost managing to reproduce words or a scream at times.

"In a Persian Market"

Here is a finely done short sound feature in color by Tiffany-Stahl more than worthy of all first run, and other bookings. It combines Persian market scenes, a good little action story, songs and well worked-out sound effects.

As to the story, a Caliph's daughter appears in the market square of a city and is soon surrounded by merchants. While she is looking over their wares, a desert man, with an escort, rides past. Their eyes meet and a romance begins. He, later, climbs the wall around the Caliph's estate and meets the girl. A small boy espys them, and tells the Caliph who orders the desert man's arrest. The girl deftly sidetracks this issue and the two, after further planning escape the guards and ride madly out of the city.

"Mon Homme"

A newcomer to the screen, Mme. Ratti, French colatura soprano, makes her debut in a song number, the well known "Mon Homme" and she renders it excellently in both French and English. Photography and recording are good. The only possible criticism is that the lady was in too much of a close-up.

You will probably see Mme. Ratti again. She screens extraordinarily well, has personality and appears to be a find for the movies. This is an RCA Photophone production.

Soup

Harry Delf does some clever work in this Vitaphone act, which truly expresses his personality and effective mimicking. His voice records well in the songs he sings and the "soup" gags that he puts over. A light, cheerful patter done with deftness and ease marks his performance which makes the grade as a good talkie short.

Winnie Lightner

"The Song a Minute Girl" does three Vitaphone numbers in the typical "hot mama" style. They are jazzy and "warmish" both in music and lyrics and they strike the popular note. Miss Lightner snaps her fingers and uses her face to emphasize her songs. All in all, her efforts will undoubtedly "click" for they represent the modern element which is so popular in song and story today.

When the Wife's Away

This is a Vitaphone skit which stars William Demarest. It is quite crude in story and presentation but nevertheless is good for some laughs because of its dialogue. Demarest goes over with fairly good results with his lines and pantomime. He is the errant hubby who will play with his girl friends while the wife's away. Unfortunately for him she returns unexpectedly to intrude upon his revelry. The humor can be counted on to make a pleasant impression upon an audience, especially adults.

Four All-Talkie Shorts Ready by M-G-M

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has announced the completion of a series of four two-reel all-talking pictures. Two one-act plays by Kenyon Nicholson, author of "The Barker," have been recorded as 2-reel dialogue films. One of these, "Casino Gardens," was directed by Carlo De Angelo. The other Nicholson play, "Confession," is a story of the A. E. F., and was transferred to the screen under the direction of Lionel Barrymore, with Robert Ames and Carroll Nye in leading roles.

"Phipps," Stanley Houghton's one-act play which was produced in New York in 1914, under the direction of Holbrook Blinn, has been made into a Movietone short feature under the supervision of Lowell Sherman. The latter plays the leading male role in the piece, which also has Betty Francisco and Cyril Chadwick in its cast.

Gus Edwards' first M-G-M talking picture is a two-reel Technicolor subject, called "Gus Edwards' Song Revue." In it are incorporated many of the old Edwards songs.

Birmingham Musicians Hit By Talkies

The situation precipitated when local theatres went "talker" and displaced orchestra with Vitaphone and Movietone installations, together with the elimination of stage shows from the Alabama, and closing of Loew's Temple, has caused a large number of musicians and stage employees to be thrown out of work in Birmingham. The Ritz is the only theatre in Birmingham still retaining an orchestra.

The local Musicians' Union is endeavoring to reawaken public interest in orchestra music by presenting a series of concerts at the Municipal Auditorium, in which fifty local musicians will take part. These concerts will partake of both the classics and popular airs, and it is anticipated by those sponsoring them that Birmingham music lovers will make hearty response.

Turnbull Associate Sound Producer for Paramount

Hector Turnbull, who has held several important executive positions with Paramount during the last few years, has been appointed associate producer of sound pictures at the Hollywood studio of B. P. Schulberg, general manager of west coast production for Paramount.

Mr. Turnbull's first assignment in his new post is "The Dummy," an all-talking production now being filmed.

"U" Starts Construction on Third Sound Stage

With the first two sound-proof stages completed and equipment being installed, Universal has started construction on a third and larger one. The new stage will measure 150 by 200 feet and will be 50 feet high. It is planned to make on this stage practically the entire dialogue versions of "Broadway," which Dr. Paul Fejos will direct under Carl Laemmle, Jr.'s supervision.

Interchangeability Seems Established

Exchanges Furnishing Product for Devices of All Descriptions

INTERCHANGEABILITY, already fairly conceded by the Western Electric Company and RCA, provided the reproducing equipment is satisfactory, is being more and more established each week with successful demonstrations being carried on in various cities and without interruption from the larger companies. Sound service is being rendered by the leading exchanges apparently without question, though some of the devices on which the film and disc is reproduced are comparatively crude.

From Cumberland, Maryland, comes word that seven weeks of demonstration have been concluded at the Strand Theatre there over a device conceived and developed by Bob Slote, manager of the theatre. The pictures used were recorded by the Western Electric system and service was rendered by the Washington exchanges of First National and Paramount. Among the First National pictures shown were "The Whip" and "The Good-Bye Kiss." Paramount supplied "Wings," "Sawdust Paradise," "Beggars of Life," "Warming Up" and "The Wedding March." United Artists also delivered "The Tempest."

According to the word from Cumberland no questions were asked by either Paramount or First National as to what equipment was to be used in the reproduction of the sound in the pictures. United Artists inquired as to the reproducing device. It is said that a representative of Electrical Research Products visited the Cumberland Strand recently, looked over the sound reproducing equipment and departed without comment. The house has had no word as to the findings of this representative.

The Dramaphone, another sound repro-

Warners Reported Preparing Cheaper Talking Picture Device

WARNER BROS. are contemplating a cheaper device for installations in theatres, according to rumor. The word is being passed around that the new equipment will be ready for installation within the next few weeks. It is said that Warners have advised certain of their customers to that effect, though the story is denied by executives of the company.

Many exhibitors are anxious to install equipment that will be interchangeable on the disc records, but they are waiting for a reduction in prices. It is said that the new equipment will permit of interchangeability. The story originated from exhibitors who claimed to have been advised that the device will be ready for the smaller houses in the very near future.

ducing device was used with success and without interruption at the Castle Theatre in Chicago in connection with the showing of United Artists' "The Tempest." The records are said to have been furnished by United Artists Exchange. The machine is made of metal and has two turntables. The original non-synchronous device has been supplied with a turntable to play 16-inch records and the results are reported to have been satisfactory. The only complaint came from the musicians union. The machine was originally operated by a representative from the Dramaphone Company, but on complaint of the union the device is now operated by the house organist, who was to have been dismissed.

In Madison, Wisconsin, the Sonora Bristolphone again proved its interchangeability when there was no interference with the showing at the Strand Theatre. This disc system was used on the showing of "White Shadows of the South Seas" and an Our Gang comedy, both M-G-M subjects. There was some criticism of the synchronization, but it is said there was no fault with the installation.

Pathe Sound News Makes First Appearance in Theatres

By Chester J. Smith

THE first issue of Pathe Sound News was shown at a number of Broadway houses during the current week. It is synchronized by the RCA Photophone process and was well received by Broadway audiences, despite the fact that it was almost entirely lacking in news angles. Terry Ramsaye and Ray L. Hall are credited with the editing of the Photophoned reel, which contains a variety of subjects, none of which was definitely connected with news.

The reel opens with the Pathe rooster crowing loudly over the new achievement. This is followed by a party taking several shots at a new invention of indestructible glass, which sequence runs to considerably more footage than is necessary. In addition to taking a number of shots at the glass, he explains the process by which it is made indestructible.

There follows a military picture made in official observance of the tenth anniversary of Armistice Day, which is the lone subject having to do with news of the day. Four regimental bands are heard playing "Over There" as they march across the screen.

The world's largest suspension bridge across the Hudson between New York City and New Jersey is shown. In this picture the action is carried from long shots to closeups from one scene to another, while an engineer discusses the bog construction job under way.

Celebrating the eighteenth anniversary of Pathe News, which falls this month, the reel shows Theodore Roosevelt receiving the Nobel peace prize in Copenhagen, a subject that appeared in the initial issue of the Pathe Newsreel.

The most attractive action in this first of the sound reels by Pathe is the voice test of a number of youngsters. Babies are heard crying and older children render recitations that bring forth a riot of mirth, sure fire stuff for any motion picture house.

When Pathe Sound News gets settled down to news pictures it will undoubtedly be a great screen attraction. It has splendid synchronization and the effects by RCA Photophone will surely enhance its attractiveness.

Gotham Shooting Three Sonorotone Shorts

Charles R. Rogers, General Manager of Sonorotone Pictures, the distributing organization of Asher, Small and Rogers, Gotham Productions and Lesser-Warner pictures, announces that a Gotham producing unit, headed by Sam Sax, has started work at the company's studios in Waterbury. The first three short subjects of the company's scheduled 52, are being 'shot,' with the Sonora-Bristolphone sound process.

Trini, Spanish dancer, and her Marimba Band, will constitute one subject; The Four Nightingales, a feature of Beatrice Lillie's recent musical comedy, will be another, and Mary Copeland, "blues" singer, the third. Herman Heller will direct.

Biophone Installing First Equipment

BIOPHONE, formerly Tonefilm, is making its first theatre installations this week, according to announcement by Alfred Weiss, president of the company. Equipment is being placed in the Plaza Theatre, New York City and in the Stanley-Fabian Goodwin Theatre in Newark. Both installations will be completed within the next few days.

Within ten days the first Chicago theatre will get its equipment, and by December 1 all exchange centers in the United States will have Biophone installations. There will also be an expert on hand at all centers for the convenience of the exhibitors, according to the announcement.

Two short subjects are to be released each week by the Biophone Company. Phil Goldstone in charge of production has started the first of these, titled "Honeymooners." The second will be "The Gossips." The technical staff with Mr. Goldstone is made up of James Byers, engineer in charge of sound; H. Tackats, engineer in charge of synchronization; George Orth, studio manager; Charles Nasca, art director and Louis Katzman, musical director.

Detroit Injunction Suit Is Dropped on Interchangeability Problem

JAMES N. ROBERTSON, operator of the Cinderella and Roosevelt Theatres in Detroit dropped his conspiracy suit against Paramount, Pathe, Warners, M-G-M and First National during the week. Robertson sought to force delivery of films and records from the defendants for use on a Huma-Phone device. The temporary injunction granted was abandoned by the plaintiff when the hearing was well under way.

Answering the question on interchangeability, the defendants claimed the commercial value of their product would suffer if presented with the Huma-Phone machine, which they regarded as inferior to Western Electric equipment. The abandonment of the injunction is regarded as a big victory for the defending companies as having a considerable bearing on the question of interchangeability, which is now practically conceded where the reproducing device measures well up to standard.

Simotone Disc Sound System Ready for Installation

SIMOTONE, a new low cost recording and reproducing system employing the disc method of sound synchronization this week was placed on the market for immediate delivery and installation. The Simotone system records and reproduces at the so-called standard speed of 33 1/3 - 90, and its records and reproducers are interchangeable with Electrical Research's records and reproducers for the amplified sound in theatres.

The cost of Simotone theatre installations range according to the size of house from $1,000 to $2,000, with a nominal weekly rental fee charged to the theatre. At several private demonstrations of the apparatus in New York a number of subjects recorded by the Western Electric disc system were reproduced with what disinterested observers declared was "perfect synchronization and good tonal quality."

Both the recorder and reproducer are very simple. The synchronization of the disc turntable with the projector of the film is accomplished by a sprocket driven by the film itself as it travels through the projector. The machinery it adds to the projector consists simply of a turntable geared to the machine by a shaft with a sprocket at one end and a worm gear at the other. A compact amplifying device, using regular radio tubes and a set of horns located on battens which lower and lift them from the screen level comprise the balance of the apparatus. The horns are set at the sides of the screen behind drapes, so the opaque projection screen used for silent pictures may be used with the Simotone.

The recording equipment is portable, so compact and light in weight that it can be used for recording on exterior locations as well as studio stage sets.

The Simotone is the invention of Louis J. Simon, of New York, in whose laboratory it was perfected some time ago. Announcement of the device was held up pending the production of full equipment for installations of the reproducers in theatres. In addition to installing the apparatus for reproduction in picture theatres the company will synchronize pictures for other producers and as well license producers to make their own synchronizations of music and dialogue.

Sound Experts Guests At Winnipeg Dinner

Officials of the Northern Electric Company, which is installing the sound equipment in various Canadian theatres, were the guests of honor at a dinner of Winnipeg projectionists at the Marlborough Hotel, Winnipeg, following the presentation of the first synchronized film, "Street Angel," at the Metropolitan Theatre. The Northern Electric experts were H. S. Walker, A. Cash and Mrs. Cash, and A. Jackson.

Among those present were V. Armand, supervisor of projection for Famous Players Canadian Corp., R. Reney, president of the Winnipeg local of the Moving Picture Operators Union, and W. Hale, chief operator of the Metropolitan Theatre.

Sound and Silent Newsreels Among Pathe Shorts

The second issue of the new Pathe Sound News and silent Issues Nos. 98 and 99 contribute latest events of the day in oral and mute versions as highlights of the schedule of Pathe short subjects set for release for the week of November 25.

The comedy for the week is "A Campus

Vamp," a Mack Sennett two-reeler featuring Johnny Burke and Daphne Pollard; "On the Link" is a new Aesop fable cartoon, and humor is also offered in Topics of the Day No. 48. Grantland Rice's new Sportlight is "Targets," while the Pathe serial, "Eagle of the Night," is continued in "The Sky Hither," chapter seven. The customary Pathe review, No. 48, includes: "A fashion novelty," "Rural England," and "Broadway Takes to the Woods."

Warner Cast Completed for "Alimony Annie"

The selection of Audrey Ferris, Douglas Gerard, Arthur Rankin, Dale Fuller, Albert Gran, Lee Moran, Andre Beranger, Louise Beaver and Tom Kennedy for supporting roles in "Alimony Annie" starring Dolores Costello completes the casting for this picture on which Director Michael Curtiz will begin work for Warner Bros. shortly. Ralph Graves has previously been announced by J. L. Warner as Miss Costello's leading man in this story by Harvey Gates, while other parts are being filled by Claude Gillingwater, Tom Ricketts and Maude Turner Gordon.

50 Chi Houses Ready in Next Two Months

Numerous installations have been made in the Chicago district by both circuit and independent theatres and within the next two months it is expected that from forty-five to fifty theatres will be using Vitaphone equipment. To date the talkies and sound pictures have proved not only a strong attraction in the great de luxe, loop and neighborhood houses, but the smaller theatres which are also benefiting greatly.

B. & K. Circuit Signs for Movietone Acts

Movietone acts are proving popular in theatres wired for Movietone, and Manager Felix Mendelsohn of M-G-M reports that contracts have been signed for the showing of the acts in United Artists Theatre and Balaban & Katz Circuit, including the four big loop theatres operated by this company.

Brown and Richman

Joe E. Brown, vaudeville and talking picture comedian, had been added to the support of Harry Richman in "Say It with Music." Brown was last seen in "Hit of the Show."

Radio Guiding Public In Sound Selection

P. A. POWERS, who has done much experimental work in the perfection of his sound device, Cinephone, figures that the novelty of sound pictures is rapidly passing due to the wide general use of the radio.

"Radio receiving set," says Mr. Powers, "have made the public acquainted with good reception, and as this applies to the sound picture, good reproduction. It is already evident that the public is selecting and judging its sound picture entertainment with the same care that is being exercised in the selection and judgment of radio receiving sets. And it will be well for the exhibitor to remember this in deciding upon the nature of his sound equipments."

78 Pacific Northwest Houses to Install

A RECENT survey of the sound situation in the theatres of the Pacific Northwest territory, made last week by interested parties on Film Row in Seattle, Washington, disclosed a total of 8 theatres that either have sound equipment at present or have contracted for installations before May, 1929.

In addition to the five installations and two additional contracts already announced in Seattle, there will also be sound apparatus installed soon in John Danz's Colonial Theatre and the Pantages Theatre, now operating a film-vaudeville policy.

Disney Completing Four Sound Cartoons

Four of a series of twenty-six new all-sound animated cartoons to be made by Walter Disney, creator of the Oswald cartoons, are now in work at the new Powers Cinephone studio in New York.

The new series are tentatively titled "Micky Mouse." The first subject has been fully completed and three others will be ready for screening within the next week or ten days.

Each of the twenty-six subjects will have a distinguishing title. The first will be known as "Steamboat Willie," to be followed by "The Barn Dance," "The Galloping Gaucho" and "Plain Crazy."

Talkie, Singing Prologue for "River Woman"

Charles R. Rogers, General Manager of Sonora-Bristolphone and Sonoratone Productions announces that "The River Woman" starring Lionel Barrymore and Jacqueline Logan, is to have a "talkie" and singing prologue, work on which will be completed this week at the Waterbury, Conn., studio.

Madeline Fairbanks, recently a feature of George White's "Scandals" has a prominent role in this sequence, together with Tommy Gillen, Robert Fisher and a unit of negro entertainers.

Paramount Signs ZaSu Pitts for Talkie

ZaSu Pitts is the latest screen actress to be signed for the talking films. Miss Pitts was engaged by Paramount for one of the principal roles in "The Dummy," a comedy of detective life by Harvey J. O'Higgins and Harriet Ford, which is being transferred to the audible screen under the direction of Robert Milton.

Two other players added to this cast were Jack Oakie, and Eugene Pallette. Ruth Chatterton and John Cromwell were assigned previously to principal roles.

Sound Program at Six Canada Houses

Six theatres in Canada were presenting sound programs before the middle of November, these being located at Montreal, Toronto, Calgary, Winnipeg and Vancouver. Eight other theatres are being wired for sound presentations, these including: Capitol Theatre, Montreal; Regent, Ottawa; Capitol, London, Ontario; Capitol, Regina; Dominion, Victoria, B. C.; Capitol, Winnipeg, and the Capitol, Edmonton, all of which are Famous Players houses.

David Lee Signed to New Contract by Warners

David Lee, the small boy who supports Al Jolson in "The Singing Fool," has been signed to a new contract by the Warner Bros., who confidently believe that they will in time build him to a box-office attraction of the size of Jackie Coogan when he was "The Kid." The new contract calls for a specific number of pictures and also covers an extended length of time during which he may be starred.

Actors Talk Titles in Latest of Interchangeability Devices

THE trained actor has taken the place of the mechanical device out in Chicago; that is, he reads the lines and injects the titles through the new apparatus employed. The idea is being employed at the Ritz, Berwin. Joseph and Irving Biba have installed a Dramaphone, a disc device said to be interchangeable with others of the kind.

A sound proof broadcasting booth has been built alongside the operating booth. The sound projecting equipment is housed there together with a microphone. The picture is first previewed and the titles removed. It is then cued and actors are engaged from a casting agency to read the titles and inject the talking parts into the picture.

The first picture on which this was tried was "Lilac Time." A silent version of "The Singing Fool" has been booked and a singer hired with a voice said to be similar to that of Al Jolson. He will sing the Jolson songs and talk the parts into the microphone.

Warners Plan Big Extension in Sound Equipment

WARNER BROS., pioneers in the talking picture field, are confident that there is going to be no lagging of interest on the part of the theatre-going public in this form of entertainment for some time to come. Though already fairly well equipped along production lines, Warners are adding extensively to their sound producing facilities on the west coast. It is said that an additional $2,000,000 has been appropriated for expansion plans.

Among the improvements contemplated are several new Vitaphone stages, on which work has already started, and the expansion of affiliated units with new equipment and buildings. The building program will be elaborated as the new expansion plans progress.

On the present stages five companies are now filming, and eleven productions are occupying the attention of the cutting and editing forces. Pictures now actually being filmed are "The Desert Song," Vitaphone's first operetta; "No Defense," co-starring Monte Blue and May McAvoy; "One Stolen Night," featuring Betty Bronson and William Collier, Jr.; "She Knew Men," featuring Edward Everett Horton, and "Frozen River," starring Rin Tin Tin.

Pictures now in the cutting room include: "Madonna of Avenue A" starring Dolores Costello; "The Greyhound Limited" starring Monte Blue; "Stolen Kisses" starring May McAvoy; "Kid Gloves" with Conrad Nagel and Lois Wilson; "Stark Mad" with a cast including H. B. Warner, Louis Fazenda and Jacqueline Logan; "My Man" starring Fannie Brice; "The Redeeming Sin" starring Dolores Costello with Conrad Nagel; "Conquest" starring Monte Blue with H. B. Warner; "Queen of the Night Clubs" featuring Texas Guinan; Audrey Ferris in "Fancy Baggage" and Myrna Loy in "Hardboiled Rose."

Productions in preparation which will be filmed shortly are "Alimony Annie" starring Dolores Costello and "From Headquarters" starring Monte Blue.

All these pictures with which the studio forces are concerned are talking pictures, produced also as silent productions.

Moeller Acquires Sales Rights to Phototone Device

A. J. MOELLER has acquired the sales and distribution rights for Phototone, a sound reproducing device licensed under Harrison W. Rogers patents, which it is claimed, is interchangeable with all other devices. The equipment is a combination of a synchronous and non-synchronous machine and is immediately available for all theatres. Cost of installation is approximately $1,000.

In addition to acquiring the rights to Phototone, Mr. Moeller also has ready for distribution to all theatres the feature picture, "Two O'Clock In The Morning," which includes nearly 4,000 feet of dialogue and complete sound effects. It is a six-reel feature and is now ready for distribution together with the sound reproducing equipment.

It is claimed by Mr. Moeller that over 600 theatres are already equipped with the non-synchronous Phototone equipment, to which will be added the synchronous equipment. It is claimed that the complete device can be installed in theatres in from two to seven hours.

Mr. Moeller has an arrangement with Edgar A. Guest, well known poet, by which he produces and distributes the screen adaptations of these poems. All of these productions are soon to be released as talkies.

Mr. Moeller is well known to exhibitors throughout the country for his activities in connection with theatre owners organizations. He was formerly general manager of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Michigan and for three years was general manager of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America.

Jean Hersholt again plays the role of a Jewish father, this time in Columbia's "The Younger Generation" a special.

The years of producing stage plays that William De Mille spent are now being used to good advantage as the director is handling "Half an Hour," a new Paramount talkie. H. B. Warner, who is featured in the production, talks over a scene with his director.

It has not taken Mary Nolan, formerly of the stage, long to break into pictures. She is shown as the girl of M-G-M's "West of Zanzibar."

There are plenty of daring action feats in the new Russ Farrell, Aviator series that Educational is releasing.

A famous family of troupers are the Rooneys who have been signed for "U" talkies. Left to right: Marion Benz, Pat Rooney III and the elder Pat.

Eleanor Boardman, who has the foremost part in "She Goes to War" (U. A.) in an intimate snapshot.

Dolores Costello as she appears portraying the title role in "The Madonna of Avenue A," a new Warner Bros. film.

Just how hard is an egg? Not hard-boiled but petrified. Instead of being flabbergasted by so momentous a question, Ralph Ince, Sally O'Neill and Donald Reed are about to determine the matter to their own satisfaction. They've just finished "Hardboiled" for FBO and are pretty confident of their prowess.

George Fitzmaurice, directorial ace who will produce "The Man and the Moment" for First National Pictures.

Stage Play Production Planned by "U"

Big Drive Under Way to Obtain Original Material

THE establishment of a play producing bureau, ultimate purpose of which appears to be provision of an additional source of talking and silent picture material, is under way at Universal City, the Pacific Coast studios of Universal Pictures Corporation, according to information contained in a letter addressed to professional writers and signed by Hugh Hoffman, director, play production department.

Talking pictures and their popularity, it would seem, are mainly responsible for the drive and in his letter Hoffman outlines a plan which, if carried through, would provide Universal with much original material.

The plan is this:

It is estimated that there is a large army of writers with whom it is a difficult task to successfully market a story or play, principal obstacles being access to a publisher's office to get personal attention on a story, and the huge expense connected with producing a play. Universal proposes to give a play stage production first, if acceptable, and then produce it for the screen, retaining option on screen rights as its share for stage production expenses.

It is stressed in the letter that the communication is intended only for professional writers, mainly "those who have not quite arrived," pointing out that if circulated among amateurs there would ensue an undesirable crop of "underdone" material, which the author emphatically does not want. However, it is pointed out that plays produced or written by college students, will be given consideration.

An accepted play would be produced in Los Angeles where, it is pointed out, the production of a play entails much less financial risk than in New York City. Los Angeles has become the second important play producing centre in this country, contains many theatres and the population is largely composed of men and women of the stage and screen. With all these resources, cheaper theatre rent, etc., expenses would be much lower.

It would appear from Hoffman's letter that Universal has intentions of invading the field of the legitimate producers for not only would a stock theatre be operated in Los Angeles but "a few road companies would be sent out," and "in some cases new plays would be farmed out to stock houses in surrounding cities on guarantee." It is further said that the "Phantom of the Opera" theatre would be used

"Mike Fright" Worse Than "Klieg Eye"

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 11.—"Mike fright" is the latest disease sponsored by the movies and, according to those who have suffered it, results in a more horrible feeling than "klieg eye," "grease-paint poisoning" or stage-fright. It is the awful sensation which overcomes those speaking into a microphone for the first time and leaves them utterly unable to speak and in most cases, even to catch their breath temporarily.

"I've had stage-fright," one legitimate actor who came to pictures says, "but it's nothing compared to 'mike-fright.' You see no faces before you to get reaction on your words. Everything is so terribly still and just the sound of your own voice filling the vast space of a sound stage—well it just licks you until you become accustomed to conditions."

"Mike-fright" affects both experienced screen and stage actors. It is holding up production in many cases and causing delay in signing of new people. For it takes hold mostly in the case of voice-tests, which is usually the players' first appearance before a microphone.

for final rehearsals; in fact, almost the entire Universal corps, would in some way, at times, lend cooperation for successful production of a play.

While plays will not go through Universal's scenario department and the play producing bureau will be detached from regular studio regime, operations will have full cooperation from Universal officials, it is implied. It is said that Hoffman has a free rein in Universal City, being a close business associate of Carl Laemmle, to the extent of sitting in on practically all of the "rushes" and making suggestions here and there which, it is said, are usually backed up.

Big Time Loan

Robert Armstrong has been loaned to Fox by Pathe for the leading role in "Big Time" which Howard Hawks will direct. Bob will play a hoofer, with Marion Nixon opposite him in the feminine lead.

Columbia Gets "Smoke Bellew"

Columbia Exchanges will release "Smoke Bellew," made from the Jack London story by D. W. Thomas of Big Four Productions.

The cast features Conway Tearles and Barbara Bedford. Scott Dunlap directed. Under the deal made by Thomas with Columbia, the latter firm will distribute the production in the Pacific Northwest and Central States, as an independent release.

Dunlap Directing

Scott Dunlap began direction of "Object Alimony" for Columbia this week. Lois Wilson is starred.

No Sound for "Hoot"

"Hoot" Gibson has abandoned all plans to use any type of sound synchronization for his Westerns being released by Universal. This decision follows a canvas of several hundred exhibitors by Gibson's organization asking their opinions on the use of sound with his pictures. A great majority were emphatically against it.

Eve Unsell, scenarist, sprained ankle at her home.

Writing Dialogue

J. Grubb Alexander will write the dialogue for "The Bargain of the Kremlin" which Universal is producing, under the direction of Edward Sloman. On completion of this task, Alexander will take a month's vacation.

Thalberg At War Again with Writers

Declares Cooperation Is Lacking; Scribes Also Have Complaint

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, November 14.—Irving Thalberg is again on the warpath with the writers at the M-G-M studios. He called a special meeting at which he declared that writers were not contributing suggestions for titles or pictures; neither were they showing a desire to submit new ideas for stories.

This action is said to be in line with Thalberg's standard system of bawling out writers and he has used similar remarks on past occasions. He is said to have admitted that M-G-M was short of good ideas for production on the new program now being lined up and that no writers had come forward to submit fresh subjects for pictures.

The writers do not take the flaying without comment, one complaining that he had submitted several stories and ideas which were sent back without any remarks whatsoever and he felt from the producing supervisors' attitude that they were not open for story suggestions.

Another writer claimed that ideas submitted today may be good six months hence and blamed the studio for not keeping a record of ideas for future reference.

Thalberg gave an assurance that all original stories and ideas submitted would be considered and those which are accepted would be paid for accordingly. Harry Rapp and Hunt Stromberg said simply that Thalberg expressed the feeling of all the supervisors.

Hollywood Notes

Machine Co., in Camden, N. J., arrived in Hollywood this week to supervise the preparation of stages at the Hal Roach studios for sound equipment installation. New stages will not be constructed, but those already in operation will be sound-proofed.

Cutting the Overhead

Frank Tuttle directed "Marquis Preferred," starring Adolphe Menjou, in three days under the eighteen shooting day schedule assigned him and approximately $20,000 under the allotted production cost. Six weeks ago Tuttle completed direction of "His Private Life," two days under schedule and also with a saving of $20,000 under cost.

Co-featured

Junior Coghlan and Phillipe de Lacy will be co-featured by Pathe in "Square Shoulders." The tale revolves about two such youngsters, one an apparent roughneck and the other an embryonic "gentleman." E. Mason Hopper will direct with Louis Wolheim and George Irving the grownup male leads.

Mary Pickford's Plans

Mary Pickford's return to Hollywood and her renewed activity on her all-talkie "Coquette" has served to silence all rumors that she had discarded plans to make the picture. Sam Taylor has put finishing touches on the story and while in New York

"Show Boat" Done

Camera work has been completed at Universal City on "Show Boat," the company's most ambitious offering for next season. It is now in the cutting stage. This picture is the end of about a year's work, including six months of preparation. It will reach the screen with dialogue and full Movie-tone sound effects.

Teamed Again

George Davis and Fred Spencer have been teamed again in a new Mermaid Educational comedy. Ella McKensie, fat girl comic, is again playing with them.

Will Join De Mille

Phyllis Haver's option has been taken up by Cecil B. De Mille and she is reported scheduled to join him at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer shortly. "The Office Scandal," which she completed last week under the direction of Paul Stein is supposedly her last for Pathe.

Seiter's Schedule

William Seiter has been signed by First National to direct four pictures with Colleen Moore and four with Corinne Griffith. He will alternate between each star. At present he is working on "That's a Bad Girl" with Colleen Moore.

Associate Producer

Hector Turnbull this week became an associate producer of sound pictures for Paramount. During the past few months he has been occupying the post of editorial advisor. His first production will be "The Dummy."

Talkie Prologue

The talking prologue for F B O's "The Circus Kid" has gone into production at the New York sound studios, under the direction of Bert Glennon.

Collegiate

Sam Wood's next picture for M-G-M will be a talkie with a college background. The temporary title is "College Days."

Meighan and Ade Confer

As soon as Thomas Meighan returns from French Lick, Indiana, where he is reading story material with George Ade, work on his first Vitaphone feature for Warner Bros. will get under way. This will be shortly after the first of the year.

Jack Cohn Toasted

A large gathering from the Columbia studio personnel recently attended a testimonial dinner in honor of Jack Cohn who, after spending three months on the coast as production head, in the absence of Harry Cohn, has returned to his distribution duties in New York City.

Five Year Contract

Sharon Lynn has been signed to a five-year contract by Fox. Her long-term engagement is the result of her performance in "Husbands Are Liars" for which she was engaged as a free-lance.

Miss Bradley

Estelle Bradley is playing her first co-featured role in a two-reel comedy in "Making Whoopee," a new Educational-Tuxedo laughmaker. Ella McKensie and Harold Goodwin are co-featured with her.

Key City Reports

New York City

BROADWAY houses were treated to just a regular week for the past seven days in spite of the fact that on Election night there was barely a vacant seat in any of them. Advance advertising heralded the fact that practically every theatre had provided facilities for the handling of election returns and in addition to regular scheduled shows, all of them put on midnight performances. But even the Big Night did not blow up receipts to a point where it could be noticed.

Paramount got back to its regular pace after being off for several weeks and the Winter Garden set the pace for the specials but on the other hand the Roxy was way off again. In contrast to the Roxy the Strand was up. So there you are. It looks as though the regulars are picking their brand of entertainment as of yore and that it takes more than tin pan musical accompaniment to pull them in.

An exact reversal of policy seems to have taken place at the Capitol, where for the past several weeks a tendency to cut down shows has been in evidence. Despite the fact that the Grand Orchestra at this house has greatly thinned its ranks, strong added attractions have been added with the result that this house has been setting a very good pace ever since the showing of "Dancing Daughters." Here is a case where one good box office picture can bring about an increase in patronage—and this means that they are usually taken away from a competing theatre.

Two pictures held their premieres the latter part of the week, the Embassy opening with Tiffany-Stahl's "Marriage Contract" and the Rivoli showing Norma Talmadge's "The Woman Disputed" for the first time. Both look like money makers. During the current week three more new ones will make their appearance.

The Paramount got back in the running again with Pola Negri in "Women from Moscow," a picture that did not get much from local critics, proving that at times it doesn't make much difference whether the boys give them the razzberry or not. Paramount has a new master of ceremonies in the person of Eddie Peabody, quite some master on the west coast but it's a bit too early to forecast just what kind of swath he'll cut in this town.

At the Capitol M-G-M's "Wind," all dusted off and treated with sound did a better week than many looked for. A rather unusual picture and the Gish name drew 'em. A good program also helped. The same trend of business cannot be reported for the Roxy where "Dry Martini" got below average trade. The Strand did better last week with "Show Girl" (F.N.). A jazzy sort of a picture with enough flash to please the Strand patrons. Sound had been added in the shape of synchronization and an incidental song or two and a good talking short program also helped things along. Folk here also like the talking trailers and look upon them as an attraction. A particularly good one heralding the showing of "The Terror" was shown.

The Colony has apparently gone over to sound pictures as the means of keeping the marquee lit up. Since the inauguration of a sound policy the house has certainly done much better than it did last Spring and the past week "Man, Woman and Wife" gave it very fair returns. This week a First National picture is in, "The Goodbye Kiss" and FBO's "Gang War," another sound picture is to follow, so it appears that it will be "U's" policy to book other sound product if one of their own isn't ready.

The Rialto keeps humming along to satisfactory trade with old vet "Wings" and "Wedding March" eased out of the Rivoli to make way for "Woman Disputed" (U.A.). Advance reports on the latter are most favorable. The Cameo had one of First National's German-made pictures, "Shadows of Fear" to average Cameo business.

"Alias Jimmy Valentine" (M-G-M with dialogue) opens at the Astor the current week and "White Shadows" can be credited with making a strong exit. "Lilac Time" (F.N.) still hangs on at the Central to good business and Tiffany-Stahl's "Marriage Contract" is due to make a much better showing at the Embassy than this same company's "Cavalier" did.

At Warner's "On Trial," another talkie, will take the place of "The Home Towners" on Wednesday evening of the current week. Everybody's happy at the Winter Garden, where Jolson's "Singing Fool" is packing 'em in. Everybody includes the Warners, Al Jolson, the landlord, and specs—not forgetting the spectators.

Minneapolis

BUSINESS seemed to pick up a bit in the Minneapolis theatres immediately after election. The few days preceding election were bad ones for most of the houses, because thousands preferred to hear the political speeches over the radio than to go down town to a show. Election night parties, too, cut into the theatre attendance, but once the political excitement subsided, the theatres began to get the crowds back again.

"Show People," with Marion Davies and William Haines, did about as well as any picture in town and pulled in the crowds at the Hennepin-Orpheum.

Norma Talmadge in "The Woman Disputed" proved a good attraction at the Minnesota, while John Barrymore in "The Tempest" at the State did about the average business. "Women They Talk About" at the Strand didn't click very strong at the box office. The Pantages found "Mother Machree" to be a very good business builder, this picture probably drawing many more people to the theatre than did the vaudeville

The Granada, Minneapolis' finest and newest neighborhood house which is equipped with sound, packed them in with "Our Dancing Daughters," but the outlying houses that didn't have sound were not so fortunate. In addition to politics, the movie theatres had more legitimate competition than they have had in months.

Des Moines

"WINGS," playing at the Des Moines for its second week, did nowhere near as big a business as "The Singing Fool" did on its second week at this house. However, business was enough to warrant holding the film through.

"Four Sons," at the Capitol, was considered a drawing card above the stage show.

The Strand, showing Buster Keaton in "The Cameraman," did well and "Baby Franklin," playing the last half of the week, with Lew Cody as star, was satisfactory.

"Daughters of the Underworld," at the Casino, caused some excitement but did not win any whirlwind of attendance.

Albany

THE 130,000 or more residents of Albany seem to be still clamoring for a chance to see and hear "The Singing Fool," which is being held over for a second week at the Mark Ritz, after demonstrating in no uncertain fashion last week as to its drawing power, despite the fact that it had run a full week at the Mark Strand about a month ago. This is the first time a picture has been held over in Albany in many a month, and if this week proves as good as last, there is a chance that it may be held for a third week. The Mark Ritz carried off the honors last week from the standpoint of business and even the surging crowds on the streets early election night failed to put even so much as a dent into the business. Along with the feature there were two excellent Vitaphone presentations.

The Mark Strand played to what might be termed very satisfactory business with "Our Dancing Daughters," which proved a rather unsatisfactory business getter the previous week in Troy.

The Leland used "Companionate Marriage" to crowds that filled the theatre each evening and had them standing, but matinees were not up to expectations. The Clinton Square theatre used Lon Chaney in "Shadows" and also "Plastered in Paris," and drew well throughout the week.

The neighborhood houses in Albany reported satisfactory business but said there were not the expected crowds on election night. The downtown houses reported the early evening crowds as being rather smaller than anticipated but the midnight shows help up in fine shape. The motion picture theatres of Albany are encountering considerable opposition these days from the Capitol theatre, playing the legitimate and this week offering Bert Lytell in person in a new comedy drama.

In Troy, "The Street Angel," running for the week, played to good business, while the Lincoln used "Pastered in Paris" to business that was asserted to be up to standard. Proctor's offered "Man-Made Women" which apparently did its full share in the combined entertainment of vaudeville and pictures. Neighborhood houses and subsequent run theatres in Troy report business as satisfactory. Weather was good.

Oklahoma City

OKLAHOMA CITY first-run theatres rounded out another week of good business.

At the Capitol "The Singing Fool," starring Al Jolson, kept the lobby jammed and the side walk in front of the theatre blocked with patrons at every performance, and the picture is showing the second week. This attraction has been the subject of more discussion than any other picture that has been shown in Oklahoma City for a long time.

At the Criterion, "Beggars of Life," featuring Richard Arlen-Louise Brooks, Wallace Beery, etc., proved a good box-office attraction, while the National Players in repertoire, presenting "Smilin' Thru," more than made good.

"Sunrise" had very good week at the Liberty, and the stars, Janet Gaynor and George O'Brien, pleased all seeing the picture.

"The Foreign Legion," at the Empress, proved very good attraction and enjoyed good business.

Chicago

BUSINESS in Chicago and surrounding territory is beginning to show a better tone and the majority of houses, both large and small are doing better business now than for several months past.

The sensation of the loop continues to be "The Singing Fool," which is in its sixth week at McVickers still playing to capacity business. It is understood that the box office receipts for its fifth week were greater than those of any previous seven days of its run, and that its fifth week also broke house records at McVickers.

"Mother Knows Best" was held over at the Roosevelt and continued to play to satisfactory crowds.

The Oriental has as its feature "The Crash" and on the stage Paul Ash headed his Au Revoir show, attendance being somewhat above the average.

Another downtown house which had good business was the Chicago with "Masks of the Devil" as its feature picture and an elaborate Armistice week show on the stage. Another extended run picture "Revenge" is pulling strongly at United Artists Theatre.

The talking picture, "Beware of Bachelors," was the feature at both the Granada and Marbro, big stage shows being on the program at both houses and box office reports were satisfactory.

"Wings" was the offering at the Capitol, where business was good and the Avalon had "Women They Talk About" as its feature. "The Docks of New York" brought good business to both the Uptown and Tivoli Theatres.

Portland, Ore.

HIGH attendance records were reached by practically all of the downtown theatres, especially on Election night when all houses augmented their bills with snappy acts, and also made hook-ups with the various newspapers and radio stations and gave the returns to interested patrons. They were well repaid for the extra expense and prospects are that they will have a continuance of good business.

With special exploitation Dolores Del Rio returned to United Artists with "Revenge," a picture story that registered well and helped the box office to show a nice increase.

Pantages also did a record business with one of the best bills of the year headed by "The Power of the Press."

The first talking picture "Mother Knows Best" while it did not prove the sensation anticipated brought fair business for the first few days, but fell off at the end of the seven days.

Although scheduled as the fourth and last week "The Singing Fool" at the Music Box did such a big business it was decided to hold it over for another week, which practically sets a box office record for the city as the house has upwards of 1,800 seats.

Another hold-over picture was "The Land of the Silver Fox" at the Blue Mouse.

The Oriental did very good business with "The Butter and Egg Man," accompanied by the usual Monday night preview of vaudeville acts.

A return engagement of "Lights of New York" at the Hollywood played to good business in the suburbs, the first all talkie at the Rose City house.

A first run, "The Nest" with Pauline Frederick, did a nice business at the Capitol for the first half of the week, but for the last half "The Devil's Skipper" registered only fair.

Birmingham, Ala.

PRE-ELECTION political rallies took the eye and filled the ear in Birmingham the past week somewhat to the detriment of box offices, although the general average of business was reported as fair.

The Ritz, with "Mother Machree," featuring Victor MacLaglen and Belle Bennett, was well received by both critics and fans, as well as the accompanying bill of Keith vaudeville.

The Alabama had good business with "The Terror" a Vitaphone picture with May McAvoy, Louise Fazenda and Alec Francis.

The Empire with a screen satire based upon a local author's story got by nicely with "Brotherly Love," with MGM News. The Strand with "The Singing Fool" starring Al Jolson kept up the pace of very good business the picture had previously established in this house.

The Trianon, with Shirley Mason in "The Runaway Girl" had fair business.

The Galax, with Reginald Denny in "Nightbird" had fair business.

"Simba," Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson's picture of African wild animal life, road-showing at the Erlanger, had poor business. The neighborhood houses, generally, reported business below average.

Tampa

WHEN "The Jazz Singer" first played the Victory, it established a record for this house, which has held good until last week, though crowded by some of the all-talkie features. This week "The Singing Fool" took just four days to top that former week's record. Business has been immense all week. Last Sunday there was a line, four abreast, extending from the lobby, around the block, and in some instances, extending clear to Ashley street. To take care of the crowds the house put on "morning matinees" each week day, and gave a "midnight matinee" election night.

The over-flow from the Victory last Sunday helped out the other down-town houses, and all enjoyed excellent business. "The Mask of the Devil," featured by the Tampa for the first half, played to good business. Gilbert is a favorite here, and always draws well. "The Night Watch," which was a corker of a picture, and about the best production ever given Miss Dove, went over very good.

The Strand had a good Sunday with "The Albany Night Boat," but Monday was a little off. "The Devil Dancer" proved a good card and gave the house three days of better than average business. "Jazz Mad" closed the week with just above average takings.

None of the second runs used by the Franklin could pull 'em up to the average, and the week as a whole was "off." They used, "The Kid Brother," "We Americans" and "My Best Girl."

Indianapolis

FIRST-RUN houses did only average business last week. Business was not as good for downtown houses as it had been for the past two months.

Alice White in "Show Girl" at the Indiana had the edge considerably on other first-run houses.

May McAvoy and Conrad Nagel in "Caught in the Fog," at the Apollo, failed to reach the high mark set the previous week by "The Singing Fool."

"Mother Knows Best," at the Circle, and "White Shadows in the South Seas," at the Palace, did average business.

MOVING picture fans of Ottawa and Hull had a wide assortment of attractions during the week of November 5, and business was well distributed. There was no real stand-out at any of the leading houses and receipts were fair to excellent. Extra crowds were in evidence on election night where managers gave presidential returns.

A picture that had all kinds of atmosphere was "The Devil Dancer," but the general opinion was that Gilda Gray does not screen well, although her dancing and acting are acceptable. B. F. Keith's registered good business all week on this one.

"The Foreign Legion," at the Regent Theatre, had several punch scenes and there was also an element of pathos. It was liked better by the male patrons than by the ladies, generally speaking. The box office was steadily busy.

"Sunrise," the attraction at the Centre Theatre, proved to be a substantial feature but, in its silent form, did not create any furore of enthusiasm. The principal talk around town was that Janet Gaynor was a splendid actress.

With a plethora of crook dramas in Ottawa during the previous week, there was not much of a rush to see "Tenderloin," starring Dolores Costello, at the Imperial Theatre.

At the Laurier Theatre, Hull, "The Patent Leather Kid" was enthusing in spots but it could not be classed as a big hit. Its presentation followed rather closely on its first run in Ottawa.

Business at the Capitol Theatre, Hull, was only fair for "Crooks Can't Win." The people apparently thought the title indicated an object lesson.

There was really a crush at the Fern Theatre, a neighborhood house, for "The Cossacks" and there was also a big turnout at the Rex Theatre for "The Big City," Lon Chaney's name doing the trick.

Dallas

THE Dallas theatres have enjoyed another week of good business, although any of them could have easily taken care of more patrons. The weather has been in keeping with the season of the year for the first time and receipts at the first-run houses seem to have settled to a more even trend.

"Dry Martini," with Mary Astor and Matt Moore, brought them to the box office at the Majestic and the gross for the week was good. An unusually good Interstate Vaudeville bill more than brought in its share of the business.

At the Palace, "The Woman Disputed," featuring Norma Talmadge and Gilbert Roland, seemed to please the audiences and bring them in despite unfavorable newspaper criticism. Business started off good and held up throughout the week due to the following of Norma Talmadge in Dallas. A fair Publix presentation completed the program.

"Docks of New York," starring George Bancroft and Betty Compson at the Melba, accounted for good receipts for the seven-day run. Business was unusually good considering the fact that Bancroft was the featured star, as he has no definite box office standing in Dallas as yet. Business on this attraction means that the next Bancroft picture will get over.

At the Capitol, "The Man Who Laughs," with Conrad Veidt and Mary Philbin, was one of the outstanding attractions of the week in Dallas and although the picture failed to get the business it deserved, the gross for the week was good. Comment on this attraction was unusually good.

"The Night Watch," with Billie Dove and Donald Keith at the Old Mill, checked off a fair week's business. The Old Mill is going into its fourth week as a sound house, and business has been much better with sound equipment.

At the Ritz, "The Jazz Singer," with Al Jolson and May McAvoy, turned in good receipts for the past week despite the fact that the Melba had made a three week run with the attraction. The Ritz is building up a steady patronage on second-run sound pictures and in a few months it should click every week.

The Arcadia rounded out an exceptionally good week with "The Fleet's In," starring Clara Bow and James Hall, "Drums of Love," with Mary Philbin, Lionel Barrymore and Don Alvarado, and "The Devil Dancer," featuring Gilda Gray.

Seek "Miss Sunshine" at St. Louis Theatre

THE St. Louis Amusement Company in conjunction with the St. Louis Star, an afternoon newspaper, is conducting a "Miss Sunshine" contest, the idea being to select a girl who radiates happiness, joy and personality in such a way she goes over big in any sort of company. Independent theatre owners and film exchange employees have also been invited to join the contest.

The grand finale will be held at the Arcadia ballroom on the evening of November 21 when "Miss Sunshine" will be named.

The winner will be awarded an automobile and the runner-up will receive an all expenses paid trip to Hollywood Cal.

Cincinnati

CINCINNATI seems to be writing attendance history, and if present conditions continue in the various theatres, especially the first-run houses, extended engagements will be the rule rather than the exception. The theatres where sound features are shown are increasing their business by leaps and bounds, although no comparative figures are available as to the percentage in increased returns.

The Capitol, with "The Singing Fool," has been crowded at each showing during the two weeks' run. The picture is being held over for a third and final week, and all indications point to a continuance of the record established, which, it is believed, will eclipse all other attendance records at this house for a continuous showing.

"Fazil," at the Lyric, with sound and synchronization, started out big, and the crowds have increased as the week progressed. This picture will also be held over.

Keith's, in the second week of sound pictures, presented "Lilac Time," and played to capacity during the entire engagement. This will be another holdover, equally big business is anticipated for the second week.

The Albee, with Lou Tellegen in person, together with several very good acts, and "Craig's Wife" on the screen, maintained a heavy attendance for the entire week.

"Win That Girl," at the Strand, did an unusually good business, the receipts running well above average.

"Say It with Sables," first-half, and "Broadway Daddies," last-half at the Family, were both well attended.

Practically all the downtown houses featured an extra election night show, where the more important returns were given, and all houses enjoyed exceptionally good patronage, the extra performances starting at 10:30 P. M. and continuing until well after midnight.

Atlanta

TWO pictures of more than ordinary entertainment value served to brighten an otherwise dull week in theater circles. At best, business was spotty.

The two pictures which came through the hectic week in good shape were "The Woman Disputed" at the Howard theatre; and "Show Girl" at the Metropolitan. "Show Girl," be it said, clicked mightily with the school and college contingent and pleased juvenile and adult audiences alike. It set the town talking about Alice White as a powerful rival for Clara Bow's honors.

"Me, Gangster" was disappointing to the larger percentage of patrons, who having read the Charles Francis Coe story, expected a knock-out of a picture. "Slow and Uninspired" was the criticism, and the box office at Keith's Georgia is thanking a corking vaudeville bill for pulling through the week. "White Shadows in the South Seas" plus five acts of vaudeville drew very good business at Loew's Capitol, but many who fared forth with high enthusiasm to see the picture came back with all enthusiasm gone.

The most disastrous box office experience of the week fell to the Rialto theatre where "Plastered in Paris" let them down for a heavy loss. The house "starved to death" with the exception of one show—that was on Tuesday evening when the management arranged to relay election returns—and advertised the fact heavily.

One stroke of showmanship saved theatres from losses on Tuesday night—that was the tie-up through newspapers and The Atlanta Journal's station, WSB, to receive returns over the national network. The stunt brought better than average business to major downtown houses as well as to the smaller neighborhood theatres, and saved what threatened to be an utterly unequal competition.

Baltimore

WITH the weather remaining cool and clear throughout the week beginning Monday, November 5, business was fairly good at most of the first-run houses, in Baltimore.

Outstanding for the week was the business done by "The Singing Fool," starring Al Jolson. This was the fifth week for that attraction at Warners' Metropolitan, and they still had them standing up every night.

Next in line came Loew's Stanley where "White Shadows in the South Seas," with Monte Blue and Raquel Torres, proved an excellent patron puller.

"Moran of the Marines," co-featuring Richard Dix and Ruth Elder, went over good at Loew's Century.

The Keith-Albee New Garden Theatre had a good week with five acts of vaudeville, and the feature picture "The Cheer Leader." The public attended very well throughout the entire six days.

"Mother Knows Best," starring Madge Bellamy and offered as a sound and talker at the Rivoli, proved a very good pulling picture.

"Wings," the air epic, continued to pull the public heavily at Loew's Valencia during the second week of its engagement there with sound synchronization.

The second week of "Mother Machree," starring Belle Bennett, at the New Theatre, was only a fair business getter. Movietone acts were offered on the same bill, including Chic Sales and Mussolini.

At the Keith-Albee Hippodrome "The Power of Silence," starring Belle Bennett, was offered with five acts of Keith-Albee vaudeville. Business for the week was fairly good and Saturday it went up to excellent.

"Dawn," offered at the Little Theatre for a second week, only pulled fairly well.

Salt Lake City

A VERY good week has been experienced by most of the Salt Lake moving picture houses last week. Weather conditions have been generally clear but cool.

The Capitol Theatre had a very satisfactory week during their presentation of "Avalanche," starring the popular Zane Grey star, Jack Holt. In addition to the picture program the Fanchon and Marco stage presentation "Monkey Shines" idea, was well received.

At the Victory theatre the First National special, "Lilac Time," which is their first talking picture, was held over for another week due to its popularity and good crowds were enjoyed throughout.

The Pantages Theatre presented their first all talking picture, "Melody of Love," and big business was enjoyed.

The American Theatre had an exceptionally good week with Norma Talmadge and Gilbert Roland in "The Woman Disputed."

The Columbia special, "Driftwood," attracted satisfactory audiences throughout the week at the Paramount Empress Theatre.

Francis X. Bushman in "Charge of the Gauchos," with Jacqueline Logan, enjoyed a fairly good week at the Gem Theatre.

The second run of "The Cossacks," starring John Gilbert, proved to be a good drawing card, as did "Man Crazy" at the State Theatre, where Ricardo Cortez in "Prowlers of the Sea" was also shown.

The Mission Theatre, a neighborhood house, did fairly well with "The Port of Missing Girls." The second-run and suburban houses are all enjoying a very good fall business.

Kansas City

FIRST-RUN houses at last seem to be settled down to a healthy condition of good weekly attendances for the winter. Al Jolson, in "The Singing Fool" at the Newman, went into the fourth week doing a good business, that being the first film to have a run of longer than two weeks in Kansas City since last winter.

At the Royal, which recently re-opened, Wallace Beery in "Beggars of Life," a talkie, drew well all week, especially the matinees. At the Globe "The Air Circus" was held over a second week and did a profitable business, while Norma Talmadge in "The Woman Disputed," at Loew's Midland, did a business which was well above normal.

"The Toilers," at the Mainstreet, enjoyed a fair attendance for the week, the matinee business being slightly better than normal while the night business was about the same as usual.

At the Uptown Adolph Menjou in "His Private Life" attracted a larger attendance than normal.

"Black Butterflies," at the Pantages, did a capacity business all week, the night attendance being larger than usual.

San Francisco

UNSETTLED weather conditions, although not serious, kept the people from the beaches and the country and compelled them to attend the theatres.

"Wings" finished its twelfth week of playing in San Francisco, and reported fair business, which is considered remarkable as it was shown so long here. The first two weeks it was shown at the California Theatre, and the past ten at the St. Francis, both West Coast Theatres.

"The Wedding March," shown at the California Theatre a second week, did fairly good business, but not what expected.

Loew's Warfield Theatre, as usual, was crowded during the past week. Here was shown "The Air Circus," together with Rube Wolf and his popular orchestra and the Fanchon & Marco presentation act, "River Idea." The Granada Theatre did good business with the picture "Moran of the Marines." The Publix Revue, "Step This Way," which was the presentation act, helped attract thousands.

"Mother Machree," shown at the Pantages Theatres, together with vaudeville, filled that theatre every night, and the Embassy Theatre, a Vitaphone house, was crowded all week with Al Jolson in "The Singing Fool."

The El Capitan Theatre, which seats 3,200 and is the city's newest and largest theatre of first runs, last week installed the Vitaphone and reported remarkable business with "The Lion and The Mouse."

In the residential districts, the Coliseum Theatre reported fairly good business with "The Cossacks," the Marina Theatre, with "Three Sinners," and the Amazon Theatre, with "Rose of Golden West."

Union Trouble Looms in Minneapolis

POSSIBILITIES of a strike of operators in the motion picture theatres of Minneapolis again loom threatening as the result of a failure of representatives of the Northwest Theatre Owners to come to an agreement last week with the operators. The dispute is over the number of men to be used in booths of sound equipped houses.

Since last February the operators have been working under a temporary schedule which arranged for a 7 per cent increase in wages and an additional man in the booth. The present demands are the same as those asked last September; that is, 15 per cent increase and doubling of the crews. Theatre owners are holding out for the 7 per cent increase and three men in the booth for feature shows and two men on short sound productions in the downtown houses and one additional man in sound booths in the suburban theatres.

As the result of the failure to agree the operators have referred the matter back to the local union and action will be voted upon this week. It is believed that a strike would result in the operators being called out of every theatre although the demands do not affect the silent houses.

Pittsburgh

BUSINESS was very good for the week at Loew's Penn. The photoplay attraction was Dolores Del Rio in "Revenge."

The Stanley had another good week with "The Wedding March," though the production didn't seem to cause much talk.

The Grand and Liberty both offered Richard Barthelmess in "Out of the Ruins," a fairly entertaining production which got average business.

Loew's Aldine had a big week with "Sunrise." This one scored with the fans and press alike.

The Olympic played "Four Sons" as a second run, and got fair business.

The Regent, in its second week of "The Singing Fool," did very good business. The run ended after the production had played first-run theatres for six consecutive weeks.

The Davis, with Charlie Murray in "The Head Man" and Keith vaudeville, got average business.

Fair business for the week at the Camera-phone, where "While the City Sleeps" held the silversheet.

Lya De Putti in "The Scarlet Lady" brought fair business to the Alhambra.

Cleveland

BUSINESS in Cleveland last week was, in all, variable. Some very high peaks were reached. And again, the even level of fair averages was maintained. All of the leading theatres ran special midnight shows on election night, and all of them did big business on that night regardless of the value of the entertainment offered. If one house was full up, patrons moved on to the next nearest house, regardless of the attraction. It was a night when a little entertainment went a long way.

"The Singing Fool" led the way in theatre attendance. It opened at the Stillman and the box office was closed several times on the opening day. It has played to capacity at every performance to date, and has already broken the previous house records. It will play on and on, of course.

Keith's Palace also did a whale of a business last week. However, credit for the huge crowds must go to Ted Lewis and his band, rather than to the picture, "Tenth Avenue," which is just a mediocre underworld melodrama.

"The Home Towners" proved a disappointment at the Allen. A fine picture, full of novelty, the first all-talking comedy shown, with everything in its favor, it nevertheless failed to create a stir. It did good business where excellent business was expected.

"Moran of the Marines," rather below the average Dix picture, nevertheless made a fairly good showing at the State. Interest in Ruth Elder had a lot to do with the picture's mild success.

"Caught in the Fog," a dialogue melodramatic farce, did well at the Cameo, but not exceptionally so. It proved amusing but not vital.

"The King of Kings" held up satisfactorily during its second week at the Hippodrome.

"Take Me Home" and "The Charge of the Gauchos" divided the week at Keith's East 105th St. "Take Me Home" had the advantage of the election night crowds, and made a good showing, while "The Charge of the Gauchos" did fairly well on its own account.

"White Shadows," playing its first neighborhood run at the Park, did just moderately well, the first half of the week, while "The Battle of the Sexes" did very well the last half of the week.

Neighborhood house business continued to be way off. Interest in sound pictures on the part of the public, and uncertainty about sound equipment on the part of the exhibitor, has resulted in a stagnation of business never before known in the neighborhood theatres.

Exhibitors Defeat Church Alliances in Oregon

A long-drawn out fight between the Federated Church Brotherhood of Eugene, Ore., and the Lane County Credit Association over the re-opening of motion picture shows on Sunday, resulted in a victory for exhibitors voters of Eugene giving an overwhelming majority in favor of the opening. More than 200 student voters at the University of Oregon however, had their vote challenged, in an attempt by the ministers association to cut down the vote for Sunday shows, which was one of the big issues in connection with local balloting.

At the 45th annual state convention of the W.C.T.U. they roundly scored the action of the credit association in attempting to remove Sunday restrictions from motion picture houses. The work of the Federated Motion Picture Councils of America was indorsed.

Seattle

LAST week was a successful one with the first-run houses, despite the fact that there were no outstanding attractions on current programs to swell receipts above the average. The Seattle Theatre probably achieved high gross for the week with "Beggars of Life" which was generally pleasing. Fanchon-Marco's stage revue featuring the Denver Beauties was quite acceptable, and a local Fur Fashion Revue added to the revue.

At the Fifth Avenue Theatre, "Mother Knows Best" failed to come up to the gross set recently by several other films, despite the fact that it was widely advertised as this house's first "talkie" in the strict sense of the word. George Stoll made his debut as master of ceremonies and director of the Fifth Avenue Band. Just a fair week.

"The Singing Fool," at the Music Box Theatre, played its fifth week to near capacity business, with lines out every night. This picture is breaking every existing record for films in Seattle, and goes into a sixth week with no signs of weakening.

Hamrick's Blue Mouse Theatre finished its second week of "The Home Towners" to business that was a little bit below level. The film had a poor title to exploit, and did not set any remarkable box office record during the run, although the gross was quite acceptable.

At the Coliseum Theatre "Lady Be Good" played to moderately good houses only. The Orpheum made a particularly strong campaign on "The Whip" but this film didn't attract much attention. Robert Warwick was the headline attraction on the vaudeville program. At the Embassy Theatre, the management departed from the usual first-run policy and booked "Excess Baggage" for a satisfactory engagement, despite the fact that it was a second-run film.

Harrisburg, Pa.

ALL the leading downtown Harrisburg theatres and several neighborhood houses materially swelled their average receipts for the week by announcing the returns on election night. Two houses, the State and Loew's Regent, put on extra midnight shows, starting after the close of the regular last performances and extending until after 1 o'clock on Wednesday morning. Both houses attracted capacity audiences for these late shows.

The feature film at Loew's Regent all week was Dolores Del Rio in "Revenge," and did excellent business, even without the stimulus of the election night crowds.

The underworld picture, "Me, Gangster," was popular at the Colonial. The Victoria scored nicely with "Varsity" starring Charles Rogers.

The last three days at the State the film attraction was "The Glorious Trail," in which Ken Maynard takes the lead part, and quite satisfactory business was done.

"The Masked Angel" was back for a second run at the Rialto, a neighborhood house, and proved a good drawing card.

Tom Mix, ever popular in the Pennsylvania capital city, was shown in "Horseman of the Plains" at the Russell, while the Royal put on the canine star, Wolf Heart, in "Fangs of Wolf."

Women patrons particularly were attracted to the Broad Street where John Gilbert and Joan Crawford were shown in "Four Walls."

Harold Lloyd came back to Harrisburg in "Speedy," and packed them in at the Royal. "The Hawk's Nest," with Milton Sills, Doris Kenyon and Montague Love, brought satisfactory box office returns to the Grand.

Milwaukee

A FAIR week was enjoyed by downtown Milwaukee theatres. Business boomed at the end of the week during Teachers' Convention when a record crowd of visiting teachers poured into the city and into the theatres. Practically all downtown houses held a midnight show on election night, giving election returns to late patrons. Good attendance was reported at these performances. Heavy down pour of rain on several nights early in the week held receipts down to a great extent.

"The Singing Fool" at the Garden is still holding honors for drawing the biggest crowds. It is now in its fifth week and still going strong. During the first day of the convention, traffic officers had to be pressed into service to hold back the crowds that were surging into the theatre.

"Wings," in its third week at the Strand, is drawing crowds at the evening performances.

Fiske O'Hara as a stage attraction at the Wisconsin vied with the feature "Women They Talk About" for popularity on the bill. The theatre was well attended.

"The First Kiss," at the Merrill, drew fairly well. The Majestic offered "The Woman Disputed" to good houses.

"The Man Who Laughs" was according very fine patronage at the Alhambra. The two vaudeville houses both offering first-run pictures did unusually good business. The Orpheum used "Oh Kay" and the feature at the Riverside was "The Cameraman."

The neighborhood theatres did not draw very good business this week. "Lilic Time," at the Oriental and Tower, did good business, however. "Warming Up," at the Uptown, Modjeska and Garfield theatres, received fair patronage.

Saenger-Ehrlich and Union Operators End Dispute

An amicable settlement of the wage dispute in Shreveport, La., between local motion picture operators and the Saenger-Ehrlich enterprises has been reached, and operators who were idle for a short time are back at their customary places.

The lockout was the result of a wage demand of some of the operators. During the lockout there was no interruption of service at the company's several theatres.

It is expected an injunction suit filed during the dispute to prevent the arrest of operators engaged during the lockout will not be pressed.

3 for Arthur Lake

Universal plans to star Arthur Lake in three features, "Campus Kisses," "The Boy Wonder" and "The Girl Dodger." Edward Luddy has been signed to direct the first written by Colin Clements and Will Chappel. The latter is now preparing the adaptation. The second story is by Matt Taylor and Clarence Thompson and the third is by J. G. Hawkes.

Advertising for Outdoor Use

In response to many inquiries on this subject we thought it would be well to air our views, based chiefly upon what we have observed on our various travels.

In speaking of outdoor advertising the first thought would naturally be billboard posters and on this particular phase it could be divided into two groups. First: One and three sheet posters, and second: 24 sheet stands. The latter is, of course, expensive and I only advocate its use in cities well over 50,000. Below this figure it is our contention that a good number of well kept three sheet boards should answer the purpose of the average theatre. The policy should not affect this angle. Regardless of what you are selling you must be able to tell the public about it.

Now there are many kinds of three sheets boards. Some we erect ourselves and send the doorman or the reelboy out to cover once a week or maybe less frequent. Then, others are a great deal more particular and are not satisfied with anything but a well-kept board, with a painted frame that is repainted as often as it becomes necessary. Taking our own territory, for an example, we have by various experiments finally settled on three sheet advertising through contracting for each space at a set sum per week. The company taking care of the boards and the posting must see that they are always neat and clean looking. The cost is naturally higher than on boards which we erect and maintain ourselves, but the additional cost is money well spent if you are anxious to have all your theatre's advertising looking right.

There are still some managers who keep after their staff to be certain that the front and lobby of their theatres are spic and span, but if you happen upon one of their bill boards you think some "dump" is being advertised rather than a well run theatre. It has always been my contention that every single phase of advertising in a well-run theatre, must reflect the management of the theatre itself. And your billboards are just a mirror of your methods.

Block Posters vs. Lithograph

and after observation and actual experience I prefer the block posters to lithograph, with, of course, a few exceptions. But these exceptions are very few because it is indeed

On the subject of 24 sheet stands, I have tried to make a particularly careful study of this matter

Sound Pictures and the Show Business

THE tremendous interest created by the Manager's Round Table Club and their survey of the "Sound" situation is worthy of everyone's careful attention. We heartily recommend that you read the letters on his subject, starting with the first group in the issue of three weeks ago, and including those published in this issue.

After all, talk IS cheap, so why not listen to the words of those who, by experience, know what they are talking about.

rare that we find an exchange 24 sheet attractive enough to really be eye-arresting. I would only advocate them on some special picture and providing the lithograph is good. As for cost between the two, you will find it runs about the same on a basis of ten or more stands. Over fifteen, if you ever run into that many, you will be saving money.

Don't fall down on your advertising or the quality of it just because it happens to be a little removed from the theatre itself. Take regular and frequent trips and look over your bill boards and be certain that they are being kept neat and clean and properly posted just as long as you use them.

Saturday Serial Subject Again

We are prompted to bring up this subject once again because it has been called to our attention that many of the theatres which took our advice to use them last spring are still running them and consider serials one of the best bets on a Saturday afternoon.

The old bogie about serials being below the standard of your theatre has passed into the category of "bunk" because, with the very few exceptions of key city first runs, they can be well spotted in most any other kind of a house. After all what are we in business for? If you can increase that one afternoon to the tune of some two hundred dollars and send home a few thousand kiddies shouting the praises of your show, would you still hesitate and call it bad business methods? We think not. Get hold of a GOOD serial, surround it with the proper kind of publicity, and sell, but sell it, to the youngsters. Then sit back and watch them pack in and fill up those empty seats. Just make sure that you have enough help on the job to properly supervise those kids and see that they are well taken care of. If you must stimulate interest to start them coming, pick a certain portion of your town, certain streets, or communities and invite them in free. Take a different section each week until you have attracted as much business as you can handle or else keep it up until your entire residential population has sent at least one youngster from the family.

Serials are even attractive to certain grownups and it will surprise you to note how many of them come back for the weekly thrill regularly. So don't be old-fashioned brothers, step up to the window of opportunity and cash in on an old but reliable angle.

Meet Another Club Member

From up in Shenandoah, Penn. comes a most interesting letter from a newcomer to the Managers' Round Table Club. Unfortunately the CLUB is most anxious for the next few weeks, to use all available space on the subject of SOUND letters and articles from various members, otherwise we would be delighted to publish his letter. However, this much we will tell you, he has traveled quite a bit and knows the show-business from many angles. Some of the "stunts" which he has successfully put across are deserving of more detailed description so we will withhold them until a week or two later when we will pass them on to the CLUB members for what they are worth. In the meantime, make the acquaintance of Harry A. Goren of the Strand Theatre up in Shenandoah. Mr. Goren's photograph would accompany this paragraph but he sent us a newspaper mat and it is therefore impossible to reproduce this, so as to recognize his features. Only half-tones, made from originals, are adaptable.

"The Voice of A Nation"

(Note. Herewith we present the fourth group of letters on the all-important subject of sound. They are well worth the few minutes it will take to read them and remember they have been gathered from every part of the country.—CEL)

We hear from F. C. Goldquist, The Webb Theatre, Savanna, Illinois, who is going to send in more material later on but right now plunges into the subject of sound pictures:

My Dear Mr. Lewis:

"There has been some material of interest to the Club, I have wanted to pass on to the other fellows, accumulated on my desk for quite a while. But you know we little fellows have to double in B & O so have not had time to write sooner. I am not going to take up all that I want to at this time, but will just go into the subject of "Sound Pictures" as that is the most important right now.

"The small town exhibitor who cannot hope to include synchronized pictures in his programs is somewhat at a loss to know just which side of the fence to spring. It really does not make much difference to him at this time as, with the present cost of sound apparatus he has no intention of placing it in his house. However, we all of us have our opinions, or if we do not have we soon will.

"I believe it is of great importance that the manager of any house, however small, should visit the nearest theatre equipped with sound apparatus as often as possible. Our patrons are bound to discuss it with us enquiring as to when we will have it, the cost, how it is done and a thousand other questions that only patrons can ask. If we have not seen and heard the "Talkies" we cannot discuss them intelligently. I have to go 25 miles to reach the nearest Vitaphone and 20 miles of this through desert sand (yeah, we have deserts in north-western Illinois) and the roughest road. I usually catch the matinees as I can get away better then.

"To my mind the all-talkie will not be much of a success after the novelty is gone. In a year or less the average patron will care no more about seeing a talking picture than a silent one. In other words I do not think they will draw any more business with the sounds than the silent pictures do now. I have no opportunity to study audience reaction in this respect only getting the opinions of the few who have seen and heard synchronized pictures in other localities. The general opinion thus coming to me is that dialog detracts rather than adds to a picture, and this, I confess, coincides with my personal views. The dramatic type of picture is much better when accompanied by a good organ or orchestra as the moods can be more clearly expressed in this manner. I have seen no comedies done in talkies so don't know just what my reaction would be with this style of story. But I imagine the gags would have to be much better than most of the situations we have been used to seeing in our comedies. As for sounds they would be no more acceptable than in dramas.

"As for straight sounds, we have had them with pictures since the year of One. It is true they have been produced with more or less fidelity manually, but so are they in the mechanically produced sounds of today. I have heard in the Vitaphone the lightest rap on a door, a cough or a sigh, but a broken down door produced no sound. The sirens of the police cars accompanying a raid continued into the following scene. Pistol shots sound like a thud instead of a shot. Sounds of approaching or receding vehicles do not increase or diminish. They burst upon us and then die a violent death. Even the snores of the valet in "The Singing Fool" were produced on musical instruments such as any good organist or cello player can duplicate.

"Musie! There is the future of synchronism. What would "The Jazz Singer" and "The Singing Fool" be without music? Al Jolson's personality made them both, but it was his singing that actually put it across. What a picture "The Student Prince" would have been in Vitaphone or Movietone! An orchestra or any sort of music in Vitaphone vaudeville goes over big, but the sketches seldom do. The comedy gags usually are a complete flop.

"I judge the future of synchronized pictures by past history. What ambitious plans producers had 16 and 18 years ago with respect to the "talking pictures"! It is true they were not as well done then as now. But I well recall what a sensation our Renfax Musical Motion Pictures were for one whole season. Then they died a natural death and drew no more than any other part of our programs. But, our apparatus did not cost what it does now. We could afford to junk the synchronizer and machine crank and take the phonograph home to use. What will happen a year from now with many grand tied up in each outfit and only an occasional picture with sufficient pull to get them in?

"One thing the synchronized type of picture has done for us, operators have fought years to secure, and this is a properly cued and easily recognized place for a perfect changeover. Some producers have tried to give us a cue sheet, but the cues have been imperfect and not easily recognized the first time through. Until recently the exchanges themselves have mutilated the leaders and tail pieces with perforations. Now a beautiful change can be made, by the rankest amateur, that cannot be detected."

Sincerely,
(Signed) F. C. Goldquist.

Here is a letter from William C. Ewing, director of advertising and publicity for the Stanley-Crandall Company, operating fifteen or more theatres in and around Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. Lewis:

"In viewing one's opinion of sound pictures I don't think that a more interesting subject could have been brought up for discussion. At one time the mere mention of "sound" or "talking" pictures would have started a young calamity and then the unlucky one who had started it would have been laughed right out of the room.

"If my opinion amounts to anything, talking-pictures are here to stay. Unlike the first movies, which started in any makeshift nickelodeon that might be converted into a show room of the old days, the "talking-pictures," the name by which they are best known to the majority of theatre-goers, are getting their first start in the bigger and more elaborate picture palaces. They are now the only ones which can afford the costly apparatus with which "sound" pictures are made possible. However, it will only be a matter of time, and that will be when the exorbitant cost of the mechanical sound devices is lowered, that every small theatre in the country will be advertising sight and sound pictures. Imagine the thrill that an audience in a small rural town will get when seeing and hearing a sound picture with musical accompaniment by a 100 piece orchestra and all of the sound effects which make the screen drama more realistic.

"There are now many defects in the "talking pictures" just as there were in the first movies which were shown in one, two and three reels. But credit must be given to the "talkies" for bringing back to life a business which was on the decline, also for reviving interest by the public in the movies. Perfection will come and it will not take as long as with the original silent films.

"In the meantime it is taking with "The Public" and that is what counts at the box office. The enormous crowds which are flocking to see and hear "Lights of New York" the first all-talking picture is evidence enough. This picture without sound could not have been sold to the larger downtown theatres. With sound it is breaking records and pleasing the general public. "The Terror" the second all-talkie is an improvement on "Lights of New York" and the improvements will continue with each picture. Could any picture have been greater or done any more business than "The Jazz Singer" or "The Singing Fool" both with Jolson in the featured role? Jolson in these pictures is better than he ever was on the stage and both pictures are bringing more money to the motion picture theatres than Jolson brought to the legitimate theatres.

"Would producing companies with sound-headed executives at their head invest millions of dollars in sound-proof stages and equipment necessary for the producing of "talking pictures" if they thought they were just a fad? I'll say they wouldn't.

"With the best wishes to 'The Round Table Club' and yourself, I am,

Sincerely yours,
(Signed) William C. Ewing.

Theatre Bombards Boston With Exploitation for "Submarine"

DIGGING down under a news item often proves an interesting as well as an illuminating occupation, because that is the way to establish the causes at the bottom of an accomplishment or an event which reporters select for recital in their writings and news editors crystalize in a few lines of type for presentation in the columns of their publications. Take an item of three lines in the Key City Reports Department under the Boston heading in last week's issue of MOTION PICTURE NEWS, the one reading "'Submarine' at Loew's State theatre, did one of the best week's business of any film in months at that house," and inquire about conditions surrounding the presentation and the exploitation of this attraction which scored so heavily at the box office.

If the exploitation was in any way unusual you may reasonably ascribe to that feature some responsibility for the success of the attraction and the following report which this department has from Boston regarding the "Submarine" exploitation would seem to prove two things: First, that the campaign put on by the State management was out of the ordinary and therefore might well be expected to produce results at the box office; and second, that the methods used are practical and effective.

To begin with the campaign for "Submarine" at the State was one of the most extensive staged in the history of motion picture exploitation in Boston. Joe Brennan, manager of the State, organized his campaign in two parts.

Four days in advance of opening a newspaper teaser campaign was launched, these ads appearing in the Boston papers and a group of twenty-five suburban newspapers.

In the lobby of the State Theatre, a real diver's outfit, including rubber suit, helmet, air hose, and air pump apparatus, was spotted by several high-power lamps, a placard alongside the outfit calling attention to the fact that the apparatus shown was identical with that used in the filming of the under-sea picture. The suit was obtained from a diver's supply house.

Joe Di Pesa, Loew's exploitation expert for the entire state, deserves a great deal of credit for the manner in which the physical parts of the exploitation were handled.

The Monday morning of the opening, Di Pesa put a crew of ten newsboys out on the street in the downtown section of Boston to hawk and distribute four-page newspaper tabloids with scare heads announcing a submarine disaster.

The marquee of the theatre had not been overlooked for its sales possibilities. Two boat-shaped signs were erected on both sides of the marquee, running clear up to the roof. These signs were visible for blocks away. Flags and bunting in profusion were suspended from below the marquee, and streamers were run from the marquee to the roof proper, all along the building line.

One particularly interest-creating idea used was a sound amplification device installed in one of the vacant offices in the building adjacent to the theatre. On this was played marches and the theme song of "Submarine."

The local Navy recruiting division posted several hundred "A" signs about town. During the week of the run dozens of details from the Charlestown Navy Yard repaired in buses to the theatre. These invitation parties were given in conjunction with the Boston American.

THOSE theatre men who need strong sales talks to put over a co-operative stunt with their local merchant might paste this note in the hats they wear when they sally forth to negotiate a tie-up: An example of how effective a motion picture tie-up may be in aiding sales of merchandise at local stores was produced in Birmingham recently during the presentation at the Alabama theatre of "The Singing Fool." A local music house had 160 copies of the song "It All Depends On You" piled up on the shelves and coated over with a deposit of dust of several months. On the Monday night following the opening of the Jolson picture the store had sold out the whole batch of 160 copies and in addition did a brisk business in the phonograph record of Jolson's "Sonny Boy" song. All this resulted from the display of a small window card tying-up with the picture at the Alabama.

MANAGER Chas. H. Amos had a real attention-getter in the form of a real aeroplane—parked in the theatre lobby to advertise "The Air Circus" at the Tennessee Theatre, Knoxville, Tenn. The plane was one of the new Monocoups and just fitted in nicely in the lobby to allow persons to pass by on either side. A large lettered-sign was placed in front of the plane containing copy about the picture and play dates.

IN commemoration of Armistice Day, S. L. Rothafel has secured a new composition by Geoffrey O'Hara entitled "Guns," which he is presenting for the first time at the Roxy this week on the program surrounding "The Red Dance." The composition has been dramatized and is presented in four episodes with scenic investiture by John Wenger.

AFUR fashion show utilizing 30 models and $150,000 worth of fur garments was staged by Manager Bob Blair and Harry Wareham at the Seattle theatre, Seattle, last week as a special added attraction. The Arctic Fur Company, of Seattle, sponsored the presentation, which was the most professional style show of any type ever presented in a local picture theatre.

NOVEMBER has been set aside as Greater Movie Month at Loew's Granada, Doan, Liberty and Heights Theatres, Cleveland. Each one of these houses will run a contest during the month, with a cash prize to the one who writes the best letter telling which of the pictures shown is the best and what makes it the best picture. A similar contest was conducted last month at the Park with great success.

C. C. DEARDORFF, in charge of Metro-Goldwyn exploitation in Cleveland, got a great tie-up with the automobile club of Akron last week where he was putting over "Show People." The Automobile Club permitted Deardorff to put up big signs all along the main thoroughfares which said "PLEASE DRIVE CAREFULLY and SHOW PEOPLE how to avoid accidents. SEE SHOW PEOPLE at the Strand." The stunt made a big hit, and it created general interest in the picture and much business for the theatre.

The Woman Disputed Norma Talmadge Has Had Better Ones

AS pictures go this shapes up pretty well, telling its story with a pretty good line of interesting situations and incident—and acted very competently by the star and the entire supporting cast. Still the fact remains that Norma Talmadge has demonstrated an emotional flair which is seldom captured by several of equally well-known sisters of screen drama. And that emotional expression is not permitted full play since the story is not up to the mark of some previous films which have popularized the star.

It is her privilege to play a girl of the lower strata—and she colors the role exceedingly well. It develops that she is brought forth from her life of poverty and made a pawn in the affections of two admirers. In her effort to go straight she precipitates all kinds of trouble. The background concerns an Austrian town—with the girl finding refuge in the quarters of an army officer. The latter is an Austrian. His friend is a Russian. When war breaks out each of the officers claims the girl. After she proves herself honorable the disappointed suitor forgives. And it's all over.

The picture is neatly mounted and carries some unique camera effects. It has been well photographed—and the story moves along well enough to hold the attention. The players look the type—and play their parts with good spirit.

Drawing Power: The Talmadge popularity. And Roland's too. Suitable for better class houses. Exploitation Angles: Play up star as having colorful role. And feature Gilbert Roland. Bill as romantic drama of character development.

THEME: Romantic drama of girl of streets who is uplifted and finds peace and happiness in romance.

Produced and distributed by United Artists. Length, seven reels. Released, Nov., 1928. Director, Henry King.

The Shady Lady Weak Story Strengthened by Good Cast and Direction

(Reviewed by Jerry Hoffman)

THE main trouble with "The Shady Lady" for a reviewer who has seen most of Pathe's recent product, is simply that it suffers in comparison. For Pathe has been turning out the most consistently good productions of any outfit on the West Coast and hence "The Shady Lady" appears weaker than it would to one unfamiliar with the pictures which have preceded it.

This seems to be one of those things where they originally had a title and no story, and the plot was batted out to fit the title. Which sometimes works out very well, but in this case it misses fire slightly. E. H. Griffith has done exceptionally well with the direction of the weak script assigned him, and between Griffith's work and that of the cast, Ralph Block needn't hang his head over the fact that it is billed as his production.

It's a tale of gun-running in Cuba, with Phyllis Haver as "the shady lady" with a mysterious past and Bob Armstrong as the head of a hi-jacking band who falls in love with her. Louis Wolheim is the menace, heading the gang of gun-runners whom Armstrong annoys quite frequently and successfully. Russell Gleason adds further interest as a kid reporter who is rather vital to the plot, and inasmuch as this is Gleason's first big role, he is entitled to high praise for his handling of the character. Lots of personality and the ability is there. Phyllis Haver has a much finer wardrobe permitted her in "The Shady Lady" than recent vehicles have allowed, with the result that the girl impresses with her beauty as effectively as she does with her fine dramatic ability. Bob Armstrong and Louis Wolheim deliver very good performances.

Drawing Power: Suitable for practically all types of houses, most effective in neighborhood houses. Exploitation Angles: Play up mystery of leading lady's character, featuring suspense questions as "did she kill him?", "is it right to marry a hi-jacker?", etc.

THEME: Love of a hi-jacking gun-runner for a woman accused of murder.

Produced and distributed by Pathe. Length, undetermined. To be released, Dec. 16, 1928. Story by Jack Jungmeyer. Titles by Garrett Graham. Directed by E. H. Griffith.

THE CAST

Lola Mantell.....Phyllis Haver
Blake.....Robert Armstrong
Holbrook.....Louis Wolheim
Haley.....Russell Gleason

"Social Prestige"

(Educational—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

YOU can take this comedy on the assumption that you will find a lot of laughs in it. When Monty Collins and Vernon Dent star their gags a'rollin' a plentiful supply of fun is the result.

There are a few wisps of humor in the first hundred feet or so but the laughs wax warmer as the comedy plunges deeper into the realm of slapstick. Often a handicap to a picture, slapstick this time is used to good advantage. There are two good exponents of it in Messrs. Collins and Dent. Dent, by the way, is right to the fore and comes close to stealing the honors of the comedy.

Betty Boyd, Eva Thatcher and Ralph Graves have supporting roles, the latter contributing some effective work. The direction of the comedy was taken care of by Stephen Roberts.

The climax of their fun is reached in a banquet scene to which throng members of the local elite as well as Monty's roisterous friends. The banquet is a tremendous flop for the social aspirations of Monty and his family but there is some good fun to be had in it for the fans.

His Private Life Menjou In Familiar Role—Pretty Good

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

WELL he's not to blame, he started it. We are paging Adolphe Menjou who can be found boulevarding on those Paris streets, and again up to his old tricks, playing the ladies. This design is getting musty, even for the artful Adolphe. And he needs to be placed in something more original.

Oh, this isn't to say that the picture is out of order. On the contrary it makes out pretty well since it keeps the spectator interested most of the time. But Menjou needs a change, else they'll be calling him a type actor. Because he can look bored and blase and simulate the perfect club-fellow he must needs go ankle-chasing on the Rue or tete-a-teting on a cheese lounge.

So he's the roue again—the gay Parisian dwelling but a few years this side of dotage. And his game is an American girl. He knows his stuff, does this stuffed character of the Champs Elysees. And he has typical company. For instance, what of the ex-sweetheart who would throw a monkey wrench into the machinery of love? What of the jealous husband, et al—not forgetting the chambermaid? These French farcical figures are all present. The plot is old stuff, though it has been doctored up with creditable humor and some nifty titles. So the debonair Menjou has his fling. He's witty and pensive by turn—and his technique carries him through with flying colors. He never looked in better health. And his clothes and manners are truly magnifique. Kathryn Carver, the new wife, has the opposite role, and doesn't do so well by it. The others are O. K. The picture is fairly amusing. It should knock the women over.

Drawing Power: The popularity of star. Teasing the title. Suitable for better class houses and those catering to feminine clientele. Exploitation Angles: Tease the title and play up star in another typical role. Feature Kathryn Carver, Menjou's wife.

THEME: Romantic comedy of gay Parisian who finally meets the big love of his life and wins her.

Produced and distributed by Paramount. Length, six reels. Released, November, 1928. Director, Frank Tuttle.

"The Laundry Man" (Pathe—One Reel)

IN this Aesop Film Fable release, our old friend Farmer Alfalfa is let in on a lot more of his cartoon troubles. This time cast as the laundry man, the farmer, in his endeavor to "polish up" the clothes of the animal kingdom, is made the object of many practical jokes by the animated characters. There is a good deal of novel pen work in this number done by the ink artist Paul Terry, and it is sure to be accorded the same welcome tendered the other releases in this series.—GEORGE J. REDDY.

Show People

A Nifty—Entertaining and Amusing All the Way

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

SHES'S been doing her stuff a long time—has Marion Davies, but we can't recall when this clever comedienne had a picture more suited to her personality and talent. The comedy, seemingly, has everything. It not only provides the star with a rollicking role—in which she gives play to some rich burlesque, but it also has its contrasting moments when it sings out with pathos. Furthermore there is William Haines to furnish extra high-jinks. And extras are gathered from Hollywood's best social circles. Take the cast and place it in a picture which has plot, humor, sentiment, finely-dovetailed incident—and excellently produced and you have something to look at and like it.

The story can be put down as partly hokum and partly satire, partly ingenious comedy and partly burlesque—and there isn't a moment when it isn't eliciting strong. It takes up the making of a star from a screen-struck girl. And she has to start at the bottom in the slapstick comedies—supporting a slapstick comedian portrayed by Haines. So the fun comes forth—and also the human note when the girl goes ritzy, gives the air to the boy who put her over and affects the last word in bad deportment.

Studio life is revealed in all its color and glamour—with the famous extras (yeah, Chaplin and Fairbanks and Gilbert—and Elinor Glyn are handy here) passing on parade. And so it goes. The story is not anything to rave about. But it does bring forth a genuine slant on the Hollywood situation—and does it with a kick. There's rhythm and variety of incident present. And it's a real picture any way you take it.

Drawing Power: The title, the star and William Haines. Suitable for all types of houses. Should be a knockout anywhere. Exploitation Angles: Feature title and bill as true picture of Hollywood. Play up two stars with many famous extras recruited from stardom. Feature as novel film of how stars are made.

THEME: Comedy-romance of the making of a screen-struck girl into a Hollywood star.

The Wind

Vivid Enough But Not An Audience Picture

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

A PICTURE of dreary, desolate life on the wind-swept prairies is on view here—a picture which gets right down to the bedrock of emotions and the soil of its background. And while it is exceptionally well done it is so morbid of theme that its entertainment value is practically nil. Even for the sticklers for realities it is doubtful whether it has a great deal of appeal for the drama is driven home with sledge-hammer strokes. There's scarcely a moment of human interest. It's a story that calls for shading to bring out its dramatic highlights. True, these are brought out, but with too much emphasis.

The backgrounds are the lonely prairies—and against them is revealed a story of domestic upheaval when a tender flower from the South attempts to bloom there. She arouses the jealousy of her cousin's wife. And with no refuge in this particular home she becomes the wife of a rough-hewn son of the soil. When a vicious sealawag would force his attentions upon her she kills him. And he is buried in the sands.

This is the meat of this story which permits Lillian Gish to release her emotional gifts. But had there been contrasts developed in a more subtle way the picture would have contained more heart—and consequently more feeling. Lars Hanson is more genuine as the husband. There are some sound effects, but none of them are very authentic in quality. So "The Wind" remains a sturdy picture, rich in heavy drama, but lacking balance to place it apart and give it a lofty place on the screen. It is good but not great.

Drawing Power: Play up title and feature star. Should attract because of the Gish name. Exploitation Angles: Play up Lillian Gish as having a full-grown drama here. Feature the winds and storms of the prairies. Bill as a sturdy drama of the soil. Play up Lars Hanson, lately returned to Sweden.

THEME: Drama of sensitive girl who is brought up sharp with realities of drab existence. How she takes stern measures to save her honor, etc.

Produced and distributed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Length, seven reels. Released, November, 1928. Director, Victor Seastrom.

"Follow Teacher"

(Educational—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

PROVIDED with a story that is mostly slapstick, this Juvenile comedy has the saving presence of "Big Boy" to give it an above-the-average classification.

Aside from its gifted star, the comedy has little in the way of high-class entertainment. However, there is a baby player, not credited, who deserves an honorable mention at least, so good is he in the few scenes allotted him.

Evelyn Mills, a new leading lady for "Big Boy," is attractive in her role. Much of the burden of support is taken care of by Al Thompson, who appears to good advantage in the role of "Big Boy's" teacher. Bert Young, Georgia O'Dell and Ginger Conley are the other players. Charles Lamont guided them through their paces.

"Big Boy's" most important attribute is his overwhelming wistfulness, but in this effort he is called on to cut up a la slapstick. His gift for eliciting pathos and human feeling is overlooked in this instance. The result is not entirely satisfactory.

Aside from a few moments in the beginning of the two-reeler when "Big Boy" and the aforementioned baby do some fine work together, the effort is mostly unimaginative and ordinary.

"A Woman's Man"

(Universal—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by George J. Reddy)

THIS issue of Arthur Lake, in the Horace In Hollywood series of comedies, is a frothy piece of work with not much of anything new in its makeup, but enough of the laugh element to get it across. Lake's efforts to create fun in this number register fair.

Arthur, or rather Horace, lands himself a job as "prop" boy at one of the Hollywood studios, and takes his work seriously. On his first assignment he stumbles onto a dungeon set, and hears a victim's cry for help. He immediately butts in on the filming of the scene, and is politely kicked out for his trouble. From the frying pan into the fire, Horace becomes mixed up in the work of another company, where a high-powered vamp sets about making love to him. The studio staff then joins in the spirit of kidding the unfortunate Horace, and when the terrified "prop" attempts to make his escape, he is caught in a maze of trick scenes, and otherwise generally buffeted around. This film will carry an especial appeal to picture audiences because of its showing inside studio life.

"Pathe Review No. 46"

(Pathe—One Reel)

THE opening sequence of this Pathe Review magazine, presents an interesting pictorial survey of the much talked-of Muscle Shoals situation, in which are shown the gigantic Wilson Dam and the huge modern water power plant the U. S. Government has erected there. The latter has been inactive, because of a hold-up in the decision as to whether the plant will be operated by a private institution or by the Government. The next subject, "Extra! London Meets Short Skirt Problem," reveals the English "ceiling skirt," a new fashion creation, designed for feminine comfort. A flower show in Tokio, done in Pathe color, tops off this entertaining reel.—GEO. J. REDDY.

"All for Geraldine"

(Universal—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by George J. Reddy)

ALTHOUGH this release of the "Let George Do It" series is not as strongly meated with "gags" as some of its predecessors, Sid Saylor and a competent cast of players manage to get over a goodly portion of comedy. The action of the film moves along at a fairly speedy pace, and offers enough opportunities of laughter for any audience to warrant its showing. The preliminary bid for the laugh in this number is made when George's pal Steve, aided by neighbors, uses every method imaginable—including a compressed air pump and a popgun to get George to take a pill. George and Steve then call on the latter's girl friend, and George makes a big hit, leaving Steve out in the cold. At this point the real action of the comedy commences, with Steve's jealousy causing no end of annoyance to George.

"Hubby's Latest Alibi"

(Pathe—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by George J. Reddy)

THE name Billy Bevan, when seen in the cast of a comedy film, usually spells good fun, and this Mack Sennett offering does not upset the rule. Bevan's individual style of humor is displayed to good advantage, with the comedian's portrayal on this occasion of a husband who deeply loves his wife—but also craves the gay lights. This splitting up of affection breeds plenty of troublesome situations for the comedian, and incidentally many laughs. Bevan is assisted in this number by a capable supporting cast of funsters, including Natalie Joyce, Alice Ward, Virginia Vance and Otto Fries. Phil Whitman directed. There is no question but that this release will be a happy addition to any program, for all types of audiences.

Seattle

REPORTS from Klamath Falls, Oregon, indicate that Harry Poole's new Pelican Theatre will be ready for formal opening the latter part of November. It is a 750-seat house of the most modern type.

K. L. Burk, widely-known theatre operator in the Oregon territory, who was rumored departing from Portland for Europe a few weeks ago, turned up in Seattle last week to take over the directorship of the Universal Chain Theatres on the Pacific Northwest, succeeding Mike Newman, who left for the East to become assistant to Fritz Flader.

W. A. Crank, former exhibitor from Chico, California, is now a sales representative for Pathe Exchange. He succeeds Fred Burmeister, resigned.

Cecil Gwin, managing the theatre interests of West Coast Theatres in Centralia and Chehalis, was in the city last week.

Charles Thall, general manager of West Coast Theatres, Inc., in the Pacific Northwest territory, has returned to his office after a swing around part of the circuit.

Exhibitors were given a demonstration of the new high intensity reflecting lamp for projection machines at the Fifth Avenue Theatre last week, by National Theatre Supply Company.

William Farrell, of Yakima, plans extensive alterations and improvements on his Avenue Theatre.

John Hamrick, owner and general manager of the Blue Mouse circuit of theatres in the Northwest and the new Music Box Theatres in Seattle and Portland, left New York last week with Mrs. Hamrick for Los Angeles, en route home after a month's absence.

J. L. Beardsley is erecting a new motion picture house at Monroe, Washington, according to report. Donald Neece's new house in Waitsburg is progressing nicely and will undoubtedly be ready for opening in December.

Albany

THE Sunday motion picture proposition is again cropping up in Canastota, with L. W. Rousseau, manager of the Avon Theatre, appearing before the village board one night last week. A request was made that Sunday shows be permitted providing they do not start until 8 o'clock. The village board took no action and will probably refer the matter to a referendum vote.

W. T. Finn, who has been running a chain of small houses in central New York, has closed his theatres in Munnsville, Eaton, Madison and Morrisville.

The offices of W. W. Farley, in Albany, were quite badly damaged last Friday night by a fire that started in a restaurant in the block and threatened to spread to adjoining blocks before being curbed by the fire department. Mr. Farley is head of Farash Theatres, Inc., with a chain-of houses in Schenectady.

It is understood that Harmanus Bleeker Hall in Albany contemplates increasing its admission prices as soon as it opens with talking pictures.

NEGOTIATIONS are understood to be pending for the sale by the Wilmer & Vincent Company, of its Majestic Theatre, Harrisburg, to a company which proposes to erect a large public garage on the site which is located on Walnut Street, facing the state capitol grounds. C. Floyd Hopkins, head of the Wilmer & Vincent interests in Harrisburg, declines to affirm or deny the report.

Manager Charles Keor, of the Opera House, a motion picture theatre in Minersville, invited more than 125 delegates of the biennial convention of District No. 9, United Mine Workers of America, who met in Minersville the week of October 15, to be his guests at one of the regular theatre performances.

BANDITS last Monday night robbed the uptown theatre's safe and escaped with $3,000, the receipts of Saturday and part of Sunday.

Two unmasked bandits entered the manager's office and forced him to open the theatre's safe which contained the money. A police investigation revealed that a window in the locker room had been opened and it was there that the thieves made their entry.

Only one downtown first run house of Kansas City now does not have sound pictures. That is the Pantages Theatre, which has announced that preparations are to be made for equipment. The Isis theatre is the latest suburban house to present sound.

Kansas City's official fathers are again considering the adoption of daylight saving time and the exhibitors again are preparing to fight the proposal.

"There are no 'ifs' and 'ands' about it; daylight saving time is greatly detrimental to the theatre business," President R. R. Biechele of the M.P.T.O. Kansas-Missouri said.

The M.P.T.O.K-M is expected to take action soon in the matter, providing the proposal materializes into a definite plan.

E. L. Oldsmith, Manager of the Kansas City Branch, won top honors in Pathe's recent sales contest and thereby acquired a two-piece silver fox fur set for Mrs. Oldsmith as well as a watch and a cash prize for himself. This contest provided awards for the wife of each winner.

Other divisional winners were: R. S. Ballantyne, Omaha; H. S. Lorch, Chicago and M. E. Cory, San Francisco. In the salesmen's division the leaders were: F. M. Blake, Portland; F. H. Projection

Optics, Electricity, Practical Ideas & Advice

Inquiries and Comments

The Porous Screen Problem

ONE of the most serious problems at present encountered in the projection of talking pictures is the elimination of the excessive loss of light which results from the use of a porous screen.

The mere fact that the screen is porous, regardless of the degree of porosity, is a sufficient indication that some loss of light is entailed. The extent of this light loss will naturally be in proportion to the degree of porosity.

At the present time, special screens, consisting of a single piece of loosely woven fabric, are being used in most of the talking picture installations. The attempt is made to achieve an apparently solid surface, which still is porous to sound waves, by so weaving the cloth that loose ends of threads will form a fine fuzz on the projection surface so as to cover, to a great extent the spaces between the main threads which constitute the foundation of the cloth.

The effect obtained is that of a coarsely woven rug, having a fairly long nap which gives it the appearance of being solidly woven when in reality, the opposite is true.

As a first endeavor to meet two opposite requirements, this screen represents a fairly creditable job in that it possesses the essential qualities of fair picture registration and good sound transmission.

As an ultimate objective in the way of a talking picture screen, however, it falls too far short in the matter of projection efficiency to give it serious consideration.

Initial Efficiency is Low

In the first place, the initial reflection efficiency of this screen is too low to meet present conditions of projection in theatres. It has been officially claimed for this screen that its initial reflection factor is about 80 per cent. This is manifestly impossible because the reflection factor for a new opaque screen, either of the flat white or metallic type, is seldom above 80 per cent.

Upon investigating this claim of 80 per cent for the porous cloth screen we are informed that this applies to the reflection factor of the cloth only and does not take into consideration the inactive area represented by the blank spaces between the threads so that the reflection factor claimed for this screen as a whole, must be lower.

Without having definite figures to support our contention, we should place the overall efficiency of this screen somewhere between 60 and 70 per cent as this would seem to be more reasonable for a screen of this nature.

Upon this basis alone, this particular type of porous screen presents a serious drawback to satisfactory projection because many theatres have no reserve illumination to draw upon in order to restore the overall brilliancy of the picture to its former value.

If a proper reserve of illumination were available, the inefficiency of the porous screen would not be so serious, at least from a light standpoint. Other factors present themselves, however, to further complicate the matter.

Rapid Depreciation

Aside from the low initial reflection efficiency of the porous cloth screen, the most serious objection to its use rests on the fact that it depreciates with almost inconceivable rapidity as compared with the hitherto commonly used opaque screens.

The reason for this is found in the dust collecting properties of the "fuzz" which constitutes the projection surface. The many fine thread ends which serve to cover the interstices between the foundation threads form a most excellent dust trap and no better location for such a screen, from a dust collecting standpoint, could be found than its location on the stage. Air currents, caused by moving draw curtains, raising and lowering of the screen and drop curtains, organ pipes, heated stage lighting equipment and numerous other props, serve to keep the concentrated dust at the front of the house in constant motion so that eventually most of it finds a comfortable lodging place on the fibres of the porous screen. Once this dust is imbedded in the fibres it cannot be removed by ordinary cleaning processes.

Various projectionists and observers have claimed that the porous cloth screen depreciates from a white to a slate gray color in a period of time estimated at from 3 to 6 months depending upon dust conditions in the particular theatre. The depreciation is said to be so bad as to justify replacing the screen with a new one after a period, not exceeding 6 months. If this is true, and it seems reasonable that it would be, then the low initial reflection efficiency of the screen coupled with its rapid deterioration would condemn it as a permanent fixture on the stage.

Poor Registration

A low reflection efficiency is not the only objection to this screen. It has little to offer in the way of registration qualities. For excellent registration each little pinpoint over the entire active area of the screen must reflect a cone of light to the seating area. Each one of these thousands of little cones must cover the entire seating area.

If even small portions of the active screen area are missing, corresponding areas of the picture image will also be missing so that poor registration of the image will result. The effect of perforations in the screen is the same as that observed (but to a lesser degree) when one looks at an object through a wire screen. The cross wires composing the screen hide portions of the object from direct view and result in indistinct vision.

It is a fact, determined from observation in theatres that the porous cloth screen presents an image which is not as sharply defined and distinct as that observed on a section of an opaque screen placed beside it.

New Horn Location or New Screens

The need for a porous screen arises from the location of the horns directly behind the screen. The reason given for so placing the horns is that a better illusion of directional tonal effects is thereby obtained.

There is much contention with respect to this claim so that it cannot be definitely said that it is true or not true.

Any other placement of the horns (than directly behind the screen) would eliminate the need for a porous screen and so would restore the projected picture to its former high state of brightness and definition. This consideration alone, is sufficient to warrant serious thought toward finding another location for the horns. If the difference in illusion is slight between speaker locations as behind the screen and elsewhere, then it would be better to forego the slight benefit of this directional effect in order to gain the tremendous benefits of good picture registration and increased picture brightness.

Practical projectionists and expert observers not directly connected with the theatre, are unanimous in stating that the results of the porous screen now in use in many theatres is highly objectionable and cannot much longer be tolerated. At the last meeting of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers criticisms of this screen were advanced in terms which left no doubt concerning its ill effects upon projection in general.

In this meeting it was brought to light that most theatres, in an effort to restore their screen pictures to their former value of brightness were using all available light for projection purposes and were heating the film almost to the point of flashing, thereby creating a dangerous condition in the projection room and the theatre.

Such conditions are fundamentally wrong and call for corrective measures. Whether these corrective measures will take the form of new screen surfaces for improving the registration and reflection efficiency, or new speaker locations to permit a return of the old opaque screen will be a question of future developments.

It appears certain that a change of some

New Oakland Theatre, Seating 4,000, Opened in Frisco

THE new Oakland Theatre, San Francisco, the largest place of entertainment west of the Mississippi River, opened on October 28th. The huge playhouse, boasting a seating capacity of 4,000, represents an investment of more than $3,000,000. It is owned and operated by West Coast Theatres and is a sister theatre of the new Fox Theatre now under construction at Market and Polk Streets.

According to architects the new theatre is the finest specimen of Mesopotamian architecture in America. It was built with the famous temples of the ancient city in mind and was originally to have been called the Bagdad Theatre.

Frank Newman, who has managed and operated various theatres on the Pacific Coast, has been named division manager.

Wide and spacious corridors through which one may walk for an hour without doubling back over his steps, enhance the playhouse. Massive chandeliers, rich impressions of the Oriental hand, hang from the ceilings. Rich carpets, tapestries, murals and drapes vie in a scheme of general splendor. Particular view to comfort was exercised in the drawing of the plans.

A small army of film and theatre executives from all over the country were on hand at the opening. Thousands of congratulatory messages were received by West Coast Theatre officials in token of the new project, already one of Frisco's first sights.

Carnegie Playhouse Is Last Word in the Little Theatre

PRESENTING, even when cursorily viewed, an elaborate ornateness and cleverly worked out modernistic design, the latest of the little theatres to throw open its doors to a discriminating New York public is the Carnegie Playhouse, located on 57th Street only a few steps east from Carnegie Hall. The house is under the management of Michael Mindlin, who has been associated with the Little Theatre movement for some time.

A coziness pervades its interior. The house is not large and one does not feel lost in it as is so often the case with the huge Broadway palaces dedicated to the cinema. The scheme of intimacy is carried out thoroughly—perhaps more in the case of this house than in the other numerous little theatres.

Appealing to a more sophisticated type of fan than he who makes his way to the average movie, the Carnegie Playhouse makes a bid for the patron of the arts. On its screen it endeavors to show the latest cinematic exhibitions that can lay claim to being "arty" and throughout its interior this idea of catching and retaining the interest of the client who appreciates nuances in color, an oddly designed mural, or unexpected expressions in architecture or interior decorating is further carried out.

Theatre Ad Mat Service Changes Address

Theatre Ad Mat Service, Inc., who introduced their special advertising service to theatres about a year ago, have moved their plant from Uniontown, Pa., to the Mott Bldg. in Cleveland, Ohio.

This change has been necessitated due to a greatly increased balance of business and also for the purpose of being more centrally located for national service.

The new Patio Theatre of A. H. Schwartz which opened recently in Brooklyn is being managed by William Applegate, Jr., who has been with the Schwartz circuit of theatres for many years.

The theatre is a beautiful structure. The main body has a garden wall represented in the mural decorations and a vaulted ceiling dotted with stars which appear when the house lights are dimmed. Lounges for men and women are in the Italian period manner with wood beamed ceilings. Old Ivory, blue and gold have been employed very effectively in painting and decorating. The most up-to-date heating and ventilating systems have been installed and the theatre is provided with the latest equipment in projection machinery. There is indirect lighting throughout and there is a modern stage of large dimensions to provide for any features apart from the picture offerings.

You no doubt will be interested to learn that SUBMARINE in its first week of business at the Roger Sherman Theatre, New Haven, came within a few hundred dollars of the record gross established by THE SINGING FOOL.

At the Garde Theatre in New London, SUBMARINE has smashed every existing record for the house. It is beating the previous high gross established by THE SINGING FOOL.

This, to me, is remarkable business. Everybody who has seen SUBMARINE has been enthusiastic about it.

My heartiest congratulations.

Yours very truly,

—Exhibitor's Daily Review

"Paramount takes an easy lead in talking pictures with 'Interference'."—N. Y. Morning World

Read these Reviews!

"Paramount has gone further in clearing the photographic problem insofar as the sight and sound cinema is concerned than its competitors."

—New York American

"The quality of the recording is so close to perfection that it might almost be said to have a human appeal, and the acting is as good as you will find in a month of Broadway productions."

—New York Evening Sun

"As a specimen of the strides made by the talking picture it is something to create no little wonderment."

—New York Times

"'Interference' Paramount's first all-talking feature unfolded for a discriminating New York audience what in many ways is the finest sound picture made so far."

—Film Daily

"A further stride toward perfection in talking movies was taken last night at the Criterion Theatre when 'Interference', Paramount's first 100 per cent dialogue picture had its premiere. For this picture doubtless approaches nearer than any predecessor to what talking movies ultimately will attain."

—New York Evening World

"Undoubtedly this new comer is the most smoothly executed recording of a talking film that has yet reached Broadway."

Theatre Goers are Comfort Lovers the World Over!

Progressive theatre owners appreciate the tremendous attraction of "comfort" to the theatre-going public. Whatever the program that is being offered, the public looks first to the house where their comfort is assured. American Seating Company offers theatre owners and managers a wide selection of chairs whose qualities of beauty and comfort stimulate box office receipts. Significant, too, is the exclusive use of this company's seating by the nation's foremost exhibitors.

American Seating Chairs are in harmony with the beauty of the Paramount Theatre as illustrated in this interior view.

No. 4078 Special Chair—3,561 of these chairs were installed in the Paramount Theatre. Seat upholstered in red Morroccoline, with rose mohair back and brown mahogany finished wood parts. Aisle lights built into chair standards and noiseless ball bearing seat hinges.

Lobby of Paramount Theatre, New York City. One of the many fine theatres equipped with American Seating Chairs. C. W. and Geo. L. Rapp, Architects.

The Squawkers

Exhibitor Faced With New Bootlegging Menace

By William A. Johnston

THE box-office appears to be faced with a new bootlegging menace, and a bad one.

I refer to the crop of anonymous and alleged sound machines and pictures rushed recently into being to ride along—as long as they can—with the popular waves of the sound movie.

Letters are coming to us from exhibitors in which they speak of their experiences with these makeshifts.

Here's one from the corn belt:

"One of our houses," the letter states, "has a small sound device" (a certain number of short acts were promised as service).

"We believed that perhaps the small equipment would carry us over until the important questions became settled, but believe we made a great mistake. Our policy had always been that the best was not too good and why we detoured from this policy when we put in sound is more than I can tell you.

"It was a flop from the start. Equipment was too small, the acts were punk, and the records were terrible; and to put them over was impossible with the result that I am afraid that in the few days we were trying to put them over we did considerable damage to our territory as far as future sound is concerned."

So far as the latter point is concerned—the possible damage done to future and good sound pictures by present poor ones—I do not feel so greatly concerned. We are going to have good sound pictures—that is certain; and the good shows will pull the "talker" public back.

But, as certainly, it hurts, and at once, any house to put on a succession of bad shows. And these squawkers are bad.

It is better to wait than to make this mistake and the wary exhibitor, we find, is fast arriving at this opinion.

Why is it not best to advertise frankly to your public, and tell the plain facts: that you cannot get the installation you want, that the best you feel is not too good for your patrons, that you will have the best sound pictures when and only when their supply to your neighborhood is a physical possibility?

There are already, and there will be more, sound devices and services that will stand up. The tonal quality of the devices and the quality of the pictures will be improved right along.

Just now it will pay the exhibitor to watch the market like a hawk.

But it will not pay him to buy in the dark. And one way of buying in the dark is to buy unadvertised product. If the manufacturer of the device cannot print on plain black and white the claims the salesman makes to you, then there's something decidedly wrong.

The whole sound picture situation needs the full glare of publicity. There are many questions involved. The sound device that can deliver the goods needs no pussyfooting. The other kind does. But it is up to each, certainly, to tell the puzzled exhibitor just where they stand and to prove also their contention as to tonal quality, operation, patent protection, interchangeability, etc. There's too much silence in the sound picture situation.

Paramount—M-G-M—U. A. "Merger" Stock Market Yarn

RUMORS linking the trip being made to Hollywood by Adolph Zukor and Nicholas M. Schenck with an alleged impending merger of Paramount, M-G-M and United Artists were issued for stock market purposes, according to information received by Motion Picture News Thursday. It was learned that the United Artists home office was tipped off on Monday that the story would break four days later. The story is believed to be hooked up with reported pools of Paramount and Loew stock and to have been given out purely for stock market purposes. Who passed the yarn along for publication could not be learned.

In addition sweeping denials of published reports with the Zukor-Nicholas Schenck trip, which was pictured as being for the purpose of conferring with Joseph M. Schenck at the coast on the alleged merger, were issued in New York by S. R. Kent, Paramount general manager, Harry D. Buckley, United Artists vice president and Joseph M. Schenck in Hollywood. The Kent statement follows:

"I regard as absolutely silly the published inferences drawn from the fact that Adolph Zukor and Nicholas Schenck are traveling together from New York to Hollywood. This is not the first time the two men have traveled together with their families. They made the trip in the same manner last November when I was a member of the party and in previous years Marcus Loew traveled to the Coast aboard Paramount's special convention trains.

"I deny all of the published rumors referring to negotiations looking toward combinations or closer understanding which arose through the fact that Mr. Zukor and Mr. Schenck traveled together to the Coast."

An emphatic denial of any contemplated merger or conferences regarding any merger was made by Joseph M. Schenck on Thursday in Hollywood to a representative of Motion Picture News. Mr. Schenck added that Mr. Zukor and Nicholas Schenck were coming to Hollywood for annual visits regarding production plans at their respective studios.

Harry D. Buckley, vice-president of United Artists and Mr. Schenck's personal representative in New York, also categorically denied that there was any truth in the merger rumor.

Myers Silent on Allied $100,000 Offer

Organization's Financing Plan Not Disclosed; Reports of Tender Current Some Time Ago

REPORTS this week that Commissioner Abram F. Myers, of the Federal Trade Commission, had been tendered the leadership of the Allied States exhibitor organization at a reputed salary of $100,000 a year, failed to disclose the financing plan by which this was to be accomplished.

Whether the Commissioner would accept or not could not be confirmed in Washington, where Mr. Myers refused to comment upon reports that the offer had been made.

The Commissioner pointed out that the formation of the organization has been under consideration for some time, but declared that he is not in a position to comment upon the situation. Reports of this nature have been in circulation before.

Commissioner Myers conducted the Federal Trade Practice Conference in New York in October, 1927, at which time his handling of industry problems, as they arose in the Conference, attracted wide and favorable attention.

From other sources it is reported that formal tender of the leadership of Allied has been made to the Commissioner, and that he is receptive to it. At the convention of the M. P. T. O. of Ohio, held at Columbus this week, the Allied leaders, W. A. Steffes, of Minnesota; H. M. Richey, of Michigan, and Col. H. A. Cole, of Texas, were in attendance, and the offer to Commissioner Myers became known.

"U Not Selling Any Theatres"—Metzger

AREPORT from Los Angeles this week that Fox had purchased 185 Universal theatres in the Middle West and Oregon was emphatically denied Thursday by Lew Metzger, general manager of Universal.

"We haven't sold any theatres and we are not contemplating selling any theatres. On the contrary, we are negotiating for the purchase of more theatres," said Mr. Metzger.

The nucleus of the Allied group is Minnesota, the Dakotas, Michigan, Texas and Wisconsin, the latter State having joined this week, according to reports.

L. A. Road-Show Houses Under Warner Lease

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, Nov. 22.—With the booking of "The Barker" to open at the Carthay Circle theatre here on December 6, the Warner Brothers are in temporary absolute control of the only road-show houses available in this territory. While "The Barker" is a first National production, their control of First National brings it within the Warner jurisdiction. The only other road-show house is Sid Grauman's Chinese theatre, where the Warner's "Noah's Ark" is running and booked indefinitely.

The only other houses in Los Angeles and Hollywood are first-run theatres, and with the exception of the United Artists and the Criterion theatres, all are booked for months ahead with program product. The United Artists has maintained a grind policy since opening and isn't considered available for a two dollar showing with two performances daily. The Criterion has been playing pictures of road-show quality in several instances, but has been unable to get more than a two or three-week run out of them, these also playing a grind policy.

"Interference" opened at the Carthay Circle November 5 and its closing makes it one of the shortest runs in the history of the house. It was very well received by the local critics and the public, but the failure to draw is attributed to the title as well as the fact that the 100 per cent dialogue could be made more effective by a synchronized undercurrent of music, which is absent at present.

David Selznick Becomes Aide to B. P. Schulberg

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, Nov. 22.—David Selznick, who has been assistant to B. P. Schulberg, Paramount production head for the past year, has been promoted to the post of executive assistant to Schulberg.

Selznick has supervised several Paramount productions during the past eight months with marked success. In his new position he will continue production supervision, in addition to having direct charge of the studio's writing department. Selznick is the son of Lewis J. Selznick, one of the industry's leading producers and distributors up to a few years ago.

Vanderbilt, Jr., Reported About to Enter Movies

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, Nov. 22.—Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., arrived recently in Hollywood and is reported with a fat bankroll with which he will enter the ranks of motion picture producers. His production and release arrangements are indefinite as yet but he will soon make an announcement of his forthcoming activities, it is thought.

$100,000 Equipment Music Fee Curbs Interchangeability

Annual License Charge of Publishers Makes Payment Necessary by Manufacturers to Reproduce Copyrighted Music

A DOMINANT factor in the problem of interchangeability is in the music angle and the license fee charged by the music publishers to manufacturers of equipment to be installed in theatres for This license fee amounts to a minimum of $100,000 for the first year and a minimum of $125,000 the second year to any sound equipment manufacturers who reproduce over their equipment in theatres any of the copyrighted music covered by the license.

Terms of License

This license is not granted by the Music Publishers' Association, but by E. C. Mills, acting as agent and trustee for some fifty or sixty music publishers whose product is released only subject to copyright restrictions. It is a license charge entirely separate from the ten cents a seat fee imposed upon theatres for the right to publicly perform copyrighted music by organ or orchestra. It is not granted to producers or distributors of pictures, but is a direct fee paid for the right to the reproduction of the music by the manufacturers of sound reproducing films and discs used in theatres.

It means no additional seat tax charge to exhibitors.

According to the terms of the license, the $100,000 minimum fee the first year must be made in quarterly payments. The same conditions obtain the second year, with the payments being made quarterly and the annual amount increased to a minimum of $125,000. These minimum fees are based on a seat tax equivalent to 2½ cents the first year and 3½ cents the second year. The licenses granted Western Electric Company and RCA Photophone were issued to cover a period of five years with no minimum charge the last three years, but the seat tax increased to 3½ cents the third year, 5 cents the fourth year and five cents the fifth year. Mr. Mills explains that new licenses will be issued only to cover a period of two years.

Installations of lower priced devices have been announced to cost from $500 up to $2,500 or even $5,000.

Those companies that are figuring on installing equipment from $500 up would necessarily have to make a large number of installations to cover the minimum license fee alone.

Mr. Mills points out that it is possible to run synchronized copyrighted film of licenses of Western Electric or RCA over unlicensed equipment, but only with his permission as representative of the music publishers. He also declares that licenses may be issued to equipment devices by individual music publishers of his association, but that publishers generally do not care to act as individuals.

Double Permission Required

For the manufacturer of lower priced equipment to play the copyrighted synchronized music it will not only be necessary for the company selling the film to get permission from the Mills organization to play the music, but it will also be necessary to get permission from one of the electrical companies. In the absence of permission from any of these organizations it would not be possible to play the synchronized music over equipment not licensed by Mr. Mills as agent.

Equity Active in Hollywood

Association Proceeds Carefully, Biding Time to Spring Referendum on Organization Plan

ACTORS EQUITY ASSOCIATION is calmly biding its time to spring a new eruption in the ranks of the motion picture industry in Hollywood. All is not as serene with Equity as appears on the surface at the present time. The forces of Equity are busy in Hollywood and it would not be surprising if a referendum was urged upon the acting talent of Hollywood before the first of the year, according to a New York official of Equity.

The Actors' guiding body is reluctant to discuss the situation pro or con. Their present movements are as completely veiled as possible and they will not definitely divulge any phase of their plans. At the same time it is intimated that had Frank Gilmore, executive secretary of Equity, cared to be more insistent in 1927 when efforts were made to organize the acting forces, he might have been successful in perfecting his organization. However, it is said he considered the time not entirely favorable and that it would be more advisable to wait.

California, once a hot bed of labor unionism had reverted more or less to the open shop idea. In the past year this condition has changed considerably according to the Equity executive. Labor unions are coming back into their own with many production branches of the picture industry now becoming unionized.

Ranks Strengthened

In the past year, or since the advent of the talking pictures, many Broadway players and Equity members have joined the motion picture colony in Hollywood. These, according to Equity want the protection of that organization and will vote for an Equity shop if proposition is again put to a referendum.

While it is the general impression that the actor is well satisfied with conditions as they obtain in Hollywood, Equity is of the impression that these conditions could be materially improved upon. A canvas of new stage stars who have recently signed for pictures reveals the fact that they have been splendidly treated by the motion picture producers, but Equity maintains that conditions outlined by the Academy are not entirely equitable and that additional mergers will react to the detriment of the player.

The tendency of the picture industry, so far as production goes is undoubtedly toward unionism.

With the application of the Make-Up Artists' association for charter in the American Federation of Labor filed this week, complete unionization of every craft aligned with motion picture production seems likely within the next year. The move by the Make-Up Artists' organization was hurriedly made when they discovered that several persons not members of their association had endeavored to secure a charter.

Cameramen Organized

The seeking of an A. F. of L. charter is to protect both members and producers from a possible union organization which would consist of make-up artists not competent in that line of work. No trouble is anticipated on the passing of the application, and they will probably secure their American Federation affiliation through the United Scenic Artists, who are already chartered.

With cameramen now 100 per cent organized, and another group, comprising film cutters and editors reported starting union organization shortly, unionism has a better hold on the production end of the motion picture industry in Hollywood than it has ever held in its history. Stage hands, electricians, carpenters and others are already chartered via the I. A. T. S. N. and kindred organizations.

Schnitzer Made F B O Head by Sarnoff; Expansion Policy Planned

AS indicated in stories previously published by Motion Picture News, the policy of R. C. A. with respect to the F B O organization, which it controls, will be to build up and expand on the present structure of the film producing and distributing company. It is understood that David I. Sarnoff, president, and the governing board of the company, has officially notified Joseph I. Schnitzer, vice president of F B O, that he was in charge and was to assume full guidance over the policies and administrations of F B O.

Changes in the present responsible personnel of the production and sales departments of F B O, if any are made, will be entirely up to Mr. Schnitzer, for according to reliable information received by Motion Picture News, Schnitzer was told to "go ahead" with F B O as the reins of the organization's government were entirely in his hands.

Whether the company and its product will continue to be known as F B O or bear some other title is a matter which has not yet been decided. However, any important changes in the organization will be entirely along the line of strengthening the present set-up of the company rather than any tearing-down process to make way for entirely new policies and operating plans. R. C. A. obtained control of F B O because an established and experienced organization for picture production and distribution was wanted to expand the R. C. A. operations in the amusement field. And having secured one there is every intention of capitalizing the opportunity to elaborate on an existing structure.

F B O will be an important factor in bringing the Photophone method of sound recording before the public. In addition the product will be the main source of supply for the Radio-Keith-Orpheum theatres.

L. A. Theatre Grosses

B. O. Business Drops Despite Good Weather and No Big Counter Attraction

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, November 22.—Business at the Los Angeles first runs dropped during the past week despite good weather conditions and nothing of big importance to give as an alibi for poor box office intake.

"Interference" at the Carthay Circle went to $11,900. "Noah's Ark" at Grauman's Chinese held up nicely with $23,500; Loew's State was below the previous week, but still better than average with $27,000 for "West of Zanzibar," starring Lon Chaney. The Metropolitan hit about average with Adolphe Menjou in "His Private Life," doing about $21,000. United Artists playing "The Awakening," Vilma Banky's first starring vehicle, secured $15,500, considered not bad for its second week there.

Warner Bros. Theatre for the first three days of "On Trial" did about $12,000, with the big end of the week to come.

Grosses are for the week ending Thursday, with the exception of the United Artists, where the week ended Tuesday. The Warner gross, as indicated, is for three days only, as that picture opened Monday.

Fairbanks Using Different Style of Lighting

A method for securing soft highlights, christened Rembrandt lighting, is now being used for the Douglas Fairbanks starring vehicle, "The Iron Mask." Henry Sharpe brought the method up to its present standard. The effect of softness is gained, it is said, by a system of one source high lights and the strategic placing of reflectors. The result is said to be a mellowing of tones and highlight emphasis on individuals or groups in the picture.

Mr. Sharpe won the medal of the American Society of Cinematographers with his work on "Don Q."

Jury Frees Crandall of Blame for Roof Collapse

No responsibility for the collapse of the roof of the Knickerbocker Theatre, January 28, 1922, when nearly 100 persons lost their lives, attaches to Harry M. Crandall or the Knickerbocker Theatre Company, under a verdict of a jury in Washington, D. C., exonerating them from blame in the first of a series of suits in which it was sought to hold Mr. Crandall personally responsible for the disaster. Other suits were heard in 1924 against the Knickerbocker Theatre Company, and resulted in verdicts for the company.

Mr. Crandall had testified that neither he nor his company had been interested in the building of the theatre and did not take the property over until after it had been completed, his counsel contending that, accordingly, he had had no interest in or responsibility for the structure.

Quarterly Dividend to be Declared by "U"

A quarterly dividend of two per cent (2 per cent), to be due and payable on January 2, 1929, to First Preferred stockholders of record as shown by the books of the company at the close of business December 19, 1928, will be paid, it is indicated by a resolution adopted by the Board of Directors of Universal Pictures Company, Inc., at a meeting held November 13. The transfer books of Universal for its First Preferred stock will be closed at the close of business, December 19, 1928; they will be opened on the opening of business, January 3, 1929.

June Marlowe Making 2 "U" Films in Germany

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, Nov. 22.—June Marlowe, placed under contract by Universal, leaves soon for Germany to make two pictures under the direction of Joseph Levigard. "House of Glass" by Max Marcin and "Fallen Angels" by Arthur Somers Roche are her two vehicles. The star is familiar with the French and German languages so she expects no speech handicap at the Berlin studios. The remainder of the cast will be hired from various European countries.

Late Production Limits Players' Earnings

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 19.—An independent producer on the Coast signed two comedians to be co-featured in a war comedy about five months ago. At that time the picture was slated to start within two weeks, but the producer would not stipulate starting dates for the players in the contracts.

The picture's start was delayed, however, and the comedians were assured that it would get into production any day, with the two players turning down other engagements to be ready. Actual production dragged along, and both comedians were stalled with statements that they had to stand by for calls. During the time of non-start, both players lost other engagements that would have kept them busy for the entire period of waiting, with one having to turn down a guaranteed 16 week part at his salary of $1,000 weekly.

When the picture finally got under way a couple of weeks ago, the comedy pair found that it was not a war comedy, but a melodrama, and one of the players would work in only about ten scenes according to the working script. Even though he will appear as a bit player in the finished picture, his contract stipulates that he will have to be co-featured in all advertising put out on the production, and the releasing organization will have to go through on that basis.

Playwright Awaits Film to Detect Plagiarism

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 22.—The playwright of a Broadway stage success which was purchased by one of the big producers for filming, is anxiously awaiting the release of a picture made by one of the larger independent producers. The latter's production carries a title very similar to that of the play, and the playwright figures the story may have enough similarity to his play so that he can institute suit for plagiarism.

Government Survey Launched

Department of Commerce Issues Questionnaire to Theatres; Its Activities Reviewed in Annual Report

COINCIDENTALLY with the exclusive story in MOTION PICTURE NEWS last week in which it was made known by President-Elect Herbert Hoover that a survey of the film industry in all its branches would be made, the government machinery has begun to function for the purpose of gathering data. The Motion Picture Bureau of the Department of Commerce in Washington, D. C., which sprang into existence during Mr. Hoover's incumbency as Secretary of Commerce, has already grouped motion picture theatres into five classes according to their seating capacity and questionnaires have been sent them requesting information that will determine the position of the film industry in its relation to other industries, aside from the purchasing power of its 350,000 employees.

The Motion Picture Department of the follows: in the first classification are houses has been extremely active during the past year, expanding the scope of its surveys both in this country and abroad. The new survey it will attempt will be the most sweeping that it has ever made.

The Department has grouped theatres as follows: in the first classification are houses seating less than 300; in the second houses with from 300 to 599 seats; in the third houses with from 600 to 999 seats; in the fourth houses with from 1,000 to 1,999 seats; in the fifth houses of over 2,000 seats. Approximately 3,500 theatres of the 20,000 exhibiting films daily or once or twice per week have been selected in each of the various zones of all the states. Their replies to the questionnaire will enable the Department to obtain a cross-section of the industry on which to make generalizations.

The questionnaire asks for a variety of information. Theatres are requested to state their yearly expenditures on newspaper ads; paper and miscellaneous supplies; power and heating; express costs and cartage; the cost of replacing electric bulbs, chair parts, carpets, drapes, flowers, decorations, uniforms, building costs and specialties. It inquires into the costs of various building materials used in the construction of a theatre; of the equipment installed from the heating system, refrigeration and ventilating to signs and scenery. The value of the land and building, the date of the building of the theatre, the different types of musical equipment are desired. Such information as it asks for will be kept strictly confidential. Each report will not be available to any person in the trade but will go to make up the total result which, of course, will be made public.

The activities of the Motion Picture Department of the Department of Commerce have been of aid not only to producers but also to other industries. Reports regarding foreign markets have been of particular value to producers and exporters of films. The annual report of the Department, just made public by Dr. Julius Klein, summarizes briefly its achievements during the past year.

Such abuses as the piracy of American copyrights in foreign countries have been curtailed and the Department's agents are ever alert for recurrences of this practice. Effort was made to promote foreign trade in film accessories. Special assistance was rendered an export department of a prominent distributor. Aid was given a secretary of state in preparing pictures of his commonwealth. Several equipment firms were extended help in expanding their trade in Latin America. The entire year of 1928, says the report, was one of increased services. Six trade information bulletins and 22 foreign market bulletins were published, and the section's weekly press service was increased. A trade bulletin on Marks for Industrial Educational Motion Pictures Abroad was also issued and the file of general information was added to enormously by the Department.

The work of the motion picture trade commissioner also contributed assistance to the trade, his reports including a survey of the European market. The foreign offices of the Department contributed in their reports to Washington and in their services to picture men in their localities.

Producers Invade Music Field

Move Seen As Means to Secure World's Rights and Increased Revenue; Society Denies Any Conflict

SEVERAL of the leading film producers have recently gone heavily into sheet music composition and production and those, in the know, trace a number of reasons as being behind the movement.

First, by securing copyright on a song, it will be possible for the picture producer to obtain world rights on the composition. Under their agreement with the American Society of Authors, Composers and Publishers, in most cases only rights in the U. S. and Canada are procurable, although it is understood that the Society is endeavoring at the present time to obtain world rights on all their products. This point is an important matter with the picture producer as regards the distribution of product in European countries.

Song Grosses $50,000

Next, the tremendous sales of certain theme songs has opened up another source of profit for the producer.

At one time, the producer was only too glad to turn over publication rights to the music companies for what ever picture exploitation was in sight, viewing the matter as extra advertising. But when it was found that sheet music and record royalties on just one theme song grossed the sum of $50,000, producers of pictures saw the possible financial returns in this new by-product and insisted that new contracts be written.

How extensive this music publishing movement on the part of picture producers is will be seen by the following tie-ups which have been recently made:

Paramount-Famous-Lasky has formed an alliance with Harms, Inc., the company known as the Famous Music Corporation. The concern will act as selling agents for all theme songs or other compositions produced by Famous.

In addition to the Famous company, under a previous agreement made before this company's formation, the Sam Fox Music Company is publishing six songs for Paramount features. The Fox company supplied the score for "Wings," also "Abie's Irish Rose" and "The Wedding March."

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has a tie up with the Robbins Music Company, which went into effect when M-G-M secured a controlling interest in the Robbins Company. Jack Robbins is still in charge of the company and the concern will function on practically the same basis as the Famous company, as to the marketing of songs.

Other tie-ups include a deal between Fox and the De Sylva, Brown and Henderson Company for the production and marketing of theme songs. It is reported that it will be a subsidiary to be known as the Sound Music Corp., of which Erno Rapee will act as one of the supervisors. Rapee, one of the most successful theme song writers of the day, is also reported to be connected with Famous Music Publishing Company.

A number of other deals between picture producers and music houses for exclusive publication rights are reported pending.

Retail Sales

Publix theatres have recently inaugurated a system of selling sheet music in the lobbies of all their theatres, all managers of the circuit having received a notice to install music booths for sales purposes. This may or may not be construed as direct entry into the retail end of the music-publishing business. It is, of course, to the advantage of Publix to use every possible means of advertising a picture and it is undoubtedly believed that getting copies of theme songs in the home will give further aid.

A report recently circulated in New York City that a movement was under way by a

Film Bills Slated to Die in Congress

No Action Expected At Short Session on Measures Affecting the Industry

THE various film measures, now pending in Congress, have little likelihood of passage at the hands of the short session that reconvenes on December 3.

About half a dozen bills affecting the industry were left pending at the time of the adjournment of Congress on May 29 and of these only two received any serious consideration. Their prospects of getting anywhere at the new Congress are rated slim.

Congress, reconvening on the first Monday in December and adjourning on March 4, will have but three months to devote to various bills. The short stretch of time is conceded to be very much against any possibility of secondary matters taking preference over appropriation for all the Governmental activities.

If the measures affecting the industry are still pending when the Congress adjourns on March 4 they will all automatically die, because the next Congress will be new and starts with a clean slate.

The Brookhart Bill, which was the only legislation that received much attention from the last Congress, has not been dropped by its author, Senator Brookhart of Iowa, who has announced that he will seek the submission of a report on his measure upon the reconvening of the Congress.

Warners Bound by Pact Agreement Binds Them to Company Management for Six years; First National Moving In

WARNER Bros. have signed a six-year contract with the stockholders of Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., represented by Goldman Sachs and Company, whereby Harry M. Albert and Jack Warner are bound to continue at the head of the organization for the term of the contract.

Goldman Sachs, acting for the stockholders merely wanted to secure the position of the stockholders in continuing the competent management of the Warners. It is pointed out that the vision and foresight of Harry, Albert and Jack Warner brought about the spectacular success of the company and that the recent acquiring of First National and the Stanley Company necessitated the continuance of such capable management.

The actual ratification of this deal will be effected on November 30, it is said, and immediately following that First National, Stanley and Warner executives will all be housed under the one roof at the Warner Home Office Headquarters in 44th Street between Eighth and Ninth Avenues in New York.

Warner executives are already revamping the space at the home office so as to provide room for the incoming staffs and executives. The Stanley company is to have an entire floor, while three floors are to be devoted to the officials to be retained in the First National organization.

It is said that all three branches will function under the direction of Warner executives, all of whom will perhaps be retained. It is intimated that there will be deep slashes in the ranks of First National and Stanley. Bruce Johnson, for many years head of First National's foreign department was the first big executive to be effected. Herman Starr will continue in charge of the Warner foreign department.

Leading Producers Form Music Tie-Ups

number of picture producing companies to break the ranks of the American Society of Authors, Composers and Publishers was strongly denied this week by an executive at the society's headquarters in the Paramount Building. The report stated that, due to what was termed exorbitant fees, the producers were organizing musical staffs

30 Dropped from First National Payroll

THE axe swooped down on about thirty employees of First National studios Saturday afternoon, when they were told that effective immediately, their services were no longer required. Most of the eliminations were of clerks, typists and the clerical force in general. The most important of them were Daral Faralla, business manager for the studio, Ashton Deerholt, unit manager, and several in the publicity department.

and companies of their own, and were "signing right and left" many reputable authors and composers with a view toward providing their own sources of theme and incidental songs, scores for synchronized pictures, etc. It was also alleged that a number of radio broadcast companies were in on the movement to the extent of popularizing the producers' song numbers; that they, too, would benefit by an arrangement which would make royalty payments unnecessary.

The chief function of the Society, as understood by the layman, is to protect its members on copyright, the Society receiving a percentage of collected royalties for its maintenance. Thus, it will be seen that music publishing companies might exercise their own judgment as to the advisability of joining the Society, perhaps coming to a conclusion that they could protect their own copyrights. Payments of any royalties would not be necessary and they would, in turn, reap any other financial benefit.

When interviewed on the subject by a MOTION PICTURE NEWS reporter, J. C. Rosenthal, who holds an authoritative position with the Society, said:

"There is nothing to the report that there is any conflict between the Society and picture producers. Any musical production plans under way by these producers will have our fullest co-operation. It is true that they are placing under contract many authors and composers, but these, in most cases, are not well-known artists. Practically all of the better-known writers and composers of this profession are members of the Society, and under a contract which would make any other agreement out of the question unless it had the Society's sanction."

The Mills agreement, a much discussed clause in talking picture contracts, which licenses the use of Society properties for reproduction in sound-equipped theatres, was also cited as further proof that there is a perfect understanding between producers and the Society.

As far as the radio people were concerned, Mr. Rosenthal stated that it was apparent that they were always short of new numbers to broadcast, and that they were only too glad to plug any new number.

Pathe Acquires KFVD, Pacific Coast Radio Broadcasting Station

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 22.—Contracts have been signed by Pathe Studios on the Coast whereby they acquire Station KFVD, one of the oldest radio stations on the Pacific slope now operated by the Culver City Broadcasting Company on a small wave length. Under the Pathe regime the station will use a wave length of 1,000 watts and will operate 24 hours daily under the new allotment of the Federal Radio Commission in Washington, D. C.

A new broadcasting station will be constructed at the Pathe Studios in Culver City and will be finished within a month, it is expected. It will be known as Pathe Station.

Md. Court of Appeals Will Pass on Sunday Movies

The Sunday Movie test came up before the Maryland Court of Appeals, at Annapolis, recently, with John Philip Hill and Paul Boyd Mules, acting as attorneys for the defendants. The State's right to prohibit the showing of motion pictures in Baltimore on Sunday is contested and the Court of Appeals has been asked to say definitely whether motion picture auditoriums were meant when the Legislative fathers of 1866 ruled against opera houses giving performances on Sundays. Attorneys for the defendants claim that the lower court erred when it ruled that a motion picture house was meant by the reading of opera house in the law.

Loew's, Inc., Declares Quarterly Dividend

The Board of Directors of Loew's Incorporated at a meeting held Tuesday, November 20, declared the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents and an extra dividend of $1.00 per share on the common stock of the company, payable December 31, 1928, to the stockholders on record at the close of business on December 13, 1928.

Kingston, N. Y. Votes in Favor of Sunday Shows

The voters of Kingston, New York, decided by a majority of 697 for movies on Sundays when the issue of the Sunday show was presented to them recently. Following the poll, the Walter Reade Circuit has announced that their Sunday programs will start at the Broadway and Kingston theatres on November 11.

Dog Films Discontinued by M-G-M

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 22.—The cycle of dog star pictures which sprang up from the success of the Rin-Tin-Tin series four years ago, has gradually flickered out. M-G-M is the latest producer to discontinue a dog series, finding production costs necessary for that type of feature are too high in comparison to possible gross from bookings. M-G-M recently made two dog starring pictures and it is understood that difficulty was encountered in securing proper stories, in addition to having production costs run into large figures for the calibre of picture turned out.

With M-G-M definitely out of the field with dog pictures, only Warner Brothers with Rin-Tin-Tin and FBO with Ranger remain. The Rin-Tin-Tin series seems to be well established for consistent business, while FBO is finding their dog series profitable on account of being enabled to keep production costs low. During the last two years, several independent producers launched production of dog star series for the state rights market, but all of them discontinued after making two or three pictures. Sam Bischoff, the last of the independents with dog series, finished the last of his series some months ago, and will not start a new group.

Producers and Distributors Extend Agreement With Unions

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 22.—The producer and distributor agreement with the five International unions affiliated with motion pictures (I. A. T. S. E., Musicians, Stage Hands, Electricians, and one other) which expires November 27th, has been extended for an additional three years; and the pact has been signed by executives of those organizations involved.

There were no changes in the agreement for the additional period when it was finally signed, the agreement remaining the same as it was for the former period.

International union executives are this week attending the A. F. of L. convention at New Orleans, but will shortly return to New York.

The exact status of the recently formed cameramen's union as far as wage scale and working conditions are concerned will be determined at conferences that will be held in New York in the near future. No date has been set for the cameramen's union hearing for wage scale and working conditions agreement, but this will probably take place in New York with a committee of the cameramen's union from here making the trip east to sit in on all conferences.

Internationalism Stressed at Giannini Dinner

Quality Will Give Any Picture Admittance to America, Emphasize Speakers Addressing Gathering

TUESDAY night last, at the A. M. P. A. banquet at the Biltmore Hotel, New York, Dr. A. H. Giannini was presented with the Sam Harris good-will trophy, awarded to him as being the one individual most deserving because of his work in promoting harmony between the motion picture industries of Britain and America.

Friendly internationalism was the topic discussed at the banquet, Messrs Giannini, Will Hays and others sounding it as the keynote of their speeches. The number of other addresses delivered ranged from an attack on the quotas and contingents of European countries and a defense of such protective measures to the unlimited possibilities of the new art of talking pictures and a commendation of the work of the A. M. P. A.

Responding to the honor bestowed upon him, Dr. Giannini declared that quality alone was necessary for a picture to find a market in America, no matter whence its source. Americans, he asserted, are international in their receptiveness to the arts.

Mr. Hays, acting as toastmaster, spoke in the same vein and declared that the American industry would not be fulfilling its responsibility to the public if it did not distribute quality films regardless of their origin.

A note not harmonious with the amity of the occasion was the charge brought against countries protecting home industry by means of quotas. During the course of his address Nathan Burkan, general counsel for United Artists, declared that America regarded such moves as deliberate attempts to stifle American trade.

Mr. Harris, editor of the "The Cinema" of London and donor of the cup, spoke in defense of England's quota restriction. He was vehemently opposed, he said, to the practice of sending all types of American films to England. Frequent visits by men both in the British and American industries would do much, he stated, to erase existing misunderstandings.

The talkie was viewed as a means to improve friendly relations between the two English speaking countries by J. E. Otterson, president of Electric Research Products.

Presenting George Harvey, president of the A. M. P. A., with an endorsement of the organization and its work from the "Bumpers," British ad men association, the visiting English delegates also tendered a gift to Edward L. Klein, chairman of the arrangements committee of the A. M. P. A.

Herbert Wilcox to Film Talkies in Hollywood

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 22.—As forerunner to what is considered a revolutionary step for conservative England, Herbert Wilcox, producer and director from that country, arrived in Hollywood this week for the purpose of making two talking pictures with a Hollywood cast, in a Hollywood studio in charge of a Hollywood director. The completed product also will be in competition with the usual Hollywood product made by American firms.

Marshall Neilan will direct the two stories. While none of the cast have been disclosed as yet, it is most probable that English actors, who have been in Hollywood for several years, will play the leading roles, in order to meet the quota requirements of Great Britain. Both productions will be made in the Metropolitan Studios for release through World-wide Pictures, which is headed by J. D. Williams.

Iowa Unit to Discuss Proposed Affiliations

Iowa exhibitors are to convene at Des Moines this month and one of the things that is to come up for interesting discussion is the question of the Iowa organization allying itself with the Allied States organization or with the national organization of the M. P. T. O. A. The report was given that E. P. Smith, president of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Iowa, had allied himself with the Allied States organization since he attended their conference at Kalamazoo. Many showmen of the state have expressed themselves as anxious to vote on the question. Mr. Smith, however, states that he nor the organization are in no way tied up with either side. The expectation is that the Iowa group will make an alliance one way or another at this next meeting. November 20 was the tentative date set by Mr. Smith some time ago.

This music tax, the new contract, and the Hudson Bill are also to come up for discussion.

Important Decision Handed Down by Tax Board

Money expended by a lessee for the reconstruction of a building destroyed by fire, which it occupied, may not be deducted in the computation of its net income for the year in which expended, but may be amortized, and an aliquot part thereof, less amounts recovered on fire insurance and salvage, may be deducted in each of the remaining years of the lease, it has been held by the United States Board of Tax Appeals, Washington, D. C., in passing on the case of the Southern Amusement Company, Inc., Danville, Va.

The board held, however, that the company was entitled to deduct the amount of loss sustained by it by reason of the demolition of a building previously acquired by it.

Treasury Dep't Rules on Film Assessment

So-called reversed negative films have been held by the Treasury Department, Washington, D. C., to be properly assessed for duty at the rate of two cents per linear foot as photographic film negatives imported for use in connection with moving picture exhibits, exposed but not developed, under paragraph 1453 of the present tariff act.

The case arose in the port of New York, where the collector advised the Treasury regarding the importation of these films, quoting a report of the appraiser at the port in which he expressed the opinion that a motor photographic film positive is dutiable at one cent per linear foot under paragraph 1453 even though made on negative stock.

Cinephone Short Shown on W. E. Equipment

INTERCHANGEABILITY, so far as equipment is concerned, is again established in the showing of "Steamboat Willie," a P. A. Powers Cinephone short reproduced on Western Electric equipment at the Colony Theatre in New York City. Cinephone records by both the sound-on-film and disc methods the subjects in this instance being recorded on film.

When this was called to the attention of Western Electric officials it was said that they had been too busy even to attend the showing and that they had more weighty problems to consider. The same reply was made when other showings on unlicensed equipment were called to their attention. They expressed the belief that the whole problem of interchangeability would adjust itself in the near future.

Letter to M-G-M Staff Urges Story Needs

ADMITTING the need for suitable screen material, Albert Lewyn, scenario editor at M-G-M Studios, broadcast an appeal to all writers working for that company, asking that they submit any original or novel story ideas, together with suggestions of books plays or stories that the company might utilize for star series productions.

M-G-M is at present lining up stories and productions for the 1929-30 season, and is in need of story material for about fifty film productions for the year. Approximately half of these will be adapted from original stories written by staff writers, with the remainder adapted from books and plays.

Lewyn's letter was sent to every member of the studio writing staff in the hope that a number of new and unusual ideas might be forthcoming for original screen stories. The request for lists of books and plays was made so that the writer might submit new slants on adaptations of material which the company had already passed up as unsuitable.

No mention was made in Lewyn's circular letter about sound or dialogue pictures, but inquiry revealed the fact that M-G-M is primarily interested in new and fresh ideas for pictures, regardless of Movietone possibilities. The policy of the producing end of M-G-M seems to be the securing of the best picture material possible, and then gauge whether individual stories will lend themselves to dialogue or sound before production is started.

License Fee Curbs Interchangeability

Problem Hinges Upon Payment of Cash by Equipment Producers

the fact that the problem of interchangeability hinged on the music angle and that story is now completely verified.

It is argued both by Mr. Mills and the electrical companies that the interchangeability problem is one that will take care of itself within a comparatively short time. Nothing has yet been done to interfere with any houses that are now reproducing copyrighted music on equipment not licensed. Mr. Mills says he has been too busy to interfere for the present. He has been apprised of the fact that a house has been so operating here and there but declared that the matter would regulate itself shortly.

A Western Electric Company executive explained that his company had the interest of its licensees at heart and it did not want to interfere with profits to be derived from the sales of pictures provided the reproducing equipment was satisfactory to the picture producer and Western Electric. If such permission is granted by the producer and Western Electric it still would be necessary, according to Mr. Mills, to also get permission from him as agent to reproduce the copyrighted music.

Apparently in the Dark

Just how generally these conditions are known to producers of the lower priced equipment for theatres is problematical. Some of them are apparently proceeding on the assumption that their devices may be used in theatres regardless of the payment of the license fee.

It seems to be generally established now, however, that as a sure means of securing service from film companies it will be necessary for the exhibitor to have a licensed device if he is to reproduce copyrighted music in his theatre over mechanical equipment.

Meantime, distributors of motion picture are in a quandary as to the service they should render theatres not having licensed equipment. The plan seems generally to be to serve the theatres with synchronized film provided the reproducing equipment is satisfactory. That takes care of a wider distribution of film for them and with comparatively few theatres equipped with any device they are anxious to dispose of their product where they can. It seems likely that this condition will obtain until such time as enough theatres are equipped to make a real issue of it. Then doubtless some action will be taken, it is said, to force the issue with the unlicensed equipment concerns.

A movement is being advocated in New

804 Theatres Announced as Equipped With Western Electric Device

ACCORDING to reports received by Western Electric Company up to November 10th, 804 theatres had Western Electric equipment installed on that date. Work has been progressing rapidly on installations during the past few months. During the month of October alone, according to the reports, there were 156 installations of equipment for either sound-on-disc or sound-on-film productions, or both.

In addition to those installations, 42 theatres which already had some form of Western Electric equipment had additional equipment installed, in the majority of cases, film attachments having been added to the sound-on-disc equipment. Non-synchronous equipment was also installed in 57 theatres during October.

Denies Vitaphone Jr. Story

W. E. Quigley, in charge at the Vitaphone offices, expressed himself as being opposed to interchangeability except on devices acceptable to his company and suggested that these devices should be demonstrated not in a projection room, but in a theatre, which would provide a more complete test.

It was denied by Mr. Quigley that there was any contemplation of a cheaper Vitaphone device to be installed in theatres, but the rumor at the same time persists that in a short time there will be a Vitaphone, Jr., device that will be considerably cheaper than the equipment now being installed. The story being told is that the Martin Parry concern formerly in the manufacture of automobile bodies and later for the manufacture of radiators will be taken over as the nucleus for the manufacture of the Vitaphone, Jr., equipment.

Pathe Signs Goulding for Sound Division

Edmund Goulding, writer and director, has been signed by Pathe as an important member of the sound division. Goulding's first assignment has not been announced, but it is understood that he will assume his duties with Pathe immediately.

Recording of Photophone productions will be speeded up with the arrival of Goulding. Already, the first Pathe all-dialogue feature, "The Missing Man," is in production and talking sequences are being recorded for "Geraldine," "The Leather-neck" and other features on the current season's program.

Vilma Banky Will Make All-Talkie Film

Vilma Banky will be heard throughout an all-talking picture in her next film for Samuel Goldwyn, following "The Awakening." Miss Banky's new picture will be directed by Alfred Santell, who plans to film location scenes in New York during the next two weeks. Robert Montgomery, stage player, will act opposite Miss Banky. It will be his motion picture debut.

Mr. Santell said that separate silent and talking versions of the new Banky picture will be made. United Artists will distribute the film.

Ball Eastward Bound on Sound Equipment Mission

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, November 22.—J. A. Ball, head of the newly formed Technical Bureau of the Producers Association, is enroute East to visit various manufacturers of studio and production equipment. Ball will explain to the manufacturers the various requirements of producers for improved apparatus, and will in return gain an insight into details of research pertaining to pictures and production being conducted by the manufacturers.

Bell Plans Feature Production Each Month at Paramount Studio

MONTA BELL, supervisor of sound production at the Paramount, Long Island studios, is not a believer in dialogue pictures. He very frankly says he does not see any future for them in the picture industry. He advocates the sound picture, but not the dialogue picture. At the same time Mr. Bell is doing a splendid job over on Long Island and he has big plans for the future.

Despite the fact that he had no experience with dialogue before assuming his task on the first of September, he has experimented and overcome many obstacles to complete the first dialogue picture produced in the East. He finished work on "The Letter" last week with Jeanne Eagles in the starring role and he completed the task in three days under the allotment of time for the shooting of the feature. It required just twenty-seven days.

There were rumors to the effect that Paramount was having considerable difficulty with their recording system over on Long Island. There was truth in the rumors during the early days of the shooting. There were three sound experts on hand and a number of picture experts, but as Mr. Bell explains, the sound experts know nothing of making motion pictures and the picture experts know nothing of sound. It took them some few days to get properly organized, but once they hit their stride things progressed in great shape.

"We had the Paramount sales staff over here last week," said Mr. Bell, "and we showed them some of the early shots we made in the studio. Then we showed them some of the rushes on 'The Letter' and you'd really be surprised at the improvement in those few weeks.

"Once we got fairly started we went along in great shape. We had allowed five weeks for shooting 'The Letter' but we finished it in just twenty-seven shooting days. We had our difficulties at first, but I think we have things so well regulated now that in the future we will be shooting sound pictures in just about two or three more days than it would take to shoot silent films. At least we are basing our future production schedule on that basis. And we have quite an extensive schedule provided between now and the first of next July.

"We started shooting here on the first of September without knowing what it was all about. Up to the end of last week we had concluded 'The Letter', a full length feature, and seven short subjects. On the first of December we will start shooting 'The Hole in the Wall'. We will finish that picture within the month of December and during the same month we will make from twelve to fifteen short subjects. We could not accomplish this, of course, on one recording apparatus, but we will have a second installed by the end of next week. That will be our monthly schedule up to the first of July. We hope to complete a feature a month and at least twelve short subjects.

"We have found that the best method of recording the feature picture is on film, where we get the best results from dramatic action and in cutting from long and medium shots to closeups. The disc system is the best for the short subjects where the action is much the same throughout and the printing is just about half what it is for the film.

"The shooting of these shorts does not present much of a problem and we will make rapid progress with them. Eddie Cantor came over to the studio with his numbers prepared and we shot the whole thing in one day. Where we have an act in which there are four or five people we have them over for four or five days of rehearsal and then shoot the whole thing in a day.

"We had only one director for 'The Letter', but I intend to have two for 'The Hole in the Wall'. I will have a stage director and a picture director, with the picture director reigning supreme and entirely responsible for the picture. The sound experts will, of course, remain with us. Their relative importance to the picture is about the same as that of a cameraman. They know best how to get recording results as the cameraman knows best how to get photographic results. Our organization is working entirely satisfactorily."

Additional Talent for Vitaphone Acts

Warner Bros. announce the signing of additional well known talent to appear in Vitaphone acts. Trixie Friganza is now at the Warner Studios preparing for her first Vitaphone appearance which will be called "My Bag O' Trix."

Miss Juliet, called the "One Girl Revue," will make her Vitaphone debut in an act of impersonations titled, "Not for Me." Wilbur Mack and Gertrude Purdy, prominent on the variety stage will be seen and heard in "An Everyday Occurrence."

Another pair of musical comedy and variety stars who will be heard for the first time on Vitaphone are Robert Emmett Keane and Claire Whitney. Their playlet is titled, "Gossip."

Sign O. P. Heggie to Star in Paramount Talkie

Hollywood, Nov. 14.—O. P. Heggie, star of several Broadway stage productions, is going to the West Coast to play the starred role in a Paramount all-talkie picture entitled "Genius," an original by William Robson adapted with dialogue by Samuel Ornitz. Edwin Knopf, stage director, recently signed by Paramount probably will direct "Genius."

Vitaphone Due in Paris in January

Vitaphone's domain will be extended in January to the continent of Europe. Warner Bros. will introduce it in Paris shortly after the first of the year. The Aubert Palace is the theatre chosen and the first attraction will be Al Jolson in "The Jazz Singer" which is scheduled for an indefinite run.

Lionel Atwill to Make "The Knife" for Fox

Lionel Atwill, through his personal manager, Leo Morrison, has contracted with Fox Movietone to do a two-reel talking motion picture version of "The Knife," by Henry Arthur Jones, a dramatic play which won much favor fifteen years ago. Violet Heming, Lester Vail and Henry Carvill will support Mr. Atwill in this picture.

Cantor to Make Feature Talkie for Paramount

Eddie Cantor is to make a talking feature for Paramount titled, "The Birth of the Blues." This decision came as the result of a short-subject Cantor recently made for the same company titled, "That Party in Person." It is said that George Gershwin music will be used in the new talker.

Universal Making Feature Length Film in Three Languages

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 22.—Universal has gone a step further in solving the problem of the foreign market in regard to "talkies" by being the first company to make a feature length production in three languages, spoken by the leads in the American production. As a result, the same stunt will be applied to other feature length pictures made on the lot.

"Eric The Great" has been dialogued in French, German and English, the languages actually being spoken by Conrad Veidt, Mary Philbin and Leslie Fenton. Veidt was a fortunate choice, being thoroughly familiar with all three tongues. Miss Philbin knew a conversational German and Fenton a smattering of French.

It is pointed out that a knowledge of a foreign language isn't necessarily vital to synchronization in that tongue. While familiarity with it aids in the rendition of lines, an artist can be taught the lines and told their meaning for effective delivery.

Warners have already made a short subject featuring Ann Codee and Frank Orth in the same languages. Universal has several other features in which the foreign expressions are adaptable and will apply the same measures to them.

Cumberland Strand System Revealed

Home Made Equipment Costing $2,000 Gives Entire Satisfaction

THE Strand Theatre at Cumberland, Maryland, has come in for a deal of discussion these days when the lending question is that of interchangeability regarding the reproduction of sound pictures. This house for many weeks past has been playing sound and dialogue films on home made equipment reproducing the product of Western Electric Company licensees, as yet without any interruption from the Western Electric Company. At the same time it has been serviced with product by exchanges that hold Western Electric licenses.

That the equipment of the Strand, after considerable experimenting, is now working to the complete satisfaction of the proprietors of the house and their patrons, is the statement of Robert Slote, general manager, who has forwarded to MOTION PICTURE NEWS a description of the system, which he says was built and installed for less than $2,000.

This description by Mr. Slote is as follows:

"After an exhaustive study of the principles of synchronizing music, sound and dialogue with motion pictures and arriving at the solution of proper gearing of the speed of a record with film, we connected a turntable (16 inch) to each of our Powers projectors—this connection was made direct to the driving shaft which we ran at a speed of 90 revolutions to the minute, using a speed indicator to keep the correct speed—this shaft was connected by a universal joint so that it would run absolutely true and would not place any strain on the projector shaft. We connected the shaft to a pair of gears with the ratio of 90 to 33 1/3, the 33 1/3 gear driving a shaft connected to the turntable, which was naturally driven at a speed of 33 1/3 revolutions per minute.

"We used standard record dynamic pick-ups to relay the recorded music into an input amplifying panel. The sound was then relayed into a push-pull output ampli-

Ziegfeld Will Produce "Follies" as Super-Feature on Screen

FLORENZ ZIEGFELD is to reproduce his new "Follies" as a sound picture and because of that he is going to speed up production on the stage version. The Fox company has already announced a Fox Follies as a screen feature and Ziegfeld will endeavor to beat them to it.

The Ziegfeld "Follies" have been a national amusement institution for the past twenty-one years and the producer feels that he has a prior right to the title even for screen purposes. As soon as his new "Follies" are produced he will have the entire show done as a sound and shadow superfeature picture.

The new "Follies" are not due for production on the musical comedy stage until late Winter or early Spring, but no time will be lost thereafter in producing them on the screen.

fier of two stages. (This amplifying system is large enough to fill a theatre of about 2500 to 3000 seats.)

"The sound was then conveyed to the stage by regular electric wiring to four dynamic speakers, which are matched in impedance with the amplifying system.

"The greatest trouble we encountered was in the difference of the regular Victor records and records from the exchanges. Naturally during our experimenting stages we used Victor records for tests. These records were absolutely perfect in tonal qualities. But after running a few of the exchange records we found that they were heavily scored. We had to change our impedance and do some more experimenting while running, to overcome flat notes, distortion on bass, etc. We gradually overcame this—in fact dialogue and singing qualities are now splendid—we are now working on overcoming the musical distortion.

"In connection with our outfit we have installed a Microphone for announcements of various sorts also installed a non synchronous system for cueing non sounded pictures."

The Strand Theatre is a modern 1500 seat house, operated and owned by a local corporation. It was constructed in 1920 by the George A. Fuller Construction Company and is of fireproof construction. It ranks very favorably with the best theatres in the state of Maryland and is very rarely surpassed by any theatre in a city of its size.

For the past seven years the Strand has been under the management of Robert Slote who received his theatre training under Harry M. Crandall, of Washington, D. C.

Darmour Tells Plans for Using Sound With Comedies

LARRY DARMOUR, producer of four series of two-reel comedies for F B O distribution, is returning to the West Coast this week with papers licensing him to use the RCA Photophone system of recording sound on comedy films. Darmour was in New York for only a comparatively brief stay and concluded arrangements with RCA covering sound production and details connected with the distribution of the product by F B O.

Dialogue and sound effects will be added to the releases in all four series which the producer is making for F B O. Darmour said that he expected to have the RCA equipment installed and ready for use about the first of the year. He will produce a sound and a silent version of each picture.

He plans to make the sound version of the comedies a blend of the silent and the new technique, making each comedy about 75 per cent in straight silent form with 25 per cent using dialogue and effects. The musical synchronizations will be added to the film after completion of the camera work.

This method, Darmour contends, is the one which will enable the producer to preserve the action, which is the real meat of screen comedy, while adding the dramatic virtues of the new sound invention to pictures of this type. The necessity for a set camera speed in recording vision and sound with the synchronizing device he says, is a limitation which the picture producer must get around if he would avoid sacrifice of the one greatest element of power in motion pictures, that being the movement and scope of the scene which the play develops.

In comedy production great reliance always has been placed upon varying camera speeds to produce the effects which score on the screen. And Darmour believes that the secret of success with the new vehicle lies along the line of adapting sound to pictures, rather than pictures to sound. Borrowing vaudeville methods and vaudeville talent from the variety stage, he says will not prove successful after the novelty of sound has passed off. Recently the acts which have been screened with sound have succeeded because the sound picture itself was the main attraction and that anything demonstrating that talking pictures actually would talk is bound to produce a favorable reaction. Later on it will be different, he says.

Sound News Reels Hit Snag in Canada

SOUND picture presentation has encountered a snag in Canada in connection with the showing of news reels. The Ontario Government and various other Provinces require a stated percentage of Canadian or British Empire scenes in all news weeklies. As sound pictures are not yet being produced in Canada, all Canadian news views are being screened in silent form at theatres where complete sound programs are offered. The Canadian "shots" are the only silent portion of such programs. Imitation has been made, however, that at least one Canadian company is undertaking to produce sound pictures in the Dominion.

Another feature to the new situation is that film releases usually printed in Canada cannot now be handled in sound form because there are no facilities in the country, as yet, for the making of sound prints.

"Narrow-Casting" Device Picks Up Music from Mirror Target

JOHAN BELLAMY TAYLOR, consulting engineer of the General Electric Company and inventor of the photophone, last week gave a demonstration of the device before 175 members of the Cleveland section of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers at Hotel Statler in Cleveland. A beam of light was sent about the room until it reached a mirror target and broke into music.

Taylor said that he called this demonstration "narrow-casting" in contrast to radio broadcasting, and explained that the photophone was an adaptation of the theory set forth by Alexander Graham Bell 50 years ago, utilizing the perfected photo-electric tube, electric pick-up and the newly developed amplifiers and sound reproducers. Plans are now under way, Taylor stated, for using photophone as a means of communication between points where radio or wire communication is impossible or impractical.

'U' Maps $5,000,000 Program of Feature Sound Films

CARL LAEMMLE, president of Universal, made a hurried trip to the coast last week and with Universal executives mapped a program of sound pictures which it is announced by the company will cost over $5,000,000. A number of the productions will be made with Movietone negatives only, though the majority of them will be carried in Universal exchanges with two negatives, one with sound and one without.

Outside of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," "Show Boat," "The Man Who Laughs," "The Last Warning," "Man, Woman and Wife" and "The Charlatan," all other Universal sound pictures will have dialogue sequences or be 100 per cent talking pictures. "Broadway" will be an all-talking picture. Glenn Tryon will play the "hoofer." Paul Porcasi and Thomas Jackson have been signed for the roles they played in the original "Broadway" production. It is being directed by Dr. Paul Fejos and supervised by Carl Laemmle, Jr.

"The Minstrel Man," starring Eddie Leonard under the direction of Harry Pollard, and "King of Jazz" starring Paul Whiteman, "The Shannons of Broadway" starring Mr. and Mrs. James Gleason, "The Bargain in the Kremlin" starring Joseph Schildkraut, "The Climax" with Jean Hersholt, the Pat Rooney productions by Edgar Allan Woolf, "Flaming Daughters," "The Luxury Husband," "The Braggart," Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" with Tom Terris will be 100 per cent talking.

Dialogue will also be introduced into the following productions, and some of them as they develop may be made full 100 per cent talking: "Erik the Great" with Conrad Veidt and Mary Philbin, "Give and Take" with George Sidney and Jean Hersholt, "The Shakedown" with James Murray and Barbara Kent, "The Cohens and Kellys in Atlantic City" with George Sidney, Vera Gordon, Kate Price and Mack Swain, "Port of Dreams" with Mary Philbin, Reginald Denny in "His Lucky Day," "Red Hot Speed" and "Clear the Decks," Glenn Tryon in "It Can Be Done," Laura La Plante in "The Haunted Lady," "That Blonde" and "Dangerous Dimples," and "The Girl on the Barge" with Jean Hersholt, Sally O'Neil and Malcolm McGregor.

Musical Comedy Prologue For "Annapolis"

As a Photophone prologue to "Annapolis," Pathe has produced a musical comedy presentation reel at the Sound Studio in New York with the McCarthy Sisters, formerly of George White's "Scandals," heading the array of talent which includes the Hastings Twins, of the "Scandals," Morton and Mayo, Nell Jewell, Dolores Weekes, six specialty tap dancers and a Francis Weldon troupe of twenty-four dancing girls.

Several specially written musical numbers enliven this prologue reel. "My Annapolis (And You)" theme song of the feature is used for the tap and ensemble dance numbers.

Roach Preparing Stages for Sound Production

Elmer R. Raguse, an expert from the recording laboratories of the Victor Talking Machine Co., in Camden, N. J., arrived last week to supervise the preparation of the stages at the Hal Roach Studios for the immediate installation of Western Electric talking equipment, following the consummation of Hal Roach's affiliation with the Victor concern in the talking picture field.

No sound stages are to be erected, but those already in operation on the lot will be sound-proofed. The Victor Talking Machine Company's recording engineer, W. W. Clark, will arrive soon to superintend the actual installation of the delicate recording equipment, by the Electrical Research Products, Inc. It is expected that the installation will be complete and ready for actual production before the first of the year.

Skirboll Approves Sound Effect Pictures

W. N. Skirboll, Columbia franchise holder, and prominent theatre owner, states it as his opinion that the sound effect picture is the one that will settle down and become standard entertainment in the motion picture theatres. While the talking picture is getting the most money right now, Skirboll thinks that its popularity is short lived. He bases this prediction on the fact that the talking picture, in his opinion, has not gone ahead in quality as it should have done in order to insure its lasting success.

Skirboll also has great faith in the synchronized picture, for it brings the big orchestra overtures and scores to every theatre. Sound effects, Skirboll stated, add to the excitement of the picture, to its reality, and speeds up its action.

Jessel Starts "Lucky Boy" for Tiffany-Stahl

Talking and singing sequences for the Tiffany-Stahl production "Lucky Boy," starring George Jessel, were started on Thursday, November 16th, in New York at the RCA Studios under the personal supervision of Rudolph Flothow, who is in full charge of Tiffany-Stahl synchronization.

This is to be Jessel's first singing and talking picture, with scenes taken in and around New York City. Margaret Quimby has been brought on from Los Angeles to New York to play opposite Jessel. She was formerly a George White Scandals' girl.

Movietone Synchronization For Oswald Cartoons

The advance of synchronization and the injection of sound effects into motion pictures has spread now to the field of the animated cartoon. The Winkler Productions, headed by Charles Mintz, decided last week to produce the Oswald cartoons with full sound and music effects.

The exact number of sound Oswalds to be made has not been determined. The first will be entitled "Oswald's Ragtime Band" and will be made both as a sound and silent picture. Universal is releasing the series.

Schertzinger in N. Y. to Produce Talkie

Victor Schertzinger, director, arrived in New York this week to assume control over a motion picture unit that will shortly begin production upon a new Paramount talkie at the Astoria studio, Richard Dix to star. The unit is expected to swing into work about December 15.

De Forest-Movietone Suit Postponed

THE De Forest Phonofilm suit against the Fox-Case Corporation, which has been pending for some time, will probably not get a hearing in the Federal Court in New York until February, owing to the crowded condition of the court calendar. It is charged in the suit that Movietone is an infringement on patents held by De Forest.

While the New York suit is pending action has been filed in Montreal to restrain the showing of Movietone at the Palace Theatre there. It was announced a short time ago that the New York suit would probably be up for consideration before the first of the year.

Warner Studio Producing 7 Feature Productions

The Warner Studio on the coast is at work on seven productions at the present time. The most important of the septet is "The Desert Song," which Roy Del Ruth is directing.

Director Archie Mayo is making "She Knew Men," while "Lloyd Bacon is expected back from location to finish scenes for "No Defense" in the studio. "Madonna of Avenue A," which Michael Curtiz is directing, is nearing completion while the three features, "Fancy Baggage," "Frozen River" and "Kid Gloves," are also near the finish mark. Curtiz was lately chosen to direct Miss Costello again in "Alimony Annie." Vitaphone is being used extensively in all of these productions.

Al Jolson arrived on the coast where he will talk over plans with J. L. Warner for his next Vitaphone vehicle.

August Film Exports Low; Increase in Negatives

Export trade in motion picture films continues at a fairly low level, August shipments totaling 21,991,311 feet valued at $726,036, compared with 27,620,453 feet valued at $772,924 in July, according to figures just compiled by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce in Washington, D. C.

The only class of films to show an increase in exports in August was negatives, of which 1,040,509 feet valued at $188,622 were shipped, compared with 744,936 feet valued at $144,162 the preceding month. Exports of positives dropped from 18,700,200 feet valued at $44,168 in July to 16,541,648 feet valued at $433,301 in August, and exports of raw stock dropped from 8,175,317 feet valued at $184,594 to 4,409,154 feet valued at $104,113.

The only markets taking more than 1,000,000 feet of positive film in August were Australia, 2,150,000; Argentina, 1,687,000, and Brazil, 1,337,000.

Pathe Sound News Issues Vestris Wreck Extra with Interview

PATHE SOUND NEWS issued a special talking extra last week following the wreck of the Vestris. It took the form of an interview with Harry Faye, one of the last survivors to leave the ill-fated ship. The interview was secured shortly after the arrival of one of the rescue ships and the Pathe Sound News Staff worked all Thursday night in getting out prints which were shown at Broadway houses at the first show Friday.

Faye is a pugilist who was on his way to South America to box Louis Firpo. In his interview he gave a recital of last minute events during the sea tragedy and as he talked cut-backs were made showing actual scenes of the wreck.

Simultaneously with the delivery of prints to Broadway houses, additional prints were dispatched to Pathe Sound News customers throughout the country.

United Artists Place 17 Sound Pictures on Market

UNITED ARTISTS salesmen have been instructed by Al Lichtman to place on the market all seventeen of the company's features, more than 50 per cent of which will have talking sequences. The pictures are made in various styles. There are two all-talking films, seven part talkies and eight synchronized with music and sound effects.

Eight of these seventeen films are already made and the other nine are in various stages of production, five of them being almost completed. In these pictures will be heard the voices of Mary Pickford, Gloria Swanson, Douglas Fairbanks, Ronald Colman, Lupe Velez and others. Mr. Lichtman said that because many theatres will not be wired within the next year United Artists will make each picture in separate sound and silent versions.

The two all-talkie pictures to be offered by United Artists are Mary Pickford's "Coquette," and "Nightstick," a Roland West production of the stage play.

The seven part-talkies now being sold are: Gloria Swanson, speaking and singing in "Queen Kelly," direction of Erich Von Stroheim; Charlie Chaplin in "City Lights," with dialogue; Douglas Fairbanks, speaking in "The Iron Mask," direction of Allan Dwan; Ronald Colman, speaking in "The Rescue," direction of Herbert Brenon; Lupe Velez and others speaking and singing in "Masquerade," D. W. Griffith production with 65 per cent of the film in dialogue; "Lummox," Herbert Brenon's production, dialogue sequences; "She Goes to War," Henry King's production.

The eight synchronized films are: Norma Talmadge in "The Woman Disputed," Dolores del Rio in "Revenge," direction of Edwin Carewe; Vilma Banky in "The Awakening," direction Victor Fleming; John Barrymore in "King of the Mountains," direction Ernst Lubitsch; "Three Passions," Rex Ingram production; "Tempest," John Barrymore the star and Sam Taylor the director; "Two Lovers," Ronald Colman and Vilma Banky co-starred under direction of Fred Niblo; "The Battles of the Sexes," D. W. Griffith production.

Cohn Off for Coast to Start Columbia Sound Stages

HARRY COHN, vice-president of Columbia Pictures in charge did not linger long in New York following his month's sojourn in Europe departed almost immediately for the coast to start construction of the two sound stages to take care of the company's synchronized and dialogue productions. Preparations have been going on during his absence and all preliminary steps and technical plans have been completed for the immediate erection of these stages.

Columbia has not yet announced its entire sound program for the season but it has definitely decided that it will make a silent version of every sound picture produced.

In discussing plans, Joe Brandt, president of Columbia, said:

"Columbia is still very decidedly committed to the production of a strong program of silent pictures, and for a very good reason. With only 1,500 houses out of 22,000 wired to date, the ratio is still very much in favor of silent picture. The silent houses, for some time to come, will constitute our largest market.

"In order to give the owners of both types of houses only the best, we have decided to make two versions of every picture we produce with sound. We will not take a silent picture and cut out half a dozen sequences and replace them with so much conversation. Instead, we will make one version in the technique suited for dialogue and the other in the best manner we know how as a silent picture. This undoubtedly will add materially to our production costs, but we feel that it is warranted, as only in this way will we be enabled to give the exhibitor playing Columbia's product the best in both sound and silent pictures."

First-Hand Information from News Correspondents

Three Broadway Shows Rate Hold-Over

Capitol, Roxy and Strand Offerings Do Big Business

NEW YORK CITY.—Business held up in good shape along Broadway last week, and popularity of several attractions is attested to by the fact that three out of four of the larger houses along the Street held pictures for a second week's stand. Houses having the hold-overs were the Roxy, Strand and Capitol.

The only weak spot along the row seemed to be at the Paramount, and this house, after setting a most consistent pace ever since it opened, has been up and down for several weeks. True, pictures here have also been on the up and down, and there has been considerable shift of those entertainment foremen known in the trade as masters of ceremonies. Paul Ash, the Chicago importation, has apparently been the best "getter" of any of them. After a return date in Chicago, to see his "folks" around the Loop, he is to be shifted to the new Brooklyn Paramount, which opens at the end of this week. Eddie Peabody, latest entertainer at the New York house, is to be replaced by Frankie Fay at the latter's weekly picture change.

That they still like their stories of back-stage life was well demonstrated at the Capitol, where "Show People" (M-G-M) gave this house a week of excellent business. Enough comedy in this one to get plenty of laughs. In addition another good stage show was in evidence. The picture was held.

Every time one of the Fox specials is booked into the Roxy the big house gets back on its feet in great shape, so pictures of this calibre would seem to be the proper prescription for this 6,000 seater. It has been demonstrated often enough that mediocre pictures cannot get by here even with an elaborate stage show. Fox's "Red Dance," with Farrell and Del Rio, was the featured picture, and this, too, was held for another week on account of a satisfactory volume of business.

The other hold-over in the larger houses was "The Terror" at the Strand. The Strand engagement followed two-a-day showings for several weeks at Warner's a short while back. Strand audiences, trained to talkies, liked this one and the good business justified holding for another week.

The Paramount had a Menjou picture, "His Private Life" (Par) last week to the already-stated ordinary business. Nothing wrong with Menjou, so reports go, but many think this star should get something new in the way of roles.

The Rialto with "Wings," still goes along at a fairly satisfactory pace, and in its three or four weeks at the Rialto has done well enough for a picture that ran a year and three months at top prices. The Norma Talmadge picture, "Woman Disputed" (U. A.), at the Rivoli is going at a nice pace.

It has been confirmed that Universal will keep the Colony on a sound picture basis, if this means proves to be the necessary tonic for this tough spot on the Street. A story went the rounds that the house was to go back to B. S. Moss, but it now appears that this was rumor. "The Gooby Kiss" (F. N.) did not do so much last week, but FBO's "Gang War," in the current week, is breaking house records, according to Harry Reichenbach. Benny Rubin will replace Ben Bernie on the stage.

Paramount's first all-talking offering, "Interference," made its New York debut at the Criterion, and advance reports indicate that this one is in for a run. Critics have acclaimed it as a forward step as far as the talkies are concerned. Business is at capacity mark so far.

"Alias Jimmy Valentine" (M-G-M) followed "White Shadows" at the Astor, and this one also has registered to an extent that indicates it will make a comfortable run. The Gaiety, with Fox's "Four Devils," had another fairly good week.

Good reports have been received on Warner's new Vitaphone talkie "On Trial," now at Warner's. A little too early to predict just how long it will stay, but indications are that it will make good.

The Winter Garden is still going top speed with "The Singing Fool," and having no trouble making the pace. Every one who sees this reports that it is one of the greatest money pictures ever made. Tiffany-Stahl's "Marriage by Contract" is doing well at the Embassy. One of the supporting talking shorts, "The Brox Sisters," was taken off the bill for excellent reasons. It was razzed plenty on the opening night. A Marion Harris number was substituted.

Baltimore Normal; "Varsity", "Fool", "White Shadows" Up; "Revenge" Off

BALTIMORE.—Although the week beginning Monday, November 12, was one of the warmest for this time of the year that this city has experienced for many seasons, the days were clear and business at the first run houses proceeded in a normal way.

"Varsity," the Paramount talker, was the feature at Loew's Century with the Loew-Public stage show "Step On It," headed by Ted Claire and syncopators. Although the audience laughed at some of the talking parts in the film supposed to be sad, they enjoyed the story hugely and the humor of it tickled them pink. It played to packed houses all week.

During the sixth week of the engagement of "The Singing Fool" at Warner's Metropolitan, with Al Jolson singing and talking, people again stood up during the entire week.

"Mother Knows Best," starring Madge Bellamy, offered as a sound and talker at the Rivoli, did good business during its second week.

"Revenge," starring Dolores Del Rio, offered as a sound picture at Loew's Stanley, did not prove a hit with the public and it was generally conceded that the story was weak. Business was only fair.

"White Shadows in the South Seas" moved into Loew's Valencia from Loew's Stanley at the same prices prevailing and business there on this excellent picture was very good.

While "The Melody of Love," co-starring Mildred Harris and Walter Pidgeon, was an excellently done all-talker, the patronage at the New Theatre was only fairly good for the week.

The Sovkino production, "The Marriage of the Bear," offered at the Little Theatre by the Motion Picture Guild, did a very good business throughout the week at that little 250 seater.

At the Keith-Albee Hippodrome business picked up considerably with "Sinners' Parade," co-starring Dorothy Revier and Victor Varconi. Five acts of Keith-Albee vaudeville were offered also.

At the Keith-Albee New Garden "Hot Heels," co-starring Patsy Ruth Miller and Glenn Tryon, was the featured film attraction. Business was good for the week.

Albany and Troy Have Satisfactory Week; "Wings" and "Fool" Vie for Honors

ALBANY.—Al Jolson in "The Singing Fool," running for the second week at the Mark Ritz in Albany, continued to pull the crowds last week, playing to standing room night after night, despite counter attractions such as "Wings" at the Mark Strand and "Excess Baggage" at the Leland. "The Singing Fool" will not be held over, however, for another week. Weather was of the sort that proved good for the theatres, although one or two days were rather warm and probably accounted for some falling off in business.

"Wings" played to exceptionally good houses at the Mark Strand, despite the fact that it had been road-shown at higher prices several weeks ago at the Capitol.

The Leland reported satisfactory business with "Excess Baggage" and the same held true with the Clinton Square Theatre in its program of first run double features that last week included the pictures, "Flying Romeo" and "Outcast Souls."

The Capitol in Albany offered three days of Bert Lytell in a new play that drew well.

"The Terror," an all talking picture, panned out satisfactory for the Troy Theatre last week, while the Lincoln enjoyed excellent business with "The Red Dance."

Proctor's Troy Theatre used "The Night Watch" for the first part of the week, and then as an added attraction pulled good business by showing a picture taken in Troy ten years ago when the soldiers of that city left for the war, their return and their reception.

During the last of the week the theatre used "Tenth Avenue" as the picture contribution to a combined bill of entertainment consisting of pictures and vaudeville. The picture was heavily advertised and did much to fill the house.

Clevelanders Develop Downtown Habit

Neighborhood Houses Accordingly Suffer; "Fool" Continues Big

CLEVELAND.—All alibis to the contrary, the public goes to picture theatres to see pictures. They go in droves to see the pictures they want very much to see. They drop in casually to see the pictures that happen to interest them as they pass by the theatre. This was once again clearly demonstrated here last week. Crowds jammed the Stillman all day and all evening to see "The Singing Fool." Neither rain, shine, storm or football conspired to keep anyone away from the Stillman. In order to get into the house with any slight possibility of securing a seat, patrons attended the 5 o'clock performance and took dinner downtown. "The Singing Fool" is way ahead of anything that has previously played at the Stillman. It is now going into its third week.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin," presented at the Hippodrome, is another picture that defied all alibis and played to very big business all week. The huge auditorium was filled all the time, and patrons either had to stand in the foyer or take upstairs seats.

"Revenge," the film version of Bercovici's well known story "The Lion Tamer's Daughter," did consistently good business at the Alben.

"The Woman from Moscow," moderately interesting melodrama of Russia, did fairly well at the State. Favorable comment was made on the staging of this picture.

"Varsity," with Van and Schenck as the vaudeville headliners, cleaned up at the Palace last week. Business was capacity both afternoon and evening, but it's doubtful whether "Varsity" was the reason for this.

"Gang War," an underworld picture, proved entertaining to patrons at Keith's East 105th St. the first half of the week, and business was decidedly good. "Do Your Duty," a good Charlie Murray comedy, also made a good showing the last half of the week.

"The Home Towners," playing a second downtown engagement at the Cameo, was just moderately successful. For some unaccountable reason, this picture, which has gone over so big in other spots, has not made a great stir in Cleveland.

"The Docks of New York" and "The Crash" divided honors about equally at the Park, where both these pictures played their first subsequent run engagements. Both pictures had done well downtown, and had the support of large attendance last week at the Park.

Neighborhood houses report that business is way off average. Even the big pictures fail to bring in a good attendance. Cleveland fans seem to have developed the downtown habit, and the neighborhood houses are suffering neglect.

Big Portland Bills During Armistice Week

Portland, Ore.—For Armistice Week attendance records were equalled or greatly exceeded at all houses, and each manager seemed to try and outdo the other in offering stellar entertainment on both stage and screen, with military music predominating.

Almost a double bill at each performance at The Portland played to exceptionally good music. On the screen "Beggars of Life" brought Wallace Beery but was disappointing.

"Show People," at the Broadway, turned back the clock to the good old days and pleased capacity business. Max Bradfield and his musical revelers put over the usual collection of novelty numbers.

Al Jolson in "The Singing Fool" at Music Box was held over for another week, breaking all house records and has now been witnessed by upwards of 150,000. In competition with himself Jolson returned to The Blue Mouse in "The Singing Fool," which looks like a three-week engagement to capacity houses, and necessitated giving extra performances.

An outstanding bill at Pantages headed by Art Gilham, whispering pianist of record fame, brought daily capacity business. On the screen "The Stool Pigeon" registered only fairly well.

The big surprise of the week was the return of "Wings" as a second run at the suburban Hollywood theatre. Extra performances were run but waiting lines were the rule every day, with peak of $2,300 gross for Armistice day. Will doubtless be continued for second week.

A considerable increase in patronage greeted Dolores Del Rio in "Revenge" for a second week at United Artists. Movietone acts with synchronized comedy supplemented main attraction. The popular "Four Sons" played a return engagement at Rivoli theatre, to exceptionally good attendance.

Attendance at Peoples theatre shows increase past few weeks with a pre-view on Mondays. The comedy of Hatton and Beery, "The Big Killing," one of best box office attractions at this second-run house.

William Boyd in "The Cop," Glen Shelly at the Wurlitzer and Srodka and Portland Symphony Orchestra all proved good entertainment at the Oriental theatre, and good houses were the rule throughout the week.

The Capitol theatre showed Phillips "Grain of Dust" and "Once and Forever," the two a week program proving most popular, and Armistice Day here broke all house records to date according to Manager Akin.

"Lilac Time" Has Big Week in Harrisburg, Pa.

Harrisburg, Pa.—It is doubtful if any picture ever shown in Harrisburg attracted as many persons in a like period as "Lilac Time," with Colleen Moore and Gary Cooper did during the week at the Colonial Theatre. The picture had the advantage, it is true, of an intensive campaign of exploitation put on by the members of Aurand Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, who sponsored it. There also was an extra midnight showing of the film, which added 1,700 to the week's total attendance, yet in spite of that the theatre was overflowing at every single performance.

Critics declared "Fools for Luck," starring Chester Conklin and W. C. Fields, at the State,

Up and Down Week in Seattle; Fifth Ave. Good with "Dancing Daughters"

SEATTLE.—"Dancing Daughters" on the screen of the Fifth Avenue Theatre last week was the big gross attraction in the first run circles, piling up a very substantial box office showing and pleasing the large audiences at every performance. It was one of the most successful of the new synchronized films, and business was particularly strong.

At the Seattle Theatre "Moran of the Marines" failed to arouse any enthusiasm, disappointing a majority of the audience. Fanchon-Marco's Violin Idea on the stage was well liked, and Bobby Agnew in person drew a number of the feminine contingent to the house. Business for the week was just average.

At the Music Box Theatre "The Singing Fool" in its sixth week showed a slight tendency toward a decline at the box office, but this was quite natural. The film has broken all local records, and will undoubtedly go one or two more weeks, judging from present business, still very strong.

Hamrick's Blue Mouse Theatre opened with "The Perfect Crime" and results the first week one of the cleverest comedies seen in Harrisburg in several months. The State's film play the last half of the week was "Making the Grade," with Lois Moran and Edmund Lowe. The Victoria had a good week, judged from the financial angle, with Jack Holt in Zane Gray's "Avalanche," and William Haines and Marian Davies in "Show People," drew crowds to Loew's Regent. This is a sound picture.

Jack Mulhall in "The Butter and Egg Man" was popular at the National, and the Rialto did fair business with "The Four Flushers," starring George Lewis and Marion Nixon. The Russell Theatre continued to record satisfactory success with the double programs it has been offering the public, the week's combination being Ricardo Cortez and Carmel Myers in "Prowlers of the Sea," coupled with Leatrice Joy in "Nobody's Widow."

"Submarine" and "Cabin" Up in Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh.—Loew's Penn had a very good week's business as usual. Film attraction, "The First Kiss," is weak and was mildly received. The Public Unit stage offering, "Bars and Stripes," offered a good half hour's entertainment.

Loew's Aldine had "Beggars of Life," a fairly good film which brought good crowds and seemed to please.

The Stanley had a better-than-average week with "Submarine." This is an excellent production and the large Stanley audiences applauded its showing on several occasions. Applauding motion pictures in this man's town is a rarity. On the stage was Paul Tremaine, saxophonist, and his orchestra.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" brought a big week's business to the Grand. It made a big hit here.

The Regent had a very good week with "The Terror," but "The Battle of the Sexes" brought but average business at the Liberty. The film was hurt by the large number of censor cuts in Pennsylvania.

The Olympic turned in an average week's business with Pola Negri's "Loves of an Actress."

The Cameraphone did fairly well with "Four Sons," as did also the Alhambra with "The Street of Illusion."

Bebe Daniels in "Take Me Home" and Keith vaudeville brought but average business to the Davis.

warranted a second week for the film, despite previous plans to the contrary. It was a good film, well received. Bessie Love and Eddie Foy, Jr., in a Movietone short subject, scored heavily, too.

"Sawdust Paradise" at the Coliseum was just an average attraction, playing to mediocre business. "Do Your Duty" at the Columbia Theatre was a very poor box office film, and did practically no business. This house closes this week, pending a change in policy by its owners, Universal Theatres. At the Embassy "The Power of Silence" pleased the audience and scored an average week's gross.

The vaudeville houses both featured their films strongly, with "Mother Machree" at Pantages being the leading attraction, heavily exploited and good for a gross better than average. "Waterfront" at the Orpheum was mediocre. "Street Angel" in its synchronized form at the Egyptian, neighborhood house, showed a very big business, following in the same course that it began at the Fifth Avenue Theatre two months ago.

Heavy Trade on Chicago Extended Runs

"White Shadows" and "Submarine" Go Big; "Fool" Still Capacity

CHICAGO.—With the advent of "White Shadows" and "Submarine" in Chicago's loop, long run houses were the center of interest and big business was reported. "White Shadows" got away to a heavy attendance at the Roosevelt and "Submarine" was drawing crowds to United Artists, while "The Singing Fool" went into the seventh week of its great run at McVickers, where it continues to play to capacity business. Last week also marked the arrival of Brooks Johns, new conductor and master of ceremonies at the Oriental, and with "Outcast" as its feature picture, this house had a good week. "Fazil" on the Movietone, Chic Sales talking comedy, stage show and Spitalny's musical gem, "Schubertians," were included in the Chicago program which went over big.

The talkie, "Show Folks," was the feature attraction at both the Granada and Marbro Theatres. Backed by strong stage shows, Charles Kaley heading the bill at the Granada and Benny Meroff wielding the baton at the Marbro, attendance held up well. Another feature which had a week's run at big, outlying, de luxe houses, was "Show People," which was billed at the Uptown, Tivoli and Paradise. Advertised as being the first time ever presented with singing and orchestral sound, it drew well, all the houses having the usual stage shows in addition to the picture.

The Capitol Theatre offered "Women They Talk About" on the screen, Roy Dietrich heading the stage show, the box office report being satisfactory. At the Avalon "The Man Who Laughs" was featured, while on the stage, Del Lampe and his band were the headliners.

Pantages Off, Newman and Mainstreet Big

Kansas City.—The attendance at first run houses in Kansas City this week offered somewhat of a puzzle. The Pantages, with "The Stool Pigeon" as the feature picture and a strong stage program, fell off in attendance, being about 30 per cent under normal, while the Newman, which formerly played to small crowds, but which recently finished a one-month run of Al Jolson in "The Singing Fool," continued to set a fast pace with Clara Bow in "The Fleet's In," doing a large business both at matinees and night performances.

The Mainstreet, which featured Rae Samuels, a local favorite, on its stage program, did a capacity business with "The Cavalier." Dolores Del Rio in "Revenge" at Loew's Midland attracted crowds which just about measured up to the Midland's average over the last two months or so, business being only fair. "The Midnight Taxi" drew good at the Royal, unusual newspaper space being devoted to the picture.

"Fazil," which was exploited big in daily newspaper advertising and on billboards, made a special appeal to the younger generation and did a good business.

Good Week Reported for 'Frisco Theatres

San Francisco.—Good theatrical weather, together with some especially good pictures, crowded the majority of motion picture theatres in the down town, first-run section of San Francisco as well as in the residential districts.

The theatre which drew the biggest crowds was the Embassy, where Al Jolson appears in "The Singing Fool." Although it is being shown for the third week, crowds for almost a block lined streets in front of this theatre, in the evenings, trying to get in. The first week it played to 42,000 persons, breaking all existing house records by several thousands. The Embassy seats but 1,200.

The Granada theatre, did but fair business during the past week. Here was shown, "The Battle of the Sexes" on the screen and the Publix Revue, "Main St. to B'way." Loew's Warfield reported excellent business for the entire week. Here, "The Masks of the Devil" was on the screen and Rube Wolf with his Fanchon & Marco "Idea" on the stage.

"Lilac Time," at the California theatre, drew well in the evenings, and fairly well in the afternoons. It is First National's first sound spectacle and was advertised as such. The St. Francis theatre, this week, showed "Our Dancing Daughters," for a second time. Only fair business was reported with this picture although all liked and praised it, who saw it screened.

The Vitaphone, shown for a second week at the new El Capitan theatre, reported remarkable business with the picture, "Tenderloin," shown together with the stage presentation, "Hawaiian Nights." "The Man Who Laughs" attracted thousands to the Pantages theatre all week. The Union Square did well with "Stormy Waters" and "Almost a Gentleman," which was shown together with Nat Holt's presentation acts.

In the residential districts, "Her Cardboard Lover" did well at the Coliseum theatre and the Royal theatre did better than expected with "The Wheel of Chance," the evenings being crowded. "One Round Hogan" drew very well at the Irving theatre.

Armistice Week and Theatre Opening Peps Up Ottawa Business

OTTAWA.—A National holiday, Monday, November 12, for special observance of the Armistice Anniversary, and the opening of a new theatre had Ottawa, Ontario, exhibitors all pepped up during the week of November 12. With no counter-attractions, the theatres were packed on the holiday and patronage kept high all week.

Much interest was taken by the public in "Show People" at the Regent Theatre because of Marion Davies and William Haines, both of whom have splendid followings in the Canadian Capitol. Fine business resulted.

"Stocks and Blondes" also made good at B. F. Keith's Theatre, this feature having mixed appeal. The picture stood on its own merits because the accompanying vaudeville was not exceptional.

There was considerable excitement at the Centre Theatre during the presentation of "The Air Circus," particularly among the men. Some lady patrons said there was "too much airplane."

"Power," starring William Boyd, at the Imperial Theatre, was one of those sturdy action

features that Imperial patrons like and the ticket-vending machine clicked all to the merry.

The Avalon Theatre, Ottawa's new neighborhood house and a real atmospheric treat, opened with "Dress Parade" at $1 general admission, seats reserved. The place was full and patrons were greatly excited over the many frills. "Dress Parade" itself was too much like the West Point picture in which William Haines recently appeared.

The neighborhoods were all in good form, registering capacity trade. There was a rush to the Fern Theatre to see "Chinatown Charlie" and the first chapter of "Haunted Island." The Rex was also as busy as a toy store on Christmas Eve with "The Gaucho" and also the "Haunted Island" serial. The Columbia secured high class locality patronage with the presentation of "Camille," starring Norma Talmadge.

The Laurier Theatre, Hull, had no complaints to make regarding business for "Two Lovers" with Colman and Banky, and the Capitol, Hull, got the remainder with "The Devils Trade-mark."

Cincinnati Trade on Increase; "Lilac Time" and "Fool" Lead for Week

CINCINNATI.—Business in Cincinnati during the past week might be likened to the present stock market. It is reaching new "highs." With ideal weather conditions and a list of excellent attractions, practically all of the larger downtown houses enjoyed liberal patronage.

The Capitol is hanging up an attendance record for all time in this city with "The Singing Fool." Originally booked for a two weeks' run, the picture was held over for a third week, which was advertised as final. However, so great has been the demands that bookings were switched, and a fourth week has been added, which is to end the engagement.

Another enviable record has been made with "Lilac Time" at Keith's, which is now in its third week, with attendance amounting to capacity at practically every performance. Apparently the picture would hold up for another week, but will not be held, according to present plans.

The Lyric played a second week with "Fazil" and returns at this house were as highly gratifying to the management during the second week as they were the first.

"The Masks of the Devil," together with a well-balanced vaudeville bill at the Albee, did nicely, although there have been better weeks during the present season from the standpoint of box-office check-ups.

The Strand displayed "Sally's Shoulders" and had a steady, although not particularly large stream of patrons during the whole of the week.

"Baby Cyclone," the screen attraction, alded and abetted by a good vaudeville bill, drew heavily at the Palace.

Other houses reported business from fair to good.

Specials Help Trade in Oklahoma City

Oklahoma City.—Some highly satisfactory reports have been received this past week regarding the attendance at motion picture shows here. Some special precautions as well as invigorating fall weather have done much toward the growing attractions and attendance.

"White Shadows of the South Seas," featuring Monte Blue in Metro-Goldwyn's sound picture, enjoyed a week's excellent business at the Capitol.

The National Players in "The Family Upstairs" and the feature picture, "West of Zanzibar," with Lon Chaney, continued to please "em" for a whole week at the Criterion.

The Empress did a very nice week's business with Marion Dixon and Charles Rogers in "Red Lips."

At the Liberty Dolores Del Rio in "The Red Dance" played to good business. "A Reno Divorce" and five acts of good vaudeville had good week's business at the Orpheum, and the Victoria enjoyed good business with Sally O'Neil and Willie Collier, Jr., in "The Floating College."

Keith's, Without Sound, Leads Boston

Overflow of New House Also Helps the Keith-Albee

BOSTON.—The new Keith Memorial Theatre opened two weeks ago, and the only first-run theatre in Boston not equipped with sound continues to be the chief attraction for the motion picture public, with long standing lines and hundreds turned away at every performance. This week's film is "Take Me Home," and it has met with a more than cordial reception. Indications are that the Keith Memorial is all set for capacity business for the entire winter season.

Opening of the new Keith Memorial has had a decidedly beneficial effect on the Keith-Albee Boston theatre, diagonally across Washington street, which has been playing to capacity business ever since the Memorial Theatre opened its doors. Pathe sound news is proving decidedly attractive to patrons, and this week's film, "Captain Swagger," is coming in for favorable comment among film fans. All in all, the two Keith-Albee-Orpheum theatres are hanging up new box office records for late fall among the Boston playhouses.

"The River Pirate" has appealed to Boston theatregoers in no uncertain terms, with the result that box office reports from the Public Metropolitan are near the breaking point this week.

"The Singing Fool," which broke all records by being held over for eight weeks at the Netoco twin theatres several months ago, is having a second record-breaking run at the Public Fenway and Olympia Theatres, where it has been showing this week and may be held over.

Loew's State, showing "The Woman Disputed," reported better than average business. Fox Movietone news has also caused favorable comment. Leonora's Steppers furnish the stage number.

"The Cavalier," another sound film, is attracting crowds to the Modern and Beacon Theatres of the Netoco chain. These twin houses continue their double bill policy with "Power" as the accompanying feature.

"Submarine" at Loew's Orpheum is meeting with splendid business. Other films of the week reporting good returns include "Our Dancing Daughters," playing simultaneously at the Capitol and Exeter, the "Night Bird" at the Lancaster, and "The Fleet's In" at the University.

Decided Lull in Down Town Milwaukee

Milwaukee.—Only fair business was reported at the down town theatres this week. The weather was mild with no rain and no extreme temperature and affected business but little. There was a decided lull in activity at practically every theatre.

"Wings," playing its third week at the Strand, was not accorded nearly as strong patronage as it had been previously. In fact business dropped off at a very appreciable rate as the week wore on.

"The Singing Fool," at the Garden, is drawing just fair patronage. It too, has played an extended run and finishes its sixth week at the Garden. It has ceased to draw the crowds it previously did and is pulling only very moderate houses. It is, however, scheduled for an additional week.

"The Man Who Laughs," at the Alhambra, held over for a second week drew good attendance. It finished its run this week.

"Moran of the Marines," at the Wisconsin, was not very successful in attracting good patronage. The Merrill, with "Romance of the Underworld," was fairly well attended.

The Majestic drew fair business with "Masks of the Devil." The vaudeville houses, usually so well attended, felt a decrease in patronage this week also. The feature at the Riverside was "Captain Swagger" and at the Orpheum, "Take Me Home" was featured.

Neighborhood theatres did very gratifying business this week. The strong attractions is no doubt accountable for the good business. "Lilac Time," at the Uptown, Modjeska and Garfield, received very good patronage, as did also "Win That Girl" at the Oriental and Tower. "Drums of Love" was well received at the National and Milwaukee.

Minneapolis Trade Keeps Up Fast Pace

Minneapolis.—Theatre business continued to boom a bit in Minneapolis last week following the slump which hit it around election time.

At the Strand, for example, D. W. Griffith's picture "Battle of the Sexes" made such a good showing that it was held over for two extra days.

The Minnesota found George Bancroft in "Docks of New York" to be a first rate drawing card, and enjoyed a very good week with this attraction.

"Sunrise," at the State, however, did not prove a strong magnet, this capital Murnau-directed picture failing to catch the fancy of the movie-going public. The critics on the Minneapolis papers praised this one to the skies, but the State audiences laughed or snorted at it, and the city generally failed to give it the patronage it so eminently deserved.

Buster Keaton in "The Cameraman" proved a knockout at the Hennepin-Orpheum, drawing large crowds and pleasing them immensely. It has been a long time since a comedy of this sort has made such a big hit locally. Everyone said this was Buster's best in many, many months.

The Lyric shows Bebe Daniels in "Take Me Home," doing about average business, and Pantages featured "Court Martial" with Betty Compson and Jack Holt, a film which no doubt helped business some.

The Granada, the new neighborhood house with sound equipment, continued to do a rushing business with "While the City Sleeps," while the non-sound houses generally found business improved over the average of the past six weeks.

Holidays Give Tampa a Good Break

Tampa.—The double holiday this week gave all show-shops a flying start, with both Sunday and Monday going over very good. The Victory continues to take the lead with "The Singing Fool," in its second week, and this picture has broken all records. Never before in the history of show business in Tampa has a picture packed and jammed 'em the way this one has for two solid weeks.

The Tampa had a good card in "The Woman Disputed" for the first half. The opinion generally is, that this is the best thing Norma Talmadge has ever done. The picture drew very good for the four days. "Varsity" followed it in and did not do so well, in fact business fell a little under average the last half.

"The Lady Cyclone" was featured by the Strand for the two holidays, and it drew excellent business giving the house an over average start on the week, but "The Whip" failed to hold up the lead and business went a little under average the three days of its run. "The First Auto" closed the week to average business.

The Franklin, second run, had three real good cards this week in "The Volga Boatman," "Out All Night" and "Wheel of Chance." All drew nicely and kept the business up to average, and some days a little better.

Salt Lake Theatres Enjoy Good Week's Trade

Salt Lake City.—A very good week was enjoyed by Salt Lake theatre owners this past week. Stormy weather was mixed with bright, cool weather and some special attractions were presented.

The Capitol Theatre had very good results during their showing of "Do Your Duty," with Charlie Murray, and the stage presentation "Temptation."

The Movietone attraction drew well at the Pantages Theatre, where talking pictures are well under way and are being received enthusiastically. The Universal production "Lonesome" went over to crowded houses, it is reported.

Conrad Nagle and Myrna Loy in "State Street Sadie," a Vitaphone production, played to capacity houses at the Victory throughout the entire week.

The American Theatre was so well attended during the first week of Norma Talmadge in "The Disputed Woman" that this picture was held over and drew very good houses to this large theatre during the second weeks' showing.

The Paramount Empress had a satisfactory week with "Varsity" and William Boyd in "Power" was received at the Gem Theatre by fairly good sized houses.

"The Foreign Legion" was shown as a second run at the Rialto this week with fairly good results and the State Theatre did well with "Her Father Said No" and the third showing of Gloria Swanson in "Sadie Thompson" as an added attraction.

The other second run and neighborhood houses are also enjoying very good attendance this week.

Atlanta Keeps Up Average; Universal's "Lonesome" Heads the Parade

ATLANTA.—Average good business was enjoyed by most of the major and smaller downtown theatres in Atlanta last week, with Universal's "Lonesome," featuring Glenn Tryon and Barbara Kent, at Loew's Capitol leading the box office parade. Business on the picture built up steadily from the opening, word of mouth advertising being responsible, in large measure, for the crowds which attended during the latter part of the week.

Loew's Grand put "Lilac Time" over to good gross, although this was the second showing of the picture in Atlanta. Some weeks ago it had its premiere here at the Howard.

Keith's Georgia celebrated its second anniversary by showing "The Air Circus" to good business.

"The Night Watch" did very well at the Howard, where an exceptionally fine list of Movietone and Vitaphone short subjects also came in for much favorable comment.

"The Goodbye Kiss," well liked by many, did not do so well on the opening at the Metropolitan and, as an added attraction, the management brought back "Show Girl," which scored heavily at the box-office the previous week, for the last half—playing both features Thursday, Friday and Saturday, with business mounting steadily as a result of the move.

The Rialto chalked up a satisfactory week with "State Street Sadie."

Studios Cutting Down on Players

Stock Talent Affected By Moves to Decrease Overhead to Minimum

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 22. — Despite prospects for greater production in the forthcoming few months than in several years, several of the larger companies started pruning down all contracted people to a minimum number last week. The elimination affects players, writers, directors and all other branches of production. Inasmuch as the plans for most future productions include dialogued and synchronized features, studios wish to feel themselves free to add any number and type of freelancers without being burdened by a running overhead of stock players, contracted writers, directors, etc.

Most of the eliminations have been made in Paramount, Universal, Fox, Warner Brothers and First National. In most cases, the slashing affected mostly stock players. Paramount is reported not through with its notifications that options will not be renewed with many people who have been with them for some time. Bebe Daniels and Paramount reached an agreement whereby she is free to work in other studios. Florence Vidor and Esther Ralston are among the most important of those rumored leaving the Paramount roster.

Stock players in the other studios also have been cast loose to free-lance or sign with other producers. In most others, however, the slashes affected the writing, scenario and title staffs, with several directors included. Another result of the general pruning is reported scheduled as the signing of new people on a picture-to-picture basis at lesser salaries. Most writers were from the legitimate field as well as lesser known stage players, who can be secured for smaller sums than have been paid to established screen people.

Added to Writing Forces

Warner Bros. have added three well known writers to the scenario department which is soon to start next year's program. They are Harvey Thew, L. G. Rigby and J. Grubb Alexander.

John V. A. Weaver, poet, playwright and novelist and expert in American slang, has been engaged by Paramount to do dialogue for forthcoming sound films.

Directorial Assignments

Pathe has re-signed E. Mason Hopper to direct "Square Shoulders," which will be Junior Coghlan's first dialogue picture for Pathe.

Richard Wallace will direct Maurice Chevalier, the French star, in his first vehicle for Paramount.

Adolfi Signed by Warners

John Adolfi, director, was last week added by the Warners to their directorial staff. He signed for a long term which provides for him to make a number of Vitaphone features.

Titling

John Krafft of Pathe is editing and titling "The Leatherneck."

The Hattons, Frederick and Fanny, are titling "The Spirit of Youth" for Tiffany-Stahl.

Lois Wilson Signs for Series

Lois Wilson has signed a contract with the Christie Film Co. to play opposite Edward Everett Horton in a series of two-reel comedies in sound which will be pre-

'German' Professor Offers 'Sound Advice' to Hollywood

Vincent Barnett

SOUND experts have been the cause of many a reverberation around West Coast studios since the advent of talking pictures but the biggest noise made by any of them fades into insignificance alongside of the commotion recently made by Professor von Schweringen, "sound expert from the Home Office," when that gentleman's report on the sound plant at a big Coast studio was rendered to studio officials. The stuccoed walls of the studio echoed and echoed to the tune of the Professor's sound advice.

Von Schweringen recently dropped in on the studio moguls and stated that the Home Office had deputized him to make a report on their sound studios. An introductory letter from New York, authorizing his admittance to the studios had preceded him. He was accorded courtesy and every facility in his undertaking and went his rounds in a scientific manner, jotting down this and that observation as he made his tour of the plant.

This happened before luncheon.

As most of the studio executives were about to go out to partake of their noon-day repast, von Schweringen returned and with a few short words scrapped about $280,000 worth of equipment. It was no good, he said, and all of it would have to be entirely reconstructed under a different method. The professor then announced that he would go eat his lunch and would return anon.

Von Schweringen's bombshell had laid a trail of human wreckage around the studio's office, a hot wire had been drafted for transmission to New York and conferences were thick as hornets' nests when a card was sent in announcing the professor's reappearance.

On his entrance, after the lunch, all present took one look and cried: "Why, you're not von Schweringen!"

"Oh, you're looking for him are you? Well, I'm the Professor alright, but when you last saw me I was in disguise. My real name is Vincent Barnett, and I am an actor looking for a job. As far as I know your sound stages, etc., are o. k. . . ."

Did he get the job? That remains to be seen but right at that time a job for such a subtle comedian not being open, von Schweringen has since occupied himself by giving "characterizations" at parties held by film folk of Hollywood.

Scenarist Finds Truth Stranger Than Fiction

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 22.—A scenario writer who has been working in Hollywood for the past five years, found it hard to sell original screen stories to producers and finally sent a group of originals to a New York playbroker for possible sale. The playbroker recently sent one of the stories to a coast producer, with the latter purchasing. The author's name on the manuscript was a nom de plume, with his address listed as from a large eastern city.

In looking for a writer to do the scenario, the producer unknowingly called the real author of the story and made a deal for him to do the script, first asking his opinion on the story. Naturally the writer said, "Great!"

Talkies Add to Work of Title Writers

Established Captioners Find Large Returns in Composing Dialogue

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 22. Dialogue and sound motion pictures have increased work for both title-writers and title film plants to a greater extent than either have handled in many years. This fact reveals itself following a check-up on the general belief that just the reverse effect had taken place. With the increasing production of talkies, it was supposed that the title-writer would rapidly disappear from the industry and that the manufacturers of film titles would soon file petitions in voluntary bankruptcy.

The result instead, has been beneficial to the title writer. Producers are assigning dialogue sequences to standard established title writers in the belief that they are better equipped than imported stage writers for the amount of screen sense already developed in them. Another reason is that films are still being made in both silent and sound versions and the title writer now finds himself made in both silent and sound versions and the title writer now finds himself employed for a longer term on each picture. Instead of titling a production, and then beginning work on another, or if he is a free-lance, seeking another, the title writer is held over for an additional period longer than the one assigned for mere titling. This is for the purpose of injecting dialogue.

The benefit to film title plants is mostly because of the latter reason. Not only have they the work of making titles for the silent versions, but all dialogue versions carry a certain number of titles as well. In most cases these are descriptive or credits and cannot be furnished via the dialogue in the picture. Hence the manufacturer finds himself with double the amount of work on each picture, instead of a decreased order because of synchronization.

Dotty Jottings

By Jerry Hoffman

THIS might be called a suggestion . . . but just for protection in case it is said . . . "I've already thought of that" . . . I'll play safe and call it a prediction . . . for such things have happened . . . even where the thought wasn't had . . . The Warner Brothers have a boy who is the sensation of the country . . . everyone who sees "The Singing Fool" raves about David Lee . . . and all sing "Sonny Boy" . . . also . . . in "She Knew Men" . . . directed by Archie Mayo in which little David is now playing, he is again called "Sonny Boy" . . . so the suggestion . . . or the prediction . . . that for next year's program . . . the Warners make a picture starring David Lee . . . calling it "Sonny Boy" . . . yes? . . .

THERE are thirteen principals in "The Missing Man" . . . Pathe's first 100 per cent talkie . . . including June Nash, Lee Patrick, George Barrand, Russell Gleason, Robert St. Angelo, Frank Reicher, Ned Sparks, Claude King, Josephine Brown, Charles Hamilton, Otto Matiesen, Harry Allen, Cosmo Kyrle Bellew, and Warner Richmond . . . thirteen of 'em and they started work, the publicity department tells me . . . on the thirteenth of the month . . . so to make it a perfect press yarn . . . let me add . . . "And the studio gateman didn't recognize one of them." . . .

IN case you want to know how motion picture theme songs are written . . . here's one example . . . an executive on the Paramount lot . . . meeting a song-writer hired for just that purpose said . . . "We've got a picture called 'Wolf-Song' . . . it's all about a man on a mountain . . . write a song about it" . . . well, many have had less to go on than that . . . did you hear "Woman Disputed, I love You"? . . . hey, hey . . . many theme songs are turning into scream songs . . . that's funny too . . .

WHEN Olive Borden left Fox some time ago . . . it was whispered that Fox was very anxious to secure Bebe Daniels to succeed her . . . now that Bebe has left Paramount . . . the possibility of her joining Fox is stronger than ever . . . incidentally Bebe's quitting recalls that she has been under contract to Paramount for ten years . . . and is probably the oldest contract player in point of service with Paramount . . . she came to them as a stock player in 1918 after doing leads opposite Harold Lloyd in one-reelers and since has risen to stardom . . . her salary for the past term being reported in the $5,000 weekly area . . .

DENIALS seem scheduled as no aid to Dolores Del Rio and Edwin Carewe . . . and for the next few months dailies will continually report a break between them . . . the rift seemed obvious when Dolores arrived in Hollywood last week . . . refusing to pose for a still with Eddie and her greeting to him . . . considering her Latin blood . . . seemed quite distant . . . which is enough for any scandal reporter to pin a story on . . . so it goes . . .

ARATHER safe risk . . . and good for lots of newspaper space maybe . . . is the fact that Samuel Goldwyn is supposed to have insured the exterior of Child's, Fifth Avenue, for $40,000 against snow . . . if it snows anytime between November 15 and three weeks from that date . . . Sammy collects forty-grand . . . it's being used for Vilma Banky's picture which Al Santell is directing . . . and how some people must be praying for a pop-corn explosion . . . that's also funny . . . yeh . . .

ODD rumors . . . not yet confirmed . . . Mary McAllister will be Harold Lloyd's next leading lady . . . either Mary Nolan or Pauline Starke will play "Pearl" in Universal's "Broadway" . . . Betty Bronson may play the ingenue role in the same . . . and I could think of lots worse . . . and many better too . . . meanwhile you can bank on Glenn Tryon as set . . . since Jim Barton is out of Paramount's forthcoming production, "Burlisque" . . . Eddie Cantor may play it . . . and then again Jack Okie . . . Hollywood's spendthrift . . . (Harry Lauder please note) may . . .

AND I wish that studios would stop exploiting people as "genius" . . . it only hurts the individual so badly-hooded . . . it gives rise to silly stupid mouth-to-mouth reports that the "genius" has become high-hat . . . and in lots of cases it makes him so . . . it's funny . . . rather, in most cases . . . tragic . . . how many react foolishly to the personal spotlight . . . the reason for this is that the noun has been abused terribly in recent weeks and is an injustice . . .

IKNOW one man who hasn't had any publicity and doesn't want any . . . and deserves it . . . of a straight honest type . . . a Roy Hunter at Universal . . . who has quietly installed a sound studio which equals and perhaps rivals any of these highly exploited in others . . .

IT remained for Eddie Cantor to release a news story in a motion picture before the studio did . . . in the short subject shown before "Interference" while Eddie talks . . . he announces that he is to make "The Birth of the Blues" for Paramount next year . . . scooped by a trailer, bigosh! . . . and them's that . . .

Four in Work at F B O

Four features are now in work at the FBO studios on the coast, where recently "Blockade" and "Hardboiled" were completed. "The Yellowback" is in its last week of work and editing on "Love in the Desert" is being finished by George Melford, "The Little Savage" is in the final week and "The Drifter" will also be finished shortly.

La Rocque in Dove Vehicle

First National has engaged Rod La Rocque to act opposite Billie Dove in her forthcoming vehicle, "The Man and the Moment." Miss Dove has just completed "Adoration."

To Reveal Talent Through Sound

Eddie Quillan, Alberta Vaughn, Marie Quillan and other players in "Noisy Neighbors" will be given opportunities to display their musical talent in the Phonophoned version of this Pathe production. Eddie will give his impressions of a saxophone virtuoso, while Miss Vaughn and Marie Quillan will demonstrate their ability at the piano. Eddie and his Dad will also do a dance.

John Boles—Leading Man

John Boles will be the leading male player opposite Laura La Plante in the Universal star's next, "The Haunted Lady," a story by Adela Rogers St. John. Jane Winton will also act and Wesley Ruggles will direct the story, about to go into production.

MANAGERS ROUND TABLE CLUB CLEARING HOUSE FOR BOX OFFICE PROBLEMS and THEATRE OPERATION

By Charles E. Lewis

of the Alfred Gottesman Theatrical Enterprises, New England

A Showman in the Making

From the Broadway Theatre in Norwich, Conn., comes the interesting news that Phil Smith's younger brother, Sidney, has been appointed an assistant to M. J. Levinson and placed in charge of the floor at the above mentioned theatre. Well, Sydney, you have a darn good teacher and you will never go wrong on following in his footsteps. No need for me to say any more about M. J. Levinson, we've already had our say some time ago.

Young Smith wants to know if he is eligible for membership in the CLUB and our answer is YES. I'm sure other members would be glad to hear of his future activities and he has plenty of opportunities up there in Norwich. And being his house is a Sound theatre we would certainly like to know how they are taking to the different kind of Sound pictures they are showing. Keep us posted Sydney.

Stirring Up Business

Harry A. Goren, Shenandoah, Pa. manager, whom you will recall from last week's issue, just joined the CLUB and he started off on the right foot by sending in some "stunts" which he tried and recommends to others. We are embodying one of his suggestions this week.

He tells me that he organized and is working, what he calls, a "Caravan." The idea being to enlist the aid of the leading citizens in the town for the purpose of bringing crippled children from hospitals, etc., to a special performance at his theatre. For proper supervision of the youngsters while in his care he worked up interest with some of the prominent matrons in town and they helped play host to these unfortunate children.

I have always been sold on this kind of a stunt because when you consider the actual good you are doing, besides all the sterling publicity it brings, you have combined a great team. The expense cannot be great and it is quite possible to have the kiddies present during a regular matinee and in this way eliminate any extra expense entirely. Try this one boys, not only myself, but many others, from long experience heartily recommend it. And don't forget the Christmas Show for all children in Institutions. I'm going to harp on this latter one until you send me the "dope" to prove you are going through with it.

"Manager's Round Table Club"

AN organization composed of theatre managers who believe: 1—That the interchanging of ideas and suggestions will benefit everyone; 2—Who have accepted the CLUB slogan—"USE THE NEWS"; 3—Who are all striving to make the NEWS the clearing house for all box office ideas and theatre operation.

Membership is open to all exhibitors and theatre managers.

"Out of the Ruins" to a Profit

Jack O'Connell, one of our real live members, from that far famed Vita-Temple Theatre in Toledo, tells us an interesting idea whereby he had to do some quick thinking when he awoke one morning to find that the old Booby House, once a great hotel, was to be demolished and the passage which had been built to protect pedestrians during the tearing down of the hotel would obstruct the view of his theatre.

Arising to the opportunity for fast work he ran an ad in the leading papers telling about the work to be done, the building to be erected to take its place, and telling Toledo that the passage was not a dingy wooden passage way, "but a Lighted Lane that leads to the home of the World's Greatest Talking Pictures."

As was to be expected, the ad attracted attention and many who might not happen along that way came down to see what it was all about and if they got that far, Jack knew he had a fighting chance that they would try "that lighted passage" into the Vita-Temple.

A little review of O'Connell's many activities makes us wonder how long it will be before Jack sits himself down to write a little book on what the "good theatre managers must do." You qualify for the title of author so better start the book.

Club Members Take Good Tips

When we published the story of how Ed. Loughton put over his campaign on "King of Kings" we suggested that members and readers write to him for full details on how he handled it. But we never anticipated that poor Loughton would be swamped with just such requests. From a letter just received from him he tells me his entire staff was taxed for over a week answering such inquiries and they ran into the hundreds.

This bit of information was particularly gratifying to myself and other members of the staff of the NEWS because it is hard to find out to what extent such advice is followed. It is no mystery any longer. While we feel sorry for Loughton, we are tickled to death that our readers and members have faith in our suggestion to follow up any angle that will give them a chance to cash in on tried stunts and ideas.

Chalk up another mark for the CLUB boys, we score again.

"The Voice of A Nation"

(Note: Here are some more letters on the "sound" question. If you have not been following them, you are losing a great chance to find out what other managers already know on this subject. Dig up your last four weeks' issues of the NEWS and start at the beginning—C.E.L.)

Readers of these columns have heard from Ralph Cokain before and while he admits that he has seen but few talking or sound pictures he freely expresses his opinion of them:

Dear Mr. Lewis:

Anything I might say about sound pictures does not necessarily mean that I have heard many of them. To be truthful, I have seen one talking and one sound picture: namely, "The Lion and the Mouse" and "Don Juan."

When I saw "Don Juan," which has been about three years ago, I was very much disappointed. There were no sound effects in the picture, the only sound being the musical setting by the New York Philharmonic Orchestra. Well, I suppose the orchestra is a wonderful musical organization, but to hear it via Vitaphone on "Don Juan," I thought it was terrible. However, the Vitaphone has improved considerably since that time, so I am not going to criticize it.

Sound pictures are revolutionizing the business right now. Crowds are jamming the doors of all theatres that show them. As I write this I understand the Apollo theatre has stood them up every day for two weeks now with Al Jolson in "The Singing Fool." In this case, we might account for the large patronage due to the popularity of Jolson, but even at that, other talking and sound pictures have been held over for a second week. (The Apollo, by the way, is in Indianapolis, Indiana.)

The small town exhibitor is presented with a problem. He cannot go on showing silent pictures, because the talking pictures in the cities close around will draw the people away from their local theatre. In order to compete with the bigger cities he must install sound equipment. There is the high cost of the equipment; will the returns from the patronage more than pay the installation costs? Frankly, the small town exhibitor can not afford to install sound equipment. The cost is not within his reach, and the theatre-going public in his town is not large enough to bring him in enough receipts to cover the cost of it. As time goes on, sound pictures will be more popular, and every town will have them. But the small town exhibitor must wait.

Not only have sound pictures presented a problem to the exhibitor, but the film folk as well. Good looks or a cute smile will not get a girl in the movies now; she must have a pleasing personality, and above all, a good voice. So essential is this to the success of sound pictures that many of the old favorites are coming into their own again, because of their voices being suited to the requirements of sound pictures. In "The Lion and the Mouse," there is one actor who outshines the performance of any one of the other characters; that actor is Lionel Barrymore. He has an excellent voice, and no doubt, brother John has likewise. Jannings, Barrymore, Fawcett, all of them are veteran stage as well as screen actors. They had to have good voices to get where they are. Now their chance to even surpass their efforts on the stage is before them.

Sound pictures are here to stay, and will progress slowly but surely each year. In concluding, I wish to state that it is my honest opinion that the time is coming when every theatre in the United States, large and small, will be equipped with sound pictures. Do not condemn a few flaws you see in such pictures; they will be remedied.

Very truly yours,
Signed, Ralph Cokain.

Short and Sweet and to the point

E. C. Laskey, of the Kerrisdale Theatre in Vancouver, B. C., Canada, makes his letter on "Sound" short, but proved that one need not use a lot of unnecessary words to convey a thought. We offer it for your own digestion: "... pertaining to 'Sound Pictures' I might just as well make it plain at the start that we in Canada have had very little experience so far with 'Sound Pictures.'"

"Our leading theatre in Vancouver has recently installed sound equipment and so far have only run synchronized features with the odd talking sequences and of course talking short subjects. This new form of entertainment is going over very well so far, but, then it may only be the novelty of the thing. In my opinion talking pictures are here to stay but they will have to undergo a great improvement before they are universally accepted. Then, of course, the producer in making talking pictures must not lose track of the fact that the story is 'the thing.' So far, as just sound and synchronized pictures go, I would not advise any Exhibitor to install expensive equipment to get this effect because there are hundreds of non-synchronous instruments that have the expensive licensed equipment beaten to death."

You know, boys, it gets more and more interesting, this subject of "Sound," if you are only following these letters as I am publishing them week by week. The variety of opinion is stimulating to anyone really seeking light on this subject and it also proves that "what is sauce for the goose, is NOT sauce for the gander." Why? Because if you read these letters you will find that everyone's reaction differs. That's what makes the whole blooming thing so darned interesting.

Develops New Angle for Auto Dealer Tie-Up

Endurance Driving Contest Demonstrates Quality of Car and Exploits "Brotherly Love" Showing

A NEW angle for cooperative exploitation between local auto dealers and the motion picture theatre was given a demonstration in Birmingham Ala., recently when Manager F. V. Merritt of the Empire theatre in that city arranged for a driving endurance contest featuring a stock car furnished by a local dealer and tying up directly with the showing of M-G-M's picture "Brotherly Love."

Mr. Earl Williams, known as "Napoleon, the World's Greatest Endurance Driver," put on a one hundred and fifty hour "Brotherly Love" endurance drive in a Durant car. Entire car was bannered. The top of the car carried this caption—On the 72nd hour of this great drive, "Brotherly Love," a Metro Goldwyn Mayer production, will open at the Empire Theatre. The drive started on a Friday at eleven o'clock. The banner was carried until Monday at eleven o'clock, when new banners were placed announcing the coming attractions at the Empire Theatre. A large clock was placed over the marquee of the theatre with this caption: "Watch the clock for Napoleon's great Brotherly Love Endurance drive. How many hours can he last?" Clock was set every five hours giving the number of hours. A window was obtained by Exploiteer of the Oster Furniture Co., and a sign placed there reading "At the End of the Drive, Mr. Williams will sleep in a Brotherly Love Bed Room Suite. Two nurses were obtained from a local hospital. They rode at all times with Mr. Williams, and their uniforms carried this caption: "They Show Brotherly Love by Keeping Napoleon in the Great Contest."

One of the heaviest billing campaigns that the Empire Theatre has so far carried was put over with this production. Fifteen electric lighted twenty-four sheets in the business district was obtained by the exploiteer.

Two hundred inches of free space was obtained from all three papers—Birmingham Post, News, and Age Herald. Teasers were used ten days in advance of the opening date. Space was increased until the day before opening and three column twelves were used in all three papers for Sunday, these with special stories and special art. The News broke on Sunday with a special art three column and story by Mr. Marzoni, the author of "Brotherly Love." On Saturday morning a free matinee was given Mr. Marzoni and three hundred orphans were his and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's guests. For the first time in the history of the Birmingham News a front page story was carried about a picture production.

At the Alabama and Swannee football game twelve thousand novelty football score heralds were given away.

Arrangements were made to carry free space in all the college papers, for free tickets. A contest was arranged for at the theatre asking "How Many Miles will Napoleon drive in the Brotherly Love Endurance Contest?" Free tickets were the prizes. Ten thousand heralds were distributed by paid advertising company.

Amateur Photo Makers Stir Up Interest in "The Cameraman"

2500 cards (4 x 8½) were circulated about the city which contained announcement of the contest—prizes—title of picture, theatre and play dates.

A local photo supply store co-operated in putting over the stunt. 25 prizes were at stake for the best amateur photographers submitting snap-shots which they have taken. Any pictures were considered, be they naturally, scenery, poses, children, etc.

The snap shot was to be pasted on the 4 x 9 card and turned in at the Rialto box office for consideration as to its merits in winning a prize.

The Supply Co. donated the first prize of a $20.00 Kodak; the other prizes were given by the theatre. 2nd prize—five dollars in gold; 3rd to 10th prizes—two tickets each to see the picture; and 11th to 25th prizes—one ticket each to see "The Cameraman."

Many persons took advantage of this simple contest to compete for prizes, while to others the cards containing the copy about contest and picture furnished them with something to talk about.

No Admissions at Opening of New Tampa Theatre

To celebrate the opening of the new Lisbon theatre in the Palma Ceia section of Tampa, Fla., Manager Gore decided to forget about profits and get people started coming, so he advertised the opening free to all, and what mobs he played to is nobody's business. Capacity, SRO, and all the other ames don't describe it.

STUDENTS at Cornell University at Ithaca, N. Y., will be allowed to whoop it up for all they are worth every Saturday night at the Strand Theatre in that city, according to an agreement made between the theatre and the student body last week. The theatre on Saturday night will be reserved for the exclusive use of Cornell students, who will be permitted to do all the booing, razzing and hissing they desire without encountering the theatre's strong arm squad as in the past. The "whoopie" night is a compromise growing out of a conflict between the theatre management and the student body.

THE managers of thirteen theatres in Allentown donated a full page advertisement in the Allentown Chronicle-News Item urging public support of the American Red Cross, appearing in the newspaper on November 10. The cooperating theatres and their owners or managers are: Lyric, Harry Gammet; Colonial, Robert M. Ferenbaugh; State, Walter J. Hurley; Strand, Dr. Benjamin H. Stuckart; Embassy, Alexander Boyd; Earle, Frank H. Mickle; Rialto, M. M. Shenkman; Franklin, Reuben Mainker; Hamilton, Herbert M. Meeker; Victor, Walter Z. Reinbold; Madison, R. M. Loux; Nineteenth Street, Reuben Mainker, and Cameo, M. J. Nederstock.

THE Regent theatre in Cleveland has inaugurated a Saturday Children's Matinee with great success. Everything of interest to youngsters appears on the program. In addition to a selected juvenile program which is announced in advance, a special surprise feature is added. This feature is not announced and interest in it is kept alive by trailers. The Regent is also forming a Kiddies Club. This club will have as its object the job of selecting its own screen hero, who will be featured on the screen.

MANAGER TOM HOLLIDAY got more than the usual amount of publicity when the Mayor officially received the print of "Wings" at the flying field. This stunt was pulled on the Saturday previous to the picture's Monday opening at the Ritz Theatre, Columbia, S. C. The plane delivering the print had painted on its sides, "Ritz Now Playing Wings."

CECIL B. GRIMES, of the Wilby-Grimes interests, operating the 'Bama, Belvedere and Diamond Theatres, in Tuscaloosa, Ala., offered prizes to Tuscaloosa merchants, for the best window display during the Homecoming Week of the University of Alabama Alumni.

STILLS from "Uncle Tom's Cabin," all cut up in puzzling pieces, invaded the fraternity and sorority houses of Perdue University during the run of the picture at the Luna Theatre in Lafayette, Indiana. The person who succeeded in assembling the pieces into a whole picture was admitted free to the show. The gag kept the students interested in the film.

IT is reported that A. L. Glassman of the Orpheum Theatre at Ogden, Utah, received the cooperation of the exhibitors throughout this territory in exploiting "The Singing Fool," by running trailers in some of their theatres advertising this picture.

Advises Overflow Crowds to Attend Rival Show Across the Street

TALKING pictures made such a hit at the Metropolitan Theatre, Winnipeg, Manitoba, that Manager Walter F. Davis made the suggestion in newspaper advertising that if the Metropolitan were filled the people could go across the street to another theatre, the Capitol, which is under the direction of L. C. Straw.

Manager Davis boosted the rival theatre in this manner during the week of October 29 when his sound feature was "Street Angel." Incidentally, he mentioned "The Cameraman," starring Buster Keaton, which was the attraction in the Capitol Theatre. Mr. Davis has also offered $1,000 for a new adjective to describe the success of sound pictures.

"Oldest Two Lovers" Idea Still Leads as Exploitation Ace

ACCORDING to reports on campaigns for "Two Lovers" in cities varied in size and locality, the most successful single piece of exploitation developed for this picture is the human interest story which is built around the contests to find the "oldest two lovers" in the town. This stunt has particular local appeal and has met with hearty response from newspapers and merchants, who are necessary to the handling of the idea. The newspapers conduct the search for the oldest married couple in town, feature pictures of them and give publicity to local merchants who contribute merchandise to be awarded to them in conjunction with parties at theatres.

An "Oldest Two Lovers" contest was conducted by the Atlanta Constitution, tying-up with "Two Lovers" run at the Howard Theatre, Atlanta.

Not only did the newspaper feature its search for the married couples wedded fifty years or longer, with rewards provided by the theatre and by merchants, but it also dined the forty and more couples, after which they were guests at a theatre party, with the Howard as host, to see Ronald Colman and Vilma Banky in the United Artists Picture that inspired the newspaper's human interest stunt. The leading winners in the contest, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Bailey, proved to have been married 64 years and 11 months. The contest ran two weeks and was featured daily with big art.

Other newspapers which successfully ran similar contests tying up with "Two Lovers" were: the Syracuse Post-Standard, Rochester Democrat & Chronicle, Montreal, La Patrie, Newark Ledger, Allentown Chronicle-News, Memphis Appeal, Utica Observer-Dispatch, Springfield, O., Sun, Illinois State Register, Cleveland Press, Houston Press, Washington News, Milwaukee Sentinel, Baltimore Post, Indianapolis Star, Altoona Tribune, Pittsburgh Press, Toledo Blade, Akron Times-Press, and Albany News.

Projects Returns on Separate Screen at Election Nite Show

ELECTION returns gathered, tabulated and presented to patrons so rapidly that the early compilation and announcement of Hoover's success nearly knocked a proposed midnight show for a goal featured the service of the Great Lakes Theatre, Buffalo, offered its patrons the evening of November 6th.

Managing director H. M. Addison, in charge of the election night services, is being generally congratulated on the success of his innovation. A supplemental screen, 12 feet square, was erected beside the regular screen. A special machine in the booth was arranged to take care of slides, shown during the progress of "the Terror." Co-operation of the Buffalo Evening News brought all the resources of that newspaper's organization into play. The returns, tabulated at the newspaper office after being collected in the usual way, were telephoned to the radio studio in the Great Lakes theatre building and from there broadcast, between numbers played by the Great Lakes Theatre orchestra and specialties by entertainers provided by the theatre.

As a double protection against delay, a Western Union special election return wire was installed in the theatre, to take results from that organization's service. The operator was on from 6 o'clock until the close of the party.

A loud speaker in the manager's office picked up these returns as they went out on the air. The theatre's publicity director, long a newspaper man, took off the loud-speaker what was necessary to provide bulletins and gave it to two typists, who hustled out the slides, which were rushed to the booth by a messenger and shown at once.

Split-Week Policy at K-A Riverside in New York

Beginning Sunday, the Keith-Albee Riverside Theatre changed its full-week policy and becomes a so-called split-week theatre, changing its programs of Keith-Albee-Orpheum vaudeville and photoplays bi-weekly on Sunday and Thursdays.

Plays 167 Pieces in Test for Job as Lobby Pianist

An example of the musical virtuosity being sought by de luxe motion picture theatres in their efforts to gratify the tastes of a large and varied type of patronage is furnished by Miss Ruth Bingham, pianist and composer, who has been selected for the position of lobby pianist for the new Paramount theatre in Brooklyn, N. Y.

Before Boris Morros, general music director for Publix, selected Miss Bingham for the job he put her through a two-hour test during which he shot the names of 167 compositions at her, and all of which she played from memory. The selections called for comprised a curious musical hodge-podge. Chopin's "Waltz in A Minor," Tchaikowsky's "Pathetique Symphony," "Yes, We Have No Bananas!" Irving Berlin's "All Alone," a Bach fugue, a chorale from Searlatti, "Everybody's Doing It!" and Handel's "Messiah" were among the pieces which Miss Bingham played.

5-Page News Section Hails "Sound" in Meriden

"Sound" pictures were introduced at the Fox-Poli Theatre in Meriden, Conn., with a ballyhoo that blanketed the town, the drive accumulating as much power as would be developed for a new million-dollar picture palace. The campaign which was staged under the direction of Howard Waugh, manager of the Palace, had as one of its leading features a five-page special section in the Meriden Record.

The newspaper gave twelve full columns of publicity to the event. The Palace was represented by a full-page ad and the balance of the space was occupied by special displays of local merchants. This merchant advertising all tied-up directly with the presentation of "The Singing Fool" and Fox Movietone News at the theatre.

"Excursions" Title Given Shows of "Fleet's In"

Part of Manager M. A. Baker's lobby display for "The Fleet's In" playing at the Colfax Theatre, South Bend, Ind., was a new price sign in which nautical terms were used.

Promenade Deck ...	35c
Crow's Nest	25c
Passengers under 12 years	15c

For the matinees, the sign was worded, "Afternoon Excursions" 25c.

Opinions on Pictures

The Midnight Taxi

Crook Melodrama Fair-to-Middlin'
(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

THERE'S enough action and excitement to keep this one moving, even if it is patterned after conventional ideas. The underworld is exposed here—the modern underworld of bootleggers coupled with much framing and cheating cheaters. A young clerk is convicted of stealing bonds and his girl friend is ready to aid him with some detective work of her own. The picture is shot full of dialogue and sound effects—and most of it is recorded well enough. The title is derived from a bunch of the boys who use taxis to rush the booze.

The plot never falters but keeps moving with lots of kick to it. The acting honors go to Tommy Dugan whose vocal effects are productive of many laughs. He plays his character with authority as well as a sense of humor. Antonio Moreno is good in his role, though his talking scenes don't measure up to his moments when he's silent. As for Helene Costello she does first rate. She is very careful of her utterances which makes her somewhat self-conscious. But the girl will develop with proper coaching. The lesser roles are filled capably.

"Midnight Taxi" is fairly representative of the talking films. It isn't released as something superlative and as a result those who see it will not be disappointed. The picture is not all-talkie, there being several scenes worked out through pantomime.

Drawing Power: Suitable for average house. Cast should attract. Exploitation Angles: Bill names of the underworld.

THEME: Crook melodrama of rum-runners, etc., with hero emerging triumphant.

Produced and distributed by Warner Brothers. Length, six reels. Released, November, 1928.

Old-Timer Makes Fairly Clever Picture

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

THE talkies are certainly going to the old-timers for expression and finding them fairly able to keep pace with the modern stories and plays. Here is one of them which has served both stage and screen and which has been widely imitated in various forms. Its obviousness is against it—the director must have sensed that fact because of the kidding he gives the central character and the hokum he has injected to keep it on the up and up.

William Haines plays the crook who reforms and does it in his customary playful manner—which may or may not please the fans. This writer admits that the star hasn't sufficient poker face to make the O. Henry character true to his environment. But Haines kids along and Jimmy is not a half-bad skate at all. It is when the talkie sequence is introduced at the climax that he is eclipsed by Lionel Barrymore as his nemesis, the detective. The scene is fairly tense, but Haines is self-conscious and Barrymore's stage presence comes to the rescue and saves the entire situation.

There's considerable hokum. For instance the shots of the small town where the crook worked out his redemption. Too much hooey is injected into burlesquing a country church. One minute you think you're in a fair-sized town and the next you read on an awning—General Store. The voices register with too much volume—and too much "hot potato" in the throats. It is satisfactorily staged and tells its story evenly and progressively enough. It should do business. Tully Marshall makes a rich character sketch as the hero's pal, but Leila Hyams appears lost in the talkie scenes.

Drawing Power: Should go well through title and popularity of star. Suitable for all types of houses. Exploitation Angles: Tease title and use song for musical setting. Play up Haines, Miss Hyams and Tully Marshall. Also Barrymore. Feature as new talkie version of famous story and play, the story having been written by O. Henry.

THEME: Melodrama of crook who reforms under the spell of love.

Produced and distributed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Length, six reels. Released, November, 1928. Director, Jack Conway.

Dave.....	Lionel Barrymore

"The Campus Vamp"

(Pathe—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by George J. Reddy)

MACK SENNETT corralled the cream of his players for appearance in this comic, but failed to back them with a suitable vehicle, with the result of a sad waste of valuable talent. The story, which is a light one, carries a college atmosphere, and features the love triangle of a sweet young girl, a boy and a meddling vamp. Harry Edwards, who wielded the megaphone, made the most of a poorly gagged yarn, and the same may be said of a hard-working cast, which contains such high-powered names as Daphne Pollard and Johnny Burke, both former headline vaudeville performers; Sally Eilers, Matty Kemp and Carole Lombard. Some time back the appearance of a crew of Sennett bathing girls disporting themselves at the beach would have been sufficient to make any film a success, but on this occasion they register just so much atmosphere. Several technicolor sequences that have been worked into this subject and featuring the girls are quite dressy, but lend very little to the entertainment value of the picture. It is the writer's opinion that producers of comedy should avoid sacrificing continuity and gags for an attempt at the artistic.

Homecoming

Heavy, Morbid Drama From Germany
(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

IT'S meaty and matured and it will either make you sit up and take notice and praise it or pass it up as something too heavy to be entertaining. The picture comes from Germany and deals with life in the raw—life as expressed in tense heart-beats reflecting the eternal triangle.

It's not so pleasant to watch because the players make it too vivid. But the Ufa people always see a picture plot through come what may from the theme. This time they project two friends of the war, with one of them courting the other's wife when he thinks his comrade is dead. And the story introduces the Enoch Arden touch as the gallant husband renounces his love and fades out of the picture.

It is told with economy of acting and settings—and naturally, with no extraneous matter to annoy him, the director got right down to business and told his story. But there's little variation to it aside from the conflicts generated by the heart-strings of the characters. Perhaps this is sufficient to keep the spectators interested. At any rate it sticks to its theme, even if it chances to displease those who don't care for heavy, morbid tales. It is treated with reality. This quality is all too rare on a screen which capitulates too easily to passing the old hokum bucket.

Drawing Power: Needs exploitation. Suitable for houses catering to audiences inclined to take films seriously. Exploitation Angles: Play up as story of renunciation—with husband performing self-sacrifice to see his wife happy. Mention Lars Hanson and fact that it was made by German Ufa company.

THEME: Triangle drama of husband's renunciation.

Produced by Ufa. Distributed by Paramount. Length, six reels. Released, November, 1928. Director, Joe May.

"In the Morning"

(Educational—One Reel)

NO sooner has he joined the ranks of the Educational players, than Vernon Dent is starred in a vehicle. This is exercising proper judgment on the part of Educational, for this artist is a talented individual whose gayness and talent for humor has long been a feature of the Sennett productions. He is seen to good advantage in this one reeler made up of slapstick and once in a while a better brand of fun.

"In the Morning" shows Dent as a boarder in a lodging house whose efforts to complete his morning shave are continually hindered by persistent fellow boarders also anxious to scrape the hirsute growth from their countenances. It starts off well with Dent doing some effective solo pantomime, but with the entrance of other players in the cast the humor becomes all slapstick.

Ten Days That Shook the World

An Interesting Russian Film
(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

THE Soviet's version of the book by John Reed contains some well pictured drama of a people in revolt, although it cheers too lustily for Lenin and the things his adherents achieved when they broke the Kerensky government during those days of October, 1917, glorified as "The Ten Days That Shook the World."

First of all, let it be stated that this is not an audience picture and at best will hold an appeal for a limited few. There is considerable doubt of its strength with the average American movie-goer. But there is no question of its appeal to persons of Slavic extraction and any exhibitor can recommend it to the patron who appreciates such things as kaleidoscopic photography; a driving, inspirational direction; marvelous mass movement; and true types of men and women.

Directed by the brilliant Eisenstein, the picture has plenty of cinematic ideas, the director making a compelling use of vivid contrasts and symbolism. He propels his story with vigor and while the picture is not on a par with his "End of St. Petersburg" it has a justified claim to near greatness in the richness of its material shaped with so sure a hand as Eisenstein's. The film has abundant energy.

Drawing Power: Fine for Slavic clientele or for "arty" type of movie-goer, but decidedly not for Main Street. Exploitation Angles: Bill as story of Red Russia, a theme which has been popular lately. Mention Lenin, Trotsky, Kerensky, etc. Promise brilliant virtuosity in direction.

THEME: The overthrow of the Kerensky forces by the Soviets.

Produced by Sovkino of Moscow. Distributed in the United States and Canada by Amkino. Length, 8,600 feet. Direction and Scenario, S. M. Eisenstein and G. V. Aleksandrov. Story by John Reed. Cameraman, E. Tisse.

The Good-Bye Kiss

Fairly Interesting War Film
(Reviewed by Chester J. Smith)

IF one is not inclined to be too critical he can get some good entertainment out of this Mack Sennett feature which tells a simple, if at times, illogical war story. Some of the sequences are entirely implausible with a decided lack of discipline manifest in the ranks of Uncle Sam's warriors. In fact there are times when it borders on the ridiculous, but if these shortcomings can be overlooked there is enough good tragedy, comedy, suspense and romance to make it all worth while.

The leading roles are in the hands of Johnny Burke and Sally Eilers, comparatively new as leading players, and while they have their shortcomings, their work all in all is acceptable. The material which they handle is almost sure-fire stuff.

The tale is somewhat different than the usual war story. Here we have a hero who is a coward under fire, such a despicable coward that he all but deserts before the real danger presents itself and is saved from doing so only through the efforts of the young Salvation Army girl who is at much at home in the front line trench as she is in the gayer scenes in Paris. This hero is most heroic anywhere but along the battle lines. It is a trifling incident in his young life to stop a runaway horse and save a couple of lives. He fears nothing until he gets into the war zone and then there is nothing he does not fear.

The girl has stowed away on the boat with him and is taken in charge by a sympathetic Salvation Army worker. She joins the ranks of that organization and is right on the job with the hero from that moment on. At the height of an air raid the cowardly young leading man cringes in a panic of fright and is about to desert until he is brought to his senses by the girl. Then he becomes the real hero, accomplishing one of the most daring feats of the war.

Drawing Power: It is a story that has many angles of appeal and one that should serve fairly well as a box-office attraction; Exploitation Angles: The thrilling war sequences; the producer's name; the pretty romance.

THEME: Small town hero, first among the war volunteers finds himself a coward when he reaches the battle front, is spurred on by the girl he loves who stows away on the ship with him and becomes a Salvation Army worker. She gives him the necessary courage and he becomes a real hero.

Produced by Mack Sennett. Distributed by First National. Length, 7,989 feet. Released, July 22, 1928. The Cast: Johnny Burke, Sally Eilers, Matty Kemp, Wheeler Oakman, Carmelita Geraghty, Alma Bennett.

"Pathe Review No. 48"

(Pathe—One Reel)

AS was the case in Pathe Review release No. 45, this new issue presents as its high light of entertainment another fashion feature, which on this occasion has been filmed in the elaborate headquarters of the Brothers Worth in Paris. This subject pictures the inner workings of the foremost style emporium in the French Capitol, and other intimate studies of the establishment's operators. Other sequences of this reel are: "Rural England," revealing beautiful scenes near old Canterbury in Kent, excellently done in Pathecolor, and "Broadway Takes to the Woods," an attractive girl subject, in which the Gamby-Hale dancing queens appear in a picturesque outdoor rehearsal on the shores of Long Island Sound, New York. An average good reel.—GEORGE J. REDDY.

"Misplaced Husbands"

(Educational—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

DOROTHY DEVORE is starred in this comedy production and Harold Goodwin, Robert Graves, Edna Gregory and Eva Thatcher are the other players. The direction was done by Charles Lamont under the supervision of Jack White and William Hyer turned in the photography.

The production is not very funny. The scenes develop the story fairly well, but they do not contain real peppy gags which are the life-blood of a comedy. Being quite gagless, they fall back often on slapstick.

Miss Devore plays a wife who marries another man when she believes her husband, an arctic explorer, is lost for good. He shows up after her wedding in a daze and procures the job of her butler. When his wife sees him, she forgets all about her second hubby and centers her affections on the returned one. With two husbands she has her hands full but finally the second husband is ejected by the first and all ends happily.

"Pathe News Mt. Etna Special"

(Pathe—600 Feet)

THE Pathe News cameraman who covered the story of the eruption of Mount Etna in Sicily has the satisfaction of knowing that he did his job thoroughly and well. The views that he obtained at risk of his life have been incorporated into a current issue of Pathe News. They tell a complete story of the volcano's fury and are a splendid adjunct to any newsreel. It has been said that a picture is worth a thousand words. With this in mind one reviewing this bit of camera reporting can rightfully say that Signor Giovanni Pucci's film record of the destruction of Mascalì by a stream of molten lava is worth numberless columns of type.

The terrific destruction wrought by the volcano on the fertile mountain side is amply realized in the Pathe shots. The lava, reported to be 30 feet in height, is seen relentlessly advancing at a speed of about 300 yards an hour. The black, ugly mass smashes down the structures of the Sicilian town as if they were made of papier mache. The fiery volcanic rocks were photographed at close range and the destruction of the city was taken in by the camera's eye.

This cataclysm of nature is a topic of live importance. Covered so ably as it is in this Pathe News special, it deserves to flash its way before all audiences to let them become acquainted with a modern counterpart of the fate that overtook Pompeii. It is a splendid film record of a great event.—RAYMOND GANLY.

"A Clean Sweep"

(Universal—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by George J. Reddy)

A VERY ordinary Western featurette is this Universal effort, which presents as its featured player George Chandler. It is a flimsy piece of work, with little or nothing in its favor but a touch of hard riding, the usual scraps and a weak attempt at humor on the part of Chandler. This is not intended as a slap at the players, for they are only able to register according to the material given. As is usual with a Western, however, this subject will find its place and audience.

Chandler appears as a vacuum cleaner salesman, in a characterization (a la Keaton), who invades the wild and woolly West to peddle his wares. Kidnapped by bandits, he overhears their plot to rob the payroll of a ranch owner. He escapes in his trusty flivver, with the outlaws close on his trail, gives the ranchman warning, and in a rough-and-tumble battle that ensues, aids in the successful overpowering of the gang, and wins the hand of the rancher's daughter.

"A Patchwork of Pictures"

(Educational—One Reel)

THE subject matter of this one-reeler has not been put together very well. The reel could stand some more editing and trimming of its animated sequences. A more interesting brand of pictorial shots would have made this Hodge-Podge about 50 per cent better than it is in its present form.

The subject contains views of sheep being fed from the bottle; a small native of the isle of Trinidad inhibiting the milk of a cocoanut; a gold prospector in the Crazy Mts. of Montana.

A slowness and often a dullness handicap this reel. There have been better Hodge-Podges.—RAYMOND GANLY.

"Handicapped"

(Universal—One Reel)

AN excellent short subject with a much higher tone than the general run of shorts is this Laemmle Novelty production from the series of that name now being produced by some imaginative and clever young men in the Universal ranks of picturemakers.—R. GANLY.

DEVELOPING AND PRINTING MOTION PICTURE FILM

New and Remodeled Theatres Opened in Central Penn.

A NUMBER of important Central Pennsylvania picture houses, representing an aggregate investment of more than a million dollars, were dedicated to public use in the latter part of October and the early part of November.

The new Roxy, at Ashland, erected at a cost of a quarter of a million, was formally opened on the night of October 31, by John Schreck, owner and operator. This structure has a seating capacity of 1,200 and is equipped with all modern facilities, including apparatus for sound and talking pictures. The Architectural plans were laid out by William H. Lee, of Philadelphia.

Wilmer & Vincent's new State theatre, Bethlehem, formerly the Lehigh-Orpheum, which has been practically rebuilt, was reopened November 8. The house offers a seating capacity of 850, and its architecture is of Spanish type. There is also a court yard, which by the use of a complicated lighting system can instantly be transformed into a moonlight effect.

The Strand theatre, Sunbury, which has been completely rebuilt by the Comerford Theatres, Inc., of Scranton, was reopened November 12, under the direction of J. M. Blanchard, district representative of the above mentioned chain in Sunbury and vicinity. This remodeled house is of fire-proof structure, and is of modern and artistic construction. Seating capacity 1,200.

November 19 was the date of the reopening of Arthur Snyder's Victor theatre, Pottstown, previously known as the Opera House. More than $30,000 was spent in the improving of this building, including new seating arrangements. The capacity is 900.

Following a complete overhauling, the Majestic theatre, Catasauqua, has just been reopened, under the management of Noah Wentz. The original exterior of the theatre has been preserved, but the interior has been thoroughly modernized. It is the only house in Catasauqua.

Construction Notes and Theatre Openings

The new Pekin Theatre at Pekin, Illinois, which will have a seating capacity of fifteen hundred, will open within the next thirty days. Manager Fluegel, inspired by the name of his home city, has had the architectural treatment of the theatre carried out in Chinese manner. Architect Behrendt, who has designed many houses including John Miller's theatre at Woodstock, is responsible for the new Pekin.

Watts and Thornton have transferred the leases of the Princess Theatre, a first run house, and the Vaudeville, a second run house, of Springfield, Illinois, to Dominick and Frascini. It is reported that the new owners contemplate making improvements in the Princess, including the installation of a thirty-six foot electric sign, new organ, seats and marquee, and will also refurbish the Vaudeville wherever it seems to be required. A straight picture policy will be continued in both houses, the Princess having Vitaphone and Movietone installations. This deal leaves Watts & Thornton as operators of the Gaiety, which has been going over big as a stock house.

Two years ago Leon Cazin took over the Royal in West Tampa, Florida. He remodeled it and re-opened under the name of Cazin Theatre. Now, he has outgrown the house and is going to erect another Cazin on the lot adjoining the present theatre. Plans have been drawn for the new house by Nicholas Mitchell, architect, and calls for a house with a seating capacity of 750. The lower floor to have 525 and the balcony to have 225 seats. There will be a stage so that vaudeville acts can be played. "Construction will start pronto," says Leon, "And I expect to be in the new house in exactly four months from the day we break the ground." The house will cost around $75,000 equipped.

One of the most beautiful theatres in its class in Iowa, is the Granada at Webster City, which had its opening within the last month. The theatre seats 600 and Webster City feels justly proud of this modern and attractive picture palace. The house has been re-constructed from the old Orpheum, that Stephens and Puffer had operated for years, and which had been closed for some time while extensive alterations were being made.

The fact that there is but one factor to emphasize—the star, Al Jolson—results in concentrated appeal developed in newspaper displays exploiting "The Singing Fool." The ads shown are reproductions of layouts of the following theatres: Alabama, Birmingham; Howard, Atlanta; Music Box, Seattle; Apollo, Indianapolis; Newman, Kansas City; Roger Sherman, New Haven, and a novel "hold-over" ad for Schines Eckel in Syracuse, N. Y.

-box office Value!

Exhibitors who keep a watchful eye on the "box office" find that Robert Morton music has a definite and permanent place in successful theatre operation, and that it is an investment that pays for itself in increased "box office receipts!"

No other make of organ approaches Robert Morton in Quality, Volume, Distinctiveness of tone, Orchestral Resources or Variety of Effects. It is the most powerful single factor any Exhibitor can employ to provide a complete Picture Presentation Program.

Yet for all its unquestioned superiority the Robert Morton is among the least expensive theatre Organs to own - not only because it is more durable and costs less for up-keep - but it pays for itself through increased patronage.

PATHE SOUND NEWS No. 2 has even surpassed No. 1, setting a new standard for sound news reels to shoot at. Timely, original, exciting—it is first page news dramatized with the finest effects since sound became a medium.

SEEK SALVATION IN CHINATOWN

New York—Tom Noonan of the "Church in Overalls" rescues city's souls in pawn.

(Noonan, in his famous mission in Chinatown, is seen and heard in a characteristically witty talk—the kind that has made him front page material in metropolitan newspapers.)

SEE AND HEAR HOLIDAY DINNER

Sudbury, Mass.—Davis Turkey farm presents its graduating class of 1928.

(Flocks of Holiday fodder "on the hoof", with the gobblers registering their voices in chorus and solos).

1 YEAR OLD TOTS FORM OWN BAND

Boston—Whole class takes up a kindergarten course in jazz effects.

(A jazz symphony of tots from 2 to 6 jazzing to beat the band. A corking novelty made for sound).

STARS TRAIN FOR HOCKEY SEASON

Springfield, Mass.—Strenuous workout brings champion Rangers into form.

THE CLIMAX TO A GREAT REEL

The last number in this great reel presents the most graphic and startling novelty ever shown in a sound-picture—a double-exposed sound track as well as a double-exposed picture.

Following the thrilling and historic embarkation of the Yanks for "Over There" a decade ago, while a voice sings: "Goodbye Broadway, Hello France," the scene dissolves into the battlefield graves of France. Phantom figures march across the screen while a bugle plays softly in the distance as a voice in the foreground recites "In Flanders Fields."

Calling A Halt

Sound Rush Shows Signs of Common Sense

By William A. Johnston

MR. ZUKOR reaches California and gives out a statement that the silent picture is not dead by a long shot. On the contrary, making every picture talk 100% would be, he says, a step downhill.

Effects and dialogue he regards as adjuncts, not the main proposition. It is his first pronouncement on the subject of sound pictures and it is certain to have a sobering effect.

The sound fever patient is apparently passing the crisis. Temperature may now be expected to go lower, and may even reach normal before very long.

This first mad rush to make everything talk, regardless of whether there was anything to say, and whether the talk fitted the picture, has to come to an end sometime, and it might as well be now.

Several months ago, speaking of this very point, we said: Sound is properly the exclamation point of the picture.

But attempting to build all pictures wholly out of exclamation points is dramatically and commercially dangerous.

It is perfectly true that the public wants talking pictures. But it is absolute folly to suppose that just because a picture talks the public will now receive it with open arms.

We have passed that stage, and it will be well if those in the industry who are not aware of the fact, wake up to it quickly.

The silent picture is, as Mr. Zukor indicated, the result of fifteen years, or more, of work. It can't be thrown away, even if we wanted to. On the other hand, there is a field, and a definite one, for the 100% talker. But it is a specialized field. Not every story is suited to such treatment. Many a story can be told most effectively with pantomime, plus sound or dialogue effects; others should talk all the way.

We go back, once more, to our contention made a very long time ago: the solution lies in classification of pictures. At the studios, first, of course. But, equally so, at the theatre.

Otherwise, sound, which is a very great step forward, instead of being a life-saver will become a Frankenstein. The production forces have their work cut out for them; it's a huge job, if it is to be done right. But the exhibitor also must do his part. Let him begin by not misleading the public. Wise exhibitors have already adopted this enlightened and honest policy. All exhibitors should do so. There is no excuse for letting the public think it is going to "see and hear" a sound picture, much less a talker, when the facts are otherwise. There has been too much of this sort of thing, and it should stop.

Pictures should be classified in production, and made in the medium that actually fits the story. And they should be classified at the theatre, for the public, unmistakably.

Along those two roads lie the safety and well-being of this industry.

"Redskin"

Reviewed by Edwin Schallert

(Editor of the Los Angeles Times Preview and Special Correspondent of Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, November 28.—What color photography can do to enhance the interest of a production photographed largely in the outdoors, and on new locations is amply demonstrated in Richard Dix's starring film, "Redskin." This is the feature that Paramount made in the Indian districts of the Southwest, and while its plot is hackneyed, there is no question about the film's pictorial values. It will be liked by all audiences who appreciate the screen's scope in capturing the scenically unusual.

The story of "Redskin" is obviously romantic. It pertains to a young Indian chieftain and girl of a neighboring and inimical tribe, who fall in love during their school years, who are separated by the hate between their respective peoples, and who eventually manage to escape the old traditions, and find happiness together.

Dix impersonates the Indian youth, Fleet Wing, and Gladys Belmont, is the girl, Corn Blossom. They occupy the center of the stage almost exclusively in the plot, though rather important roles are played by Jane Novak, Tully Marshall and Lawrence Steers. There are many native Indians in the production, and the views of their ceremonies, their rug-patterning and weaving, their tribal festivities, are exceptionally fascinating. Dix as the hero comes into wealth at the end of the story by virtue of filing a claim on oil lands. He succeeds also as the peacemaker between the two rival contingents of red men.

All of this picture, with the exception of a couple of reels, is photographed in color. The black and white portion shows the Indians during their school days. In some ways "Redskin" reminds of "The Vanishing American," but ends happily. As a production with color it is distinctly interesting.

Denies Hays Connection

Woodhull Asserts Status of M. P. T. O. A. at Convention Of Ohio Exhibitors; W. M. James Re-elected President

ACHARGE that the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America were connected with the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America was emphatically denied by R. F. Woodhull, head of the national body of exhibitors, at the convention of the Ohio M. P. T. O. in Columbus. About 275 exhibitors attended the meeting and discussed non-theatrical competition, the music tax evil, Sunday shows and other items of interest. The gathering unanimously re-elected W. M. James president for a fifth term.

Other officers elected were: J. J. Harwood, Cleveland, and Vice-President-at-large J. A. Ackerman, Cincinnati; Henry Bieberson, Jr., Delaware; John Damm, Wadsworth; George Fenberg, Granville, secretary; and Harry Abram, Lancaster, treasurer. The trustees appointed were: H. H. Lustig, Cleveland; Martin Smith, Toledo; John Schwalen, Hamilton; Arthur Himmelein, Sandusky; I. Lipson, Cincinnati; Caldwell Brown, Zanesville.

To refute the imputation that the united theatre owners are affiliated with the Hays office, Mr. Woodhull quoted the amounts paid in the treasury by members of the M. P. T. O. A. The financial plans of the national organization adopted last week at a meeting of the trustees call for assessment of $100 per year for each state unit and $5 per year per theatre, said Mr. Woodhull in answer to the charge that the Hays office is financing his organization.

The gathering decided that non-theatrical competition can only be restricted in specific instances and that concerted action against such competition is not possible as it would be a violation of the Sherman act.

The exhibitors concluded that relief from the music tax could come only through Congress. They planned unified backing against those forces opposed to Sunday showings and who are now contesting the rights of many exhibitors throughout the state to exhibit films on the Sabbath. Mike Simmons, of Sonora-Bristolphone, addressed the convention on "Merchandising with Sound."

C. Kurtzman Made Publix San Francisco Manager

Charley Kurtzman will assume the position of San Francisco district manager for Publix when the divorcee between Publix and West Coast becomes operative on December 1. His appointment came by wire from E. R. Crabill, the Publix Pacific Coast manager, and followed a conference between Messrs. Crabill and Sam Katz, Publix head.

Hot Criticism Launched Against Canadian Film

"Carry On, Sergeant," the war feature produced at the Ontario Government studio at Trenton, Ontario, by Canadian International Films, Limited, Toronto, has been given a rough ride by critics since its world's first showing started at the Regent

Theatre, Toronto. There is even an intimation that the Ontario Government, which loaned considerable assistance to the producing company because of the Canadian angle, may demand the withdrawal of the feature because of the public rumpus. Printed comments are that "Carry On, Sergeant" is a reflection upon the Canadian military forces because of its story but the picture cannot be changed, it is stated, because the whole theme would be involved. The feature cost $500,000, it is generally stated.

The story deals with a Canadian sergeant, a married man, who becomes entangled with a woman in France and finally seeks death in action because of the affair. Col. W. H. Price, Attorney-General for Ontario, is said to be aroused against the feature. The making of the picture took 18 months.

A.M.P.A. Luncheon Draws Large Crowd

The Associated Motion Picture Advertisers held a luncheon last Thursday, November 22, at the Paramount Hotel in New York which was well attended. The program of entertainment included several numbers from Dorothy McCarthy and speeches by Sam Harris and Nat Rothstein.

Mr. Rothstein, the latest Ampa to travel abroad, related his personal observations on things theatrical in England and on the Continent. Mr. Harris, donor of the trophy awarded to Dr. Giannini last week, thanked the organization for its sponsoring of the event. President George W. Harvey, in introducing Mr. Harris, expressed his enthusiasm for the success of the affair and thanked Edward Klein and his committee, who handled the dinner, and the Board of Directors, who chose Dr. Giannini.

K. C. Daylight Saving Up to Public

With a special committee of the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce busy in endeavoring to obtain public opinion on the question of daylight saving time, the matter is causing considerable of a stir in theatrical circles of that city. The committee has decided to leave the question entirely to the public. Hearings thus far have been heard, with the exhibitors being represented by A. H. Cole and Lawrence Lehman of the Orpheum Theatre. Letters from the public to the Chamber of Commerce indicate that citizens are about evenly divided in opinion. The exhibitors are waging a hard fight against change of time, and feel that they will win out.

Mo. Town Imposes Stiff Sentence for Violators

The City Council at Columbia, Mo., has passed a city ordinance which produces a fine of $100 and three months imprisonment in the city jail for admitting cash customers to motion picture theatres and other amusement places on Sundays.

This action is the answer of the reform element to the movement started by the Junior Chamber of Commerce of Columbia in favor of Sunday movies.

The Federation of Churches and seven individual churches claiming a total membership of 4,000 men and women are opposed to Sunday shows.

Chase's Pow-Wow A Big Flop; Slim Crowd; Much Discord

Canon's "Conference" May Never Meet Again; Usual Resolutions Passed But This Time Strong Opposition Develops

WASHINGTON, November 27. — Pointing with pride and viewing alarm, Canon William Sheafe Chase's sixth national motion picture conference, after trying for 24 hours to work up some real enthusiasm among the 50 or 60 persons in attendance, adopted some resolutions and adjourned today, possibly never to meet again as a body. The attendance was in great contrast to the several hundred persons who were present at the first meeting about five years ago.

Motion pictures are becoming mechanically and artistically better but morally worse, the conference voted. And resolutions were adopted favoring Federal regulation, indorsing the Walsh resolution and the Brookhart and Hudson bills, sponsoring a plan suggested by former Federal Trade Commissioner Huston Thompson for "ensorless censorship," and calling upon all organizations favoring Federal censorship and the exhibitors, affiliated and unaffiliated, to appoint delegates to a meeting to draft a legislative program for submission to Congress for censorship.

In Short—A Flop

The meeting was what is known in the box office as a flop. And a bad one, too, because there did not seem to be that unanimity which has been the aim of Canon Chase and to secure which he announced that the "open forum" at which any phase of the questions before the conference could be discussed or questions asked, would not include either statements or questions by anyone opposed to regulation. Yet there was all through the conference an undercurrent of opposition, which culminated in the walking out of the delegate of one national organization and the opposing votes of a half-dozen others when the resolutions were brought up behind closed and guarded doors.

The conference opened Monday night with a supper—$3.50 each, collect in advance—at which Senator Brookhart and Representative Grant M. Hudson outlined their measures. Senator Walsh was not present, although invited, finding business elsewhere. He sent a nice letter, though, expressing his regret and saying that his resolution ought to be given the immediate attention of Congress and that the film industry is "marked by malpractices" which should be investigated.

Although expressing some grief over the fact that some of the exhibitors originally in favor of his bill now showed less enthusiasm, a feeling later to be increased when Frank Rembusch of Indiana deserted, Senator Brookhart told the gathering he would stick by his guns, and suggested that the wholesale desertion of the exhibitors might be investigated as another example of the "trickery" of the producers' organization.

By CLARENCE L. LINZ

(Washington Correspondent, Motion Picture News)

'Censorship Complexes'

D. R. CARLETON SIMON, noted alienist, and for several years special deputy police commissioner in New York, attended the Chase Conference in Washington and issued this statement:

"Many sincere and excellent persons," he said, "attend meetings of this kind. An appeal on the basis of good morals always draws honest support and I would not impugn the motives of such persons. Yet the psychologist knows that in groups which persistently launch themselves into the public eye with complexes like that of censorship a scientist can find useful subjects for study.

"The censorship complex is in itself a manifestation of well-understood impulses. The way in which the chairman of this meeting calmly announced an 'open' forum but forbade any arguments against the bills under consideration is perfectly typical of bigotry, although the scientist knows that unfortunate twists from the normal should be viewed with pity. Motion pictures have nothing to do with crime, but censorship might well help increase it. I note that Chicago has the strictest form of municipal censorship of any city in the country. It is almost impossible for the normal man to understand an analysis of the minds of real professional reformers. Whoever doesn't agree with them is damned and dishonest. That is the basis for all they do and say."

The million-dollar educational provision of the Hudson bill might be unconstitutional, and one or two provisions might be changed, the author of the measure admitted after he finished supper, but it still is a good bill, which was a nice statement in view of the fact that the real author of the organization plan, Canon Chase, was seated beside him. But it is not censorship, Mr. Hudson declared; that is a word repugnant to him and he wouldn't think of it. But he didn't say what it was.

Minister Scores Conferences

The first intimation that all was not well came when the Reverend William Murdoch MacLeod, a Pinehurst, N. C., minister, declared that he was getting clean pictures in his town through the cooperation of Charles W. Piquet, the local exhibitor, and challenged the right of the conference to put the ministers of the country on record in favor of censorship. After a few minutes during which he gave signs of physical discomfort, Canon Chase as chairman declared the speaker out of order as the conference was for those in sympathy with the movement.

The Tuesday sessions were devoted to a discussion of "what is wrong with the motion picture." Lurid details of alleged salacious scenes in various pictures and their effect upon children and youths were given by Professor Harmon B. Stephens of the University of Tennessee, Dr. C. G. Twombly, of Lancaster, Pa.; Miss Dora Stecker, formerly a social worker and now an exhibitor in Cincinnati; Miss Maude Aldrich of Portland, Ore., WCTU and others.

As the arguments of these and other speakers are well known to the industry after five years of reiteration, it is necessary only to say that Dr. Twombly characterized the conference's work as "a fight for the life of the country"; Professor Stephens charged that "dollar determined standards" were the only standards known in the industry, and Miss Stecker complained that "crime on the screen is playing havoc with the exhibitors' profits."

Delegates from Dr. Twombly's own city took exception to his talk, and declared they were successful in suppressing undesirable films and the doctor ought to work with them and get somewhere, and the doctor said that the women's association ought to work for him. Then another delegate pointed out that Dr. Twombly and Miss Stecker expressed opposing sentiments, and Mrs. Charles T. Owens of the Pennsylvania D. A. R., wanted to know whether those opposed to censorship were going to have the privilege and right of speaking and offering resolutions, which she was assured they were but found out afterwards they weren't.

Thompson's Scheme

The main speaker of the day was Huston Thompson, who said that the showing of American films, with luxurious draperies and so forth, abroad made the foreign countries unwilling to pay their war debt to the United States. He is utterly opposed to censorship, he said, and proved it by offering a substitute, which called for an international conference under the League of Nations—he admitted to being a democrat—for the setting up of standards for films in international trade to be followed by a multi-lateral treaty, under which all films intended for export would be submitted to the Secretary of Commerce and by him approved or disapproved, his findings with respect to each picture, accompanied by reasons where disapproved, to be communicated to each signatory nation.

Then, presumably, the foreign countries would not permit the entry of disapproved films. There would, therefore, be no bar on the producer, who could make any kind of film he wanted, but probably the producers would not put out films for domestic

"Ridiculous," Says N. M. Schenck of Rumored Fox Negotiations

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, November 28.—"There is absolutely no truth to this ridiculous rumor," Nicholas M. Schenck, head of Loew's and M-G-M, told Motion Picture News when queried regarding a report published in New York that Fox was negotiating to take over Loew's and M-G-M.

"I wish you would deny it most emphatically," Mr. Schenck added. "We positively have not had any negotiation with Fox. Loew's Inc. and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer are not for sale."

Butterfield Chain Expands

Michigan Circuit Progressing With Plans for Theatres in Jackson, Muskegon, Ionia and Sault Ste. Marie

PLANS that will add to his chain in Michigan four new theatres are fast being formulated by W. S. Butterfield, president of the W. S. Butterfield Theatres, Inc. The company has already completed transactions for the erection of one house and will shortly end negotiations for the erection of the other three.

Mr. Butterfield is anxious to complete the additions to his chain in order to put into practice an idea he has entertained for the last ten years, and that is: the booking into the smaller Michigan cities of vaudeville acts, road show pictures or traveling combinations. The plan is to institute a new booking route for shows that will enable the smaller cities to see the same sort of entertainment that is being exhibited in Detroit.

Mr. Butterfield has organized the Jackson Theatre Building Co. in Jackson, Mich., in conjunction with the local business men, to erect a 2,000-seater to be called The Michigan. As soon as the plans have been completed construction will be started with the idea of having the theatre finished by September 1, 1929.

Contracts for the building of a new theatre in Muskegon, to seat 2,000, are being completed. Ground will be broken, it is expected, early in March, 1929, with the intention of having it ready for occupancy by November 1, 1929.

The circuit is also negotiating with Governor Green to build a memorial theatre in Ionia. The plans may include a new hotel and eight or ten stores. A new theatre, to be erected in Sault Ste. Marie and to seat 1,000, is planned by the company, also.

The details of Mr. Butterfield's booking arrangement are being handled by him personally. He plans to book his entertainment out of Detroit to the Soo, into Calumet and back down the western shore of the lake and into Chicago, without a loss of over two or three nights for railroad transportation. The idea of sending a road show from Chicago up the west coast and back down the east coast, finishing up at Detroit, is also included in the plan.

Manager Swears Warrant Against Bomb Suspect

Charged with throwing several stench bombs last Tuesday night at the Metropolitan Theatre in Atlanta, Georgia, Herbert Stoker has been taken into custody by the police. Warrants charging him with bomb-throwing and malicious mischief, the first a felony and the second a misdemeanor in Georgia, were sworn out in the Municipal Court in Atlanta by Carter Barron, manager of the Metropolitan.

The police arrested Stoker immediately following the bombing on evidence said to be furnished by several witnesses that he was the bomb thrower.

Drawing Up New Picture Regulations in Ontario

Hon. J. D. Monteith, Ontario Provincial Treasurer, Toronto, announced on November 8 the drawing up of new regulations providing for the classification of moving picture releases for presentation in Ontario theatres for adult or universal showing.

The regulations, which will come into force before the end of the current calendar year, will not obligate exhibitors or parents in any respect and no penalties will be provided for laxity on the part of theatre managers in advertising the classification of a picture. Exhibitors will be requested to make known the category of film productions, as decided upon by the Ontario Board of Moving Picture Censors, so that parents will have a guide in the selection of entertainment for juveniles.

As in England, the Province of Alberta and elsewhere, all film subjects will be labelled "A" or "U" according to the rating of the Ontario censors.

Blue Law Foes Supported by Business Men

The Junior Chamber of Commerce of Columbia, Mo., has announced that it has obtained the signatures of 102 business men on a petition for opening of Columbia theatres on Sundays.

It is contended the ban on Sunday movies has caused students of Missouri University and townspeople to motor to Boonville, Jefferson City and other modern cities in that vicinity that do permit Sunday amusements.

Officials of the Chamber of Commerce have declined to sign the petition.

Mayor W. J. Hetzler and City Attorney Howard Major attempted unsuccessfully to forestall the circulation of the petitions.

Myron Selznick Buys Out Partner in Agency

Myron Selznick has purchased the interest of Felix Young in their joint managerial concern. Selznick will continue to operate his office with his assistants, representing artists, writers, directors, etc., and also serving as story agents, with Robert Eddy in charge of the story department.

Felix Young, who is now in New York, will devote his future energies to the production of motion pictures. He recently made his debut in Los Angeles as a legitimate producer with the presentation of "The Marriage Bed" at the Mayan.

North Carolina Unit to Meet December 10

THE North Carolina Theatre Owners Association will hold its annual convention at the Hotel Charlotte, Charlotte, North Carolina, on December 10 and 11. R. F. Woodhull, the national president; A. Julian Brylawski, of Washington; M. A. Lightman, of Arkansas, and C. C. Pettijohn are expected to attend. The toastmaster will be the Reverend Murdock McLeod, who attended the banquet in Toronto.

One of the principal topics of discussion will be the sound situation confronting the industry. Other matters that the gathering will thresh out will be various legislative questions and other subjects affecting the North Carolina association. There seems to be no doubt but that the convention will vote to continue with the national organization.

Lower Priced Sound Devices For Exhibitor Coming

RCA Promises All-Disc Equipment at $4,000 to $5,000 and Vitaphone Jr., Despite Denials, is Expected Within Next Few Weeks

THE financial problem of the small motion picture exhibitor who is desirous of equipping his theatre with a sound reproduction device that will come within the limit of his bankroll is still unsolved. Even the lower priced devices being planned in some quarters may require an investment for the small exhibitor beyond his ability to make, according to report. Vitaphone denies that lower priced equipment will be manufactured; RCA admits that they will have a lower-priced device on the market within the next few months. But it will be a disc device exclusively. The Western Electric Company claims now not to be considering any lower priced device and advises exhibitors who cannot afford their present one to equip temporarily with a non-synchronous device until such time as prices might become modified. Western Electric contends that the price revision is downward; that their equipment is cheaper now than it formerly was and that if there is a further change of price it will be at a lower figure than at present.

The Radio Corporation of America announces officially that it is now working on the perfection of a plain disc device that will reproduce from disc records only and that will not permit of a film reproduction attachment. It is explained by RCA that this is equipment solely for the little theatre of 600 seats or under, but at the same time the company will not be averse to furnishing the equipment to houses of any size.

RCA's Disc Device

This new device will not be as inexpensive as was at first announced. Instead of it costing from one-third to one-half of the combination equipment furnished for a minimum of about $6,000 to the larger houses, it will cost the small exhibitor or any other who might order it, between $4,000 and $5,000. The fact that it can be used only in the reproduction of disc records makes it little more available to the small exhibitor than the more expensive equipment on which either disc or film can be run.

Vitaphone has emphatically denied time and again that it will have any cheaper equipment on the market than at present exists; at least that is the statement regarding the near future. At the same time the story persists that within the very near future Vitaphone Jr. will be a reality and announcement to that effect, it is said, will be forthcoming within the next month.

W. E.'s Position

The Western Electric Company claims to see no reason for the production of lower-priced equipment than it now has on the market. Devices which early in the game cost $7,500 and $8,000 and up are now said to cost a minimum of about $7,000 and these will probably be less expensive in the near future. Meantime Western Electric contends that the small exhibitor can well afford to expend this amount for equipment. The company shows records of houses with seating capacities of 600 and up that have paid top prices for equipment and report that they are perfectly satisfied. It is contended by Western Electric that many of these houses have gone from the red to a profit even in the short time that the equipment has been installed. It is also the contention of RCA that sound equipment on its more expensive devices is a good investment for any exhibitor and that it will pay for itself within a few months, this despite the fact that admission fees of fifteen and twenty cents only are charged.

Put Brakes on Talkie Production

Fox Studios Will Have 40% to 50% of Features Strictly Silent, With No Dialogued Versions

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

OLLYWOOD, November 28.—Fox is putting on the brakes as to the talkies. While most of the producers are planning to have 100 per cent of their pictures with dialogue sequences, Fox will make almost a fifty-fifty ratio of talk and silent production.

This does not mean that pictures will be made in both silent and talk versions. That is the plan adopted by other producers. Fox intends to have between forty and fifty per cent of its feature product strictly silent, with no dialogued version whatever. The remaining fifty or sixty per cent will be Movietoned or will be 100 per cent talkies.

This may have important bearing on the doings of the other studios. Production still remains a game of imitation.

A survey of productions planned for next year in regard to talking pictures reveals that all other studios who did little or no experimenting with sound are rushing further into it than the one which has spent more time and money on the subject than any, with the possible exception of Warner Brothers.

Some of Fox' most important productions, among them F. W. Murnau's "Our Daily Bread"; Wm. K. Howard's "Christina," starring Janet Gaynor; James Tinsling's "False Colors," are being made in silent versions only.

Practically all other studios, with the exception of Warners and Paramount, spent a minimum of money and time in experimentation prior to constructing sound stages and rushing features for synchronization. Paramount did experiment to a certain extent, but Warners and Fox are primarily the pioneers of sound in pictures. Fox has spent millions in the construction of an entire studio city, dedicated exclusively to the production of sound and talk pictures only. And yet, Fox, who has invested more than the others, (again, possibly excepting the Warners) sees fit to move more slowly and do more experimenting before investing more millions into product for public consumption.

An example of how slowly it is going was shown in the production schedule of last week. Twelve pictures were in the making, of which seven are exclusively silent and only five Movietoned.

The other studios are not neglecting the silent market, but at the same time are going to the opposite extreme in making talkies. While Fox differentiates between silent and talkies, making only a selected number in both versions, it is devoting a great deal of concentration on those which shall be silent only.

Warners are making all product in both silent and talkie. The same applies to First National. With Universal, FBO and M-G-M practically the only pictures made which will not be synchronized, are Westerns. An average from 90 to 100 per cent prevails in making others in both talk and silent prints. Pathe is synchronizing 100 per cent. Paramount has a few slated, but in much smaller ratio, for strictly silent versions. United Artists, despite the openly expressed belief of Joseph M. Schenck against the permanence of sound productions, is making dialogue and sound for all its product. Even the independents, foremost among which are Columbia and Tiffany-Stahl, have a pre-dominance of talk and sound to the extent of 75 per cent.

Offices Being Readied for Joseph P. Kennedy at Pathe

THAT Joseph P. Kennedy is to continue active in the industry and with Pathe is indicated by the fact that, according to information, offices are being made ready for his occupancy at Pathe headquarters, 35 West 45th Street, New York. Space is also being prepared for the Kennedy personal executive staff.

Kennedy is at present in California on production plans for Pathe for next season.

The first studio conference regarding next year's product for Pathe was held Wednesday night in Hollywood by Kennedy, William Sistrom, Paul Bern, Ralph Block, Benjamin Glazer.

Other conferences were slated for Friday and Saturday nights with final approval on program likely due late next week, undoubtedly to be followed by an announcement.

Indications are that William Sistrom will continue in charge for next year, his present contract expiring December 31. Also Block, Bern and Glazer will remain as unit producers.

Brown, of U. S. Leather, Heads R-K-O

Sarnoff Announcement Also Names Four New Members of Board of Directors

HIRAM S. BROWN, president of the United States Leather Co., was elected president of the Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation at a meeting of the board on November 28, according to an announcement by David Sarnoff, Chairman of the R-K-O Board. Brown will leave the presidency of the leather concern to take up his new duties Jan. 1, 1929. The Sarnoff announcement said:

"The existing personnel of the enlarged Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation already includes the entertainment, picture production and theatre experience necessary to the successful operations of the company. It is evident, therefore, that the primary requirement for the administrative task involved in such a combined effort of industry, technical development and motion picture art calls for great co-ordinating and executive ability. The Board of Directors believe that the company is fortunate in obtaining the services of an administrator whose capacity has been so thoroughly proven in other fields. Mr. Brown will have the advice, support and aid of all the directors. It is my own expectation to maintain an active interest in the affairs of the company and to work closely with Mr. Brown."

Mr. Brown is 46 years old, a native of Maryland. His first job was as an office boy for The New York Herald. In 1904, he went into the public utilities field, where he became prominent. During the war, he was chief of the Finance Division of the Air Service. He served later with the U. S. Liquidation Commission. About five years ago, he became president of the Central Leather Company and its successor, the U. S. Leather Co.

Mr. Sarnoff also announced that at the directors' meeting, the following were added to the R-K-O Board: Paul D. Cravath, Arthur Lehman, Edwin M. Herr and Mr. Brown. E. F. Albee continues as president of the Keith-Albee-Orpheum Corp., the theatre chain unit of the new company.

No mention was made in this announcement as to the presidency of the FBO, the picture production end of R-K-O, but Motion Picture News understands, as printed last week, that the destinies of FBO will be directed by Joseph I. Schnitzer, as at present.

Film Prepared by Hays Office to Aid Peace

The work of societies, clubwomen and other forces to advance the cause of peace has received further impetus with the release by the Hays office of a special two-reel picture containing the most complete record yet made of the signing of the Briand-Kellogg Pact in Paris and showing war's toll in lives and money contrasting these losses with the advantages of peace. The Hays organization compiled the film at the request of Mrs. Ambrose N. Diehl of Pittsburgh, Pa., chairman of the motion picture department of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. It is to be had without charge from the Hays office to the organizations affiliated with the National Committee on the Cause and Prevention of War.

The picture is now being shown in Pennsylvania and will be released in other states as soon as possible.

Judgment Withheld in Case Before Montreal Justice

Justice Demers, of the Superior Court, Montreal, Canada, heard arguments by an array of counsel representing the Quebec Government and 35 exhibitors of Montreal, charged with infractions of the new Quebec law prohibiting the admission of children to theatres, on November 16, but refrained from issuing judgment until he had studied the case.

A test case has been arranged to decide the validity of the new law, which now stands suspended until judgment has been delivered. So far no exhibitors have given evidence because the whole question involves fine points of the law only. Lawyers appearing for the theatres contended, at this hearing, that the new anti-juvenile law provided for criminal action and, therefore, as such, the Canadian Federal Government only could pass the legislation, the Province having overstepped its jurisdiction. The case may not be settled for two years.

K. and F. Circuit,, Colo., Acquires 4 Theatres

The K. and F. Amusement Company, owners of a large circuit of theatres in the Denver, Colorado, district, have just added four more theatres to their chain by acquiring all four theatres in Cheyenne, Wyoming—the Lincoln, Princess, Atlas and Capitol. They were taken over by K. and F. under the name of K. and F. Theatres Company and the transaction was closed with Carl Ray, owner of the Princess, Atlas and Capitol, and with the Plains Theatre Corporation, which owns the Lincoln. The purchase of these four theatres increases K. and F.'s chain to a total of 23 theatres.

A. J. Karch Manager of Motion Picture Club

The duties of club manager and steward of the Motion Picture Club in New York City have been taken up by A. J. Karch. The resolution to extend the posts to him were passed at the last meeting of the Board of Directors, who also empowered him with the privileges of employing an assistant to undertake the detail work.

Films Chief Entertainment of Hoover on Tour

Motion pictures will provide the bulk of the entertainment of President-elect Herbert Hoover aboard the U. S. S. Maryland during his current South American tour. More than 50 feature productions and a like number of short subjects will be shown to the President-elect and his party on the ship during the trip.

Phonographic Sound With Movie Barred

NEW film booking contracts in use in Canada contain the provision that a picture sold as a silent film is not to be used with auxiliary sound producing devices intended to create synchronization effects. In other words, amplified phonographic reproductions are not to be used with silent pictures. It is understood that no objection is taken to interchangeable synchronizing devices when a sound film is sold as such, but so far interchangeability has not become an issue in the Dominion.

Kansas City's Newest Theatre

A gala opening last week marked the formal admission to the ranks of beautiful playhouses devoted to sound picture presentations of the Plaza theatre in Kansas City. Above is a view of the proscenium arch and stage of this theatre featuring the Spanish style of architecture and decoration. The Plaza, which has a seating capacity of 2,200 persons was built by the Plaza Theatre Company of Kansas City after plans by Boller Brothers, architects. Other views and a description of this new theatre appear on the two pages following.

AT the premier of Kansas City's $1,000,000 Plaza Theatre last week were 2,200 of the city's social elite, admission being by invitation only, the new theatre's regular opening being the following night. Not so conspicuously theatrical was the premier as it was architectural and historical. There really are three shows in one at the Plaza—a modern remarkable achievement in motion picture theatre construction with sound synchronization and divertissements, an unusual triumph in Spanish architecture and a museum of Spanish and Moorish objects of art, medieval and modern.

The persons who attended the invitational premiere were, of course, unable to grasp the full esthetic and historical value of a most unusual contribution to suburban theatre construction. It is something which cannot be taken at a glance, something which can be understood only through study—a sincere counterpart of Old-World beauty, a painstaking arrangement of Old-World objects of art.

In other words, there is none of your modern, architectural "hokum" in the construction, design and equipment of the Plaza Theatre. It is as educational and as honest as such a building could be. The seating capacity is 2,200.

The crowd became an audience before it entered the new Plaza Theatre and Shops building which stands in the center of the Country Club plaza, its tower dominating the group of Spanish buildings.

And then the patio, on entering. It is a replica of Spanish court, the family living room with the blue sky for ceiling. It might have been dark blue night sky overhead, with its sheen of stars, so realistic the semblance. In the patio, one should get out his Plaza guide-book, "A Day in Spain." Thenceforth, the theatre is a liberal education in Spanish and Moorish art.

Auditorium of the Plaza Theatre, Kansas City

Then there was the music of water in the patio, water gurgling from the throats of little frogs balanced on the edge of a tiny pool of water made multicolored by lights and made alive by gold fish, on which the lights glistened. Benches of glazed tile encircled the pool and frog fountain. And, at the same time, music tinkled from the guitars of musicians on a stairway rising to a typical balcony, whence señoritas tossed roses down upon the crowd moving in wonderment through the patio.

In the patio, one first takes cognizance of the marvelously wrought, graceful iron work encountered again and again through the theatre.

In a brief survey of the theatre building—and a brief survey is all the audience the first night could possibly make, one is impressed by auditorium and lounges.

The lounges give the idling a subject for study and contemplation, bits of Moorish art and equipment out of the Sahara's edge, Moorish guns inlaid with silver and ivory, hassocks of leather, beautifully colored and soft to sit upon, Spanish picture tiles, Moorish tiles of esthetic geometry, human and animal figures having been forbidden as designs for home decorations.

The auditorium is a splendid example of the plain wall surface typical of Spain, walls broken with restraining arches, which reveal scenes of impressive landscape and delicate coloring, grilles, niches for urns and vases, tapestries. It was a temptation for the architects, Robert Boller of Kansas City and Los Angeles and Edward W. Tanner, to introduce a bit of so-called "hokum" and destroy the value of the sincere Spanish, but they refrained.

The auditorium, taking its theme from the Palacio de las Duenas of Seville, is vaulted with ancient wooden beams bearing characteristic Spanish crests and ornaments. Over the stage arch is the Hapsburg coat of arms upon which a golden light plays, suggesting the one-time Austrain domination.

The lanterns of the auditorium are unique in their curious design. All except the center piece were made in Seville from early Spanish designs. The center piece is Estrella design, nothing similar having been seen in Kansas City before.

The Latin atmosphere was preserved by the feature drama, a touching story, "Street Angel," with its Neapolitan background. Italian romance and Spanish architecture and appointments make a delightful evening. Jack F. Truitt, lessee and general manager of the theatre, received congratulations on the opening of the theatre from both stars of "Street Angel," Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell. He received telegrams of congratulation also from scores of other motion picture magazines, directors and actors.

Mr. Truitt came to Kansas City from Los Angeles, where he managed motion picture theatres four years. At one time he was manager of Universal Theatres in Moberly, Sedalia and other Missouri towns. As manager of the old Willis Wood theatre in Kansas City, he introduced the motion picture to its stage.

J. C. Taylor, vice-president of the J. C. Nichols Companies, which built the theatre, presented the keys to Mr. Truitt, the lessee, at the end of the feature picture. Mr. Truitt accepted with a brief address of thanks. Harry A. Jones, director of public relations for the theatre then spoke.

J. C. Nichols in a brief, informal speech, said the theatre was built as a contribution to the beauty and the education of Kansas City.

The house, which is equipped for both Movietone and Vitaphone, will have a policy of nothing except sound pictures. Independent stage programs will be booked, but not regularly, depending upon the need of a prologue.

One of the outstanding features of the theatre is its $25,000 free parking station for patrons, the capacity being more than 350 automobiles and the station being convenient to the theatre, located a comparatively few steps from the entrance. It is through this parking station that the plaza intends to make a bid for patronage that otherwise would go to downtown theatres.

THE B. F. KEITH MEMORIAL THEATRE

An Ambitious Building Program Reaches Its Climax in K-A's Boston Playhouse

IN opening the B. F. Keith Memorial Theatre in Boston, E. F. Albee, of the Keith-Albee-Orpheum theatres, builder of deluxe theatres, declared that the Memorial theatre surpassed them all and was the climax to the erection of beautiful theatres.

Contrary to general expectations, the Keith Memorial theatre is not one of the largest in New England. It seats but 2,900 people. Nor is it built with the idea of returning a profit to the circuit of which it is a part. Playing to a one dollar top night and a seventy-five cent top matinee, it is not designed to more than meet its own operating expenses without interest charges against the capital invested. It is, first of all, a memorial. It is to be kept as such insofar as is possible.

The theatre is also the only first-run theatre in Boston not equipped or in process of equipping for sound pictures. It is not to be equipped for sound pictures.

The most unusual feature of the playhouse, aside from its distinctive beauty and its works of art, is the fact that nearly half of the big structure is located back of the scenes. One looks across the auditorium after passing through Memorial Hall and the spacious loggias, to the stage. But back of the stage is what is virtually a modern hotel for the exclusive use of the actors, actresses and employees. This is a spacious section with broad corridors, richly furnished rooms, gymnasiums and quarters incidental to the advancement of vaudeville. Every room has large windows, plenty of air and sunlight, each has modern bathroom and shower connected. Nothing has been omitted which would add to the comfort of those persons who are devoting their lives to the entertainment of the public.

The theatre is located not far from the site of the old Keith theatre, on Washington Street, familiar to all New Englanders. The ground for the building was acquired by the demolition of the old Boston theatre and the old Mason Street Fire House. The location of the building is on what is known as the "original Boston peninsular," which means that the material on which the building is carried is very compact and firm. This is an important factor in Boston, where more than two-thirds of the city proper is on made or filled in land.

Entering the theatre from any one of its three entrances, one comes to the great bronze doors through which the patron passes into the beautiful Memorial Hall.

The Memorial Hall rises to a great vaulted dome. It gives a dazzling impression of light diffused against ivory-white marble and gold. There are sixteen huge marble columns on either side of the hall.

From Memorial Hall one may turn through bronze and ornamented doors into the main auditorium, or traverse the length of the Hall and ascend the Grand Staircase, which leads up a few steps to a wide landing, where the stairs sweep right and left giving access to the mezzanine floor and the balcony. On this oval-shaped landing, which is also domed and decorated with a beautiful mural, there is a wide, central niche in which rests a large tablet bust of B. F. Keith. The base on which the bust rests is of heavy green marble.

Behind the landing on the Main Staircase, a few steps lead into another room in white marble, where a few steps down lead into a general lounge room, intended for both men and women patrons of the theatre. This room is panelled in rich woods, luxuriously furnished, with a great Florentine fireplace in the center.

At one end of this room is a series of rooms devoted to the use of women guests. They are most complete. There are "cosmetic rooms," smoking rooms, telephone rooms, and reading and writing rooms. All of them are tastefully, even luxuriously furnished.

At the opposite end of this general lounge there is a smoking room of huge proportions. It is panelled in mahogany, furnished in heavy leather. It is as luxurious, as comfortable as the lounge of any metropolitan club.

From a survey of the outlying rooms, one enters the main auditorium. It is a wide, sweeping, yet intimate place of dazzling ivory and gold. White marble rail runs around the back of the auditorium, and from it the eye sweeps over the series of seats and spacious aisles to the elaborate proscenium arch, to the magnificent boxes with richly carved baldachins and golden draperies. Then the eye travels a vast semi-circle, pillared and arched, of ivory white marble and red damask, and over it all a domed ceiling, highly ornamented, and in the center a beautiful mural, softly illuminated.

Over the proscenium is another mural, also illuminated. The proscenium arch is hung in red and gold draperies and the curtain is a triumph in arrangement and color harmony.

The stage equipment, like everything else in the house, is of the very latest design. Here the old system of wood wings and foliage borders have been done away with, and instead we find specially designed series of overhead curtains.

The new curtains are highly decorative with foliage borders. Everything is of hanging stuff, with the exception of one profile top interior. Black velour is the main motif in the stage arrangement.

A Sectional View of the Auditorium, Portland Theatre, Portland, Ore.

ONE OF THE MOST IMPORTANT NEW THEATRES BUILT DURING 1928

PUBLIX' Portland theatre Portland, Ore., takes rank among the most important theatre enterprises launched during 1928. From the architectural standpoint it represents the highest type of baroque design the specialist in theatre planning has evolved during several years of study and experience. Equally important is it from a standpoint of showmanship.

The Portland was designed by C. W. & Geo. L. Rapp, architects of New York and Chicago, responsible for the design of a large number of the most important picture theatres in leading cities of the country. It has a seating capacity of about 4,000, and is operated on the de luxe scale of the big houses in the foremost theatre chains. The interior decoration is by the Robert E. Power Studios of New York and Los Angeles.

Stage presentations of an elaborate sort are provided on the programs featuring motion pictures. The Portland has been under the operation of West Coast Theatres and has been one of the first string presentation houses of the circuit for the Fanchon and Marco shows routed over the Pacific Coast cities by that company. It is one of the most important of the nine Publix theatres on the coast which will revert to the operation of Publix under an arrangement recently concluded to take back to active management by Publix the theatres on the Coast which have been under West Coast Theatres' regime.

An extraordinarily wide variety of detail and decorative appointment is featured throughout this massive house, and furnishings notable for their richness and the note of luxury they express are utilized to further the sumptuous atmosphere which pervades the auditorium, lobbies and public rooms.

The keynote of this luxurious theatre is struck in the grand lobby, where the patron is given the impression of massiveness and sumptuousness in which the management of the Portland entertains its guests. Marble is extensively used in this grand lobby as the material of which the walls and columns are constructed. Marble statuary on bases of black marble that matches the surbase line the walls and as centerpiece there is a white marble figure set in an arch under the transverse balcony. The grand lobby is two stories high with an ornamental plaster ceiling forming an arch above the marble columns. Elaborate chandeliers are suspended from the large panels of the ceiling. The floor is of terrazzo with a block design alternating light and dark set in a wide border.

Ornamental plaster applied skilfully in intricate patterns which match the elaborate style of the architecture gives the auditorium its great effectiveness. The decoration here is greatly enhanced by the lighting effects obtained by concealed cove lighting and the grille effects which allow colored lighting to pick out ceiling and sidewall detail. A series of arches with relief designs framing mural decorations are used to break up the long stretch of the sidewalls which sweep from the proscenium to the rear balcony.

The auditorum scheme builds up to a climax at the proscenium, where elaborate organ grilles, illuminated from behind and framing rich draperies harmonize with the valances and hangings in the proscenium arch, a high, wide span set in a narrow decorative frame set in close to the sidewalk and the ceiling.

There is ample space provided for hold-out crowds and for the enjoyment of patrons. Long promenades on the mezzanine level, a series of rest rooms and lounges are fitted for comfort as well as the air of luxury with which they surround the visitor give patrons of the Portland every comfort.

The stage equipment is of the latest design, and conveniences for performers are a feature of the back-stage equipment.

Shown on the right is a view of the stairway leading to the mezzanine of the Portland theatre. The note of sumptuousness evidenced in the detail illustrated here pervades the entire scheme of this luxurious house.

Below, a view of the mezzanine lounge, a typical example of the rich furnishings and fine appointments which are provided in the various public rooms designed for the comfort and convenience of patrons of the de luxe picture theatre.

MANUFACTURED WEATHER in the Brooklyn Paramount

MANUFACTURED WEATHER, as produced only through the Carrier System for Air Conditioning, will provide patrons of the great new Brooklyn Paramount with an ideally comfortable and a scientifically healthful atmosphere every day in the year, regardless of outdoor weather conditions or the size of the crowd.

This is the same system of air conditioning, including Carrier Centrifugal Refrigeration, which provides ideal comfort in the two other great Paramount Theatres—in New York and Paris—and in an impressive list of progressive theatres in this country and abroad.

The choice of Manufactured Weather for the Brooklyn Paramount is in keeping with the policy of the Publix Theatres Corporation to provide for its patrons the ultimate in theatre comfort, luxury and beauty. It is significant that this is the twenty-fourth of the de luxe theatres of the Publix Group to be Carrier Conditioned.

Theatre Owners, Architects and Engineers are invited to investigate the results accomplished by the Carrier System for Air Conditioning. Write for the book, "Theatre Cooling and Conditioning," and ask for a visit from one of our engineers.

Theatre Building Business Map

Including Analysis of Key City Attendance Averages

Above Average Business	AA	Very light new construction
Average Business	A	Light new construction
Under Average Business	UA	Moderately heavy construction
		Heavy new construction

The map of the United States shown here is divided into seven territories, with colored shading indicating the division of new proposed theatre building as represented for the period from October 15th to November 15th. This new construction is represented in valuation of dollars and cents rather than number of projects.

The shading is in four densities; solid, which represents the greatest value of proposed theatres; heavy stipple, which is second in valuation of new construction; medium, which areas represent conservative building; and the very light areas, where the investment in new theatre projects is very light. The information used in compiling the statistics visualized by the map was obtained through several reliable sources, and the map is to be considered as very nearly accurate in representing comparative theatre building activities in various sections of the country.

The circles shown on the map are located in key cities and illustrate averages of theatre attendance during the period from October 15th to November 15th, 1928. The diagrams indicate the relative attendance at the first-run theatres in these cities during the period covered. These are given by "averages," with symbols to indicate "Above Average" and "Under Average" box office returns. The term "average" as applied in this survey indicates satisfactory box office returns, based upon theatre expectancies, which, in turn, are governed by past earnings under similar or nearly similar conditions.

These attendance statistics were compiled from an analysis of the Key City Reports, published weekly in MOTION PICTURE NEWS, and other sources of information gathered by this publication.

AFTER three months of reduced activities in new theatre construction, our report for the thirty days ending November 15th, is well along the path of peak building again. In fact the figures for this report compare favorably with many summaries which were published during the height of the theatre building boom, though, of course, they are by no means records in themselves.

The actual figures for the United States and Canada are $7,714,000 total investment which will cover the cost of construction of forty-two new theatres which will have a total seating capacity of 52,750. Of these forty-two projects, only one will cost between $500,000 and a million, while two will exceed an investment of one million dollars.

The average for this group are: Cost per theatre, $183,667; seats, 1,256; and cost per seat, $146.23. The cost per theatre and the cost per seat show a material increase over those costs in our previous month's report, though the average seating capacity is only slightly increased.

Taking all in all, however, the building program as indicated in this report still tallies with the theatre calling for a modest investment and a moderate seating capacity which, of course, is in direct contrast to the tendency of a year ago when an enormous amount of money was being invested in theatres though the seating capacities were not a great deal higher than those shown in the more recent reports. The difference in the cost of these theatres is not accounted for in the equipment and furnishing but rather by inexpensive sites.

Honors for the heaviest building in the various territorial divisions of the United States go to the Middle States where $2,305,000 will be invested in twelve theatres with total seating capacity of 14,800. In this territory, one theatre will cost

"one of the slickest installations"

"I frankly admit that this is one of the slickest little installations I have seen," writes Mr. John Eberson, of Eberson & Eberson, well-known theatre architects, about the Page Unit Organ installation in the new V. U. Young's Palace Theatre at Marion, Ohio.

And an architect of Mr. Eberson's reputation is especially particular about the installation and design of an organ. It must fully harmonize with and become a part of, the decorative scheme. At the same time it must be fully qualified to render an outstanding performance of its own.

Page Unit Organs are especially built for individual theatre requirements. They have the ability that wins for them such encomiums as Mr. Eberson gives in his letter. It is because of this that so many theatres are becoming Page equipped.

The Young and Wolf Corporation, owners of the above theatre, with theatres in many cities in Indiana and Ohio, recently purchased their third Page Unit Organ, thereby expressing in the only real substantial way, the satisfaction they have had with the first installation, then again with the second installation.

After all is said,—nothing can take the place of pipe organ music in the theatre. It has won its way, there to remain, due to a certain attractiveness and individuality that it alone can provide.

So you need pipe organ music and you owe it to yourself to find out how well Page can serve you.

Building and Attendance Reports

over a million dollars. These figures give for averages, $192.080 cost per theatre; 1,233 seating capacity and $156 cost per seat.

THE section calling for the next heaviest building is the South Eastern which is very unusual, as this territory, in the past, has shown nothing but a very light building campaign. The South Eastern territory will have invested $1,600,000 in two projects seating 4,300. One of these projects will cost over a million dollars. The averages for this territory are $800,000 cost per theatre; 2,150 seats and each seat costing $372.

West Coast takes rank immediately after the South Eastern territory, where $1,453,000 will go for building eleven new theatres that will seat 11,350. These figures are exceedingly encouraging for the West Coast inasmuch as this part of the country has not, in the immediate past, been showing very great activities in new theatre construction. The figures which give the averages for this territory are 1,032 seats costing $128. per seat and $132,090 cost per theatre.

New England is coming to life as it takes fourth rank with the building program of $950,000 to cover the cost of 6,250 seats to be included in three theatres, one of which will cost over $500,000. The average figures for this territory are $316,667 cost per theatre, seating 2,083 and giving the cost per seat of $152.

A reversal of form, so to speak, for a particular territory is shown in the North Atlantic States. This section of the country has consistently ranked first or second throughout our past reports. However, in this November report, the building activities in this section have dropped materially, the total cost of investment for new theatres requiring only $600,000 to cover the cost of 6,500 seats for four new theatres. The averages for these states show $150,000 per theatre, seating 1,625 and costing $92 per seat.

The South Western territory shows, relatively, exceptional activity, as it has been this territory that has reported practically no building with few exceptions, in the past. In this report we credit this territory with $550,000 to be invested in 6,600 seats for six new theatres. The averages are $91,667 per theatre, seating 1,100 and costing $83 per seat.

The territory to take last rank is the Western. Three new theatres seating 1,550 will total in investment $106,000. The averages for these houses are very small. They are $35,333 cost per theatre; 517 seats and $68 cost per seat.

Canada reports only one new project which will cost $150,000 and seat 1,000.

Rated according to the dollars invested in new theatre projects, Virginia leads all states with $1,600,000 for two projects seating 4,300. California is second with $1,020,000 to be invested in six projects which will together seat 7,500. South Dakota has one theatre which will cost $1,000,000 and seat 2,500. Massachusetts, ranking fourth, has investments for its building program totalling $950,000 for three theatres seating 6,250. Pennsylvania, the fifth ranking state, will invest $500,000 in three theatres which will together seat 5,000.

Quite contrary to conclusions that might be gained on first consideration, when judging the sale of theatre equipment as influenced by the retrenchment in theatre building for the past few months, the volume of equipment sales has been on the increase. While the total amount of investment in all theatres and thus, of course, the average cost per theatre have been materially reduced, yet this reduction in cost has been primarily due to a saving in such items as construction materials, expensive sites, etc. Equipment included in these theatres covers all the essentials necessary for a finely equipped theatre and thus accounts for sales of a volume equal to those called for equipping the more costly structures. In fact, it has been during the last year that builders of theatres or moderate cost have come to fully realize the importance of complete theatre equipment in the efficient operation and popularity of this class of theatres.

THE national election which, as indicated by the heavy registration and vote commanded a greater popular interest than has been evidenced in Presidential contests in many years proved a heavy adverse factor in theatre attendance averages during the period on which we are now reporting. Unseasonably hot weather the week of November 11 was another deterrent to business in many cities.

More than ever before politics became a focal point for the interest and enthusiasm of great masses, brought into closer touch with issues and personalities due to the radio broadcasts of candidates and orators for the parties. Here was a case of politics taking the play from motion pictures, the speaking stage and even sports and the result was bound to be reflected at the ticket offices.

Extra election night shows were a big help in holding up averages at the picture houses, but according to reports on the whole the proceeds from these special performances did no more than to make up some of the losses attendant upon the slim houses immediately preceding and immediately following the election.

Up to the week before election and from the week-end following it, the bulk of the key city theatres did entirely satisfactory business, many of them consistently playing to very high averages. This and the fact that some pictures, notably "The Singing Fool" succeeded during the period of this report in running up several new house records at theatres in various sections of the country, should prove conclusively that motion pictures are enjoying a flourishing season.

General business conditions over the country are reported especially good according to those agencies of information which are accepted as authentic by financiers; bankers and captains of industry.

THE last week brought optimistic reports from various sections of the country. Exports for the last ten months were way above the figures for the period of a year ago. Record holiday trade is indicated by business the past week in the large cities of the country. Reports from Pittsburgh show steel production at a slight decline but general business improving. Industrial wage earners' income this fall reached their highest level since 1920, a year of inflation, and employment in manufacturing was at the highest point since April 1927, according to the monthly reports to the National Industrial Conference Board by approximately 1,500 manufacturing establishments employing on the average about 800,000 workers. Large building projects and the record trading on the San Francisco exchange are accepted as indication that the Pacific coast will be active and prosperous during the year ahead. So go the business indicators in all lines and all parts of the country.

In the picture theatre field the volume of trade follows for the present at least, the sensationally ballyhooed "sound presentations." The intensive campaigns aided and abetted by some strong talking picture attractions are having their effect on the smaller theatres in the outlying districts within easy traveling distance of the cities.

The outstanding performer at the box office this past month is "The Singing Fool," which has proved that previous ideas of capacity were subject to revision as record after record for attendance fell by the wayside. So far as the regular run picture houses are concerned, this Jolson starring vehicle with its Vitaphone synchronization is overshadowing everything that went before it. Close behind this picture is "Wings," which topped the list last month. The aviation picture that made air romances popular on the screen has set some handsome records. When "The Singing Fool" played the Des Moines theatre in Des Moines the week of October 14 it broke every Iowa theatre record. Then later came "Wings" to that same house and topped the Jolson picture.

The pictures which rate after "The Singing Fool" and "Wings," which are one-two and way ahead of the others on the list for last month's ten best at the key cities, are:

"While the City Sleeps," "Our Dancing Daughters," "The Woman Disputed," "Moran of the Marines," "The King of Kings," "Mother Knows Best," "The Midnight Taxi" and "The Battle of the Sexes."

100 Per Cent.

There are 17 theatres in the city of Hartford, Connecticut, and all of them are equipped with "Diamond H" Remote Control Switches.

These switches are used for many purposes. In most of the theatres automatic, double throw Remote Control Switches are used to control the main and emergency lighting circuits for the important sections of the theatres, such as lobbies, exits, stair-ways, aisles, and corridors, so that lights will not fail, no matter what happens.

In many, the stage lights are controlled by "Diamond H" Remote Control Switches, also the outdoor signs and lights on marquees are controlled by them, and in others push switches operating Remote Control Switches, are placed in the operator's booth, so that various lighting effects can be produced at will.

"Diamond H" Remote Control Switches are a necessity in every theatre. Their use for controlling lighting circuits is not only good insurance, but proves an economy in the long run.

Our engineers are ready at any time to help you plan the use of "Diamond H" Remote Control Switches in your theatre.

New and Improved Equipment

A Review of the Latest Developments in Theatre Engineering

Major Chromium Plated Reflector

Chromium Reflectors Used in Stage Lighting Units

A NEW bulletin just issued by the Major Equipment Company of Chicago, dealing with the Chromium Reflectors developed by the company for use in border lights, gives an illustrated report on the results of tests made at the Palace Theatre, Chicago, in comparison with other reflectors.

The adoption of this hard chrome metal to reflectors awaited the comparatively recent solution of the problem to successfully plate with the material. Chromium has amazing hardness, is not affected by salt water or salt air and is impervious to all acids save two. In its polished state it has a highly peculiar surface, having a reflection factor of .65. In addition to these advantages as a reflector surfacing material, the Chromium plate will not discolor and has a mirrorlike finish allowing for accuracy of beam control and distribution not obtainable with other materials.

According to the published report the test at the Palace Theatre, comparing one border light fitted with 200 watt lamps in porcelain enameled reflectors with a similar borderlight fitted with 150 watt lamps in Major Chromium Plated Reflectors, the latter gave 40 per cent more light on the floor with the reduced voltage. The borders were hung 22 feet above the stage door and all conditions were the same.

The major company is offering the Chromium Plated reflectors in borderlight and footlight units, with each lamp placed in a separate reflector.

National Offers Sound Film Reel and Record Library

TWO important new items offered in the line of equipment offered by National Theatres Supply Company are a complete library of Orchestraphone records for theatres, and a sound film reel. The libraries are selected to give the theatre owner a range of music that will meet with every requirement for supplying incidental music and sound effects with motion pictures. The libraries may be had in various sizes, complete in dust-proof steel filing cabinets.

The new Sound Film Reel for theatres using sound-film equipment features an improved 5-inch hub which prevents the film from passing the aperture plate at too great, or at an uneven, speed. The speed of the average reel used as a "take-up" cannot be closely enough gauged to secure the best results where the music or speaking is synchronized on the film.

The Sound Film Reel is being adopted by many of the larger producers of sound equipment and marks another contribution to the perfection of sound pictures.

Compact Power Amplifier for "Sound" Installations

A POWER amplifier which has been widely adopted for theatre sound installations of both the synchronous and non-synchronous type is a compactly designed unit utilizing Push Pull Transformers in a two-stage amplifier requiring four tubes and manufactured by the Samson Electric Co., of Canton, Mass.

The amplifier, known as a Samson Pam, has an overall measurement of 15 x 11½ x 7½ inches and weighs 32 pounds. It is designed to provide field current to a dynamic type speaker, the output transformer matching the impedance of input transformers contained in dynamic type speakers. The Pam 16-17 unit will operate 12 to 16 loud speakers. It requires one UY-227, two UX-210s and one UX-281 tubes, and needs no output device between itself and the speaker.

A larger unit, designated as the Pam 19-20 is for installations requiring from 16 to 40 speakers. It also provides field current to dynamic speaker, and like the smaller unit operates from 105 to 120 volt, 50-60 cycle current. This unit requires six tubes, including two UX-250s, two UY-227s and two UX-281s.

The units provide amplified reproduction of music or speech from phonograph, microphone or radio set.

American Cine Demonstrates New Screen For Sound Film Project

MUCH experimentation directed toward the development of a projection screen combining the conflicting virtues of "light capacity" and "sound porosity" has been going on ever since the introduction of sound picture installations, which for purposes of illusion place the speaker horns or cones directly behind on screens which the pictures are projected.

Last week a demonstration was made at a St. Louis theatre equipped with Vitaphone and Movietone of a new screen developed by the American Cine Screen Company of that city. The new screen has been named the Cinevox and the company has progressed so far with production on it that it is now being installed in theatres.

The result of the St. Louis demonstration of the Cinevox was the issuance of approval of the Cinevox by the Electrical Research Laboratories for use in connection with Movietone and Vitaphone installations. Incidentally this is the first "sound screen" offered by an outside company to be approved by Electrical Research, which has been installing its own sound porous screen with all apparatus.

According to report on the demonstration the Cinevox showed superior qualities in sound porosity while giving greater light reflection results than the Electrical Research screen installed at the theatre. A comparative test using the Martinelli song reel showed that the tone and clarity of the sound was better at eight, on the volume dial, with the Cinevox than it was at Nine with the other screen.

At the same time, the projection was judged to be better with the new screen. A newly developed process is said to give the screen surface a reflection value far superior to that of the sound porous ma-

Campaign Ideas

Here are a few reminders of what has been done successfully in the past—They may help you in arranging your celebration for the biggest of all holiday seasons just ahead

IT is neither too early nor too late now to get plans under way for the celebration of the Christmas holiday at the motion picture theatre. Because of the institutional character which a majority of the picture men have wisely built up around their playhouses, most people in this country look to the picture theatre for expressions of the community spirit on all occasions, but particularly during the Yuletide.

Before planning the outline of activities which his theatre will engage in during the pre-holiday season and during Christmas week as well, the theatre man who successfully guides the policies of his house at times such as this, will prepare for the campaign by first establishing the right attitude of mind. For everything that he does must sincerely be an expression of a deep inward sympathy with the sentiments manifesting themselves in connection with the Christmas season.

He may begin, therefore, by reminding himself that the motion picture theatre should be a place of ideals as well as ideas, and allow the former to shape the character of his Christmas campaign while he employs the latter in generous measure to bring them forward.

Here is the time of times to divorce from considerations of the campaign all thoughts of the immediate profits counted at the box office. Under such circumstances, campaign planning becomes a work of pure art. This is not to say that the theatre is entirely altruistic in all its purposes and efforts at such times. For no matter how hard the theatre man might try to avoid commercial gain through such means, it is in the very nature of things that goodwill, a possession which compensates in both the idealistic and materialistic sense, goodwill accrues to that theatre which associates itself intimately with the events and the preoccupations of mass movements keyed to a high sentimental pitch. Prestige and goodwill, purchasable for no amount of money, no matter how large, if simply used in the money sense, are the "profits" which the theatre counts when it takes an active part in furtherance of the Christmas spirit.

It is a time for cooperation with all agencies associated with the public welfare as well as the private enterprises of the individual. The theatre perhaps better than any other institution in a community can take the position of leadership in movements of a charitable nature, and some active part in the charities which become a pleasant community duty at this season should be given a place of first importance on the list of things the theatre will do in the course of its Christmas celebrations.

Indeed, the theatre man might begin his Christmas plans with the idea of arranging first the details of his activities in connection with some charity. After that has been thoroughly threshed out and every effort put forth to insure its success, he may go on to other things.

His advertising, newspaper, house program, frontal displays and cooperative stunts, should tie-up with the seasonal idea. His theatre must express the Christmas spirit in every way possible, it must be especially cheerful in the tone of its programs as well as the conduct and bearing of every member of the organization who comes in contact with the public.

With the purpose in view of assuming the role of the "reminder," this department has collected a group of ideas which in the past have been used with exceptional success during the Christmas season, and they are recited here in order to help the theatre man in the outline of his holiday campaign, so far, at least, as it is possible to do that in a treatise addressed to a large group.

The campaign may be broadly classified as capable of development in charitable activities, community events, cooperative movements, seasonal exploitation ideas, and seasonal presentations.

Among the ideas which have been executed successfully in towns of various sizes and economic and social characters are the following:

Charity Activities: the so-called "toy matinee" is by all odds the most popular and the most availing method for the theatre to advance the interests of the poor and the afflicted of the community. The cooperation of the theatre with some local charity, however, may in certain instances be even superior, but this is the case only when the nature of the charity chest or fund is such that separate and individual activity on the part of the theatre simply detracts or diverts interest and funds in such a way that the two activities become competitors for support.

The "toy matinee" produces the best results when the theatre man ties it up with some influential local organization or enterprise, such as a women's organization, church association, newspaper, chamber of commerce, Elks Club, the Boy Scouts, etc.

THESE "toy matinees" can be put on elaborately, or in a simple manner, according to the resources of the theatre and the size of the community. In the past there have been instances where a series of such matinees were held once a week for three weeks preceding Christmas, and culminating in the customary Christmas morning party at which the poor children nominated by charity organizations or other bodies, or the theatre itself, were treated to a free show and then received packages containing the gifts obtained through the toy matinees.

The idea of the matinees, of course, is that children attending these special morning shows pay their admissions by delivering in the lobby of the theatre their surplus or outgrown toys. The gift basket containing foodstuffs of a non-perishable sort may be substituted for the toy idea if the poor for whom it is destined are in dire want.

To carry out the scheme on an elaborate scale, the theatre man must enlist the assistance of a local newspaper, Boy Scouts, police and fire departments, women's clubs, etc., and in this way can make his Christmas drive a city-wide activity.

Special entertainments for the inmates of asylums, the newsboys of a leading local daily, special night shows for workers who owing to the rush of business in many lines are unable to attend regular performances, and other specials of this sort give the theatre wide opportunity to provide a real measure of happiness and joy to large groups during the Christmas season. The cooperation of local merchants in these special activities is very desirable and in most instances readily obtained. The candy stores may contribute bags of confections for distribution, at these special shows, fruit stores and grocers may contribute, the local taxi service may help by providing free transportation from homes or central meeting places for various groups. The local dancing school may offer some special entertainments, the women's clubs provide chaperones. There is a part to be played by nearly every merchant, club member or specialist in the community.

In the class of theatre exploitation of special seasonal appeal or association, we may consider the lobby and house decorations, ideas which have special appeal to the youngsters, service features and special presentations.

Several theatre men who have built up large followings among the children of the town, have used stunts along the line which make the theatre a sort of second home for the reception of visits and gifts from Santa Claus. One of the most novel ideas along this line is the "Christmas Stocking" stunt in which children are invited to bring a stocking, marked with their own name and hang it in the place provided for the stockings in the inner lobby of the theatre. Each week some new toy or gift is put into the stocking by the theatre, and the youngsters come to the Saturday morning matinees to see how their stockings are fattening under the process—though, of course, they are not permitted to take them or even look into them until the final morning matinee before Christmas. Naturally this stunt must get under way a few weeks before Christmas. The stockings are fastened to lines strung around the foyer. If securely fixed they may be removed, line and all, at the completion of each morning matinee.

Lobby decorations, naturally, give an important place to a Christmas tree. A favorite stunt of many showmen is to include in the decorations cutout stars each bearing the name of some future attraction or dolls tagged with the names of Months ago, Graven and Mayger were busy executing details of treatment, equipment, etc., for the new Fisher Theatre at Detroit. This magnificent showhouse, conceded by authorities to be the world's finest example of Mayan architecture, called for a theatre seat of unusual character—one that would harmonize with the Mayan motif, yet possess the luxurious comfort which modern audiences demand.

After creating a special Mayan design, Graven and Mayger turned to Heywood-Wakefield for the development of the chair. They did so with confidence because Heywood-Wakefield seats had proved so successful in the many houses Graven and Mayger have designed for Publix and other amusement enterprises. They knew, too, that Heywood-Wakefield chairs have been pleasing owners and audiences in such theatres as the Roxy, Palace-Orpheum, Schine, Saxe, and scores of other houses.

Heywood-Wakefield executed for Graven and Mayger the unique design shown above. It will please the audiences at the new Fisher Theatre and will bring dividends to the box office. There is a Heywood-Wakefield theatre chair that will do the same for you.

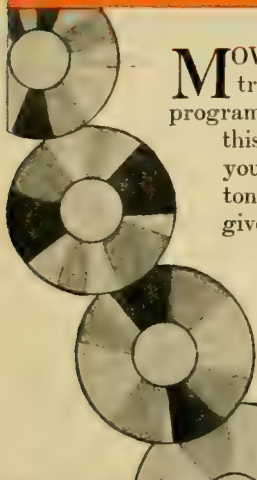

May we tell you more about these popular theatre seats?

Heavy Advance Campaign for Roxy's "All Sound" Bill

For the first time since it opened in March, 1927, the Roxy theatre, in New York, "circussed" the front of the house last week as advance ballyhoo for the current program featuring an all-talkie presentation.

The advance campaign for this bill was the heaviest staged by the Roxy since its pre-opening drive. Though it was the first house in the country to open with a sound installation as part of the original plan, the Roxy has never before laid such emphasis on the talkie phase of the presentation.

The current program is unique in many respects, but mainly for the fact that there is no feature-length picture included on the bill. The screen part of the show is made up of "Napoleon's Barber," a three-reel Movietone version of the play of that name by Arthur Caesar, which is listed as the film feature; a two-reel comedy Movietone subject featuring Clark and McCullough, and a complete Movietone newsreel.

The stage and musical program is one of the most elaborate Roxy has offered his patrons. The stage feature is a musical and dramatic presentation titled "Tableaux Napoleon" with original music by Maurice Baron and special settings designed by John Wenger from paintings depicting the Napoleonic period. The legend of Napoleon is portrayed in eight scenes and employs a cast of 200, including the Roxy ensemble, Ballet Corps, chorus and the thirty-two Roxyettes, and with Patricia Bowman, Helen Huttenrauch, Michael Voljanin and M. Vodnoy in the principal roles.

The Roxy Symphony Orchestra, under the alternating direction of Erno Rapee, Joseph Littau and Mischa Violin, offer Tschaiowsky's "1812" Overture.

Questionnaire Asks Patrons Why They Came to Show

The age-old question of why patrons attend a particular show, or rather what persuaded them to attend one particular show, has been answered to the satisfaction of the publicity department of the Martin Beck theatre, New York, where "Night Hostess" is now playing.

Seeking to solve the problem of rating at their result value the various items of showmanship and exploitation, the management gave out questionnaires at various performances of "Night Hostess." Twenty thousand replies established the following percentages:

Recommended by a friend.....	52%
Producer's reputation	8%
Favorable newspaper reviews.....	12%
Newspaper advertising	8%
Radio exploitation	4%
Recommended by ticket broker...	16%

The chromium surface in addition has a dense texture that dirt, corrosion and salt water can't damage. High efficiency is retained a long time and replaced with the wipe of a cloth.

So much better has this reflector proven that it is standard equipment on all Major Borderlights, Footlights, Coves and other theater lighting equipment.

screen stars whose vehicles are to be played.

A card prominently displayed at the foot of the tree announces that the tree, with its lights, its decorations, its stars with the titles of pictures, or dolls bearing the names of screen celebrities, is the theatre's gift to the people of the city. Practical fireplaces, constructed of compo board painted to represent brick or stones, with stockings stuffed with gifts, or again, bearing the name of pictures, are another favorite lobby decoration. Corner scenes, showing a chimney with a cutout of Santa stepping down into it is another. This same idea is frequently used as a ticket booth decoration and is especially effective for an island booth. A mask of compo board cutout in the form of a chimney with a Santa figure over it is the idea employed in most cases.

As outside exploitation, there are innumerable stunts available through co-operation with merchants. The theatre may obtain valuable representation in windows through some tie-up in which passes are offered through the store. For example, the merchant may be featuring some special doll. Added interest can be given the display by naming it for some screen star, the store offering a theatre pass as a prize for the best drawing of the doll submitted at the toy department by children. Or the doll dressing contest can be used in similar fashion.

The newspaper advertising, naturally, stresses the seasonal idea in its decoration and the style of its copy. The conventional Christmas borders and Santa Claus designs which are stock material at nearly every print shop can be used with good effect if the theatre cannot afford the services of a special designer and the engravings. Boxing off the various items of the bill to suggest packages and featuring the headline which calls attention to the many Christmas gifts which the theatre is offering on the current bill is a general favorite.

Theatre scrip or coupon books are almost a necessity at this time of the year. These can be gotten up as books containing several admissions sold at a reduction or simply in the form of cards, neatly printed so they may be presentable as a Christmas gift, and having figures from one to six or ten, or even twelve printed at the bottom. The card is therefore good for the number of admissions indicated by the figures, and the doorman uses a punch to cancel the admissions as they are used.

Admission books or cards should be vigorously advertised on the screen, in cards prominently displayed in lobby, foyer and rest rooms, mentioned in every piece of printed advertising in the newspapers, house programs or heralds, and even announced from the stage. Feature them as solving the gift problem, as something peculiarly attractive to all to whom they may be given, as appropriate card party prizes, etc.

The one outstanding seasonal service idea for the theatre is the institution of checking facilities, if such are not a regular feature. If a check room is a standard service, the theatre may give it special significance by tying up with one or more of the leading stores of the town. The arrangement is simply to have the store deliver a check for the parcel and tell the customer that they can obtain their package by presenting the check at the theatre check room. This stunt has been used with mutual benefits to stores and theatres in several towns. The store and the theatre each exploit in their respective establishments and their newspaper advertising the fact that people who wish to see a show after their day's shopping can save themselves considerable effort by checking their purchases to the theatre and then pick up their bundles after they have seen the show and are ready to start directly for home.

One of the most interesting community events sponsored by the theatre is carol singing at the theatre. This was a feature which the Lucas theatre in Savannah, Ga., sponsored under the auspices of a local Festival Association. The events were held Sunday afternoons, as there were no Sunday showings of pictures. The singing was led by a local man or woman and accompanied by organ music.

Heat your Organ Chamber Correctly!

The Prometheus Organ Heater protects the delicate mechanism of the organ by heating the lower part of the chamber in a scientific way. Unlike other devices which send heat upward, thus neglecting the equally important base, Prometheus deflects the warm air downward. The heat naturally rises throughout the organ chamber giving a constant, unvarying degree of temperature. Proper heating avoids expensive repairs and maintenance costs due to destructive cold, moisture and climatic changes. It also keeps pitch accurate.

Automatic Thermostat regulates heat to the proper degree required. Furnished in Aluminum. Occupies only 14 1/4 x 4 inches. Sturdy. Durable.

The Clavilux

A Color Organ Amplifies Recourses for Producing Theatre Light Effects

ONE of the many innovations of the new Paramount Brooklyn theatre, which opened Saturday, November 24, is the Clavilux, or color-organ, which will be used to produce auditorium lighting effects, including a system of movable murals, as well as special stage settings and color decorations.

The Clavilux, invented by Thomas Wilfred, makes possible the use of light as a fine art in that it places form, color and motion at the command of the artist seated at the keyboard. It is a machine composed of steel and aluminum which is divided into four sections, the Light Source, the Form Producing Mechanism, the Motion Producing Device and the Color Producing Device. Each of these mechanisms is connected to a keyboard, similar to that in the console of the organ.

The Light Source is a large electric lamp which, through compensating screens, is made to produce a strong beam of pure white light. The Form Producing Mechanism takes this formless white light as it comes from the lamp and, through its connection with the Form Keys, enables the player to build up on the screen one or more static white forms and to change those forms at will.

The motion producing device, through its connection with the motion keys on the keyboard, enables the player to move the already produced white forms through rhythm developments on the screen. By inventor, at the

playing from two units at the same time, the player is thus enabled to play two independently moving and changing sets of forms or what would correspond to melody and accompaniment in music.

The color producing device is connected to the color keys on the keyboard and, with all color keys at zero, permits the already built up form and motion to record on the screen in black and white only. As the player moves the color keys, he builds into or around the forms such colors as he desires from the lowest red to the highest violet visible to the human eye.

The Form, Motion and Color keys controlling these mechanisms are small knobs sliding horizontally in numbered slots, through 100 positions. The use of two keys, therefore, gives the player 10,000 possible combinations, while three keys, simultaneously employed, give 1,000,000 combinations.

With these combinations to work from, the artist can create compositions in light as the musician composes sound symphonies. The "music" or notation sheets, in the case of the Clavilux, have one system of vertical staffs for each unit divided between Form, Color and Motion. As the player follows the notation and moves the keys in the manner indicated, a composition is produced on the screen which can be repeated by any skilled player with a margin for personal interpretation, as in music.

In the portable Clavilux, the keyboard and projector are built together. In the case of the permanently installed color organ, as in the Brooklyn Paramount theatre, the projector can be placed anywhere and played by remote control from a keyboard on the floor. Wilfred has so developed the instrument that even a pianola, so that visual compositions can be recorded on a paper roll and played automatically.

Aside from the innovation of permitting the operator to compose pictures with colored light on the screen, the Clavilux can produce three dimensions with its projections. The ordinary flat, white screen can be made to look like a window into unlimited space with light forms floating out, away from the spectator, for miles and miles before they finally disappear.

With the movement of a finger, the operator may create domed palaces decked with glowing sapphires and other precious stones.

Organs can intone solemn symphonies of stately, cathedral like beauty and—they can also bang out jazz. So the color organ can flash out a dizzy fantasmagoria of swaying colors that makes the spectators reel in their seats. It can shriek out shrill cadenzas, it can pound out ceaseless rhythmic motion of weird forms and contours.

Four of these instruments, or rather a newer and more highly developed refinement of the Clavilux created especially for the Brooklyn-Paramount theatre, which Wilfred calls "Luminars," have been installed in the new theatre. The projectors are placed on top of the arches at the side of the auditorium. In back of the arches, the large expanse of smooth, white plaster wall serves as a screen upon which these projections are focussed, so that when the instruments are started, all the walls will begin to now in many colored pictures.

The light is flashed down from the top of the arch and hits the wall crossways at an angle of 45 degrees. This gives an effect of depth and vividness that the ordinary process of projection would not give. Thus, instead of the flat color of the ordinary mural, by the use of the Luminar, the plain white walls of the theatre become alive with moving and ever-changing paintings in color that possess depth and life-like vividness.

The instruments will be operated by the electrician back stage, all the effects being combined on the keyboard. As in the case of the Clavilux, records and plates of the compositions can be made show that the instruments will operate semi automatically.

Colorful as the instrument he invented is the life of the inventor, Thomas Wilfred, poet, musician and artist. The idea originally started with a cigar box in which a prism was suspended. For 21 years, he worked alone and against tremendous odds to perfect this instrument.

After the war, he came to America and continued his recitals here, traveling from coast to coast. Wilfred gave recitals with his instrument all over the world, lectured at universities and contributed to encyclopedias and became one of the leading exponents in the art of light.

During one of these recitals, Frank Cambria, Art Director for Publix Theatres, happened to be in the audience. He was instantly impressed with the possibility made up of "Napoleon's Barber," a decoration. When the new Brooklyn Paramount theatre was about to be built, Cambria sought out the inventor and asked him to make four of these color organs for the new theatre. Wilfred has signed contracts which give his inventions exclusively to Publix Theatres.

An Investment in Organ Protection

Organs are necessary theatre equipment and they are the most valuable equipment a theatre owner can buy, or an architect can specify. Then, why pay thousands of dollars for a wonderful organ and hesitate to pay a few hundred for organ protection. Why install an organ that is a masterpiece of construction only to subject it to severe and changing weather conditions, to let it deteriorate from lack of proper care.

EVENHEETERS

EVENHEETERS are a necessary investment in organ protection. They are a necessity to ward off cold and dampness which ruins every theatre organ. They heat the entire organ chamber and organ parts with a steady, smooth, even heat, warding off deterioration and loss of organ use caused by weather conditions. Why not spend an additional few hundred for this necessary organ chamber equipment when you are installing your organ, or now before winter really sets in. You will find that saved maintenance expenses will more than repay you the original cost of EVENHEETERS.

terial hitherto used for the sound installations.

According to a statement from the officials of the American Cine Screen Company the new screen gives the depth and detail that is required of standard projection and they believe that it will not be necessary to use the extremely high-power amperage which has been necessary since the advent of sound pictures using the present type sound porous screen.

One of the major advantages of the Cinevox screen is the fact that it care and maintenance does not require more effort than the upkeep of the standard opaque screens. It may be thoroughly cleaned by brushing at regular intervals, the makers recommend that it be brushed about every 60 or 90 days, just as the standard screens are cleaned. This eliminates the labor and cost of removing screens every few weeks for washing, a necessity with the sound porous screens which have been in use heretofore.

The development of the Cinevox screen is the result of almost a year's experimentation. The American Cine Screen Company has turned the manufacturing rights of the new screen over to the Mi-nusa Cine Screen Company and the American Silversheet Company, both of Gaining Public Favor

How can it be done? Good films, good location, an attractive theatre, comfort and conveniences—of course.

But all of these things are of no avail unless the picture on the screen has Clear Definition, Flatness of Field, Black and White Contrast, and Proper Illumination.

For after all, the public pays to be entertained by with the pictures.

So page the Cinephor Lens. It will faithfully reproduce the film and help greatly to gain public favor.

NO BATTERIES—NO REPLACEMENTS

Looking at Television as a Possible Future Competitor of Movies

Experience Seems to Prove that the Results of Scientific Findings are Progressively Favorable to Established Activities in Industry and Trade

HARDLY has the Motion Picture Industry passed through the first trying stages of readjusting itself to the talking picture when another spectre arises to confound it and disturb its peace of mind in even more serious fashion.

Television — synonymous with radio movies—is now an established fact. An experimentally established one it is true, but nevertheless possessing potentialities so extensive as to prohibit even the wildest conjectures concerning its ultimate applications.

These conjectures, in the minds of some persons, range all the way from the complete abolition of all motion picture theatres in favor of the showing of television pictures in the home, to a more beneficial advantage of adapting radio movies to the present theatrical system and incorporating the new baby as a member of the moving picture family as was done with the talking picture child.

In the words of one large producer of motion pictures, there is nothing to fear from a successful conclusion of the current television experiments because each new discovery of science has acted to the benefit of existing industries rather than restricting them. In other words, the results of scientific findings are always progressively favorable to present activities instead of tending to create altogether new ones.

A sufficient number of examples are close at hand to support this line of reasoning. Radio broadcasting, at first, was a serious competitor of moving pictures and became even a greater one as its perfection progressed to a high state, until it was eventually incorporated with the motion picture to the latter's great advantage.

In the industrial field, the invention of labor saving devices and systems invariably have resulted in opening up new fields of employment because the lowered prices coming from mass production have greatly augmented the demand by making hitherto unobtainable products available to all.

True, there is always a readjustment period which must be passed which, for the time being, makes it appear that advantages have been gained at the expense of a welfare of a large group of people whose services have thus been dispensed with but in the end each person finds a niche in the new order of things and one more step has been recorded in the progress of the world.

There are many who believe, however, that successful television will ultimately spell doom for the motion picture through its ability to reproduce in the home the same show that can be staged in the theatre.

Whether or not this will happen is purely a matter of guesswork and one which will be decided by future inventions and discoveries. At the present time, this eventuality appears so remote as to cause little worry.

The most optimistic enthusiasts of television claim that successful home installations are a matter of but months while its more conservative proponents promise successful results in the home in from two to five years.

Either estimate is sufficiently close to place the day of reckoning in the immediate future and so provide food for serious thought.

At the present time television pictures are being broadcast by a number of stations in this country and abroad. These pictures, as may be surmised from the very newness of the thing, are comparatively crude and less sharply defined than newspaper photographs. Some are merely silhouettes and quite poor ones at that.

These first results, however, should not be taken as being indicative of the ultimate for it will be remembered that radio broadcasting had its beginning in much the same fashion. Perfection, within the limits of human ability, is almost certain to follow because of the intensive research now in progress by innumerable companies and individuals.

THE best results at present show a picture about six inches square consisting of 60 lines to the inch. Most of the transmitters now used are for pictures varying from 24 to 48 lines to the inch. The distinctness of the television picture depends upon the number of lines to inch, those pictures having more lines to inch being more distinct.

Each television picture consists of a series of lines. These lines are made up of white dots on a black background and are similar to a newspaper photograph view through a magnifying glass.

Photographs in the average run of magazines average about 110 lines to the inch and engravings printed on calendered paper run as high as 150 lines to the inch.

In this way, a comparison of television pictures with magazine photographs may be had and will serve to show the progress that has been made in this new field.

It may seem a far cry from a photograph six inches square and of a quality comparable to that of the ordinary newspaper photograph to one 18 or 20 ft. in width and of a quality equal to that shown in the modern motion picture theatre.

It should be remembered, however, that a picture several feet in width will be ample for showing in the average home and that the quality of the average motion picture as projected in the theatre is far below that of good printing in the better class of magazines. Looked at in this light, present results from television receivers are not so far off as they would seem to be.

SERIOUS efforts are now being made to circumvent that bugbear of all radio receivers—static. Wired radio seems to be the logical solution and measures are being taken to transmit radio programs to millions of homes over the regular house lighting power lines. This is right in line with the development of television reception and besides providing a ready means for the elimination of static interference, it also furnishes a method of collecting revenue from the receivers of programs.

Under a plan now being formed by a large company, radio receivers will rent, on a monthly basis, to customers who will receive their programs over electric light wires.

This last named consideration is probably the most important of all as concerns both audible radio and television. It provides a stimulus for presenting programs rendered by the best talent available and at same time giving all of the expensive trimmings now used in the motion picture theatre. In other words, audible radio and television, logically combined as were motion pictures and sound, will be definitely placed upon a commercial basis—a pay as you receive basis—which will make it well worth while for the producers of such programs to present the very best talent which can be obtained.

That is the dream and also the possible outcome of it, which is fostered in the minds of those persons now intensively engaged in promoting audible radio and television programs.

The seriousness of this competition can be judged by the exhibitor himself. It cannot be denied that radio has kept possible theatre patrons at home, especially during the winter months. Tex Rickard will attest—volubly—to the competition which radio provided in his last sad experiment with million dollar gates.

It now remains to be seen how much stronger this competition will become when radio movies are used to supplement the audible programs.

Al Lichtman Views the Theatre Situation

Sales Executive Sees Entertainment, Sound or Silent, Showman's Only Marketable Product

REMEMBERING that the film distributor will, during the coming season at least, find the largest market for his product in theatres which are not equipped with sound installations than he will to the relatively few which have such apparatus, what are the prospects, as viewed by chief sales executives, of the "silent" theatres for the immediate future?

Do the sales executives see in the present situation a threat at a large portion of their market through the inability of the silent to compete with the sound picture and thus impoverish or put out of business altogether those theatres which are unable for one reason or another to obtain sound equipment in the immediate future?

The answer to those questions should be of interest to theatre men who must go on through this season without benefit of sound as an attraction, for the big distributors have large sources of information and they are financially interested in the turn of events affecting their outlets for product. So with both the means of obtaining reliable information and the business incentive to weigh the subject most carefully, the distributors are not likely to base conclusions on guess work.

The viewpoint of the chief sales executive of one of the leading distributors, we are therefore pleased to present here in the form of a report on an interview by a representative of this publication with Mr. Al Lichtman, general sales manager of United Artists Corporation.

Mr. Lichtman recently returned from a sales trip through the middle west and he has been making a study of the present theatre situation.

Regarding the position of the theatre which is forced to do without sound for some time, Mr. Lichtman said that in his opinion the brains and resources of competent showmen may be relied upon to steer their theatres into the current of prosperity which, according to all the reliable indicators of business affairs, will flow steadily through the season ahead for business men in every line.

"Irrespective of a startling innovation introduced by the perfection of the synchronized sound system, the showmen have the advantage which they always enjoyed and that is the fact that the theatre is a place which attracts patrons because it provides entertainment, and fails to attract if it is not successful in the matter of entertainment."

Consequently, his opinion is that the silent picture which has demonstrated its ability to stimulate, amuse and otherwise appeal to the minds and emotions of people still can perform that function and it remains now as always for the showman to give his public the kind of performance that will entertain them, whether he employ pictures with dialogue, with synchronized musical scores, or pictures without the added features of a new invention.

The theory that sound alone will attract patrons to the picture theatres will not stand up in the face of experience. Already we have clear-cut examples which conclusively show that the mere novelty of sound cannot be depended on to hold the interest of people. Sound is a powerful added box office attraction and a new force for the artistic advancement of the motion picture—but the picture is still the thing.

Where dramatic subjects lend themselves to the treatment which employs dialogue there is no question—but that a better entertainment is developed when

LACONIA THEATRE SHAKEN BY BLAST

Film Explosion Injures Movie Operator Severely

[Special Dispatch to The Herald]
LACONIA, N. H., Nov. 10.—An explosion resulting from the burning of several feet of film in the booth of the Laconia Gardens sent many patrons of the theatre scurrying to the street for safety here this afternoon.
The explosion, which was of sufficient force to shatter several windows, moved several inches, scattered the plastering of other rooms near the booth and dislodged the bricks on the exterior of the building. It was the result of the intense heat generated by the burning of the films and Mr. Tilton was the only person injured in the hall when it occurred. An alarm was sounded from box 315 and the flames were quickly extinguished.

The positive fire preventer. Can be attached to any projector. Costs only a few cents a day.

dialogue is used. On the other hand, for the present at least the motion picture craft as developed without the aid of sound has a long start on the combined sound and sound technic.

The stars whose names have been magic at the box office maintain their hold on the public and nothing has happened to supplant them in favor. All of them will make pictures this coming season with and without sound. The greatest directors are making pictures with and without, and some of them will put forth great efforts on pictures which will have no dialogue.

These facts coupled with some recent demonstrations at the theatres themselves should be enough to reassure the theatre men who must wait several months for sound installations that the material for entertainment will be offered in abundant supply. How much added value such showmen can give their attractions by the application of judicious and capable showmanship methods is something which cannot be considered to have limit or restriction.

It is perfectly natural that the sound development, demonstrating an advance in motion picture dramatic resources and box office value which gives it place among the greatest single developments for the theatre, should create as great a stir of excitement in the business that it has. But along with the enthusiasm must go a sober consideration of the basic facts of business. The motion picture with sound or without sound is still the motion picture, an entertainment for the masses. What the public wants is entertainment in the theatre.

Theatre Manager in College Town Must be Diplomat

One of the requirements of a theatre manager stationed in a college town is to be a diplomat. That Publix has an envoy of good-will in South Bend is evidenced by actions of Manager Maurice A. Baker, whose tact and foresight created a great deal of good will for the Colfax theatre instead of resulting in a boycott by the student body.

South Bend is often identified as the home of Knute Rockne's "Fighting Irishers," otherwise Notre Dame. In accordance with the "old college custom," students always stage big pep meetings in advance of an important football game, and when their team wins they proceed to tear the town to pieces and put it together again.

Fearing that some of the more playful members of the student body might bring back the wrong set of doors (if any), Baker stole a march on them. A month prior to the Army-Notre Dame game, the biggest of the season, he made overtures to the student body and invited them to enter the theatre peacefully on the afternoon of the big game, promising them that their admittance would not be protested, providing they wouldn't carry off the chandeliers and seats for souvenirs.

Perutz and Salmon Promoted by West Coast Theatres

Harold B. Franklin, president of West Coast Theatres, recently announced a number of promotions within the ranks of his theatre organization.

Steve Perutz, who has been in charge of West Coast's Tacoma houses, is promoted to a higher post, as yet unannounced in the Fox-Poli circuit in New England, under Herschel Stuart, general manager. The Poli circuit belongs, of course, to the same parent company as West Coast—the William Fox organization.

Perutz' place is filled by Monty Salmon, for the past year manager of the Boulevard Theatre, Los Angeles, at which theatre he has done exceptionally good work.

Commission's Views Unchanged

Dismisses Charge of Block Booking Against First National but Will Continue Prosecution of Paramount Case

ALTHOUGH an application for complaint against First National Pictures charging the firm concern with violating the law by the employment of block booking was dismissed by the Federal Trade Commission last week, the attitude of the Commission against block booking is in no way affected, officials of the Commission indicated when questioned following the dismissal of the complaint.

The Commission, it was promised, will continue with undiminished vigor its prosecution of the Paramount block booking case. What little information officials of the Commission released held that the underlying factors beneath the First National case were different from those that have determined the Commission to continue prosecution of the Paramount case.

Strictly Confidential

It is the Commission's policy to keep strictly confidential the details of all complaints that are not the subject of regular proceedings. It was indicated, however, that the First National case was not regarded as analogous to the Paramount suit. Its details—who brought the complaint against the company and what was involved—these and other facts of the case are buried in the Commission's archives.

First National was first notified of the intention of the Federal Trade Commission of investigating its booking policy last March 5, when Otis B. Johnson, secretary of the Commission, sent the following communication: "The Federal Trade Commission has reason to believe you are violating the law in employing the practice known as block booking in the film industry. You may have informal hearing before the Board of Review on the questions of fact

New Star Ratings and Readjustment of Salaries Planned by Producers

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 28.—Classification of stars into "first-run" and "second-run" types, and readjustment of salary values is the next move to be inaugurated by producers in conjunction with "talkie" hysteria. This was brought out last week when several stars and featured players were told that they would have to make entirely new arrangements on their next contracts before any options can be taken up.

A "first-run" star will be one who is considered a good draw for both silent and talking pictures. "Second-run" attractions are stars found unfit for talkie purposes and whose values are restricted only to theatres showing silent films. Hence, the decreasing market for silent versions, with the increasing number of houses wired and equipped, makes necessary a readjustment of salary in ratio to each star's drawing power and the type of audiences he or she can attract. If the individual can cater to both talkie and silent film fans, the value of that person is so much greater. And, contrary to popular impression, a star or player who is valuable to "talkies" is not always equally effective in silent pictures. This is because such players' greatest asset is a "vocal personality."

Such artists are found to possess negative personalities when it comes to strictly silent productions, depending on pantomimic ability alone. There are many who find their talents lie mainly in the ability to express themselves vocally only. Hence such people will be rated on their appeal to "talkie" fans. The others, whose value is proven for both forms of entertainment, will lead the income tax lists for the future years.

involved, within 30 days, if desired. Such hearing in nature of opportunity to show cause why complaint should not issue against you alleging violation of law."

The hearing before the Board of Review and a searching investigation of the company and its branches by agents of the consumption that would not be approved for export, since most of the films are exported and the foreign markets represent a good part of the American producers' profits. This, he declared, would not be censorship, but like Representative Hudson, he did not say what it would be.

Thinks Lloyd Funny

The only good word for any picture was spoken by Huston Thompson who made the astonishing discovery that the Harold Lloyd films are clean and funny. This will be news to the exhibitors who have played them.

Despite the efforts of Canon Chase and his assistants, discord crept into the meeting when Mrs. David Ross of Indianapolis outlined the work which is being done by various organizations and which seems to be accomplishing what the conference cannot; when a representative of the Catholic Alumnae told of their work, and Mrs. Harriet Hawley Locher told of the work she is doing in Washington and suggested that Canon Chase might look into what she is doing with a view to getting somewhere with his reform work.

And then it was again announced that there would be an open forum but, said Mrs. Gilman, who presided, all the questions before the conference had been thoroughly discussed and there was nothing left to argue about, so she would call upon one or two friends of the cause and then close the discussion. Then Mrs. Rufus Gibbs of Baltimore made her annual dissertation on the moving pictures and Will Hays.

Rembusch Changes Attitude

Two very interesting statements were distributed among the newspaper representatives during the conference, one announcing the withdrawal of Frank Rembusch's support of the Brookhart bill and the other giving the views of a well known criminologist, Dr. Carleton Simon, for eight years deputy police commissioner of New York City, who attended the conference.

"I am not only opposed to the Hudson bill," Rembusch said, "but I am now equally opposed to the Brookhart bill. All factions of the industry are ironing out their differences. The more I hear about this Federal regulation business, and the more I see the type of people who sponsor it, I know that any exhibitor is silly if he does not ask all the self-constituted friends of the industry to let us solve our problems in the American way.

"I know what I am talking about, because I, myself represent the group which is supposed to have interests opposed. We are at peace. We don't want anything but the friendliness of the American public for motion pictures at large."

Gaumont Buys P. C. T., Britain's Largest Chain

Nearly $100,000,000 and Over 300 Theatres Involved in Deal Combining Country's Leading Groups

WHAT is considered the largest individual transaction in Great Britain's motion picture industry, was negotiated last week when Gaumont British Corporation bought out Provincial Cinematograph Theatres, the largest theatre circuit in England. The deal, involving almost $100,000,000 and over 300 theatres, gives British Gaumont a controlling advantage in the theatrical field. The houses involved include all in the West End of London, excepting the Empire, and takes in all the principal key cities of the country.

Gaumont is backed by Ostrer Bros., British bankers, and is a holding company for Ideal Films, W. and F. Film Service and Gaumont. The combination of Gaumont and P. C. T. makes the former the foremost factor in the motion picture industry of Britain.

The absorbed chain was built up following the war by Will Evans. Gaumont British, sponsored and financed by Ostrer Bros., has been building up a rival chain for the past few months under the name of Denman's Houses, Ltd.; by October 2 last, they had acquired 190 houses, a line-up inferior as to locations but stronger numerically. Now that the two-rival chains have been combined, their resources place them first in ranking.

It was in November of last year that First National negotiated successfully a deal allying First National with P. C. T. on a production, distribution and exhibition basis. Maneuvered by E. Bruce Johnson, then foreign manager of First National, the deal guaranteed a preferential treatment for First National in P. C. T. houses.

It eventually led to a merger between First National Pictures, Ltd., English distributing firm, and Pathe Freres Cinema, Ltd., a producing and distributing company controlled by P. C. T.'s subsidiaries.

A deal similar to the one transacted by Mr. Johnson was projected a few weeks later but was never carried through; it involved Loew's, Inc., and the United Artists Theatre Circuit, Inc. P. C. T. was then controlled by Standard Film Co., Ltd., and the Film Investment Co., Ltd., The New Standard Film Co. was formed to take over Standard Film Co. If the deal had gone through Loew's and United were to have gotten 25 per cent of the stock in the new corporation, or a quarter interest in the company controlling P. C. T.

L. A. Premiere of New Fox Special on Christmas

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, Nov. 26.—“In Old Arizona,” Fox's special directed by Irving Cummings, comes to the Criterion Theatre Los Angeles, Christmas Day. Fox was anxious to get a house of road-show reputation for the production but the Criterion proved the only one available. The house has been generally considered a poor one.

Raoul Walsh splits screen credit for direction of “In Old Arizona” with Cummings. Walsh started production but couldn't finish when he met with an injury to his eye. Later the picture had several changes in cast and was practically re-made by Cummings. Edmund Lowe, Warner Baxter and Dorothy Burgess play the leads.

Opera in Movietone Planned by Fox

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, Nov. 29.—That Fox intends production of grand opera as Movietone subjects is shown in the signing of L. E. Behymer, local concert and opera impresario to an executive post. Behymer's connection with operatic and concert celebrities has been mainly responsible for the appearance of such attractions in Los Angeles for years.

M-G-M and Fox 'Race' to Finish All-Negro Films

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, Nov. 28.—Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and Fox are now engaged in a race to get the first all-colored cast talking, singing and dancing production on the market. The race, probably unintentional, gives M-G-M a slight lead inasmuch as its “Hallelujah” has been in actual production for several weeks, and Fox just placed “Hearts in Dixie” before a camera during the current week. Both companies are slated to finish within a fortnight of each other, with release dates not scheduled for either one at present. “Hallelujah” is scheduled to wind up December 20 and “Hearts in Dixie” about January 1.

Charles Gilpin plays the leading role in the Fox production which Paul Sloane is directing. The cast includes other colored artists well-known to the musical comedy and vaudeville fields, among them Eugene Jackson, Stepin Fetchit, Gertrude Howard, Bernice Pilot, Zack Williams, Mme. Sul Te Wan and a negro chorus of 50 voices. King Vidor started work on “Hallelujah” in New York and brought his company to the Coast to finish. His leads include Daniel Haynes, Honey Brown, Victoria Spivey, Mrs. Florence De Knight and Harry Dray.

J. A. Ball in New York to Confer on Sound

J. A. Ball, director of the Technical Bureau of the Association of Motion Picture Producers, Inc., of Hollywood, arrived in New York City this week to confer with Will H. Hays and motion picture and electrical companies concerning improvements in sound pictures. The technical bureau, of which Mr. Ball is head, began to function last Oct. 1. Mr. Ball is making his headquarters at the Hays Organization, 469 Fifth Avenue.

Nat Rothstein Resigns; Silver Succeeds Him

MILTON SILVER succeeds Nat G. Rothstein as advertising manager for Universal Pictures Corporation. The appointment has been announced by Carl Laemmle. Rothstein, after years of faithful and highly competent service resigned that he might take up his residence at his palatial home in Beverly Hills, California. He has been in the industry for thirteen years and doubtless will continue after he has had a rest.

Silver has been assistant advertising manager of Universal for two and one-half years. He joined the advertising department as a copy writer in 1924 and was elevated to assistant manager in May, 1926. He entered the motion picture field seven years ago. As advertising manager Silver will have supervision over Universal's exploitation department.

Fox Bans Free-lance Press Agents

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 28.—Fox has been added to the list of studios inserting a clause in their player contracts which forbids the actor or actress from engaging free-lance publicity agents. A similar clause is included in the contracts issued by Paramount and it is understood that First National and Warner Brothers forbid the use of free-lance press agents.

The cause for this procedure is the usual punishment of the majority for the sins of the minority. The tactics of a few press agents have resulted in what is considered poor publicity for the player and studio, with the result that all free-lancers are suffering.

There are certain number of publicity men in the free-lance field, whose methods have been approved by studios and producers as constructive and helpful. These are the type who have avoided over-exploiting their clients at the expense of stars in productions who are supported by such clients. The constructive press-agents work hand-in-hand with the studio department and are generally well-liked by studios.

M.P.T.O.N.J. Sets Forth Attitude on Affiliation

The attitude of the M. P. Theatre Owners of New Jersey toward the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America and allied states organizations of exhibitors, which during the past few months has been a matter of speculation, was definitely set forth recently at a meeting of the association. The Board of Directors unanimously adopted the following resolution:

"The M. P. T. O. of New Jersey is an independent organization and has no affiliation with any national organization, but it, hereby, declares that it will cooperate with any independent motion picture organization on any project for the welfare of the independent exhibitor. Furthermore, no individual has been authorized by the M. P. T. O. N. J. to represent it in any national organization."

In the absence of President Seider, the statement was given out by Sidney E. Samuelson, chairman of the Board of Directors.

Banky Returns to Coast to Remake Scenes

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, Nov. 28.—Because Robert Montgomery, legitimate stage actor who played in the New York scenes made recently for Vilma Banky's "Child's Fifth Avenue," was detained in the east because of stage engagements, Alfred Santell, who is directing the feature for United Artists, arrived this week in Hollywood with his unit and will remake all of the New York scenes in which Montgomery participated, substituting James Hall in his place. Samuel Goldwyn is the producer.

Evelyn Brent Signed by "U" for "Broadway"

The character of Pearl, created by Jed Harris in his Broadway stage play, "Broadway," will be played on the screen by Evelyn Brent, whom Universal has just signed for its forthcoming adaptation.

The selection of Miss Brent follows several reports that various actresses were slated for the role. Dr. Paul Fejos will direct the picture and Carl Laemmle, Jr., will act as supervisor. Glenn Tryon will have the leading male role and Myrna Kennedy was recently chosen for the ingenue role.

Lower Priced Sound Devices on Way

Though RCA is now working to capacity to turn out the more expensive equipment experiments are continuously going on with the cheaper device and it is said it will be ready for installation in theatres within the next five or six months. Meantime the company is making many installations of the more expensive equipment.

E. E. Bucher, vice-president of RCA Photophone says there will be 52 sets installed by the end of December and that the company's program calls for 650 installations by the first of May of next year. It may be that these figures will be exceeded as production is speeded up.

Sound Will Not Displace Silent Pictures, Says Zukor

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, November 28.—"So-called sound pictures will not displace silent films."

This is the lead off in the first statement made on talking pictures by Adolph Zukor, who arrived here Sunday.

"On the other hand," said Mr. Zukor, "sound effects and dialogue will be used to enhance the entertainment value of a film. I believe it is generally accepted that to tell a story to hold interest, to reach a climax in drama by means of pantomime is the most difficult of the arts. That is the field of the motion picture. We have worked out a technique of continuity, direction and acting to relate a story by means of the screen.

"Surely we are not going to turn wholly now to the so-called talking motion pictures, for that way lies the road downhill. We would be surrendering all that we have achieved. I think our future lies in the silent film, with sound and dialogue as adjuncts. We should not strain in an effort to inject sound and dialogue into motion pictures merely because of novelty. They are properties to be utilized the better to tell a story just as we have used subtitles."

The Zukor statement is interpreted here as a virtual announcement of Paramount policy with regard to sound. It is somewhat in contrast to statements made by Jesse L. Lasky, some time ago, in which the latter predicted that in five years there would be no more silent pictures.

Educational Will Release Sennett Talkie Shorts

"The Lion's Roar," First Subject With Dialogue and Music, Exhibited at Special Showing in New York

EDUCATIOnAL has concluded a contract with Mack Sennett whereby the former will release a number of two reel comedies that will be made by the Sennett organization with sound and musical accompaniment under the RCA Photophone system of recording. The first of these subjects, "The Lion's Roar" had a preview showing at the RCA Photophone studios on Tuesday of this week. It is understood that the second picture in this series already has been completed and that future releases will be made at short intervals.

"This is only the first announcement on our sound program," said Mr. Hammons in making public the information on Educational's entrance into the sound field. "Other details will be made as other groups of sound short subjects become ready for showing. In promising details of Educational's program in recent weeks, we have stated only that Educational could be relied upon to maintain the same leading position with short subjects in sound that it has maintained in the silent short subject field for years. 'The Lion's Roar,' which I saw presented at several previews on my recent visit to Los Angeles, will, I believe, bear us out fully in this."

The Mack Sennett Talking Comedies are being produced at Sennett's sound studios in Hollywood. "The Lion's Roar" was both written and directed by Sennett personally. Every character talks, sings, plays a musical instrument or does all of these. No titles appear after the first main one and the credits, the story unfolding in natural sequence and being self-explanatory because of the conversation.

Washington, D. C. Exhibitor to Rush Interchangeability Test

SIDNEY LUST, owner of five Washington, D. C., theatres and member of the board of directors of the exhibitor unit in the District intends to settle the question of interchangeability in the near future if such a thing is possible. He will install a disc sound reproducing device in one of his houses and then demand service with Western Electric records. In the event that service is refused it is his intention to rush the matter to the courts at the earliest possible date for a test hearing.

Mr. Lust is not acting in defiance of anyone, he explains, but as a small exhibitor he feels that the question of interchangeability should be determined satisfactorily without delay. He says exhibitors owning theatres such as his cannot afford the prices asked by Western Electric and RCA.

Mid-West Troubles Brew

Daylight Saving, Amusement Tax Proposal and Activities Of Reformers Are Problems Before Kans.-Mo. Showmen

A DAYLIGHT saving battle raging hotly in Kansas City and the spectres of a new amusement tax and activities from a new "reform" organization are now confronting the exhibitor world of Kansas and Missouri.

The proposed daylight saving ordinance has aroused the Team and Motor Truck Association of Kansas City, employing more than 8,000 men, to vigorous protest. The Association has gone on record as unalterably opposed to the plan.

The amusement tax situation was thrust to the fore the other day when the governor of Kansas called a special meeting at Topeka to discuss a tax levy upon amusements, tobacco and incomes. Concerning this measure, R. R. Biechele, president of the M. P. T. O. of Kansas-Missouri, pronounced the times as none too good for its adoption with business conditions as they are. Thousands of fans who cannot afford to do so will be forced to pay the tax, said the exhibitor leader.

The reform element who have made their bow in Kansas City under the name of the Wholesome Amusement Committee propose that the police commissioners to be appointed for the city be men who will not tolerate indecent shows. They will call upon Governor-elect Henry S. Caulfield and request that their plan be taken up. It is understood that films are included under the general classification of "indecent."

Exhibitors who had planned to open their theatres on Sundays at Columbia, the seat of the Kansas state university, were restrained from such action when the city council last Tuesday passed an ordinance prohibiting Sunday movies.

That measures of this type have not the approval of lawyers was ascertained when F. Dumont Smith, president of the Kansas Bar Association, in addressing the association in convention, declared "laws forbidding Sunday amusements violate the 'very spirit of the Declaration of Independence.'"

Ina Claire a Pathe Star

Signing of Stage Luminary Seen as First of a Series of Moves Presaging an Aggressive Policy for Firm

INA CLAIRE, a feminine personality of the American stage who has achieved outstanding success as an actress, has signed a contract to star in Pathe motion pictures.

The signing of Miss Claire is held by Pathe to be the first of a series of moves, now in progress, which will advance Pathe picture production. It is taken to presage an aggressive production policy for this concern.

Plans for the actress' first vehicle have not been divulged, but a statement will soon be forthcoming from Pathe detailing the production. That it will be a talking picture there is not a doubt. Speaking of this medium by means of which stage stars will achieve additional prominence, Colvin W. Brown, executive vice-president of Pathe, remarks that "the fruition of the new art will come from a judicious blending of the best of the technique of the silent picture with the talent and the experience of the stage."

The latest stage appearance in New York of the new Pathe star was early this year when she starred in W. Somerset Maugham's "Our Betters." It was announced recently that she would star in "Children of the Darkness."

Producers to Establish Call Bureau

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 28.—A call bureau is practically certain to be established by the Producers Association on January 1. Arrangements are now being made whereby the bureau will list all actors who have representation by agents and calls for such players will not be made to the actor direct but to the representative. Franchising is still being discussed.

Canadian Chain Asks Writ Permitting Sunday Shows

Still another legal development has taken place in the Province of Quebec over law enforcement and the interpretation of existing statutes in the application for a writ of prohibition to restrain the criminal courts from prosecuting motion picture theatres under the law of 1907 which places a ban on Sunday theatrical performances. The applicant is United Amusements, Limited, which has a chain of 13 theatres in Montreal, and the motion was heard by Mr. Justice Desaulniers in Superior Court, November 22.

The key witness called by the applicant company was J. E. Ouimet, a pioneer exhibitor of Montreal, who said that he started presenting motion pictures there in 1904. When the anti-Sunday show law was passed, no restriction had been placed upon moving pictures and they had continued on Sundays ever since. If the writ is granted, all theatres in the Province of Quebec can operate on Sundays unless the law is amended.

Doctors Thank Hays for Surgical Films

After witnessing the special showing of the French films of surgical operations at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, New York, last Tuesday night, November 20, the assembled gathering of physicians passed a resolution thanking Will H. Hays for making available to them the showing of the films through his cooperation and that of George Eastman. The doctors also expressed their appreciation of the motion picture in its non-entertainment phases as an agency to aid the progress of scientific learning.

"U" Acquires Right to "Luxury Husband"

Universal has acquired the talking picture rights for Maysie Grieg's novel, "The Luxury Husband."

The production undoubtedly will be a special. It will be put into work at an early date. No intimation is yet to be had as to the identity of the stars or players who will handle the two leading roles. Neither has a director been chosen.

"U" Signs 2 from Stage Cast of "Broadway"

Two actors from the original cast of the stage play, "Broadway," were engaged recently by Universal to reenact in the film version of the work the same roles that they played behind the footlights. The two are Thomas Jackson and Paul Porcasi and they will leave New York for Universal City at an early date.

"Bachelor's Club" Has 2 Feminine Leads

Bristolphone Schedule Is 250 Month

Company Now Among Leading Factors in Equipping Theatres

SONORA-BRISTOLPHONE, which records on disc, has become a leading factor in the sound production and reproduction field and is a keen rival of both Western Electric and RCA. Indications are that the Bristolphone device will be a very popular one.

That the Sonora-Bristolphone will be interchangeable with both Western Electric and RCA seems assured beyond any doubt. It is understood that Bristolphone has been licensed to both produce and reproduce copyrighted music by the music publishers who are represented by E. C. Mills. Negotiations in this direction are said to have been completed last week. This company, with Western Electric and RCA are said to be the only equipment producing concerns so licensed by Mr. Mills.

Bristolphone has been used in two theatres for the showing of Western Electric disc product and to date there has been no objection on the part of Western Electric officials. These tests were made at the Academy in Hagerstown, Md., and the Strand in Madison, Wis. Service was given the theatres by licensees of the Western Electric Company and reports indicate that the showings were carried on with complete success.

Both Western Electric and RCA have practically conceded interchangeability provided the equipment used meets with the approval of their licensees and satisfactorily reproduces their product. This require-

Shuberts Pleased With Sound Films; Will Wire All Houses

SHUBERTS are reported so well satisfied with their contract with Warner Bros. on the Winter Garden in New York that all of their 98 theatres in 24 cities will eventually be wired for sound films. It is said that the Shubert cut in the weekly receipts of Al Jolson in "The Singing Fool" has netted them at least $10,000 a week. The Jolson picture, it is said, has grossed an average of $42,000 for the nine weeks it has been on display at the Winter Garden.

"Noah's Ark" is to follow "The Singing Fool" into the Winter Garden and when it does it will also be shown at four others of the largest Shubert houses located in Philadelphia, Chicago, Pittsburgh and Boston. They are now being wired.

ment has undoubtedly been met by Bristolphone.

As the result of these showings and the activity of the Bristolphone officials fifteen large circuits have already ordered installations, with indications, according to the company, that many others will fall into line in the near future. Orders are said to number 250 at present.

Plans for the production of the equipment are being rushed to completion and the Bristolphone plant will be working at capacity in the near future. The present schedule calls for the manufacture of 250 equipments a month starting December.

Bristolphone is fortunate too, in having a number of picture producing companies aligned with it in using the recording system and will therefor have an abundance of its own product available. The production companies now are: Gotham Productions, Asher, Small and Rogers and Lesser-Warner Productions. The schedule at present calls for twenty-six feature productions, two of which will be specials, and 52 short subjects.

Western Electric to Install 4,000 Sets By End of 1929

WESTERN ELECTRIC COMPANY'S schedule of installations calls for at least 4,000 houses being equipped by the end of next year, according to officials of that company. There are now said to be 885 systems in operation and this number will be increased to 1,000 by the end of December of this year.

Production has been speeded up all along the line by the Western Electric staff and their capacity which has been around 160 a month will shortly be increased to an average of 250 a month. This pace, it is said, will at least be maintained and probably increased during the coming year. It is figured that at least 3,000 sets will be installed during 1929.

J. E. Otterson, head of the Electrical Research Products Company only recently returned to New York from the Hawthorne manufacturing plant. He inspected every angle of the work and declares that every possible step is being taken to increase the equipment output. Three shifts are now working twenty-four hours a day in the plant, with additional space being devoted to the manufacture of sound equipment and additions being made to the staff of workmen regularly.

The work of manufacturing this theatre equipment is of a highly skilled nature and it is only with difficulty that the staff of workmen can be increased as rapidly as the company desires. However, results are most satisfactory, according to Mr. Otterson. Sets are being turned out more rapidly than ever before and in the period from November 5 to 17 no less than 105 theatres were equipped, the banner number for that period of time.

"Circus Kid" Prologue Completed by FBO

Norma Shearer to Play Role of Mary Dugan

NORMA SHEARER will bring to the screen the character of Mary Dugan, the heroine of Bayard Veiller's stage drama which Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is about to produce as an all-talking production. Rehearsals are scheduled to start at any minute.

Miss Shearer, who has just finished "A Lady of Chance," has had her vehicle, "The Last of Mrs. Cheney," postponed temporarily. Frederick Lonsdale, who wrote the play, is now enroute to Hollywood to cooperate with Director Robert Z. Leonard on the dialogue version.

Mr. Veiller is also to direct "The Trial of Mary Dugan" for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer; he has just completed the screen version of his work. Raymond Hackett will have the part he played on the stage in the picture. No other players have been announced.

Sound Picture Reviews

By Chester J. Smith

The Spanking Age

This M-G-M subject presents "Our Gang" in a comedy with sound and there is some doubt as to whether or not it enhances the value of the picture. The voices of several of the gang are reproduced mostly in sound, but with a smattering of dialogue here and there. These "gang" comedies have been noted for their speed and the sound serves to slow them up quite a bit. It is a good comedy, however, and a decided novelty. Mary Ann and Wheezer are in the limelight more than the actors as badly treated stepchildren. They take advantage of the absence of the stepmother to stage a party for the gang and there is much humorous action. It is a picture that will be appreciated as much as any of these comedies in the past.

Confession

This is an intensely dramatic playlet presented most capably by an M-G-M cast. Its technique is somewhat different than similar subjects that have been heard on the sound screen and it holds the interest throughout. Robert Ames, Carroll Nye, Christian Yves and Yvonne Stark make up the very capable cast that presents the playlet just on the outskirts of an American rest camp on the outskirts of Bar-le-duc. A despised officer has been slain and a private sentenced to death for the murder. A doughboy run over by a truck is brought into the French Inn and there confesses the killing to his buddie as he passes out. More subjects such as this are needed on the sound screen.

We Faw Down

Here is one of the funniest short comedies ever seen or heard on the screen. It is a Hal Roach offering by M-G-M featuring Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy and it is done in sound but no dialogue. Only the laughter of the comedians is recorded. The action is hilarious and the sound effects ingeniously arranged. Laurel and Hardy are a pair of cheating husbands who plan a night at poker but tell their wives they are going to a vaudeville show. Instead they inadvertently become entangled with the girl friends of a couple of prizefighters who discover the quartet in the apartment. Meantime an extra paper has conveyed the news to the wives that the vaudeville house has burned down. When Laurel and Hardy make their escape from the apartment they are discovered by their wives exiting through a window. The wives say nothing at the time but rush back to their own apartments to await them. There some hilariously funny action takes place with a final shot that is guaranteed to evoke plenty of laughter from any audience.

Phipps

Lowell Sherman is starred in this M-G-M Movietone subject which is very well done and all in dialogue, but which drags horribly. It is replete with clever lines however, but would hardly be passable in less skilled hands. Sherman is the Butler, Phipps, who is called upon to witness the cruelty of Sir Gerald to Lady Fannie that a divorce may be obtained. A proposition is made that Phipps shall accompany Lady Fannie as her companion on a trip that the divorce may be made easier. He confesses his love for her and she enthuses over the confession. However, the difficulties between Lady Fannie and Sir Gerald are smoothed out and Phipps, much abashed is then compelled to give his notice.

The Lion's Roar

This is the first of the Mack Sennett comedies in the new tieup with Educational done under the RCA process of recording and reproducing. It is very cleverly conceived in that it takes in a wide variety of sound, all of which is capably reproduced on the screen. This sound varies from straight dialogue to a reproduction of the chirping of birds, the carrying of high notes by a soprano, the tones of a saxophone and various other tests. The plot too, is well planned and executed, with Johnny Burke, Daphne Pollard, Billy Bevan and Vernon Dent in the leading roles. The subject matter is of the type that can reflect only credit to the sound screen, and is well interspersed with good comedy material.

Portland Has Device to Reproduce Sound

Theatre Sound Corporation, has been organized at Portland, Ore., by J. J. Fleming, M. F. Roach and W. H. Roach to market sound device for theatres that is said to be much simpler in operation than other sound devices now on the market. This is the invention of Art Kolstad, owner and operator of the Rialto Theatre of Hood River.

A representative body from the Northwest Independent Exhibitors Association recently were given a preview of the apparatus at Hood River, Ore., on "Lilac Time." The machine is equipped with three horns, tenor, baritone and bass, each being distinct from each other.

"Younger Generation" to Be Columbia Talkie

"The Younger Generation," the Columbia special adapted from Fannie Hurst's stage play, "It Is to Laugh," will be a "talkie" and also have a synchronized music score and sound effects. This is the second production listed on Columbia's sound program. The first was "Submarine." "The Donovan Affair," the mystery play by Owen Davis is now being cast as an "all-talkie."

"The Younger Generation" stars Jean Hersholt under Frank R. Capra's direction. Besides Rex Lease and Miss Basquette, the featured members of the cast selected so far are Ricardo Cortez, Rosa Rosanova, Edward Molnar, Leon Ramon and Virginia Marshall.

Jessel Starts Talking, Singing Sequences

Talking and singing sequences for the Tiffany-Stahl production "Lucky Boy," starring George Jessel, were started on Thursday, November 16th, in New York at the R-C-A Studios under the personal supervision of Rudolph Flothow, who is in full charge of Tiffany-Tone Synchronization.

This is to be Jessel's first singing and talking picture, with scenes taken in and around New York City. Margaret Quimby has been brought on from Los Angeles to New York to play opposite Jessel. She was formerly a George White Scandals' girl.

Warners Acquire More Land for Sets

Expansion of Warner Bros. facilities to cope with the demands for increasing production of Vitaphone pictures has been the motive for acquiring several acres of land adjacent to the auxiliary studio at Prospect and Talmadge Street, Hollywood. This is to provide for more ground to erect exterior sets which have been crowded from the main studio on Sunset Boulevard where large space has recently been absorbed in the construction of new stages.

London Suspends Judgment on Talkies

"Jazz Singer" Scores Heavily but "Terror" Dampens Enthusiasm

By a Special Correspondent

LONDON, November 22.—For the moment, the judgment of London is suspended on the subject of American talking pictures. London received "The Jazz Singer" very cordially—more cordially than one might believe in view of a rather unfortunate impression created by the odd mixture of English and American accents in the trailer of "The Terror" that was shown immediately before it.

Then after four crowded weeks of "The Jazz Singer" (which could easily have run for four months) "The Terror" was shown. It got a chilly reception from the chorus of professional knockers who form so large a proportion of any first night audience in London. To say the least of it, it is unbelievable that any father and daughter could have such widely differing accents as Alee Francis and May McAvoy.

Soon after the first showing of "The Terror" came the opening of the new Empire. There was a brilliant audience who were all thrilled by the magnificence and the comfort of the new house, with which nothing else in Europe will bear any comparison. They were unquestionably prejudiced in favor of the entertainment before it began. They applauded the overture more than the item deserved. Then came the Movietone, with a greeting to the theatre by the new Lord Mayor of London. Then came—

English vs. American Voices

But I must interrupt myself, and refer again to that trailer of "The Terror." Ever since it was shown and heard, all the professional Englishmen had been saying that when it came to "talkies," English voices were bound to be so much better than American voices. This statement looked all right, even reasonable, until the British stars were seen and heard over the Movietone greeting the audience at the opening of the new Empire. Alas! If anything, they were worse than the Americans—both men

British Film Censors to Act on Talkies

IT has just been announced in London that the British Board of Film Censors is to continue to act as sole censor on talking and sound films in addition to silent films, the Department of Commerce learns.

There was some question as to whether the Lord Chamberlain's theatrical censorship department should be represented when talking films are being reviewed, but after consultation among the authorities concerned it was decided that talking films should be judged as ordinary films, and that at present there was no need for theatrical censors to view them, according to Trade Commissioner William M. Park, London.

The Board of Film Censors have decided to issue a special certificate to distinguish talking from silent films.

General Talking Pictures to Buy 60 Plays for Production

A LARGE transaction in story material has just been completed between General Talking Pictures Corporation and the Sanger and Jordan Division of the Anglo International Play Bureau. General Talking Pictures Corporation which controls the DeForest Phonofilm system has taken an option on one hundred musical comedies and stage plays from which a selection of sixty will be made and purchased for the use of the producing companies licensed under the Phonofilm patents.

The one hundred subjects which have been set aside on the option agreement include full length dramatic pieces, farces, comedies, modern melodramas, and mystery plays as well as musical comedies. They were selected by Walter C. Jordan, general manager in America of Anglo International Play Bureau, from the vast number of successes he had handled on the legitimate stage as being story properties which are well adapted to talking picture production.

and women of the rest of the Movietone, which included a sort of a travelogue with some of the M-G-M stars.

"The Singing Fool"

Next day came the trade showing of "The Singing Fool." There was quite a fair sprinkling of people who were not in the trade, and the majority seemed agreed on several things: first that the only voices worth listening to were those of Al Jolson and Ed Martindale. I forbear from relating what the audience thought of the others. They could have tolerated an occasional word or two from the child, but it would have taken a highly-skilled dramatist of the first order—like Lonsdale, Maugham, Molnar or Brioux—to have written the dialogue for the bedroom scene where "Al" accuses his wife of coldness and extravagance.

By all counts, the most effective scene (excluding the last half reel, of course) was the scene in the park between the father and the child—and there wasn't one word spoken!

Some years ago, George M. Cohan, out of the depths of his experience, said, "Let the audience do your acting for you." To which I will add, "Let them do your 'voicing' for you—so far as England is concerned." The chief source of the trouble, I believe, lies in the fact that we have attained in the last few years, photographic perfection. We have now attached to this perfection something that is vocally a misfit. It looks as if we need at least two years' hard experimental work on sound reproduction.

Vitaphone Complications Due on Canada Trademark

COMPLICATIONS are developing in connection with the Vitaphone trademark in Canada, which may result in legal action before the situation is straightened out. As things now stand the Baldwin International Radio Corporation of Canada, Ltd., claims the exclusive right in Canada to the use of the word when applied to talking, phonographic or music devices in the dominion. Vitaphone claims the right to the use of the name in the reproduction of sound pictures and has so instructed exhibitors in the Dominion.

Search of the records in the copyright and trademark branch of the Canadian Patent Office reveals the fact that the trade name, "Vitaphone" was registered October 24, 1913, by the Canadian Vitaphone Company, Limited, under number 19006 of Register 77 to apply to talking machines, accessories and musical instruments. The record shows that the name "Vitaphone" was assigned by William R. Fosdick, liquidator of the Canadian Vitaphone Co., Ltd., on January 19, 1927 to the Baldwin International Radio Corporation, of Canada, Ltd.

New York offices of Vitaphone claims that the Vitaphone Company, a corporation of Delaware was bought out by the Vitaphone Company of Canada, a subsidiary of the old Vitaphone Corporation, and that the Baldwin company acquired the rights from that company. It is contended that the rights lapsed from lack of usage and that the present Vitaphone Company was the first to apply in Canada for the use of the name in connection with cameras, projectors, etc. In other words it is contended that Vitaphone has a valid right to the use of the title in theatres and that if the Baldwin Company has rights they apply outside of theatres.

Meantime Vitaphone is serving Canadian exchanges and advising them that they have a perfect right to advertise the title. Vitaphone and Western Electric are being represented by the same solicitors.

Lasky Announces Production Plans on Short Subjects

THE current production of half a dozen important talking short features and plans for a large program of one and two reel pictures to be made at the Long Island Studio are announced by Jesse L. Lasky, first vice-president in charge of production of the Paramount Famous Lasky Corporation.

"The short feature department, headed by James R. Cowan, has just added three important writers to its staff," said Mr. Lasky. "They are S. Jay Kaufman, widely known newspaper man and author of many dramatic works; Morrie Ryskind, co-author of the book of 'Animal Crackers' and of other plays, and William Grew, author of 'The Sap,' 'Undressed Kid' and of the books for several of Earl Carroll's Vanities. We intend to spare no efforts to get the best and freshest material from the most talented writers for our talking short features.

"These writers will be at the studio for a long term, writing original short comedies, sketches and novelties and adapting material from other fields. They also will assist Joseph Santley, the director."

Mr. Lasky announced that George Abbott, the eminent director of "Coquette," "Broadway" and other stage hits, now is engaged in directing "The Bishop's Candlesticks." The cast of Broadway stage actors is headed by Walter Huston, late star of George Cohan's "Elmer the Great."

Mr. Abbott will direct still another short feature, after which it is expected that he will make one or more full-length pictures.

Other short subjects in sound either completed recently or still in production at the Long Island Studio, include the sketch, "If Men Played Cards as Women Do," by George S. Kaufman, "Highlowbrow" by S. Jay Kaufman, Eddie Peabody and his band, Borrah Minnevitich and his troupe of harmonica-playing boys, songs by the Geirsdorf Sisters and a group of songs in an Oriental setting by Anna Chang and other Chinese and Japanese artists.

Edward Everett Horton Signed by Christie

Edward Everett Horton, stage and screen star who has just completed a series of two reel comedies for Hollywood Productions, has been signed by the Christie Film Company to star in a series of two reel sound comedies released on the Paramount program for 1929-30 but pre-released this year in those houses equipped for sound reproduction.

"Bulldog Drummond" to be Colman's First Talkie

Ronald Colman's first talking picture will be "Bulldog Drummond," which is planned to go into production within two weeks under the direction of F. Richard Jones. It will contain dialogue throughout.

The star's first individual starring picture, "The Rescue," is now being synchronized by Dr. Hugo Riesenfeld, talking sequences having been eliminated by Sam Goldwyn. The producer believes that indiscriminate mixing of silent and oral sequences weaken the dramatic force of a picture and for that reason he is also cutting out dialogue in Vilma Banky's first vehicle, but is making her second, "Child's Fifth Avenue," as an all-talkie.

"Devil's Island," planned by Mr. Goldwyn as a near production, has been postponed for two months. "Natches," a story by Joseph Hergesheimer, is set for production about April 1.

United Artists Sound Stages Near Finished

United Artists' two sound stages will be completed this week and work of synchronizing that company's product with talk will start immediately. Completion of the stages permits Mary Pickford to start actual production on "Coquette" under the direction of Sam Taylor. She is expected to start within a week.

Roland West has started on his first "talkie," in "Nightstick." It is likely that West will do the talk sequences at night and Mary Pickford will use the stage in the daytime. Douglas Fairbanks is winding up "The Iron Mask" and D. W. Griffith will begin immediately on the talk sequences for "Masquerade," originally called "The Love Song."

Paramount to Star Clara Bow in All-Talkie

Clara Bow's next vehicle for Paramount, "The Wild Party" from a story by Warner Fabian, will be a 100 per cent dialogue production and will be directed by Malcolm St. Clair. E. Lloyd Sheldon adapted the story to the screen and F. Hugh Herbert did the continuity. The dialogue is now being prepared by John V. A. Weaver.

"The Saturday Night Kid," slated as the actress' next, has been postponed until a later date.

Voice Fade-Out Used in Pathe Feature

The "voice fade-out," a clever mechanical arrangement by which the voice of a screen player in a talking picture may be made gradually to fade out and in, corresponding to the action he is describing, has been evolved by Director Howard Higgin and Benjamin Glazer, head of Pathe's sound department, for use in "The Leatherneck."

Cinephone Subject Not Halted by W. E.

WHILE according to reports, Western Electric representatives have "looked over" and listened critically to the New York Colony Theatre's presentation of the Walt Disney animated sound cartoon "Steamboat Willie," synchronized by Powers Cinephone and reproduced on the Fox-Case device, nothing was said or done by Western Electric officials tending to halt the Colony showing all last week.

"Steamboat Willie" is now held over for a second week at the Colony.

New Empire in London Opened Auspiciously

THE recent opening of the New Empire Theatre in London, England, occurred before a large and brilliant audience which filled the house to overflowing. The handsome playhouse a recent acquisition of Loew's, Incorporated, presented its feature attraction, "The Actress," before a gathering that included the two daughters of the King and Queen of Spain, the Infanta Beatrix and the Infanta Maria Christina, Lady Londonderry, Lady Colefax, Field Marshall Sir George Milne, Arnold Bennett, Lady Cunard, Viscount Castlereagh, Sir Basil Clarke and others of the nobility.

The new theatre is said to approximate the large theatres on Broadway in details and construction. The seating capacity is more than 4,000, the orchestra has a moveable stage, and there are several special salons. The house is also wired for the presentation of sound pictures and at the premiere one of the M-G-M talkies bearing greetings from prominent M-G-M stars was shown.

British Film Suit Lost by Universal

IN a decision rendered Monday, November 26, in the law suit brought by Universal against the Transatlantic Film Company of London and a counter-claim brought against Universal by the English company, Sir Francis Newbold, the official referee of the London court gave judgment against Universal for $132,550 and 6 per cent interest from January, 1920, and costs, and ordered Transatlantic to return all Universal films held by them.

Originally, Universal sued Transatlantic for $90,000 for films alleged to be unaccounted for and it was claimed Transatlantic exploited outside of an agreed area. Transatlantic responded with a counter-claim for $500,000 for losses on films alleged to have been withheld. The English company centered its attack on a transaction with Universal whereby Universal distributed a boy scout film in the United States.

Publix to Play Fanchon Marco Acts

THE Fanchon-Marco stage shows, owned by West Coast but now playing in Publix houses in Portland and Seattle, will remain in the Publix houses for an indefinite period. The West Coast-Publix split becomes effective December 1. At that time the Seattle Theatre, Seattle, and the Portland Theatre, Portland, will sever their operating connection with West Coast.

The decision to retain the Fanchon-Marco shows is undoubtedly because of the expense that would be entailed by Publix in bringing the eastern Publix units to the Northwest. It is regarded as likely that Publix has bought the Fanchon-Marco acts from West Coast. The present policy of West Coast's houses in Portland and Seattle will be continued by the decision, which was made by R. E. Crabill, general manager of Publix interests on the Pacific Coast.

Ina Claire, one of the stage's elite, whose striking presence will be brought to the screen by Pathe, who will star her in a series of talkies.

Colleen Moore symbolizes youth. Her latest role is in First National's "Synthetic Sin."

H. B. Warner plays his first talking role in a sound picture in "Stark Mad," soon to be offered by the Warner Bros. with Warner in an attractive character part.

Haven't you ever had that feeling? Chills are beginning to run up and down the spines of Estelle Bradley and Charles Lamont as they travel the "shoot the chutes." They are man and wife and act and direct respectively on the Educational comedy lots.

Sally Blane is one of a trio of sisters who are to be seen on the silver screen. Her attractiveness makes her much in demand as a leading lady. She appears in FBO's "King Cowboy."

Big Stage Hits Lose Screen Value

Practice of Plagiarism Makes Inroads Into Their Drawing Power

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 28.—Unless legitimate show producers permit the immediate filming and release of productions made from attractions to which they have sold screen rights, a smaller number of plays than ever before will be purchased by motion picture producers. Despite sound pictures and a greater opportunity than ever before to playwrights to sell screen rights, this policy will be carried out rigidly in the future.

It is a direct result of many cases of conscious or unconscious plagiarism which have taken place during the past few seasons. With the sale of almost every big Broadway hit for film production, independents and even major studios, have hopped on themes of the hit, made slight changes in titles and sequences, and produced their film before the studio which paid a tremendous price for the screen rights had an opportunity to make and release the story for which it paid money. Many of such plagiaristic cases are either within the law; or the paying producer does not care to become involved in the long legal procedure which guarantees him satisfaction.

Universal paid $225,000 in 1927 for the screen rights to "Broadway" and so tied itself up that it could not release the play in screen form until 1929. Added to that, in 1928 the company paid an additional $25,000 for the dialogue rights, making a total cost of a quarter million. Meanwhile stories similar to "Broadway," since its opening as a legitimate attraction have been made by almost a dozen other companies.

"The Trial of Mary Dugan," "The Belamy Trial," "The Canary Murder Case," one a play and two books, started the independents working on mystery stories with courtroom sequences, simply because the producers couldn't get their product on the market quick enough to prevent the others from cashing in on the tremendous price paid for screen rights.

"Excess Baggage" was one of the few cases which beat the quickie-makers to the punch. Paramount owns "Burlesque" from the play by George Manker Watters. Meanwhile another company has announced "The Queen of Burlesque."

Other instances pop up daily of companies changing merely one word in a title or using a play on a title purchased. While speedy production will not eliminate the evil entirely, standard producers feel that it gives them an even break with the others and that it is unfair to tie themselves up for any length of time.

Now the "Theme Song" Dictates the Plot

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 28.—A new phase of "tail wagging the dog" is rapidly spreading throughout Hollywood studios. Now scenarios are being written to suit theme songs which are the basic ideas for productions. Originally, song-writers were imported with a view to having them write songs for scenarios already written. Several instances have arisen lately where the theme song was submitted and scenarios based upon them.

A case in point is "Listen Baby," Pathe's forthcoming production. In this instance, the method has proper justification, as the entire story is based on the theme song and a song-writer's adventures in getting it sold.

Al Cooke, comedy star, is playing a role in "Wives Don't Weaken," an Educational-Ideal comedy featuring Jerry Drew.

"Nightstick" Before the Cameras

"Nightstick" is the first United Artists all-talkie to go before the sound cameras. Synchronized photography and voice recording began last week at the United Artists studio in Hollywood. Rehearsals for the dialogue scenes have been held for the past two weeks by Director Roland West. Everyone in the cast has had stage experience. Five of the players are making their movie debut.

Pathe Production News

The sound stages of the Pathe studio in Culver City are all being utilized at the present time. The RCA Photophone process is being used for "The Missing Man," the newly finished talkies including "Geraldine," "Noisy Neighbors," "Leath-erneck" and "Shady Lady." The equipment will also be soon at work recording scenes for "Listen Baby" and "Square Shoulders." As rapidly as pictures are finished they are sent to the Sound Studios in New York where the musical accompaniment is recorded.

"Bulldog Drummond" for Goldwyn

"Bulldog Drummond," the crook drama, has been bought by Samuel Goldwyn as a future all-talkie for Ronald Colman. Richard Jones will direct the production. "Bulldog Drummond" follows "Rescue" already finished, and "Devil's Island," in preparation.

Ed Laemmle to Direct Talkie

Edward Laemmle, Universal director whose latest work is "Man, Woman and Wife," will start work shortly on "The Drake Murder Case," planned as an all-talkie with complete dialogue by the author of the original story, Charles A. Logue.

"Hit of the Show" Premiere

The sound version of "Hit of the Show," which FBO is releasing, was given its Hollywood premiere at the United Artists Theatre on Wednesday, November 21. Joe E. Brown, who stars, is making a one-week's personal appearance.

With 'Big Boy'

"Big Boy," Educational's juvenile star, is supported by Ginger Conley in "Follow Teacher," a current Educational release.

System of Unit Supervisors Will Be Abandoned at F. N. Studio

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 28.—The system by which Warner Bros. have operated for years without either unit supervisors or unit business managers will shortly be adopted at the First National studio at Burbank. When as many as eight or ten productions were being produced at the Warner plant, all of them were handled by William Koenig, studio manager. The Warners have used this one-man system for years.

The Warner Brothers feel that if Koenig could handle so many productions simultaneously in work, the First National studio should similarly have a capable individual to take care of Burbank production instead of dividing the task between a large number of unit supervisors and unit business managers.

Flu Hits L. A. Grosses

Epidemic, Closing Several Schools, Takes Heavy Toll at Theatre Box Offices

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 29.—Epidemic of "flu" which has already closed several Los Angeles schools took a heavy toll of theatre box office grosses during the past week.

Figures show houses, such as United Artists, Carthay Circle and Grauman's Chinese, where grosses given are for week ending Wednesday night, took in from three to five thousand dollars less than the preceding week.

Other houses, where grosses furnished are for week ending Thursday night, were saved by Thanksgiving holiday performances, which lifted totals to almost average in most theatres.

Actual figures, "Noah's Ark," fourth at Grauman's Chinese, twenty-two thousand; "Interference," fourth week at Carthay Circle, nine thousand five hundred; Loew's State did twenty-five thousand with Corinne Griffith in "The Outcast" as picture attraction, but attributes most drawing power to personal appearance of Sally O'Neill, United Artists, with "The Hit of the Show," ten thousand eight hundred; Warner Brothers, second week of "On Trial," twenty-seven thousand. The Metropolitan surprised all by coming up to twenty-two thousand five hundred with "Manhattan Cocktail."

Dotty Jottings

PREDICTIONS, or even suggestions, such as made in this space last week are silly . . . because everyone leaps on you to publish some of their's . . . However, since the opening of "The Hit of the Show" and the sort of entertainment put on by Joe E. Brown in his personal appearance with the picture at the United Artists last week . . . every one is unanimous in declaring Brown . . . comparatively unknown to pictures . . . a combination of Fred Stone and Charlie Chaplin . . . and also a great star for the future if properly handled . . . Fred Stone . . . because Brown's talents are versatile and clean . . . Chaplin because a more clever bit of pantomime than the one-man baseball game Brown put on would be difficult to see . . . but let us stress the cleanliness of his entertainment style . . . it's refreshing and doubly valuable because it is funny . . . which should prove something . . .

A LOCAL photographer whose penchant for posing film players ala nude is well-known in Hollywood . . . is burned up . . . his wife played a bit in a picture last week and the photographer under contract to that lot grabbed her off to pose in a series of draped poses . . . which reminds me . . . with all the revues being made in pictures for synchronization . . . there are many undressed roles . . . and some one wanted to revive the old Winter Garden gag . . . referring to a runway used in a picture as

I GOT a look at one of Gus Edwards' short revues in color for M-G-M last week . . . the one I saw was "The International Revue" . . . featuring Armida, Georgie Harris, and Doris Walker . . . lots of entertainment, moves swiftly and the novelty of sound without color which annoys the eyesight should give revues a great reception. . . .

THREE years ago two newspaper writers . . . the more deadly of the species . . . sat in the grill of the Algonquin Hotel . . . news was scarce and just at that time the Warners had engaged John Barrymore for the lead in "The Sea Beast" and Dolores Costello as his leading lady . . . Key City Reports

New Talkers Lead Broadway Theatres

Two Holdovers Also

Do Well; "Interference" Capacity First Week

NEW YORK CITY.—The smaller theatres did a livelier business than the big houses last week in New York City. Three out of the four big fellows had hold-overs, and attendance at two of them seemed to justify the second week. Both Capitol and Strand had good trade, neither one dipping to any great extent, but the Roxy went under considerably with its hold-over of a rated special.

"Show People" (M-G-M) was the offering which again gave the Capitol an excellent week's business. No doubt but that the audience of this house liked the type of picture and a good stage bill also helped. While "The Red Dance" did very well for the first week at the Roxy, attendance was appreciably off the second week. Of course this picture ran as a special along Broadway before it came to the Roxy, and it is quite possible that this hurt some. It is also a question as to just how strong this picture is as a special. Other pictures have gone into the Roxy after a previous run on Broadway and given this house big business. "The Terror" completed its second week at the Strand, and all in all made a creditable showing.

The Paramount is still a bit shaky on its feet, lack of strong fare for the past several weeks apparently being the reason for the let down. "Homecoming," made for Paramount by UFA, could only get a mediocre week's trade. The Colony picked up smartly with FBO's "Gang War," and it is claimed that this talker broke all Colony records on the opening day. The picture has a synchronized score, sound effects, talking sequences, and is being held for a second week. "Mati Hari" completed its third week at the Cameo to fair business.

"Wings" has finally decided to leave Broadway after its long stay at the Criterion, and for the past four weeks at the Rialto. The current week will be its last. "Behind the German Lines," official German pictures of the big war, made by Ufa, goes in next week at this house. "Revenge" (U. A.) is being billed to take the place of "Woman Disputed" at the Rivoli, the latter having made a very fair showing for three weeks. Another week will be the last for this one.

"Marriage by Contract" (Tiffany-Stahl) had begun to droop at the Embassy, and M-G-M's "The Viking" replaced it on Wednesday evening of the current week.

Capacity houses have greeted Paramount's "Interference" since this picture's opening at the Criterion, and it is undoubtedly in for a comfortable run. Another talker that has gotten away to a good start is "Jimmy Valentine" at the Astor. Business here has also been very brisk. "The Barker" (F. N.) is coming into the Central to replace "Lilac Time," but last week's trade was anything but weak. This picture has made a nice run of it for over four months. Fox's "Four Devils" continues in the Gaiety at a fair pace.

The Winter Garden, with "Singing Fool," still sets the gait for the high-priced shows. It's easily the most popular show in town at the present time. Warners "On Trial" is also doing exceptionally well at Warners Theatre.

"Viking" Premiere at New York Embassy

"THE VIKING," a Technicolor production based on the Scandinavian sagas of Leif the Lucky, was given its New York premiere at the Embassy Theatre last Wednesday, November 28. A surrounding program of Movietone shorts were shown in conjunction with the feature, among them a one-act Metro play.

The picture features Pauline Starke, Donald Crisp, Claire McDowell and others and was produced by Technicolor for M-G-M, the details of its making being handled by Dr. Herbert Kalmus, who produced the Great Events series. R. William Neil was in charge of the direction.

Baltimore Theatres Have Fair Week; "Lonesome" Ad Is Criticized

BALTIMORE.—The week beginning Monday, November 19, here started warm with clouds and rain and gradually turned to cloudy, cold and then clear. A football game on Saturday hurt business.

This marked the seventh week of "The Singing Fool," starring Al Jolson as a talker at Warners' Metropolitan and the picture still stood them up.

"Show Girl," starring Alice White, proved an A-1 attraction at the Rivoli as a sound and song film and business for the entire six days was very good.

Patronage at Loew's Stanley was also very good for "The Awakening," with sound, starring Vilma Banky.

While "The Power of the Press," co-featuring Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and Jobyna Ralston, was an excellent picture, it only pulled them in slowly at the Keith-Albee Hippodrome with five acts of Keith-Albee vaudeville on the same bill.

"The Woman from Moscow," starring Pola Negri, was the feature film offered at Loew's Century with sound and music and a Loew-Public stage act headed by Ted Vlaire and his syncopators. Business was consistently good.

"Two Brothers," the foreign film starring Conrad Veidt in a dual role with Lil Dagover and Liane Haid, only proved a fair pulling attraction at the Little Theatre.

"Don't Marry," co-featuring Lois Moran and Neil Hamilton, shared honors on the Keith-Albee New Garden program with Kenneth Harlan in person. Business was good throughout the week.

"Lonesome," co-starring Glenn Tryon and Barbara Kent, as a sound and part talker, did not do so well at the New Theatre, only coming off fairly well. This was offered in advertising as "The Perfect Talking Picture" but it is understood that there were complaints because there was so little talking in it and they were led to believe it was a 100 per cent talker by the phrase.

"Avalanche," co-starring Jack Holt and Doris Hill with Olga Baclanova, proved only a fair business getter at Loew's Valencia, where it was offered with music on the non-synchronous device.

"The Road to Ruin," featuring Helen Foster, was offered at the Auditorium, a legitimate house with the performance continuous from 11 to 11. This attraction pulled poorly at the start but gradually built to good business.

Birmingham Has Normal Week's Business

Birmingham, Ala.—Business was about average in Birmingham the past week. The Ritz, with a personal appearance of Francis X. Bushman, Jr., and other Keith acts, coupled with "Gang War" (FBO) had fair business. The Alabama with "Home Towners" (Warner Bros.), a Vitaphone all dialogue picture and Van and Schenck and the Locust Sisters in Vitaphone presentations, with Fox Movietone News, fell below its average take, although the picture pleased those who saw it.

The Strand, with "Moran of the Marines" (Paramount) had fair business. The Trianon, with "The Street of Illusion" (Columbia-Liberty) got by fairly well. The Empire, with "White Shadows in the South Seas" (Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer) with M-G-M News and Charley Chase in a Hal Roach comedy "Imagine My Embarrassment" (M-G-M) had nice business. The Galax, with "Passing of the Oklahoma Outlaws," featuring U. S. Marshal Tilghman, had average business.

"Barker," New Talkie, At Central, Dec. 3

FIRST National's special, "The Barker," and the company's first talking picture, will succeed "Lilac Time" at the Central Theatre in New York City on Monday night, December 3. It will play an extended run at the $2 top scale of prices. The New York premiere will practically coincide with the beginning of the picture's run at the Carthy Circle Theatre in Los Angeles where it is scheduled to open about December 1.

The important scenes of "The Barker" have been done in dialogue. The players in the four leading roles are Milton Sills, Dorothy Mackaill, Betty Compson and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. The film is adapted from the play of the same name and was made by Director George Fitzmaurice.

Sound Pictures Do Well in St. Louis

All Downtown Houses Have Brisk Week's Trade with Talkers

ST. LOUIS.—Al Jolson, who, with "The Jazz Singer" took the Grand Central Theatre at Grand boulevard and Lucas avenue, out of the ink bottle and placed it in the dividend paying class, got the new Midtown Theatre (the former Empress) on Olive street, west of Grand boulevard, away to a flying start during the week ending November 23 with the premier St. Louis showing of "The Singing Fool."

Throughout the entire week the picture played to capacity audiences and many hundreds were turned away because there were not sufficient seats to accommodate them.

At the Missouri Theatre, Grand boulevard at Lucas avenue, "The Home Towners," a Warner Brothers talking picture, played to nice business during the entire week. St. Louis critics were very complimentary in their reviews of this picture, claiming it to be the best all-talker that has been shown in St. Louis to date.

Just across the street from the Missouri at the Grand Central "The King of Kings" supplemented with a music score and other sound effects in its second week played to fair business. This picture was road-showed here last season and for that reason many of its potential patrons at the Grand Central had already seen it. So under the circumstances its run at the Grand Central was satisfactory.

Loew's State on Washington avenue, near Eighth street, offered as its feature picture Dolores Del Rio in "Revenge," with sound accompaniment. Miss Del Rio gave a good account of herself and business held up very nicely.

Skouras Brothers Ambassador Theatre had on its screen "Beware of Bachelors," a Warner Brothers picture, a comedy-talker. Ed Lowry on the stage offered "Ambassador Frolics" and the box office receipts were very satisfactory during the week.

Good Pictures and Weather Help Oklahoma City

OKLAHOMA CITY.—Drop of the mercury here last week continued to boost downtown theatre box receipts. All downtown houses did pleasing business due to the general pick up in theatre going and the better type of pictures brought here.

"Varsity" at the Capitol received usually good comment and turned in good receipts for the week.

At the Criterion the National Players in "The Witch Doctor" and the feature picture "Manhattan Cocktail," starring Richard Arlen and Nancy Carroll, did a good week's business, surpassing the average weekly attendance.

"Outcast," starring Corinne Griffith, pleased good audiences all week at the Empress, and "Air Circus" enjoyed good business at the Liberty. The Orpheum presented a good bill of vaudeville and the picture "Through the Breakers," had excellent business.

"Nothing to Wear," at the Victoria, drew excellently.

Just Another Fair Week for Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE.—Although Milwaukee experienced a wide range in varieties of bad weather this week, business in the down town theatres was not materially affected, for this week's receipts were much like those of last week, just fair. Matinee business in most of the down town houses was at a lower ebb than usual for this season of the year. Here possibly, weather may have affected patronage.

"The Singing Fool" is playing its seventh week at the Garden and is being played for still another week. Business here is no longer quite as active as it has been but has reached a steady gait, which keeps the house well filled at practically every performance.

The Strand opened "Mother Knows Best," this week, and the patronage accorded the picture is meeting with the expectation of the manager. It will no doubt be continued for several weeks longer at the Strand.

The Wisconsin offered "The Fleet's In" and a very good week was the result. "Man, Woman and Wife" at the Alhambra brought in fair returns. "Show People" at the Majestic had a moderately good week. "The Street of Illusion" at the Merrill drew slim houses.

The Garrick, which has been dark for some time, opened this week with "Motherhood," which is expected to run here for some time. It met with very good business in its first week. "The Circus Kid" at the Riverside was a big drawing card on a fair bill. The Orpheum had a very good week by virtue of a strong bill, with "The Haunted House" as the photoplay feature.

Neighborhood theatres found things a bit slack throughout the entire week. "Win That Girl" met with only very moderate returns at the Garfield, Modjeska and Uptown Theatres. Better success was the lot of the Oriental and Tower, which featured "The Terror." The Egyptian drew fair houses with "Her Card-board Lover." "The Garden of Eden" was featured at the Milwaukee, the National and at the Venetian, and at all, receipts were average.

Dallas Trade Steady; All Houses Turn in Good Reports for Week

DALLAS.—The Dallas first run theatres have enjoyed good business for the past week without exception. Receipts seemed to have reached a steady trend, with no unusually big business reported and no bad spots.

Al Jolson in "The Singing Fool" at the Melba was again successful in checking off an unusually good gross at a Dallas first run theatre. This attraction was shown at the Palace, the other Dallas Public house, several weeks past and was accorded the greatest patronage ever given any attraction at a Dallas theatre. The Palace was unable to hold the picture longer than one week at that time although business warranted at least a two week's run. The Melba then secured a return engagement and continued the good business where the Palace left off. The Melba is strictly a first run theatre.

The Majestic reported good business with "The Red Dance," featuring Dolores del Rio and Charles Farrell. Some unusually good publicity more than helped to bring them in. A special feature offered was the S. M. U. and A. & M. foot-ball game picture which boosted the receipts for the week. An Interstate Vaudeville bill completed the program.

"White Shadows in the South Seas," starring

Monte Blue was a good box office attraction for the Palace for the past week. Clever publicity gets the greater part of the credit as the picture fell far short in the expectations of the patrons and comment on the attraction was not so good. A very good Public presentation "Seeing Things" helped the program out.

The Capitol appearing as the latest Dallas first run theatre as a sound house secured a good patronage with Universal's much discussed talkie, "The Melody of Love" featuring Walter Pidgeon, Mildred Harris and Tommie Dugan.

"Brotherly Love," with Karl Dane and George K. Arthur at the Old Mill failed to attract and business was only fair. The Old Mill has been able to show much increased grosses since installing sound equipment, but this week brought a decided slump.

The Ritz turned in a good gross with "Women They Talk About," featuring Irene Rich and Audrey Ferris. This is a second run for this feature in Dallas and the Ritz is a second run sound house.

At the Arcadia, "Ramona," with Dolores del Rio, and "The Magnificent Flirt" with Florence Vidor proved to be good box office attractions and business was good for the week.

"Show Girl" Big in Albany; "Gangster" Good, "Beggars of Life" Off

ALBANY.—The Mark Ritz in Albany did the mopping up act last week with "Show Girl," business exceeding the second week of the "Singing Fool," which had run to extremely heavy houses for the previous two weeks. "Show Girl" apparently caught on with the very first matinee and the theatre was jammed to its utmost every night. The matinees were unusually heavy throughout the week and it was noticeable that Tuesday's business was ahead of Monday and that Wednesday ran ahead of Tuesday.

The Mark Strand in Albany, using "Beggars of Life" failed to pan out to a satisfactory extent, the picture apparently failing to meet what the public wanted in the way of entertainment. The bill included movietone and two vitaphone acts, there was a special Schubert anniversary overture.

The Leland in Albany had the crowds standing the first three nights of the week, as "Me, Gangster" held its own against competing attractions. The Clinton Square theatre continued to draw good crowds and last week used as first run double feature "Diamond Handcuffs" and "The Albany Night Boat."

Neighborhood houses and subsequent run theatres in Albany report normal business for the week. Weather conditions were favorable.

In the neighboring city of Troy, "Submarine" went over the top at the Lincoln theatre and established a new house record. Heavy exploitation including a parade by the American Legion, started this picture off with a bang, but once it was under way, it more than held its own during the week that was characterized by rather poor business at every other theatre with the exception of Proctor's, where "Forgotten Faces" was used along with the vaudeville program. John Barrymore in "Tempest" failed to score at the Troy Theatre, even Sunday's business being off.

Constance Talmadge Starts "Venus" in France

Constance Talmadge, United Artists star, has begun initial scenes for "Venus," her next vehicle which is being made at Nice, France. The story is based on the novel of that name by Jean Vignaud, French journalist. Jean Murat will be the actress' leading man while others in the cast will be Andre Roanne, Max Maxodan and Maurice Schutz. Louis Mercanton is directing.

Clevelanders Demand Picture Value

Film's Merit Rather Than "Sound Label" Draws the Crowd

CLEVELAND.—A week of fine pictures on the screen has resulted in a week of excellent business. It is interesting to note that it was the value of the picture on its merits that drew the crowds, rather than the novelty of the production as sound picture.

"The Singing Fool" opened to bigger business on its third Sunday at the Stillman than on the opening Sunday. And the second week's business exceeded the first week. It goes merrily on and on, of course.

"Sunrise" was as successful as it deserved to be at Keith's Palace, meaning that it played to capacity business all week. A remarkably fine photoplay remarkably portrayed and just as remarkably directed. A masterpiece.

"Submarine," a masterpiece of its kind also, was tremendously successful at the Hippodrome where it was acclaimed for its novelty and its fine drama alike.

"Show People," story about well known show folks, was another success. It played at the Allen, and proved to be high class popular entertainment with a strong box office appeal.

"His Private Life," highly sophisticated comedy drama of the type long associated with Adolphe Menjou, was highly pleasing to patrons at the State Theatre. The picture was recommended for its brightness of manner and for its amusing situations as ably portrayed by Menjou.

"Beware of Bachelors" was just moderately successful at the Cameo. Although a "talkie" a discriminating public was not satisfied with it. The first novelty of the talkie has worn off sufficiently so that the public is critical of it and now demands merit of a high type as well as novelty.

"How to Handle Women" proved a fairly successful comedy attraction the first half of the week at Keith's East 105th St. It contained much to laugh at and pleased patrons who want light amusement. "Stolen Love" the last half of the week was also well received.

"The Woman Disputed" and "The First Kiss" divided the week at the Park Theatre. "The Woman Disputed" was very successful and was liked immensely well, while "The First Kiss" was liked well enough, but didn't draw so well as the Talmadge picture.

"America Under Fire," official U. S. Signal Corps picture, presented at the Metropolitan under the auspices of the American Legion, held tip strong during its second week.

Good Business Continues in Portland, Ore.

Portland, Ore.—A continuance of ideal fall weather also brought a continuance of good business at the leading down-town houses, and this in spite of a number of road attractions which showed during the bulk of the week.

An offering which materially increased box office receipts was "White Shadows of the South Seas" at the United Artists.

A most diversified bill was given for increased number of patrons at Tennett's Oriental, including the popular "Craig's Wife" and the usual group of vaudeville acts for Monday.

"The Jazz Singer" at the Blue Mouse, returned to Portland for the third time, and went into second week with the S. R. O. sign in evidence at all evening shows.

Corinne Griffith came back after a long absence in "Outcast" to the Portland and registered fairly well. Gene Morgan, new and versatile band leader, stood them up as he put over Fanchon & Marco's "Up in the Air" idea.

"The Terror," Warners' second 100 per cent talking picture, proved the sensation promised by the Music Box management, and good business was the rule and promises to go into extra weeks. On the Movietone, Al Herman, famed black-face comedian.

John Gilbert in "Masks of the Devil" played to good business for the first three days, but balance of week left much to be desired in matter of attendance. Fox Movietone weekly included Stan Laurel-Oliver Hary comedy in "Sugar Daddies." Special Kiddies Matinee with candy bars for youngsters proved most popular.

"Docks of New York" Big in Seattle; "Air Circus" Disappoints

SEATTLE.—"Docks of New York" was the headline attraction among the first run houses last week. It played at the Seattle Theatre and kept the box office clicking at a very rapid rate, with the result that the week's gross was very strong; one of the best in recent months. On the stage, Fanchon-Marco's midget act, with the giant John Aasen in the cast, was a pleasing novelty, but not a money-getter.

At the Fifth Avenue Theatre, "The Air Circus" was quite unfavorably received. Audiences did not consider it a worthy picture, and business was not up to the standard of past weeks. Georgie Stoll and the Band had a pleasing musical interlude, but not good enough to swing the whole show. Business average.

The Music Box Theatre broke all long run records ever established in this city when "The Max Bradfield and band proved good musical stage offerings.

Pantages Theatre had as headline attraction Art Gilham, and another Columbia offering on the screen, "The Stool Pigeon." Extra good business.

With announcement of De Luxe shows at Capitol Theatre, Manager Akin reports extra good business, breaking house record with William Haines in "Excess Baggage" for second run, followed by Henry B. Walthal in "A Light in the Window."

"Singing Fool" finished its seventh week to good business. The long waiting lines have disappeared, but gross is still acceptable, and another week is scheduled. The Blue Mouse Theatre, across the street, finished the second week of "The Perfect Crime" to good business, aided by a strong supporting bill of "talkie" shorts.

"Thunder God" at the Coliseum and "Beautiful but Dumb" at the Embassy Theatre were mediocre attractions that played to average business only. At the vaudeville houses, "Stool Pigeon" at the Pantages had the shade on "The Good-Bye Kiss" at the Orpheum, the latter being poorly received.

The Columbia Theatre, Universal house, was closed for an indefinite time, signs explaining to the public that "Repairs and renovating were in progress prior to an early opening under a new policy."

Picture Line - Up and Snappy Weather Boosts Atlanta Attendance

ATLANTA.—Business in Atlanta Theatres at this week is on the upward climb, due to a number of good pictures and a cool snap which hit the city Monday.

Paramount's "Wings" is giving the Howard good grosses, although not standing them out as was expected by officials in Gotham. Yet, this is natural since this picture played at the Erlanger as a road show only a few weeks ago. Also, a return engagement of "Lilac Time" last week took the edge off this aviation special, it being similar to it.

Loew's Capitol is enjoying capacity houses with Marion Davies and William Haines rollicking through "Show People." This picture is well liked.

While Loew's Grand is showing a return engagement of Joan Crawford and Johnny Mack Brown in "Our Dancing Daughters" to unusually good houses. This picture is still the talk of town.

Milton Sills and Thelma Todd are drawing fair houses for the Metropolitan with "The Crash," a real he-man number.

Up the street Keith's Georgia is doing only fair with "The Avalanche," featuring Jack Holt.

Francis X. Bushman, Jr. headlines the vaudeville, proving a better drawing card than the picture.

"Dry Martini," a would-be sophisticated comedy is keeping the Rialto dull, helping Mary Astor to lose a few admirers.

"Wings" Big in Tampa but Chill Hurts Others

TAMPA.—Winter came, and we enjoyed three nights of light frost this week, which hurt show business, as well as tender vegetables, for Floridians seem to prefer the fireplace these chilly nights.

The Victory had an excellent week with "Wings." Business grossed better than the second week of "The Singing Fool," but this latter picture still holds the record of the house on first week's run.

The Tampa had a very good Sunday with "Revenge," but the big draw at the Victory cut into the following three days receipts and Del Rio failed to pull 'em as she has in former pictures. "The Outcast," featured the last half, suffered from the chill and receipts were hardly up to the average of the house.

"Red Lips" went over fine for the Strand, giving that house a good start on the week, the two days showing better than average. "Home James" did nicely for three days, but did not get better than average returns. "Avalanche" closed the week to about average business.

The week registered a little under average for the Franklin, second runs. They had, "The Miracle Man," "Wolf Fangs" and "The Dove."

AMPA Hollywood Ball On March 9

MARCH 9th has been determined upon by President George Harvey as the date for the Hollywood Masque Ball of the Associated Motion Picture Advertisers, the head of the organization announcing his choice at a recent meeting at which Elizabeth Meehan, Anna Aiken Patterson, Kerry Conway and Mr. and Mrs. Henri Therrien were guests of honor.

Business Not So Hot in Minneapolis

"Revenge" and "Varsity" Both Get Panning from Local Critics

MINNEAPOLIS.—Business was not so very good in Minneapolis theatres this week, largely perhaps, because there were no outstanding movie attractions.

Dolores Del Rio in "Revenge" was panned by the critics and didn't seem to make much of a dent at the box office. "Caught in the Fog" was good for just a week at the Strand, doing about the average business for that theatre.

"Varsity" at the Minnesota was also knocked by the newspaper reviewers, but there was a good stage show, and the picture went over fairly big as a result of the side attractions.

The Hennepin-Orpheum found "Beau Broadway" to be a good business-getter, just as it has found all the other M-G-M pictures since it took them over a few weeks ago. The names of Lew Cody and Aileen Pringle helped this one.

Pantages showed "The Scarlet Lady" and advertised it a little sensationally as "a daring story of surging passions" and found that it helped to pull the crowds.

Among the neighborhood houses, the best business was probably done by the Granada, which showed "The Singing Fool" for an entire week. The other outlying houses showed good average business for the week, with such pictures as "The River Pirate," "The First Kiss," "The Devil Dancer" and "Hot News."

Specials Aid Salt Lake City Theatres

Salt Lake City.—Some special productions offered at the Salt Lake first run houses this past week have aided in making it highly satisfactory week here. Exceptionally cold weather and the first snow storm of the season also aided indoor amusement.

The return of Oliver Alberti as Master of Ceremonies at the Capitol Theatre this past week, in conjunction with a special program offered, consisting of the picture production "Fazil," and a stage presentation titled "Denver Beauties," drew packed houses to this theatre throughout the week.

"Show People" has attracted a goodly share of attention this week at the Pantages Theatre, drawing capacity houses. Vaudeville is also offered at this house.

The special production "Sunrise," with Movietone musical score, was well received at the Victory Theatre by good sized houses.

Adolphe Menjou in "His Private Life" drew a large number of his admirers to the Paramount Theatre, where there were satisfactory results throughout the week.

Lewis Stone and Marceline Day in "The Freedom of the Press" pleased good sized audiences at the American Theatre.

Tom Mix and Tony in "Son of the Golden West" drew his usual flock of admirers, with a good portion of children, to the Gem.

Spotty But Satisfactory in Cincinnati

Cincinnati.—Business for the week in Cincinnati, although spotty for the most part, was nevertheless satisfactory when considered as a whole.

The Capitol in the fourth and final week of "The Singing Fool," which was one week longer than the original run was intended, enjoyed a very nice volume, although business dropped off very considerably from the previous three weeks, and decreased gradually as the fourth week progressed. As it is, this picture has established a record which will be something to make all houses shoot at in the future.

"Abie's Irish Rose," which has been played in Cincinnati time and again on the legitimate and stock stages, appeared to have lost none of its appeal when shown at the Lyric, where it drew big crowds at every performance.

Keith's, in the third and final week of "Lilac Time," got by nicely, although there was an appreciable decrease in attendance which characterized the two preceding weeks. As it was, however, the third week held up as well as could be expected.

Corinne Griffith, a favorite with Cincy fans, drew big at the Albee, where an elaborate vaudeville bill, headed by Will Mahoney, helped swell the attendance.

"Avalanche," at the Strand, got a good break, with attendance inclined to increase as the engagement continued throughout the week.

The Palace, featuring Ben Turpin in person, together with a good lineup of acts, and "Power" on the screen, had a big week. During the appearance of the M-G-M lion, in Cincinnati during the week, stops were made at several prominent downtown locations, where Ben Turpin also appeared to share honors with Leo, and this, in turn, proved a good card for the Palace.

Neighborhood houses reported business only fair. Legitimate houses are not doing anything wonderful, with one house dark for lack of attractions.

Kansas City "Slightly Better Than Normal"

Kansas City.—Another week of "slightly better than normal" business was experienced by most downtown first run houses of Kansas City.

At the Newman, "Buddy" Rogers, a Kansas City boy, in "Varsity," drew well filled houses all week at both afternoon and night performances.

Richard Dix in "Moran of the Marines" at the Royal also drew good crowds all week, especially at the matinees. Buster Keaton in "College" boosted the weekly attendance at the Pantages well above the mark of the previous week, night attendance being much better than the average night attendance for the last three weeks.

"The Haunted House" at the Mainstreet played to normal attendance, although a "normal attendance" at that theatre has meant filled houses for the last two or three months. "Fazil" at the Globe Theatre did well for its second week's run, although there were plenty of empty seats available. "Wings" at the Plaza drew what was reported as average crowds.

Ottawa Picture Theatres Hold Their Own Against Hockey Games

OTTAWA.—Professional hockey games competed with the theatres of Ottawa, Ontario, for public attention during the week of November 19, but the theatres held their own in the matter of patronage. There was no outstanding picture for the week but they were all well up to the standard in their respective fields.

There were some who said that "Revenge," with Dolores Del Rio, at the Regent Theatre, did not "click" but crowds held up nicely and the general result was very satisfactory.

Everybody told most everybody else that "Outcast," starring Corinne Griffith, at the Centre Theatre, was "a fine picture" and patronage was good. It was a popular attraction.

"Captain Swagger" at B. F. Keith's Theatre overshadowed the vaudeville portion of the bill in the way of entertainment value and business was strong mostly because of the picture.

The Imperial Theatre had a big week with "The Cameraman," starring Buster Keaton, and the comedy was a refreshing treat. Short subjects here, such as Grantland Rice's Sportlight, Pathe Review and the comedies, are important permanent fixtures and help to draw nice crowds.

"Abie" Held Over, "Show Girl" Big in Pa.

Pittsburgh.—Loew's Penn had a big week's business with "Show People," co-starring Marion Davies and William Haines, a photoplay of average merit. The stage attraction, "Step On It," Public Unit, was good as usual.

The Stanley had "The Home Towners" (talkie) and had a good week's business. The picture proved splendid entertainment, and many favorable comments were heard on all sides.

"Abie's Irish Rose" was the attraction at the Grand and business was satisfactory. Held over for a second week.

"Caught in the Fog" got average business at the Olympic.

Loew's Aldine offered "The Melody of Love" and enjoyed a good week's business. This one pleased very well.

"The Foreign Legion" at the Davis proved good melodrama, and in conjunction with Keith vaudeville, got but average business.

"Moran of the Marines" barely brought average business to the Liberty.

"The Night Watch" at the Regent did not draw very well.

"Fazil" did but average at the Cameraphone, as did also "Court-Martial."

"U's" Columbia, Seattle, Closes Its Doors

Universal's Columbia theatre in Seattle, Washington, for many seasons the leading first run house in that territory, last week closed its doors to the public after two seasons of extremely poor business.

Presentation of "talkies," big stage productions and elaborate film programs for 50 cents at other first run theatres, in competition with the Columbia's program films and music at the same admission, is blamed for the shutting down of the house. Reports indicate that it may open within a few weeks at a 15 cent admission on a second run policy, but no confirmation of the rumor has been obtained, and all employees have been dismissed.

The Avalon Theatre, a new suburban beauty spot, opened with "Dress Parade," starring William Boyd, but people did not like it because it was altogether too much like William Haines' "West Point," which had previously shown in Ottawa.

Neighborhood houses had a very good array of features and every house had a stand-out practically every night. One of the best was "Excess Baggage" at the Columbia and sweet business was also done at the Fern Theatre with "Laugh, Clown Laugh," with "Circus Rookies" a splendid neighborhood attraction during the last half. The Columbia Theatre had a substantial feature in "The Enemy" during the last three days. Greta Garbo had 'em eating out of her hand at the Rex Theatre in "The Divine Woman," a picture that drew a preponderance of adults. "The Crimson City" had standees every night during the last half at the Rex.

By Charles E. Lewis

of the Alfred Gottesman Theatrical Enterprises, New England

Taking Tips from Ushers

Just to prove that we don't know it all, we are publishing herewith a set of instructions made up by one of the ushers in Alfred Gottesman's new Plymouth Theatre at Worcester, Mass. The few managers who have seen this list have already requested copies which they intend to post in their own ushers' rooms. We suggest that you all do the same.

Notice to Ushers

"For the protection of my position as well as your own, I find it necessary to announce the following rules which will be enforced immediately:

"No usher is to leave his post to roam about the theatre or lavatories.

"Ten minutes every hour will be allowed for a relief period.

"All ushers finding it necessary to use the lavatory before their relief period must first obtain permission to do so.

"When orders are given they must be carried out.

"This theatre opened with the purpose of giving the public a treat. It is your duty to devote your time to catering to the patrons' wishes and make their visits pleasant. When catering to the public always act prompt, courteously and cheerful and treat each patron equally.

"Come prepared to have your meals near the theatre on Sundays and Holidays so that you can be back on your post within a certain time.

"Make it your business to be on time, thereby protecting no one but yourself.

"When passing through the promenade, foyer or lobby, pick up pieces of paper, etc., that might detract from the beauty of the theatre.

"Keep your uniforms neat, well pressed and clean, and your shoes shined. And remember that you must wear black socks with your uniform.

"Do not allow any disturbance. Notify the Special Officer at once in case you are unable to check any such disorder.

"All male patrons must remove their hats after taking their seats. See that this is enforced, but use tact in making this request.

"Do not talk loud while on your post, act orderly at all times as such disorder disturbs the patrons and causes dissatisfaction.

"Report any accidents to the manager immediately and get name, address and description of accident in all details. Also note where accident occurred, the parts of body injured, etc., but refrain from getting personal.

"Lost articles must be returned to the office. Patrons reporting any losses must give names and addresses and description of articles lost. Verbally, these rules may look unfair, but after studying them over carefully you will find them very simple and easy to carry out.

"You should also pride in this new theatre and should work in its interest. The easiest way to do this is to co-operate with the management and follow instructions given you. Let this theatre be the outstanding theatre in our city. It can be done and we can do it by offering unexcelled service. Poor service may result in decreased business, which in turn may result in unnecessary lay offs and lack of work."

We Hear from Ed. Heihle

from Newark, Ohio, and lo! immediately there came forth (or possibly fifth) a fast reply.

Ed. J. Heihle, who heads the chain of "big time" houses out in that part of the country, takes off just enough time from his activities in finishing the new Midland theatre to let me know that it is coming along in great shape and will open shortly after Thanksgiving. His invitation to "Come On Over" sounded great, and believe me, if there was a ghost of a chance I would be the first to enter and shake his hand to wish him all the luck he deserves. But his letter was meant to convey a few words on the subject of "Sound" and in this respect he tells us that the new Midland will open with it and the Auditorium theatre will also be wired and then asks: "Is this not an endorsement for 'talkies'?"

Lots of luck, Ed., and don't forget that promise to write me about how things get going. Also remember me to the rest of the boys out that way. Thank you.

"The Voice of a Nation"

(Note: A most interesting discussion has resulted from the weekly publication of these letters on "Sound." The various opinions expressed by the wide scattered members of the CLUB give a true angle to the "sound" situation. Read them—and learn. CEL)

Here's an interesting letter from Lloyd M. Townsend, New Piedmont theatre, Oakland, Cal., entitled "Sound Pictures as I See Them":

Dear Mr. Lewis:

"The coming of Sound Pictures into the Motion Picture Industry has created a condition that is hard to analyze with any degree of accuracy, so one can only express an opinion regarding the ultimate effect upon the future of the business. As an exhibitor I can only express my reaction as applied to my individual case.

"For my part let me say that I am not going to be stampeded into spending a large amount of money to install sound devices until I am sure that the producers are going to produce what the public wants and further until they are in a position to furnish service to me on a basis where I can afford to run it at a profit.

"I can't help but feel that the general public does not want the all-talking picture, especially in feature length. I believe that good pictures, well synchronized with a good musical score and possibly some incidental sound effects is what the public will prefer. I am speaking now about features, but with the short subjects, such as comedies, monologues, vaudeville acts and musical numbers, I believe they are apt to supplant the present silent film in this line especially if they are short and snappy. This is my idea of an ideal program.

"The silent picture of the past has had more or less of a restful effect upon the audience, whereas the talking picture of today taxes the mentality to a considerably greater extent in that one has to pay very close attention to what he sees and hears in order to get the full sense out of it. This being the case it would seem that the restful relaxation that one experiences in the case of silent pictures is greatly curtailed in the talkie.

"In the all-talking picture the lines are of paramount importance, whereas in the picture that is simply synchronous with music and sound effects, the music and sound effects are merely incidental, the music, of course, forming an accompaniment to the picture which one listens to only with a sort of sub-conscious mind and the sound effects giving life and vitality to the scene being enacted.

"Pictures of this latter class can, of course, be used in international trade, but talking pictures can not, therefore the talking pictures must be absorbed by the English speaking countries and the producer must realize as much out of them from those countries as he would realize out of the other picture from the entire world, which means that the cost to the exhibitor would probably be raised fifty per cent on the talking picture.

improve the class of screen entertainment. Furthermore it makes it possible for the small town or neighborhood exhibitor to put entertainment in his theatre that he has never been able to supply before. In fact I can't see where the down-town first-run houses can put on any better entertainment than the neighborhood houses, so this would seem to be a distinct advantage to the neighborhood theatre.

"Of course, the cost of installation of sound devices is out of reach of most small houses and until such times as the costs reach a reasonable level, the down-town theatres will reap the benefits. Then too the question of interchangeability is one of great importance and must be settled between the various equipment manufacturers before the smaller houses can afford to install sound devices. All this will take time and lots of fencing and manoeuvring for position, so in the mean time, I believe the smaller exhibitor ought to mark time and watch developments before he plunges ten or fifteen thousand dollars on any of the present sound devices.

"After all is said and done, we are in the Motion Picture business for profit and until such times as we can equip our houses with a reasonable outlay and run synchronized pictures at a profit I say 'lay off'."

Thinks They're Here to Stay

Mich. Zadra believes that progress cannot be retarded, not any more than that the present knee-length dresses of the women were simply bound to supercede the hoop-skirt of olden days—likewise the passing of the "hole in the wall" for the de luxe

Still another letter on Sound from Edw. T. Zadra, Lyric and Ramsdell theatres, Manistee, theatre—but go on and read:

Mr dear Mr. Lewis:

"I have your letter of October 8th, requesting my views on "Sound Pictures." I regret very much, the necessary delay in answering.

"Sound, is of course, the most discussed topic of our industry to-day. Some months ago I might have given you many arguments against it, but at last I have read the handwriting on the wall, and candidly believe, that sound is here and here to stay.

"Its invention and innovation is the natural trend of a progressive generation, made necessary by the public's ever changing mind . . . the result of trying to figure out what the public wants. It is a new competition and must be looked at squarely in the face as to-day it is threatening thousands of exhibitors and only the fit, the fast thinking and the 'do-its' will survive.

"To make my point more clear, I might ask, where are the long skirts, the stiff collars and the high shoes of not so long ago? These have all vanished partly because . . . the public changed their mind. And in our own business, where are the 'nickelodeons' and 'holes in the wall' of our childhood? They, like high shoes and stiff collars, have vanished, and in their wake have sprung up, in a remarkably short while, beautiful and palatial moving picture theatres.

"You cannot hinder nor retard this progress, and sound is the result of this desire to give the ever changing public a new thrill and something more to talk about. As to its success, one need only scan the "box-office" of every sound equipped house in the country.

"This new form of motion picture entertainment may be hard to understand, and only time can tell to where it will lead us, for its possibilities are, no doubt, tremendous. But of this I feel certain, that sound is here to stay, and no exhibitor can long survive who is not alert to the public's ever changing moods and able to meet them. Keeping abreast with the times, constantly giving our patrons something new is our only salvation, and the only power that can prevent our balance sheets from showing red. You can readily imagine what a tremendous aid sound will become as a business stimulant.

Sincerely yours,
Signed Edw. T. Zadra.

Search for Minneapolis Bomber Fruitless

Minneapolis police are still hunting for the person or persons who placed a bomb in the Vista Theatre a week ago and imperilled the lives of about 100 members of the audience. The bomb was discovered and chucked out in the street just before it exploded with tremendous force. There have been several theatres bombed in Minneapolis during the past few years, but the police have yet to apprehend and convict a bomber.

Waterfront

Nothing Much to Make a Fuss Over

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

YOU can take it or leave it. No matter which plan you adopt the picture can be entered in your log as just another tribute to the movies. Carrying a simple romance, a boy and girl affair, it must needs be bolstered up with comedy bits to keep one at all interested. The idea will be recalled as having served before—the sweethearts not getting on any too well together because of parental distrust—and the author seeing to it that the youth and his light o' love must serve their screen conflicts. So it develops that the heroine has the newsstand concession on a ferryboat and is in love with a sailor-man whose fo'castle is a freighter. To keep it going the idea is injected of having the youth frown upon the girl's desire to go to sea. So he frames to teach her a lesson by having the boys show her a rough time. And by taking it and liking it she lives up to the obvious pattern.

Not so new is it? But it works itself up into a creditable line of action and is played with spirit by Dorothy Mackaill who never looked better in her life—and Jack Muhlhall who does his stuff with pep and poise. The backgrounds are the dockyards, etc., and they look pretty good. It has a fair amount of laughs.

Drawing Power: Suitable for average houses. Needs strong support from rest of program. Exploitation Angles: Play up two principals. Bill as romance of the wharves, etc.

THEME: Romantic drama of sailor and girl—with both encountering conflicts before they find happiness.

Produced and distributed by First National. Length, six reels. Released, September, 1928.

The Wolf of Wall Street

Well Done From All Angles

(Reviewed by Jerry Hoffman)

IT is evident that when Paramount sets out to build a star, they use something more concrete than mere exploitation to build with. George Bancroft has been given another good vehicle, fine direction, and a supporting cast which in quality, if not in drawing power, makes good as a "sooper-super." Particularly in the case of one chap who came to America billed as "the John Barrymore of Hungary." Advance exploitation of that sort is generally a jinx. Yet, our own John Barrymore has not delivered a performance in artistry since "Beau Brummel" which can equal the one Paul Lukas gives supporting Bancroft in "The Wolf of Wall Street."

Bancroft, through his role, his ability and direction, undoubtedly stands out as the star. The splendid portrayal of Lukas, contrary to the usual belief in such cases, doesn't hurt Bancroft's performance one bit, in fact it helps. It only goes to prove that good acting from others will never injure a good actor. This is mentioned because so many in Hollywood have inferiority complexes.

One expects much more from Baclanova than she delivers. Which is probably not her fault. This might serve as a warning against over-exploiting a player and leading audiences to expect more than one can humanly deliverer. Nancy Carroll radiates an adorable personality and praiseworthy ability in a minor role. Arthur Rankin and Brandon Hurst also deliver.

"The Wolf of Wall Street" is timely in view of the tremendous amount of speculating which has figured on the front pages recently. Bancroft, "The Wolf," heads a pool of manipulators dealing in copper. He claims no man can make a "sucker" of him, and while he is piling up millions, his wife (or mistress, the status is not definitely established—and a good touch by the way) and Lukas make a "sucker" of him with a clandestine love affair. A rather brief outline of an exceptionally well done film, but it will serve.

One of the best dramatic situations ever seen in a picture is beautifully handled by Rowland V. Lee. This is the juncture where Bancroft discovers that he has been fooled by Baclanova, (his wife or mistress) and Lukas, for whom he has been making millions at the same time. He, after some nicely handled business, walks in and pretends ignorance of their affair, with the suspense being so played that Baclanova breaks down and defiantly confesses. It is in this sequence that Lukas reveals that he is an artist of rare quality, for the scene could so easily be overdone or neglected entirely.

Lee atones for "The First Kiss" in full measure with "The Wolf of Wall Street."

Drawing Power: Has everything: timeliness, title, star and cast. Suitable anywhere. Exploitation Angles: The "Wall Street and sucker" phase never ceases to be interesting; added to that is the social aspirations of a millionaire's wife and a society lion—viz., "the wolf's wife and the lion". . . play up "how stocks are made to rise and fall and who actually makes millions," etc.

THEME: Rough millionaire's stock manipulations and his wife's social ambitions, his intense love for her and her contempt for him, resulting in her clandestine affair to climb into society.

Produced and distributed by Paramount. Length, seven reels. To be released, January 26, 1929. Director, Rowland V. Lee.

Gang War

The Sound Gives It The Breaks

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

THERE is substance to this plot because it is established on a prologue which has something in common with it. And this very prologue doesn't waste any time in starting the conversation on its way. The melodrama may be familiar stuff if you know your headlines, but you probably won't be thinking of the obvious, so dramatically dovetailed are the scenes, most of which click with crackling action.

The prologue introduces a newspaper office with a couple of reporters getting in bad with their city editor through failure on a story. So they start out to put themselves in right. This incident smacks genuine. It fades into the story proper and gives it the punch when a cafe singer proceeds to tell all. And the guns start popping, giving emphasis to the titles. There's no letdown in the action—which revolves around the types associated with our big city honky-tonks.

The romance is built around a saxophone player and a taxi-dancer who do their stuff in one of the tonks. Since the girl is a big bootlegger's little friend the element of jealousy enters into the conflict. He is killed conveniently by the rival gangsters.

The picture is realistically staged. And there is sure plenty doing in the shape of action. Moreover it is competently played by a cast that extracts everything out of it. And there you are.

Drawing Power: Okay for average houses everywhere. Play up as typical of big city life. Exploitation Angles: Tease the title and stress the melodrama going on continuously in our big cities, etc.

Produced and distributed by F.B.O. Length, six reels. Released, November, 1928. Director, Bert Glennon.

"The Boy Friend"

(M-G-M-Roach—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

A HUMOROUS two-reeler is this new Hal Roach comedy. Starring Max Davidson and equipped with a fine supporting cast that includes Ed Kennedy, the piece has enough nonsense packed into its scenes to make it a suitable subject for any audience. It is a good example of the high average that is being struck these days by the Hal Roach bunch. These boys know their gags.

Max' daughter meets a young man with whom she has an embarrassing few minutes when he chases her through the streets with a piece of lingerie that she has dropped. As his daughter is the apple of his eye and because he thinks her too young to wed, Max tries to convince the young man that he and his wife are mad in order to discourage his suit. Several amusing situations develop because of Max' crazy antics.

The Masks of the Devil

Interesting Picture Appeals to Intelligence

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

AN appeal to the intelligence of the fan is made in this new Gilbert picture, directed with sympathy and imagination by Victor Seastrom. It is told in the manner of the stage play, "Strange Interlude," and employs double exposure to present its treatment. In other words the central character has a dual identity. He masks his real feelings during his intimate associations while his "other self" carries out his baser nature. Now such a process of screen technique is interesting to say the least in view of the fact that it may start something. The fans are so accustomed to a diet of screen pap that we wonder how they'll react to it.

So this story deals in mental processes and how they govern the conduct of the characters. Here John Gilbert sees himself as a villain and his actions of devilry control his romantic moods. Seastrom has emphasized the symbolic touches exceptionally well though he is inclined to become old-fashioned in the romantic expressions. But the thought had to be pounded home to bring out its significance.

Gilbert acts very well, though his leading woman, Eva von Berne, lately returned to Germany, does not come up to requirements. Alma Rubens is good as a feminine philanthropist, and Theodore Roberts is thoroughly at home in a character role—though one can't help but be reminded of the suffering he's gone through in his illness.

The picture carries a tragic story, but it is dramatic and interesting. The characters are convincing and we hope it stimulates response for more of its kind.

Drawing Power: Title and star. Good for high class patronage, though Gilbert fans should be attracted to it even in cheap neighborhoods. Exploitation Angles: Tease the title. If house warrants it might put on dance numbers with ensemble wearing masks. Play up Gilbert in ideal role and mention return of Theodore Roberts to the screen.

THEME: Drama of dual nature with philandering sowing the harvest and reaping the whirlwind.

Produced and distributed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Length, seven reels. Released, November, 1928. Director, Victor Seastrom.

"A Day Off"

(Pathe—One Reel)

MILTON MOUSE and two of his animal friends have this cartoon practically all to themselves. His two companions play a prank on the mouse by making him swallow a jumping bean which starts him bouncing over the landscape. In the meantime, his two friends have their own adventures with the jumping beans and tiring of this, they steal a few drags from old Al Falfa's pipe and dream mighty dreams. They are awakened by the revengeful Milton, who has tied firecrackers to their tails.

Not as good as some of the Aesops; it is average program filler.—GEORGE J. REDDY.

"On the Links"

(Pathe—One Reel)

AL FALFA and the friendly cats and dogs who play with him in Aesop Fables put on a new show in this new Paul Terry release. The fun is up to the usual good standard of the Terrys and makes the number appropriate program material.

Al and his pals spend their time on the links. The story winds up with the old duffer driving his ball into a bee hive and the angry insects pursuing him into the fadeout.—GEORGE J. REDDY.

"Caught in the Draft"

(Pathe—One Reel)

OLD Al Falfa, the cartoon philosopher, opens the door to some more of his particular brand of fun in this new Aesop cartoon from the workshop of Artist Terry. Not overburdened with humor, to be sure, the piece has, nevertheless, some clever gag-making and good sketching. It is a good Aesop.

This time Al mingles with the animals, joining them in their sports. Of course, the cats play a joke on him. However, his troubles are soon forgotten when a dog-catcher arrives with a powerful vacuum. Al and the dog-catcher are sucked in by the machine and then the cats place two skunks near the nozzle and they, too, are sucked in.—GEORGE J. REDDY.

"South Pole Flight"

(Universal—One Reel)

HARMAN and Clapton are credited with the clever cartoon art that has gone into this new product from the studio of Walt Disney, who draws Oswald cartoons. And a good job they've done, too.

Oswald airplanes down to the South Pole, where a bird, unappreciative of his sterling qualities, gives him the razzberry. This is the first of several funny situations that the cartoonists have subjected him to. The subject has fine fun and your audiences should enjoy it.—GEORGE J. REDDY.

"Playful Papas"

(Educational—One Reel)

THEY try to be playful in this slapstick scramble, but they don't get anywhere in particular. This Cameo is often inept and frosty where it comes to creating genuine amusement. Crudely put together it rarely arouses the laugh impulse.

Jerry Mandy strives mightily to be entertaining, but with no great success. Amber Norman, a quite capable looking blonde, is cast as his wife. The trouble of the married couple commences when they receive a telegram announcing an impending visit from a relation.

Jerry falls all over himself; he works energetically but has no gags to play around with. Just an average, slapstick effort.—RAYMOND GANLY.

"The Newlyweds Need Help"

(Universal—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by George J. Reddy)

THIS Universal comedy number featuring the popular Snookums and the newlyweds, is right up on a par with previous releases in this series, and will please most any type of audience.

The newlyweds on this occasion endeavor to hold a nice quiet bridge party, but fail to count on the mischievous Snookums. During the game he confuses Grandma, embarrasses Father, and when tea is being served puts bromo seltzer in the sugar. He finally hides in the dumb-waiter, and causes so much havoc in general that his desperate parents send him out for an airing with the maid. While the maid flirts with a cop, moving men hoist Snookums and the carriage to the top of the van they are loading. Snookums gets the ride of his life, until he is rescued by the frantic parents.

"The Wooden Soldier"

(Universal—One Reel)

IT is a pleasure to witness any film that has a semblance of novelty, and this Universal single-reeler fits perfectly into this class. The story revolves around an old toy maker who is very much attached to his doll creations, and under the illusion that he can bring them to life. It is revealed that for years he has been working in his laboratories, endeavoring to find a chemical, with which he might breathe life into his toys. He finally hits upon a vapor that he believes will do the trick and blows it all around the shop. The dolls fail to move, but the inventor is overcome by the fumes and dreams that his life-long ambition has come true. Good work is done by the human players, impersonating the dolls in this film, and the sets have been built in such proportions as to give an authentic appearance. A very interesting piece of work and well handled by Director Rollens.—GEORGE J. REDDY.

"Calford on Horseback"

(Universal—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by George J. Reddy)

AS is usual with these releases in Universal's third Collegians series, each number is centered around some college sport or other. This one presents as its background theme an inter-class Derby.

With the opening of the story, the juniors are at a loss for an entry in the race, but their spirits rise high, when the uncle of their jockey Ed Benson, loans him one of the best racers from his stable. When Trent, a rival class jockey, learns of the new entry, he switches instructions for the horse's diet, with the result that it becomes sick and unable to run the race. The juniors refuse to be eliminated from Derby, so Benson and his classmates secure an old fire horse that still has plenty of steam left. When the race starts, the juniors with a burning wagon attached to an auto, ride in front of old Dobbin, who, believing he is answering a fire call, puts forth all his pep and wins the race. This is fair enough entertainment and will get by.

"Our World Today"

(Educational—One Reel)

THE three subjects that go to make up this newest issue of Educational's screen magazine, "Our World Today," are interesting matter for the movie fans to pursue. The first gives some views of the world's crookedest railroad high up in the Colorado Mountains; the second shows Neysa McMein, who draws pretty girls' faces for the covers of magazines, and the third introduces the Varden Brothers, adepts in dizzy tricks.

For practically all audiences.—GEORGE J. REDDY.

"Pathe Review No. 50"

(Pathe—One Reel)

EDITOR RAMSAY of Pathe Review has played up several very interesting subjects in this new issue, the highlight of which is "The United States in Five Minutes." This novelty featurette will have especial appeal to audiences throughout the country as it presents pictorial views of points of interest in the U. S. A. Other items offered are: "Undersea Adventures," in Pathecolor showing William Beebe, the famous naturalist on the bottom of the ocean gathering rare specimens of life and vegetation, and an informal interview with Rex Beach, the well known author.—GEORGE J. REDDY.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Has Big Opening

THE new and elaborate Brooklyn-Paramount Theatre, located at Flatbush Extension and De Kalb avenue, the most recent addition to the chain of theatres owned and operated by the Publix Theatres Corporation, was opened at noon on Saturday, Nov. 24.

A speech was made at the first evening performance by Borough President James J. Byrne, and reproduced on Movietone for presentation to other audiences. The theatre is the ultimate in beauty and luxury. The management claims for it the distinction of being the first theatre in the world to be built expressly for the showing of sound pictures. Its construction includes sunken sound chambers, breaks in the walls, a special type of soft cement and other facilities to bring about acoustic satisfaction.

Aside from the technical developments, Frank Cambria, art director of the Publix Theatre, has assembled a collection of art subjects, and these placed amidst the artistry of the architecture, makes the new house one of the art centres of Brooklyn. The general scheme of the theatre is Italian Renaissance, and the color style is subdued burn-orange.

The entertainment provided for the new Publix house is their regular circuit stage shows and first run pictures. Stage music is in the capable hands of Paul Ash. John L. McCurdy is managing director.

William Goldsmith, who was at one time manager of the Kinema Theatre, one of the Rosenzweig Circuit, located at Pitkin avenue and Bergman street, has again taken over the management of this Brooklyn house.

Henry G. Dicter is the new owner of the Rige Theatre, Brooklyn, which he purchased from the former operator, Mr. Smith.

H. Bloom has severed his connection with the Tompkins Theatre, Gates avenue, Brooklyn. L. I. Peiser, owner of the theatre, will manage.

As the result of a fire that recently wrecked the Moscow Inn at 161 West 44th street, part of the premises of the Film Players' Club above the restaurant, was damaged.

Joseph M. Seider, prominent in national and local organization work, sailed on November 26, from Marseilles, France, on the S. S. Saturnia, and will arrive back in the U. S. A. on December 6.

Seider & Moley Theatrical Enterprises are moving this coming week from their headquarters in the offices of Prudential Film Delivery at 735 Seventh avenue, and will be located on the third floor of 729 Seventh avenue. Al Moley, for the past ten years, has been associated with Prudential Delivery in the handling of routings and bookings for distributors. In severing his connection with this company Moley will now devote his entire efforts to his shows for theatres and banquets. Eddie Seider, Al's partner, will remain with Prudential temporarily.

Word has been received that the Fox Theatre at Burlington, N. J., is undergoing remodeling.

Hollywood—Continued

Molnar Story

A story by Ferenc Molnar, entitled "Prisoners," has been purchased by First National as a starring vehicle for Corinne Griffith. It will follow "Saturday's Children" into production. William A. Seiter will direct.

2 Directors with Columbia

Columbia has added Scott Dunlap and Richard Thorpe to its directorial roster and they both have been assigned two forthcoming productions, the titles of which are yet to be released.

Talkie Scenes Launched

The Christie Studio last week started actual work on the talking sequences for its feature production, "The Carnation Kid," starring Douglas MacLean. It is thought that the studio will also begin work shortly on the short feature plays acquired and the first of the Octavus Roy Cohen stories.

F B O Productions

F B O is in the midst of editing and titling "The Amazing Vagabond" and "The Jazz Age," featuring Bob Steele and Marceline Day and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., respectively. Tom Mix has made a start on "The Drifter," his fourth western for F B O.

"Broadway Melody"

Jed Pouty will play an important role in M-G-M's talkie, "Broadway Melody," which Harold Beaumont is directing. The cast includes Charles King, Broadway musical comedy star, Bessie Love and Anita Page. Nacio Herb Brown is writing the music and Arthur Freed the lyrics for this release.

Vacation

Olive Borden, it is reported, will leave for Europe shortly with her mother for a vacation and rest.

Mack in Talkie

His own story, "Hunted," will be directed by Willard Mack, stage luminary, who recently arrived on the coast to produce for M-G-M. Mack will also portray the leading character in this all-talkie and Duane Thompson will have the first feminine role.

Finishes "Daughters" Sequel

Josephine Lovett completed and delivered the script of "The Brass Band" from a sick-bed in her Beverly Hills home. She suffered painful injuries as result of horseback riding recently and was compelled to remain in bed. Meanwhile the script on "The Brass Band" was needed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for immediate production. It is a sequel to "Our Dancing Daughters" with the same cast.

Poland Leaves Universal

J. Franklin Poland, who for the past two years has been supervisor of Universal's comedy scenario department, wound up his contract with that firm last week. Poland goes to First National this week to do one story.

John Boles in Demand

Universal has recalled John Boles from Fox, where he was slated to play the lead in "White Silence." Boles' services are required as leading man for Laura La Plante in "The Haunted Lady." Ian Keith will be another principal. Larry Grey has gone over to Fox to do the role Boles was scheduled for.

A New Team of Comedians

"Whoopee Boys" is the first of a new series intended to popularize Monty Collins and Vernon Dent as a comic team by Educational. Stephen Roberts directed it as his tenth picture for Jack White Productions this year. The film was received exceptionally well in a preview in Los Angeles last week, building up to many big laughs.

Gus Edwards' Talkie Titled

Gus Edwards' second all-talkie, all-color revue for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer goes into production this week. It will be known as "Colortone Revue," and follows Edwards' first offering billed as "Gus Edwards Revue." The "Colortone Revue," includes Armita, protege of Edwards, Doris Walker, soprano, George Harris, Majorie Moore and Neomi Curston in the cast.

"Battle of Sexes" Novelized

John Peere Miles has written a fictionized version in novel form of "The Battle of the Sexes," D. W. Griffith's current United Artist release.

J. Schildkraut to Star for "U"

Joseph Schildkraut has been elevated to stardom by Universal as a result of his performance as Ravenal in "Show Boat." His first starring vehicle will be "The Bargain in the Kemlin."

Specials Only for Capra

Frank Capra, Columbia's ace director, will be assigned to specials only by that company in the future. This decision follows the successful run of "Submarine" in New York. His next will be "The Donovan Affair," having just completed Fannie Hurst's story, "The Younger Generation."

Fires

Studio explosions and fires were not confined to First National last week. Most of them were a direct result of the first big rainstorm of the season, the rain dampening the powder, followed immediately by sunshine, thus causing a form of spontaneous combustion.

"California Mail" for Ken

"The California Mail," written by Marion Jackson and dealing with the early gold shipments from California during the '50's, is Ken Maynard's next western vehicle for First National. It is already being produced with Albert Rogell directing and Harry J. Brown supervising.

Air Pilot Injured

When the plane in which he was taking off during the filming of "The Drifter" "cracked-up," Lt. B. M. Spencer, pilot of the ship, was severely injured and is now confined to the Hollywood Hospital where physicians fear that his skull has been fractured.

F. N. Buys Carey Original

A new original story by Carey Wilson has been purchased by First National for Colleen Moore's use following her present vehicle, "Synthetic Sin." The new story has been titled "Why Be Good?" and will be directed by William A. Seiter with Neil Hamilton as leading man.

"The Play Goes On"

"The Play Goes On," one of Universal's important forthcoming productions, is ready to go into production at Universal City. James Murray is to play the leading role. Robert Hill will direct the picture.

Griffith Protege

Irma Harrison, a protege of D. W. Griffith, arrived in Hollywood recently to plunge into screen work after several years on the stage in New York. She has joined the FBO unit making "The Yellowback" and is enacting the feminine lead.

F. N.'s New Films

First National pictures in production number six, three are about to start and five others are being edited and cut.

The six in work are "Weary River," "Saturday's Children," "Comedy of Life," "California Mail," "Children of Ritz" and "Seven Footprints to Satan." The three about to start are "That's a Bad Girl," "Hot Stuff" and "Man and the Moment." Now in the hands of the editors are "Synthetic Sin," "Scarlet Seas," "His Captive Woman," "Lawless Legion," and "Naughty Baby."

And, History Will Repeat—

The original motion picture film ...workable long rolls...colored film base..duplicating film..panchromatic negative....the history of the important developments in American motion picture materials is a factful story of this Company's cooperation with the cinematographic industry.

Obviously an association that has borne such fruits in the past can be expected to repeat in the future. For 1929 the Eastman resources and Eastman cooperation are pledged anew to the further advancement of the motion picture art.

Laugh Special!

Lupino Lane outdoes himself. It is one of the best burlesque numbers ever screened in the short subject field... The fun is hilarious, and cleverly worked out... So far superior to the usual run of two-reel comedies that there is no comparison. The comedian does some outstanding work.

LUPINO LANE

spectacularly funny picture in the comedy series that is leading them all

THIS is the best Lupino Lane comedy the writer has seen to date. It is extremely funny, its comedy performances of the star and his brother, Wallace Lupino, offer a horde of opportunities for laughter. This reviewer remembers the first Lane comedy that he saw in a projection room. It was "His Private Life" and it was very, very funny... But this new one he unrestrainedly declares the best of the lot. The clever work is well directed and interpreted, smooth in its action and continuity, containing many high-explosive laughs on the one hand and worthwhile, subtle little flashes on the other... This... You'll have to keep a score board for the variety of laughs they produce.—Motion Picture News.

Big Need for Exhibitor Organization Unity

By William A. Johnston

WE are right on the eve of the annual gunning season for the motion picture industry.

And it looks like war to the knife.

The fact that Canon Chase's bombshell in Washington turned out to be a dud doesn't alter the gravity of the situation.

The sharpshooters of every tax hungry state and the salaried bigots of the nation will train their guns, this legislative year, upon a grossly overvalued industry as never before.

And as never before, this business is unfitted to stand the proposed raids upon its structure and resources.

Our whole defensive strength is a plain matter of defensive organization.

So it seems fitting right now to make inventory, and so find just what defensive organization we possess, and in this connection to call a spade a spade.

To begin with, we have no complete organization whatever unless we have exhibitor organization.

And we have no effective exhibitor organization unless we have one solid national organization made of solid state units.

As we write this, a wire from Oklahoma says that the exhibitors just convened there are addressed by the leaders of two organizations, the M.P.T.O.A. and the Allied, each urging the Oklahoma State League to enter under its national banner.

Which situation ought to offer a lot of hope, if not actual glee, to the well organized crowd which would regulate this industry out of its own control and tax it out of existence.

To all exhibitors concerned, we would suggest this simple simile: if you saw two rival football teams lining up, one compactly trained and captained and the other split in the middle by two sets of orders and signals, which one would you bet on?

And to the same exhibitors we say that your organization matter is so serious that if you bet wrong you are going to lose the butter off your bread and even the bread itself.

We have seen the game of exhibitor organization politics too long to have any wool over our eyes. The personal and petty ambitions of self-appointed leaders have been as absurd as they were despicable. We have seen state organizations secede under the heat of the moment and not blamed them a bit.

But after all, gentlemen, the issue at stake, which is simply your industry and therefore your theatre, is greater than any other issue. It is large, practical and convenient. Don't let it be bowled over by considerations of pride or displeasure, or by the oratory of the politician.

Ask this latter gentleman just what he has got at stake; what his motives are; why he doesn't work for one united national organization; and make him keep talking till he answers in the plain language that concerns your state and national safety.

We, ourselves, would like to know just why we cannot have one national organization representing all the theatre strength of the country; by all, we mean chain theatres as well as independent theatres.

Who are fighting so simple a proposition, and why?

Mr. Schnitzer's Election

THE "bankers" came to the bat this week with a display of fine judgment in the choice of Joseph I. Schnitzer as the new president of FBO. It is one of the most encouraging things that have happened since the industry "went financial."

Mr. Schnitzer is one of the ablest of film men. He is a showman of the first class, and you can't operate the film business successfully unless you have real showmen in posts of high authority. As an executive his ability is beyond all question. By hard work and brains, he has earned the leadership that is now accorded him.

His election is a cause for congratulating him; the industry; and the interests that have shown the good sense to choose him as the operating chief of the all-important film end of the Radio-Keith-Orpheum organization.

Le Baron Remains as Vice President; New Board of Directors Chosen

AS exclusively forecast by MOTION PICTURE NEWS two weeks ago, Joseph I. Schnitzer was this week elected to the presidency of FBO, and is in full command of the active operation of the company.

His election took place at a meeting of the Board December 3. The new board of directors consists of Hiram S. Brown, new head of Radio-Keith-Orpheum, as chairman of the board; David Sarnoff, president of RCA; J. I. Schnitzer; Paul Mazur; Maurice Goodman; B. B. Kahane; and Guy W. Currier.

William LeBaron and C. E. Sullivan remain as vice-presidents of FBO; and C. J. Scollard and Thomas Delehanty as treasurer and secretary, respectively.

Joseph P. Kennedy voluntarily retires from FBO as Chairman of the Board and President.

The new FBO president is 41 years old and entered the industry in 1907 as manager of the Pittsburgh Calcium Light & Film Co., Des Moines. Subsequently, he joined the Mullin Film Service, Minneapolis, as a salesman and later became general manager of the concern with headquarters at Syracuse, N. Y. In 1916, he went to Universal, first as branch manager, then division manager; and, within two years, he became general sales manager.

From 1920-22 he was president of Equity Pictures Corp. He joined FBO, as vice-president, and for the past 2 years has been the FBO senior vice-president.

Union Supports Theatres Against Daylight Saving

The Central Labor Union and scores of individuals are waging a bitter fight in Kansas City, Mo., against a proposed change to daylight saving time. So concentrated has the fight against the proposal become that the exhibitors, who strenuously oppose the measure, enjoy the unique position of watching their battle being fought for them. The Central Labor Union is the latest organization to join hands with the theatre owners in opposing a change in time, the opposition of the labor organization having been officially voiced through its president, Max Dyer. The columns of daily newspapers have been thrown open to public discussion and the public opinion, which previously was about equally divided, has turned decidedly against daylight saving.

Paramount Lengthens Oral Scenes in 3 Features

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, Dec. 5.—Three Paramount productions, originally intended to have only one or two talk sequences plus sound effects, are being turned into 100 per cent talkies. The decision to make them dialogued from start to finish, in the case of two of them, followed the excellent reception of both at previews. The third has developed into a much greater picture during the course of its making than had been hoped it would be and Paramount believes all-talk will enhance it still further.

The first two are "The Wolf of Wall Street" and "The Canary Murder Case." The other, "Four Feathers," was originally slated for sound effects only. The same directors who made the silent versions are doing the talk editions. They are respectively, Rowland V. Lee, Mal St. Clair and Schoedsack-Cooper.

Interchangeability Urged by W.E. Producers to Stimulate Sales

Plans Submitted by Companies Provide for Arbitration Board to Determine Quality of Equipment; Music Ban Feared

THE ten licensees of Western Electric are endeavoring to negotiate the question of interchangeability with the electric concern in order that they may move their sound product more rapidly, but it is apt to be a long drawn-out proposition before final determination, according to Elek J. Ludvigh, chief counsel for Paramount and head of the licensees committee in the negotiations with the electric company.

Interchangeability except between RCA and Western Electric is not a question of weeks, but months and perhaps longer, according to Mr. Ludvigh, for when the negotiations are finally concluded between Western Electric and its licensees the same process, and in fact a more complex one must be successfully concluded between the companies reproducing copyrighted music and E. C. Mills, agent and trustee of some seventy of the leading music publishers. This is the positive statement of Mr. Ludvigh. The controversy with Mr. Mills has not yet even started and will not be undertaken until the negotiations with Western Electric are completed. Mr. Mills departed Thursday for Europe and will not return for at least two months. Nothing will be accomplished on the music angle until his return. The Western Electric licensees are Paramount, United Artists, Universal, M-G-M, First National, Warners, Fox, Hal Roach, Christie and Columbia.

Ludvigh's Statement

Discussing the negotiations with Western Electric, Mr. Ludvigh said:

"The licensees of Western Electric have been meeting and communicating with Western Electric for some time with regard to interchangeability. They are anxious to get as wide distribution on their product as possible and this can hardly be done unless Western Electric agrees to interchangeability on satisfactory reproduction equipment other than their own.

"We have submitted a proposition to Western Electric which I think is eminently fair, and which I think will eventually be accepted. It is rather cumbersome as to detail in its present state and it will require considerable time, in all probability, to be worked out to the satisfaction of all parties concerned. In effect, it simply asks the right of the licensed companies of Western Electric to pass upon the quality of other sound reproduction devices and to render sound picture service to those devices that are considered up to proper standard.

"We do not ask the privilege of arbitrarily passing upon this equipment. We ask that after hearing our pictures on this equipment we be permitted to recommend or reject the equipment. If it is recommended we ask that a Western Electric expert then make his report on it. If in

Vitaphone Records Are Refused for Showing on Bristolphone

VITAPHONE records for showing on a Bristolphone machine were refused for the first time when the Palace Theatre at Danbury, Conn., ordered the records in connection with the showing of "Tenderloin" that was to be held at that theatre next week. The action was taken by Paul Swift, Vitaphone representative, who refused service to Joseph Walsh, who operates the Palace. Swift advised Walsh that he could have the silent version of the picture, but not the sound version. It is said that no explanation was made for the refusal.

W. E. Quigley, in charge at the Vitaphone offices in New York, refused to comment on the matter other than to say that Vitaphone interchangeability with Bristolphone had never been with the approval of the New York office.

"The cases where Vitaphone discs were shown on Bristolphone equipment in Hagerstown, Md., and Madison, Wis., were purely local ones and were not with the approval of the home office. They were allowed through a misunderstanding of a local representative in each instance."

Inquiry at Western Electric headquarters revealed the fact that they had heard nothing of the showing and had given no orders for or against it.

It is reported in some quarters that the agreement between Western Electric and Warners is different than that of any of the other licensees of the electric company in that under no circumstances are Warners permitted to show their product on other than Western Electric equipment. It is said that if they give such permission they will sacrifice the contract and be refused further permission to reproduce by the disc method.

Asked whether or not Vitaphone was a subsidiary of Warners or Western Electric, Mr. Quigley said that under no circumstances would he discuss the subject. He declared that things had been entirely too kadeidoscopic and moving too fast in the sound picture field during the past few days to be kept track of, but if there had been a change in the status of the Vitaphone connection he had not been advised of it.

his opinion it is not quite up to standard we will endeavor to bring about such improvements in the equipment as are deemed necessary. If after this has been done Western Electric is still not satisfied we urge that the case be submitted to an arbitration committee to be named to serve in all such cases.

"While we are anxious to see as many theatres equipped as possible in the near future, we naturally are anxious, too, to have our pictures given the best possible reproduction. It would not be to our advantage to accept showings through devices that would not do the subject full justice. Western Electric appreciates that, and seems inclined to co-operate with us, but there are so many angles involved that it is apt to be a long time before they are all finally straightened out.

Up to Mr. Mills

"As to the music angle, that is something entirely separate and apart from the negotiations with Western Electric. True, Western Electric signed the agreement with Mr. Mills as agent and trustee of the sixty or seventy music publishers he represents for the production and reproduction of copyrighted music. That, however, is a problem that the licensees will have to take up with Mr. Mills. We have taken no step in that direction yet and will not do so until we have reached a satisfactory conclusion with Western Electric on interchangeability.

The Reproduction Problem

"This music problem is apt to be a far more vexing one than that with Western Electric. The contract between Mr. Mills and Western Electric covers a period of five years and the amount stipulated was apportioned to the licensees of the electric company. It provides for the recording of copyrighted music and the reproduction of the same only over such equipment as is supplied by Western Electric Company. Before complete interchangeability can be established, it looks as though we would have to get permission from Mr. Mills for the reproduction of his music on equipment unlicensed by him that comes up to the standard required by us. If Western Electric agrees to interchangeability on other scores it will hardly stand in the way

Motion Picture Broadcasting Devices Now Being Tested in England

NEW broadcasting devices for radioing motion pictures and for supplying a musical accompaniment with the pictures are now being tested in England. Three new devices in all are reported, the Department of Commerce, Washington, D. C., is informed by Trade Commissioner G. R. Canty, Paris.

The first of the devices is an apparatus for broadcasting motion pictures, the second an apparatus for synchronizing films with music, and the third a recording machine which can be attached to any radio receiver and which will record incoming messages on a ribbon so that they can be reproduced at any future time through the same radio set. The three inventions are expected to open an entirely new field in radio in the British Isles and will link up the film industry with broadcasting, it is believed.

The inventors of the broadcasting machines claim that they are so well made that no difficulty is anticipated in obtaining licenses for broadcasting pictures. They expect to have their devices in readiness for broadcasting before the end of the year.

Pa. Supreme Court Will Pass On Talk Censorship

Governor of State Favors Extending Censors' Jurisdiction to Cover Sound Films; Foolish Instances of Cutting

DUE to the conflict arising from the contradictory decisions of two Common Pleas court judges of Philadelphia as to the right of the Pennsylvania Board of Motion Picture Censors to exercise jurisdiction over the spoken parts of sound pictures, all of Pennsylvania is interested in whatever action will be taken by the Supreme Court of the State on the pending appeals from the decisions. Whatever action results will have a bearing on whether or not an effort will be made in the session of the State Assembly, which opens in January, to amend the censorship law to cover the talkies. Since the introduction of the talkies complications with regard to censorship have arisen on numerous occasions. In a late instance where the censors deleted parts of the picture portion of sound films the oral sequences have remained intact, the result being that the dialogue becomes useless since the action with which it synchronizes is absent.

The question of talkie censorship came up some time ago in the capitol at Harrisburg where Governor Fisher, at a conference with members of the Censorship Board, of which he is the head, committed himself definitely to a policy of giving the censors power to delete speech in sound films. More recently, the Governor instructed all departments of the state government to submit before December 15 outlines of any new legislation that may desire the administration's support in the 1929 session of the legislature.

Drafts of proposed administration measures are ordinarily prepared either by the Attorney General's office or by the Legislative Reference Bureau. Accordingly an inquiry was submitted to Attorney General Baldrige as to whether his department had prepared any proposed new legislation to carry out the Governor's wishes to have the talkies censored. In reply, General Baldrige stated that in event the State Supreme Court decides that the censorship law, as now on the statute books, gives the censors sufficient authority to censor sound films, no new legislation on the subject will need to be introduced by the administration. On the other hand, in case of a Supreme Court ruling to the effect that the present law does not permit talkie censorship a measure will be prepared and introduced in the legislature embodying the Governor's idea of strict censorship of the spoken parts of sound pictures.

Portable Sets Speed M-G-M Sound Production

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, Dec. 5.—In order to utilize all possible time for shooting on sound stages, M-G-M has instituted a system of constructing sets for sound pictures in the studio mill; then transporting and erecting the sets on the sound stages as needed. By this method, M-G-M is able to save most of the time available on the sound stages for actual rehearsals and shooting, instead of having the stages idle for long periods of time on account of constructing new sets.

In production of silent pictures, it is possible for carpenters to work on erecting sets on a stage at the same time as a company is shooting, but this cannot be done in the case of sound or dialogue pictures, on account of the silence required.

M-G-M solved the problem of time consumed on sound stages for change-over by the method of portable sets; old ones being dismantled and new ones erected in a remarkably short space of time.

Changes Delay Release on M-G-M Talkies

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, Dec. 5.—Although both "Bellamy Trial" and "Broadway Melody," M-G-M's first dialogue features, have been completed for some time, studio executives are delaying release of these pictures and making minor changes in the dialogue and musical sequences in each.

It is claimed at the studio that both productions set new standards in the talker entertainment field as originally made, but with dialogue pictures opening a new field of screen technique, the extra time and expense consumed in making changes for the betterment of the pictures will be reflected in box office grosses when the two are released. M-G-M has three other all-dialogue talkers currently in production. Al Green is directing "The Five O'Clock Girl"; Willard Mack directing "Hunted"; and Bayard Veiller is directing "The Trial of Mary Dugan."

Flynn, Newmeyer, Reed Are Reported Out at Fox

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, Dec. 5.—Emmett Flynn, Fred Newmeyer and Luther Reed are reported out at Fox. Flynn recently made a picture called "The Veiled Woman" with most of Fox' foreign importations, such as Lia Tora and Maria Alba heading the cast and was supposed to make another. Newmeyer was working on a newspaper story called "Headlines," the original title being "Calamity." Luther Reed supervised that story.

"Headlines" is now reported as being temporarily shelved, with "False Colors," directed by James Tinling rumored as being rushed to replace it on the Fox release schedule.

Order Restrains Sue Carol in Tilt Over Contract

Hollywood, Dec. 5.—A temporary order restraining Sue Carol from breaking her contract with the Douglas MacLean company was issued by Superior Court Judge Gates. The order is effective until injunction brought by MacLean comes to trial.

Param't Takes Up Option on Esther Ralston

Hollywood, Dec. 5.—Esther Ralston will not be dropped by Paramount after all. Her option has been taken up and her next role will be opposite Emil Jannings in a production to be directed by Lewis Milestone.

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 5.—Joseph P. Kennedy is on his way to New York from the coast studios of Pathe, where he lined up stock players and production plans for the next year. Contracts which he renewed with Pathe players and directors include those signed with Alan Hale, William Boyd, Eddie Quillan, Jeannette Loff, Robert Armstrong, Carol Lombard and Junior Coghlan, players, and Tay Garnett and Howard Higgins, directors.

Curtailment of Producer Ads. Hits Exhibitor, Says Cohen

Misguided Economy Effort Has Done Incalculable Harm is Consensus of Theatre Owners' Opinions

"From conversations and communications I have had with theatre owners in all parts of the country, I am satisfied that the consensus of opinion on the part of a large group of showmen is that incalculable harm has been done by this curtailment of advertising. Things don't happen. You must make them happen!"—Sydney S. Cohen.

THE net result of a false economy era during which the producers and distributors curtailed their advertising appropriations, particularly in the trade paper field, is that the picture industry is "down" when in view of the many excellent pictures offered it should be decidedly "up," Sydney S. Cohen, exhibitor leader for many years, declared this week in an interview with Motion Picture News following the issuance of a formal statement by him.

"So far as the theatre owner is concerned business is off," Mr. Cohen declared, "and it is no coincidence that this condition prevails after a period of curtailment in advertising by producers, who in a misguided effort to economize hit directly at the box offices of their own customers, the exhibitors.

"In a business which builds prosperity on a foundation of publicity directed toward making up the public's mind for it and fired with enthusiasm for the article being sold to that public we find today a condition of apathy toward the pictures themselves right down the line from the producer to the exhibitor. When enthusiasm is lacking there is no real, availing substance to the selling efforts put forth to bring people into the theatres.

"A short time ago the publisher of a leading magazine advertised for solicitors and in his want ad stated that no applicants would be considered who did not regularly read that magazine and had not read, out of sheer interest in his writings, the editorials and books of the magazine's distinguished editor. The publisher was absolutely right in his conviction that the only men to sell that magazine were men who were sold on the magazine. The most skilful and able salesman cannot sell merchandise he does not believe in, and the showman cannot sell his public entertainment over which he is not himself enthusiastic. But what have the producers of the pictures done this past year to build up the interest and enthusiasm of the exhibitor in their productions?

Vigorous Campaigns Needed

"The lack of enthusiasm in their own product evidenced in the absence of vigorous campaigns through trade channels is reflected in a negative attitude on the part of their own advertising men, salesmen and on the part of the exhibitor who books their attractions.

"The affirmative note has been lacking and the enthusiasm of the public has dwindled with the rise of the negative attitude which has grown up as a result of diminished effort and appropriations for advertising and publicity.

"This appraisal of the situation which now exists is one which I share with a large number of fellow exhibitors in all parts of the country. From conversations and communications I have had with theatre owners I am satisfied that the consensus of opinion on the part of a large group of showmen is that incalculable harm has been done by this curtailment of publicity and advertising.

"The cut in advertising came at a very inopportune time. It was just after a public announcement by one of the leading producers of the need for economy in star's salaries, studio expenses, etc. That statement sounded a negative note. For years theatre owners and producers had been telling the public the good things—the affirmative ones—about their theatres and their pictures. But the economy idea spread to regions where harm instead of good resulted to the patient. The patient needed a tonic, not an anaesthetic. An attitude of 'hold everything' was ushered in, and it was as though the policy was generally being adopted that more was to be made by saving money than by going out and getting more of it through the box office turnstiles.

"Nothing counts for as much as the creation of new and increased patronage for motion picture theatres. All future success of every branch of the industry is predicated upon it. Costs of operation are rising—sound equipment being costly and sound pictures higher in rental price than the silent films—and these increased costs can be taken care of only through the medium of more—or higher—admissions.

"Theatre owners hesitate to make theatre-going more expensive, which leaves the other and more desirable alternative, viz; going out into the highways and byways and utilizing every possible means to make new patrons for their theatres, and new converts to the motion picture as entertainment.

A New Opportunity

"The present situation in the industry, in which sound and talking pictures are playing so large a part, affords a tremendous opportunity of bringing in new audiences to our theatres, but concerted action along organized lines is required to bring this about, as thus far this purpose has not been served.

"Why don't producers try for a period of at least six months (because I feel certain the time will be extended after the experiment), to increase their advertising in all trade papers that are read, both national and regional? Let them make it as comprehensive and efficient as their best advertising minds can make it. Where possible, take advantage of billboard advertising, newspaper and magazine publicity. It will be found to be self-serving as well as customer-serving, for good merchandise cannot be too extensively advertised. Then with the installation of sound reproducing devices in their houses, the theatre owners will follow the lead of the producers, and will advertise locally more so than ever before. This combined effort will develop new audiences and make more frequent the visits of old patrons. It is worth while to try to bring this about, or otherwise there will be no justification for the many hundreds of millions of dollars that are now being invested by the industry for reproducing and sound devices on which interest, etc., must be made.

Public Mind Can Be Made Up

"The public's mind can be made up. It has been done time and time again. Look what has occurred during 1928 in the case of the radio and automobile industries, with their enormous advertising programs.

"Theatre going is a habit, and producers and theatre owners together should employ every means to keep alive, and if possible increase this habit. And let us not

Quota Law In Balance

Findings of Walter M. Marks, Now Visiting Hollywood Will Determine Question in Australia

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 6.—The findings of the Royal Motion Picture Commission, of which Walter M. Marks, who is visiting Hollywood this week, is chairman, shall determine to a great extent whether or not Australia will invoke a quota law on foreign films. Mr. Marks, Member of Parliament in Australia, has been in Hollywood for the past fortnight, including the film capitol as part of his itinerary for the purpose of surveying motion pictures in several countries.

His trip takes in the motion picture production of Canada and of the United States. The report of the Royal Motion Picture Commission will be made to the Australian Parliament on Mr. Marks' return, following which Parliament will act on the proposed quota ruling. The report of the Commission will be also an important factor in the decrease or increase of censorship on American films in Australia.

To date, Mr. Marks has visited almost every important studio in Hollywood, meeting personally the heads of each production firm. The visits to the Coast of Adolph Zukor and Nicholas M. Schenck enabled him to come into personal contact with them. He seems favorably impressed thus far with the methods of American production, and has gained the good-will of individual personalities.

As part of his report, Mr. Marks is bringing back to the Australian Parliament a personal message in film from about twenty-five celebrities of the motion picture industry. These include producers and stars and are motion pictures of each individual delivering messages addressed to the Parliament. Among them are Will H. Hays, Nicholas M. Schenck, Adolph Zukor, Douglas Fairbanks, Mary Pickford, Charles Chaplin, Reginald Denny and others.

Radio Film Broadcasting

Jenkins Television Corporation Formed to Market Transmission Device for Home Use

A NEW company, named after C. Francis Jenkins, pioneer of the motion picture and one of the first experimenters in television, has been formed under Delaware laws. With a capitalization of 1,000,000 no par common shares, the firm is rated as a $10,000,000 concern. Prominent bankers and radio financiers are backing the corporation, the aim of which is the producing and marketing of television sets for home use. The radio transmission device that it will market is the invention of Mr. Jenkins, who will have a substantial interest in the company. Early production is planned.

The Jenkins television device is a transmitter which operates from an especially prepared film permitting of television signals from a broadcasting or short-wave transmitter. A receiver joins the device which will project clear animated pictures into millions of homes, it is claimed.

The Jenkins Television Corporation is backed by James W. Garside, president of the De Forest Radio Corporation, who will be president; A. J. Drexel Biddle, Jr., chairman of the De Forest Radio Company, who will be chairman of the board; and Donald S. Rogers, secretary, and Philip H. Diehl, treasurer. Mr. Jenkins will hold the positions of vice-president in charge of research and a director.

The board of directors will consist of the following:

Charles C. Renshaw, Kelly Graham, John H. Merrell, Joseph E. Higgins, Samuel A. Darby, Jr., Charles C. Dawes, Wiley R. Reynolds, Alexander W. Gregg, Victor C. Bell and Harris Hammond.

The Jenkins Television Corporation will buy all of the capital stock of Jenkins Laboratories, Inc., which has been developing radio and wire equipment for the past seven years. In addition to the inventions that the corporation already controls, Jenkins Television will acquire more inventions, exploitation and patent rights, and image transmission apparatus. The corporation is safeguarded by basic and detail patents on television, radio photographs, facsimile transmission and similar inventions, it is said.

Sarnoff Foresees Broadcasting by Television Into Million Homes

IN a lengthy statement looking into the future of television broadcasting or the dawning age of sight by radio, David Sarnoff, vice-president and general manager of the Radio Corporation of America says:

"The transmission in rapid succession of a series of still pictures—otherwise, motion pictures—is a logical element in the development of sight transmission. Thus an educational or other event might be broadcast by a single radio operation to 100,000 or to 1,000,000 homes in the country; the same event, distributed through present-day methods, would require a million separate deliveries of a million films to a million homes."

Ad Cut Hits Producer's Wares, Says Cohen

forget the good silent pictures of which there are so many. These have been left like orphans, neglected, abandoned and forgotten. All recent talk has been about 'talkies,' most of which did not really exist.

"By all means proclaim the 'talkies,' but do not neglect the fact that almost 85 per cent of the industry are not yet equipped with sound reproducing devices, and who will not be for a long time to come because of their inability to secure installation. Not being able to secure immediate installation of expensive reproducing devices, every effort should be expended upon simple inexpensive devices, easily handled, which would serve at least to play the various 'theme songs,' that have proven so attractive, and other special effects designed to increase the attractiveness of the picture. And during this time 'silent' pictures of necessity will be the backbone of many thousands of theatre programs. These, therefore, must not be neglected in producer advertising. There are so many good silent pictures among current releases, pictures that producers ordinarily would shout their heads off about, that it seems a shame that these pictures should be shoved into the background by the fact that the bulk of producer publicity is regarding their forthcoming sound pictures.

"Conditions can be bettered only by a sincere and common mutuality of purpose on the part of both producer and theatre owner. The public is the ultimate goal of both of these factors, and the public can be reached and multiplied I feel sure, if this concerted effort of man, brain and screen power which I have suggested is put into immediate effect."

Lesser Starts Plans for New Coast Studio

Hollywood, Dec. 5.—Immediately upon his arrival from New York, Sol Lesser started plans for construction of a coast studio for production of a series of feature talkers for Sonora-Bristolphone.

Lesser will be producing head of Lesser-Warner Productions; his associate being Franklin Warner, who recently finished an all-talker by Bristolphone process in the East. Shoot Sound Version First in Making "Missing Man"

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, Dec. 5.—The customary method of shooting silent versions first and then dialoguing pictures to be offered with and without sound was reversed at the Pathe studios when Barney Glazer made the talker version of "The Missing Man" complete before the work was turned over to Arthur Gregor, assigned to direct the silent version, which is now being filmed.

Stanley Purchase by W. B. Set

Stockholders Ratify Deal at Meeting; Transfer of First National Franchises to Occur on Dec. 10; Warners Profits $2,900,000

WITH the ratification of the deal for the acquisition of the capital stock of the Stanley Company of America by Warner Brothers' stockholders this week, Warners are all set to take over Stanley. It is also anticipated that the company will get control of First National on December 10, when a majority interest in First National will become the property of Warners. His corporation has just enjoyed the most prosperous quarter in its history, said Vice-President Albert Warner at the meeting of stockholders, which was held in Wilmington, Del. The financial figures for the first quarter of the current year ended November 30, he gave as being no less than $2,900,000 after all deductions.

The assembled stockholders approved an increase in authorized common stock of Warner Brothers from 550,000 to 2,500,000 shares, and the creation of 755,604 shares of new preferred stock. Approximately 785,603 shares of Stanley stock were deposited by Warners. Nothing was said at the meeting about renewing the exchange offer to Stanley minority leaders, it is reported. It is expected that the New York Stock Exchange will approve an application to list 592,227 additional shares of Warner common, provided for in the authorization made by stockholders.

With the Stanley deal clinched, the 24,000 shares of First National stock owned by Stanley are now owned by Warners. They are being held in escrow with the blocks of First National stock deposited in the name of Warner Brothers by Finkelstein and Ruben, Balaban and Katz, A. H. Blank and other franchise holders of First National. Combined, these shares constitute about two-thirds of the outstanding shares of First National stock.

"Theme" Copyright Is Banned by Court

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 5—A "theme" of a motion picture cannot be copyrighted according to a decision handed down by Superior Court Judge Yankwich in Los Angeles this week. Themes, according to Judge Yankwich, are free to all, but it is the handling and development, the new ideas and cleverness of the writer in so developing, which cannot be infringed upon.

The ruling was made in the case of William F. James and Dorothea K. Martin against Universal Pictures, in which the two writers alleged that Universal had taken the idea of "The Echo of the Hills" written by them, and made it into a picture called "Symphony." The writers claimed that they had submitted their story to the picture company for sale and that the company had pirated their idea and developed it into the production completed. Universal answered by saying that the picture was made from a story by Sven Gade called "Cabaret."

Educational Officially Licensed to Produce Under Photophone System

Educational Film Exchanges, Inc., is now a licensee of RCA Photophone and will produce its own comedies under that recording system. This was the announcement made by E. E. Bucher, executive vice-president of Photophone on Thursday. The standard recording license was executed that day between Mr. Bucher and E. W. Hammons, president of Educational.

Immediately upon the signing of the contract the necessary apparatus was shipped to Hollywood and an expert was on his way to the coast to supervise the installation.

Vice-President Albert Warner's statement at the Wilmington meeting, which occurred on Tuesday, December 4, is as follows:

"Before proceeding with the business for which this meeting has been called, I have a very gratifying announcement to make. The first quarter of our current fiscal year closed on Saturday last. Due to the widespread nature of the activities in which this corporation is engaged, it is impossible at this early date to state our earnings accurately. I am, however, in position to announce that the earnings of the corporation after depreciation and amortization, but before making deductions for taxes, were not less than $3,300,000 for the quarter, and our net earnings after making all deductions for taxes and every other contingency will not be less than $2,900,000. This is, of course, by far the most prosperous quarter in the history of the corporation.

"We have no bank loans and none of the stock of any of the subsidiaries of the corporation is pledged to secure any loan with the exception of one small amount which is in process of payment.

"This payment of the purchase price to Walter J. Rich for the stock in the Vitaphone Corporation previously owned by him has been anticipated. This stock, which was previously held in escrow, has now been released and is now in our possession.

"The reduction in bank loans and other indebtedness has been brought about through the application of earnings and by an additional advance of $800,000 by the Warner Brothers personally. Arrangements have been made to repay these advances by the Warner Brothers over a period of years, thereby improving our current position."

Fox N. Y. Expansion Move

First of Acquired Independent Circuits Swing Into Action Dec. 15—Others at Weekly Intervals

ON the 15th of December, the first squad of Fox's recently acquired independent theatre reinforcements in New York City, will wheel into action and at weekly intervals through December and January the balance of units in his group of approximately 150 former independently-owned houses will begin to function as an outlet for Fox product, according to reliable information received here this week.

The twelve houses acquired from the Brandt Brothers of Brooklyn are reported to be the first unit of Fox's Metropolitan Theatres to start operations under the new banner. On Dec. 22, it is said, Rachmiel and Rindsler, operating several theatres in the Brownsville section of Brooklyn will add their holdings, and on Dec. 27 the Bronx houses formerly under control of Joelson and Suchman. Jan. 1 will see the addition of the Park Lane and Avalon theatres in upper New York City and on Jan. 5, the circuits of Grobe and Knobel, and Springer. After this the larger chains of Consolidated Amusement Co. and Small and Straussberg will lend their tremendous neighborhood strength to the movement; then the Arthur Rapf holdings and several other circuits, just as rapidly as arrangements can be made.

The Fox movement for the acquisition of a large group of independent theatres has been reported on from time to time in this publication. Outside of New York City and in New England other circuits have been mentioned as in line for a pool of theatres which would number high in the hundreds. All of the neighborhood houses acquired by Fox are to be wired for sound pictures and on account of preference which will of course be given to Fox pictures considerable loss in neighborhood bookings will be felt by other distributors.

Whether a majority of the original circuit owners of Fox group will be retained in some executive capacity, could not be learned at the present time. It is almost certain that the Brandt Bros. will have supervisory positions, as well as others.

Paramount Announces Big Schedule of Releases for New Year

PARAMOUNT announces an extensive schedule of releases starting the first of the year. They will be divided into three classes, the all-talkie, the sound and part dialogue features and the silent picture.

There are to be twenty-two all-talking feature pictures and seventeen full length productions that will have talking and singing in addition to a synchronized musical score. Of this total of thirty-nine sound pictures there will be twenty-four that will also have silent versions. But three features will be produced entirely in silent form. These however, make a total of twenty-seven that will be available for exhibitors whose houses are not yet equipped with sound reproducing apparatus. Approximately 50 short talking features will also be distributed.

"U" Lines Up Product

Many Sound Specials Among 26 Stories So Far Scheduled for 1928-29; Montagne in East to Confer

UNIVERSAL'S line-up of feature offerings for the next season has been decided on by the company executives. Some 26 stories have been definitely announced for production and a $5,000,000 sound picture production plan is to be launched shortly. All of the larger "U" releases will have sound next year, it is promised, and to this end Edward J. Montagne, scenario chief for the company, has been purchasing picture material best fitted for sound production.

Mr. Montagne left Universal City, Cal., recently for New York to confer with company officials and sales heads on the production schedule. Before his departure, he had extended conferences with Carl Laemmle, president of Universal, Carl Laemmle, Jr., Robert E. Welsh and the studio personnel.

More than half of its major program for the 1928-29 season has been completed by Universal and many features are in work with others in various stages of preparation. The material on hand for the new schedule embraces novels, stage plays, stories and original ideas. Among them are the following:

"The King of Jazz," to star Paul Whiteman, with appropriate jazz music; "The Minstrel Show," to star Eddie Leonard; "The Climax," from the Edward Locke play, to be directed by Renaud Hoffman; "The Great Cinema Murder," by Leonard Fields; "Barnum Was Right," a sound and dialogue version of the stage play by Bartholomae and Meehan; "The Bargain in the Kremlin," by Sir Philip Gibbs, to star Joseph Schildkraut under the direction of Edward Sloman; "The Shannons of Broadway," with James Gleason from the stage play, to be directed by Wesley Ruggles; "The Drake Murder Case," by Charles A. Logue, to be directed by Edward Laemmle; "The Luxury Husband," to be made in sound from story by Maysie Grieg; "The Haunted Lady," from story by Adela Rogers St. Johns, to star Laura La Plante with direction from Wesley Ruggles; "Flaming Daughters," from Beatrice Van story.

Kutler, directed by Edward Sloman; "The Worm Turns," by Ward Russell; "The World Tomorrow," a novelty feature written by Leonard Fields; and three vehicles for Arthur Lake, "Campus Kisses," "The Girl Dodger" and "The Boy Wonder."

Universal Chain has also announced projects for Harrisburg and Clifton Forge, Va.

The offices have been located in the Granada Theatre for some time. A. M. Bowles is in charge of the San Francisco Division of West Coast.

Blue Law Struggle On in Greencastle, Indiana

The Indiana town of Greencastle has a Sunday show battle that is being waged fiercely. Following the opening of his theatre last Sunday, B. L. Goodlander, owner of a theatre in the town, was arrested for exhibiting films and gave $100 bond pending trial. The warrant was issued from the city court, but it is believed that the case will not be tried there as attorneys for Mr. Goodlander desire a trial in the circuit court, where an appeal would bring the case directly before the Indiana supreme court.

The townspeople are somewhat divided on the subject. The town is the home of DePauw University. The majority of ministers are opposed to Sunday movies, although the Rev. B. H. Bruner is one clergyman who bears no ill-feeling towards Sunday movies, asserting that there was no lessening of attendance at his church as a result of showings.

Mr. Orth comes from the Paramount sound picture studio in Astoria, Long Island, where he was production manager for the first Paramount talkie picture, "Interference." Mr. Nasca has been an art designer for several years. He is now erecting sets of the Johns-Manville acoustical material that will be used in all of Metropolitan's productions.

Horace Judge to Leave First National Pathe

Horace Judge will relinquish his post of publicity and advertising manager for First National Pathe, Ltd., England, at the close of the current year. His resignation has evoked an expression of reluctance from the board of directors and their thanks for the manner in which he has carried out his duties.

Mr. Judge gained theatrical experience handling various road show companies and managing theatres in the United States and Canada. After working with Universal and First National in New York, he went to England as head of First National Pictures, Ltd., publicity.

Governor-elect of O. Favors Sunday Shows

OHIO exhibitors, especially those in certain localities, are jubilant over the statement made by Governor-elect Myers Y. Cooper, who, in his recent address before the recent convention of the M. P. T. O. of Ohio, at Columbus, expressed himself in sympathy with Sunday movies. He made it known that if the next State Legislature passes a bill repealing the blue law, he will not veto it. The question is expected to come before the Legislature when it convenes next month.

Quebec Exhibitors Hit Hard by Decision

QUEBEC exhibitors who counted on a successful termination of the case before the Superior Court at Montreal received a severe setback when Justice P. Demers quashed the 30 writs of prohibition or injunctions to restrain the Quebec government from enforcing the recent legislation prohibiting juveniles under the age of 16 to see motion pictures in either sound or silent form in any of Quebec's theatres. The exhibitors fought the anti-juvenile law vigorously, but with the new decision the government comes off victorious.

The organized exhibitors, however, promise to carry on their attack on the constitutionality of the act, even though it has been upheld. Steps have been taken to carry the case to a higher court and to the Privy Council if necessary. A meeting for this purpose was held on December 6.

Tends Projectors Himself When Operators Strike

When the union men operating the projectors in his Texan, Ritz and Iris Theatres, Houston, Texas, walked out on him as a protest move to increase their wages from $60.00 to $72.50 per week, Will Horwitz, owner of the houses in association with Saenger Amusement Co. of New Orleans, temporarily managed the projection machines himself and put on a continuous show. The theatres were dark a short while, the petition presented by Mr. Horwitz to prevent the operators from walking out having been denied, but within three days the theatres were functioning again with non-union operators and sound equipment.

Seven union musicians walked out in sympathy with operators but all the other union men of the theatres' forces are on the job. Mr. Horwitz is asking the courts not to allow the operators and the union to declare his theatres as unfair.

Pathe Completes Plans for Studio Radio Station

Plans have been completed for the new building which will house Pathe's own radio broadcasting station, KFVD, and actual construction work will be begun within the next few days. The building will be of colonial architecture, in keeping with the main Pathe administration office building, and will occupy space with frontage on both Washington and Ince Boulevards.

The station, at present operated by the Culver City Broadcasting Company of which C. F. Carr and W. R. Marshall are the proprietors, will open under the Pathe management with elaborate ceremony in which a galaxy of stars and celebrities of the motion picture industry are expected to participate.

Garrett Fort Signed to Paramount Contract

Garrett Fort has been signed by Paramount as a writer at the Astoria studio. He is co-author of the stage play, "Jarnegan." His first assignment will be the continuity of the next Richard Dix vehicle.

British Phototone Plans Entry In U. S. Market

Will Make Recording and Reproducing Machines on Its Own or Link with Big American Concern

ENTRY into the American market is planned by the British Phototone Co., Ltd., which recently formed important German and French alliances. According to information received by Motion Picture News, British Phototone will either make recording and reproducing machines on its own for outright sale here or will link up with one of the big American film concerns.

It is probable that a Broadway theatre will be taken in the near future for showing of the British Phototone product, which already includes 27 short subjects made in England.

The company has the financial backing of the Ledbury Trust and Count Bosdari, and has a working arrangement with Brunswick-Balke for interchange of product in Europe.

According to Eustace Robb, personal representative of Count Bosdari, and who is now in this country, British Phototone has acquired the French Brunswick concern by purchase. It also bought the disc process of the Lignose Hor Film (described as the Duponts of Germany), and made a further deal with Siemens Halske, Ltd., and the Allgemeine Elektrizitäts Gesellschaft in Germany, which together operate under the name of Klangfilm. Phototone thus has access to the research laboratories of Klangfilm.

Mr. Robb said that British Phototone had already installed Panatrope non-synchronous machines in more than 1,000 theatres in the British Isles, and that by attachment of a synchronizer these houses would be in a position to present perfect sound pictures. The synchronizer, he said, was a simple affair and could be easily attached.

The first showing of British Phototone subjects, held recently in London, brought praise from the newspaper and trade press.

It is the intention of the company to offer its reproducing machine for theatres here at a price not exceeding $2,000.

Dudley Bott, a director of British Phototone, is expected to return to America shortly to complete the details of handling in this country.

Progress Made on Survey

300 Theatres Have Responded Thus Far to Request for Data from Department of Commerce

THE Motion Picture Section of the Department of Commerce, Washington, D. C., has received 300 answers to date to its request for data to make an analysis of the motion picture industry with regard to its effect on the prosperity of other industries in America. The survey, which is national in scope, was begun right on the heels of President-elect Hoover's promise that such a survey would be made.

When it has concluded its analytic study, the Department of Commerce expects to be able to set forth concretely the exact strength of the film business and to what extent other industries—such as steel, power, furniture, etc.—rely on the motion picture for profits. The Department believes that such a report as it is preparing will prove invaluable in securing support from business communities in general for the expansion of the picture industry.

The Department has again pointed out that the returns made by the theatres will be held strictly confidential and that all exhibitors need have no fear on this score. In the case of theatre chains, a sufficient supply of the questionnaires have been forwarded to the headquarters of the circuits for distribution to their various theatres.

M-G-M Will Make Talker of "Nize Baby"

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, Dec. 5.—Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer after several unsuccessful attempts to make "Nize Baby" as a silent comedy had decided to produce the picture as a talker. Hugh Herbert, former Movietone writer, has been assigned to do the new story along the lines of the heart interest type.

The Milt Gross book which the company bought for the screen some time ago has been on the shelf following efforts to film it as a silent comedy.

Gamby Directing Cabaret Scene for Talkie

Gamby, the name by which Maria Gambarelli is known to radio and theatre fans, is directing the troupe of Gamby-Hale girls in the cabaret scene of "The Hole in the Wall," the Paramount all talkie production.

IN a statement issued this week, Grant L. Cook, secretary and treasurer of Tiffany-Stahl Productions, Inc., denied that there was any truth in the report that a merger with another company was contemplated by his company. Elect Bender President of Oklahoma Body

THE Oklahoma M. P. T. O. convened in annual session at Huc-kins Hotel, Oklahoma City, Dec. 4th and 5th with a large number of members and visitors present.

Governor Henry S. Johnston, National President Pete Woodhull, Col. A. H. Cole, president of the Texas Association, and G. D. Howell, editor of the Motion Picture Journal of Dallas, made addresses at the opening session.

Col. Cole representing the Allied Independent National organization made a bid for the Association to join Allied, while the National Association asked Oklahoma exhibitors to remain in the National fold. The subject matter was referred to the executive committee for its action, which will be final.

A lobby committee was appointed to combat adverse theatrical legislation that may be offered by the Oklahoma legislators.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

A. R. Bender, president; Uncle Willie Spearman, vice president and general manager; Edward Kadane, secretary; John Brown, treasurer; Eph. Johnson, John McGinley, Fred Allred, J. H. Bennett, Carl Hartman, Phil Isley, H. G. Stepman and E. V. Weaver, directors.

Canadian Government to Build Studio in Ottawa

The Canadian Government has undertaken a substantial step in connection with its own moving picture industry at Ottawa in the purchase of a large brick structure there formerly owned by important lumbering interests. This building, which is situated on the banks of the Ottawa River, is to be made into a large film studio to replace the present plant in the downtown section of the Canadian Capital.

With this step a number of important developments will take place. It is understood that the National Research Bureau, which is being established as a Government aid for Canadian industries, will occupy a portion of the large structure and the official moving picture studio will undertake the making of 16 millimetre films in co-operation with this research work.

Canadian Government officials are also considering the adoption of sound pictures for propaganda purposes in the British Isles and throughout the British Empire and elsewhere. Talking pictures would replace the Government lecturers who now give illustrated talks in a number of countries, to a certain extent.

Columbia Studio in Mid-Season Production Peak

The Columbia studio on the West Coast now has three pictures in production, two ready for shooting at any time, and several more in preparation.

The production forces have completed work on "Nothing to Wear," which is now in the cutting room and will be ready for early release. Phil Rosen and "The Apache" unit are expected back shortly from location and only a short portion of the film remains to be filmed. Al Rogell is filming the finishing scenes for "The Lone Wolf's Daughter."

Shooting has been started on "Restless Youth" under the direction of Christy Cabanne. "The Younger Generation" and "The Sideshow" are ready for shooting. "The Donovan Affair," "Behind Closed Doors" and "Greenwich Village" are the trio of features in various stages of preparation.

Hertner Co. Moves Into New Cleveland Factory

A new factory on Elmwood Avenue, Cleveland, O., has been constructed by the Hertner Electric Company, manufacturers of Transverters. The new site has better facilities and advantages than the old, where for the past 14 years the Hertner company has manufactured its product. The new plant has additional acreage and is described by John H. Hertner, president of the company, as ideal in every way. Five acres are available for future expansion.

The factory has direct shipping connections, with trackage on one side and paved frontage on the other. The new location is in every way superior to the old factory.

The company has effected several new economies in operation which have made for increased efficiency. The moving chain system is being used, the Transverters proceeding step by step from initial stages to finishing touches, the chain forming a huge "u" through the plant. Each of the machines is so located as to have its full share of daylight.

Sunday Shows Triumph in 2 Ore. College Towns

Returns received last week in Seattle, Washington, from the state-wide elections in Oregon, indicated that Sunday motion picture had scored decisive victories in Eugene and Corvallis, college towns in Oregon that have not had Sunday shows for many years. Eugene, home of the University of Oregon, polled a majority of more than 1,000 votes for Sunday moving pictures, and Corvallis, center of Oregon Agricultural College, gave a majority exceeding 500 for Sunday entertainment.

The exhibitors of Eugene and Corvallis have promised the townspeople a finer grade of entertainment, to be ushered in during the next few months by the inauguration of talkie programs at the two leading theatres, in response to their vote of confidence.

Wide Activity at First National Burbank Studio

Nine new productions in preparation, each demanding a different locale that will keep the technical staff busy, a number of other productions occupying the stages all presage activity for many weeks to come at the Burbank studio of First National.

The new First National features include "Why Be Good?" to star Colleen Moore; "Weary River," Richard Barthelmess' next; "Saturday's children," a Corinne Griffith film; "The Comedy of Life," with Milton Sills; "The Man and the Moment," with Billie Dove; "Children of the Ritz," a co-feature for Dorothy Mackaill and Jack Mulhall; "Hot Stuff," with Alice White; and "Seven Footprints to Satan," with Thelma Todd. These pictures range all the way from city, prison and Venetian atmosphere to collegiate and mystery backgrounds. A number of them are expected to enter production momentarily. "Seven Footprints to Satan" is already in work. Preparatory work is under way on "The Squall."

The new sound unit, including stage, recording building, etc., is well under way and others are expected to follow shortly.

Obscure players have a better chance of breaking into pictures with the arrival of sound films, it is believed at the First National plant. Doris Dawson and James Ford, are two players who have been brought forward because of their ability to speak their lines.

Large Sign on Pathe's Home Office Bldg.

A large sign, extending across the front of the building, has been erected at the home office of Pathe at 35 West 45th Street, New York City. The firm name is spelled out in gilded block letters 16 inches high and with a large, red, trade mark rooster at both ends. The firm name and the street number are lettered in bronze at each side of the entrance.

Columbia Borrows Circus for "The Sideshow"

The Al. G. Barnes circus has placed all its resources at the disposal of Columbia for the filming of "The Sideshow," new production. A unit is now at work under the leadership of Erle C. Kenton at El Monte, Calif.

In Supporting Roles

Supporting Lois Wilson in Columbia's "Object—Alimony," will be Hugh Allan and Douglas Gilmore.

City of Birmingham May Show Movies

THE City of Birmingham, Ala., may go into the business of showing motion pictures according to a news story appearing last week in The Birmingham Post, the tentative plans indicating that the entertainment which would be provided by the municipality would be free to the public. It is believed that the project would be to the grave disadvantage of the motion picture theatres in the city which are prevented from opening on Sunday by an anti-Sunday movie ordinance. These theatres pay taxes, business licenses and are, it is claimed, entitled to protection in the conduct of their business. The Auditorium is mentioned as the house where the municipal entertainment would be presented. What the popular opinion is on the matter remains to be seen.

Whether the city will have Sunday movies or not depends on a ruling from City Attorney W. J. Wynn in passing on the plans of the Birmingham Park and Recreation Board. The board has appropriated $2,000 for staging regular Sunday shows. Besides films, the city plans to present musical concerts, plays and other features.

In and Out of Town

CARLOTTA KING, the lead in the Vitaphone version of "The Desert Song," has returned to California from a two-weeks' vacation in New York.

AFTER completing his series of M-G-M westerns, Tim McCoy will leave California for New York to sail for England. He plans spending Christmas with his wife and family and will also tour Europe.

BESSIE LOVE, featured player in M-G-M's "Broadway Melody," is spending a vacation in New York. She plans to return to the West in about three weeks.

S'AM FOX, head of the Sam Fox Publishing Company, has arrived in New York from California. Luigi De Francesco, associate of the Fox Sound Synchronization Department, returned east with him.

WILLIAM WARNER, manager of First National's Kansas City exchange, arrived in New York on Wednesday of this week on company business. He will remain in the city for about a week.

CLIVE BROOK, Paramount actor, will arrive in New York on Saturday for a brief vacation.

W. E. CALLAWAY, southern sales manager for First National, is back at the home office after a six-months' trip through the country.

RCA Signs to Produce By Disc System Also

Comes to Agreement with Brunswick-Balke Whereby That Company Will Manufacture Records

RCA is closing a contract with Brunswick-Balke whereby the latter will make synchronized disc records for the licensees of the radio company, according to E. E. Bucher, executive vice-president of RCA Photophone. In making the announcement Mr. Bucher says his company will produce under the disc system only when they have to, but that there seems to be but little necessity for it now. With interchangeability established as between RCA and Western Electric and Movietone apparatus all providing for showing by disc it was deemed advisable to place a disc recording system at the disposal of the RCA licensees if they desired it.

Final papers in the Brunswick-Balke deal have not been actually signed, it was said, but all agreements have been reached and the formal signing will take place probably before the end of this week.

The signing with Brunswick-Balke is in line too with the announcement of RCA last week that within the next few months that company would place on the market a reproducing device exclusively for disc records that would be considerably cheaper than the present equipment that is being installed. For some months past the radio company experts have been working on this new device and it is announced to be now nearing completion. It will be ready for marketing perhaps within the next three or four months. The disc apparatus, it was said, would be largely on accommodation to the smaller theatre owners who could not afford the equipment that cost from about $6,000 up. However, the disc equipment, it is said, will cost from $4,000 to $5,000.

Just how soon RCA will start the manufacture of disc records through Brunswick-Balke has not yet been determined, but it will probably be only when the demand is made on the company by some one of its licensees. There apparently is no intention of starting in the immediate future.

Silent Films Hold Ground

Their Strength in Talkie Rush Determines M-G-M Sales Meet to Recommend Strong Number for Production

(By a Staff Correspondent)

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—Good silent pictures are more than holding their own, despite the fact that the talkie is proving a strong box-office attraction.

This was the report of M-G-M district managers to Felix F. Feist, distribution chief, at a conference held at the Hotel Stevens this week.

"The silent theatres will be taken care of in the M-G-M program," Mr. Feist stated after the close of the conference over which he presided. "In fact," Mr. Feist added, "we still regard good pictures as the chief consideration, and our features and short subjects will be made with this in view, although we are bending every bit of energy to get the best results in talking pictures."

The purpose of the Chicago conference was to discuss problems facing the sales force and exhibitors in the marketing of talking and synchronized pictures, and the formulating of recommendations for the guidance of the production department in working out the 1929 program.

A feature of the meeting was the preview of the latest developments in Metro Movietone, including dramatic and comedy sketches in dialogue, a Gus Edwards musical revue, the screen's first Technicolor Movietone presentation and the first Hal Roach comedies with music, dialogue and sound effects.

M-G-M to Make "Trader Horn" in U. S.

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, Dec. 6.—"Trader Horn" will be made in this country by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, instead of Eastern Africa, as originally intended.

Screen rights to "Trader Horn" were purchased by M-G-M some months ago and plans were formulated to send players and staff to Africa to get correct locale backgrounds. Investigation, however, has shown film production in the jungles of Africa to be highly impractical and dangerous, with M-G-M abandoning original plans.

Iowa Showmen to Join Allied States Unit

AT the meeting of the Iowa exhibitors recently a unanimous decision was made to join with the Allied States organization. The meeting was held at the Hotel Savery on November 20 with E. P. Smith, president of the Iowa Theatre Owners' Association in charge. The Iowa organization has now joined with the national M. P. T. O. A. and there has been some conjecture that the Iowa group might jump to the Allied States group since Mr. Smith has been in sympathy with the new organization. W. A. Tempest was present to speak for the Allied States and Glenn A. Cross of Battle Creek was another speaker at the meeting. The Iowa unit raised $1,500 for the support of the new exhibitor body.

Pathechrome Process Acquired by Pathe

PATHECHROME, a new color process developed by the Pathe Cinema laboratories in France, will be presented in forthcoming issues of Pathe Review and will supplant the use of the Pathecolor process used by the company. Pathechrome, it is claimed, gives to the film a new brilliancy and a superior clarity of definition.

The process is said to require a special training for the colorists and a large array of equipment. Hitherto, the company has found it impossible to reproduce the work in America.

Pathe claims exclusive contracts for the use of the Pathechrome process and American and foreign patents are said to take care of any possible infringement. One of the elements of the process involves a special positive stock of Dupont-Pathe manufacture, it is asserted, which permits the transmission of light through the nitro-cellulose base with less color absorption and filtration than was previously held possible.

"Blockade," starring Anna Q. Nilsson, is the special release, which has been dated for December 16.

"Stolen Love," starring Marceline Day, was distributed beginning December 2. "Tropic Madness," featuring Leatrice Joy, will be issued on December 9. Another December 16 release will be "Heading for Danger," an action film starring Bob Steele.

"Hey Rube!" co-featuring Hugh Trevor and Gertrude Olmstead, will be released on December 23. The final feature for the month, "Orphan of the Sage," starring Buzz Barton, will be released on December 23.

"Jazz Age" F B O Talkie, Now in Work

Both dialogue and sound effects will be a feature of the FBO production, "The Jazz Age," and Henry B. Walthall, Marceline Day, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and other members of the cast are appearing before the mike on the sound stages at the Pathe studio in Culver City. The dialogue is the work of Paul Gangelin, Lynn Shores and Harold Schwartz.

"Show Folks," Pathe Film, Synchronized

The musical synchronization and sound effects for Pathe's "Show Folks" were recorded recently at the Sound Studios in New York under the direction of Josiah Zuro. The dialogue and dance sequences were previously recorded at the Culver City plant. The theme song is "Love's First Kiss" and other songs are "No One But Me" and "My Heart Keeps on Speaking of Love."

Goldwyn Cuts Down N. Y. Shots for Production

Because of the difficulties incurred in shooting a picture in New York's streets, Samuel Goldwyn has decided to film as few scenes of his new Vilma Banky vehicle in New York as possible. He will make most of the picture in California through duplication of New York scenes and back-grounds.

Charley Chase Plays Stage Engagment on Coast

Having finished a new Roach comedy, Charley Chase is appearing between pictures upon the stages of the Metropolitan and Loew's Warfield theatres in San Francisco as star of the Publix revues. The comedian is apparently brushing up on his stage tricks preparatory to beginning work in Roach's sound program for the coming year.

Warren Doane Arrives

Warren Doane, vice-president and general manager of the Hal Roach studio in Culver City, arrived last week in California with Mrs. Doane after spending several weeks in the east conferring with executives of M-G-M on the forthcoming sound program at the Roach studio.

Fox Planning Super House in Boston

On the site of the old Hotel Touraine in Boston a new theatre is planned by the Fox Theatre Corporation. The location is in the city's oldest and most fashionable district, and the theatre, it is said, will be the largest in the world. No details as to the extent of the seating capacity have been released as yet.

Other properties immediately adjacent to the Hotel Touraine are understood to be involved in the plan. Rumors had been floating in and around Boston for several weeks to the effect that negotiations were in progress for the disposal of the hotel property to a theatre company, and it was also rumored that the plans involved the acquisition of properties adjoining the Touraine. The papers completing the deal were in process of being signed, it was said.

2 Directors Collaborate on Talkie

For the first time a talking picture is being produced at a studio with two directors collaborating to give it 100 per cent stage and directorial technique. Louis Gasnier, screen director, and Edwin Knopf, Broadway stage director, are merging their talents to bring "The Genius," a new Paramount program.

Paramount Signs Graduate of Baker Drama Class

Several students of Professor George P. Baker's drama class in Yale have made good in the scenario staffs of Hollywood. The latest to sign a contract with Paramount is William N. Robson 2nd of Pittsburgh, who wrote "The Genius," soon to be made into an all-dialogue picture by Paramount.

Pathe Production

Pathe has in production at their studios in Culver City the following features: "High Voltage," "Listen, Baby," "The Flying Fool" and "The Missing Man," the last have finished its second week. Also in work are more scenes for "The Leatherneck," sound sequences for "Noisy Neighbors," and "Square Shoulders."

Warner Completes Two

"The Desert Song," the first Vitaphone operetta, and "She Knew Men," a Vitaphone vehicle for Edward Everett Horton and Betty Bronson, were finished last week by the Warner Bros. studio.

Blue Law Prevails in 35% of Texas Towns

ACCORDING to statistics recently gathered by Don C. Douglas, executive secretary of the Dallas Film Board of Trade, one hundred and twenty-five of the six hundred fifty-two theatre towns in Texas now have Sunday shows. About 35 per cent of the total number of theatres in the state are now open for business on Sunday.

Lee Patrick, Stage Player, in "The Missing Man"

Lee Patrick, feminine star of several Broadway plays, has been chosen to play the foremost girl role in Pathe's "The Missing Man." She closed in the play, "The Common Sin," in New York left the next day for Los Angeles, and the day following her arrival began working in the picture.

C. B. De Mille to Direct Nagel in "Dynamite"

Conrad Nagel will have one of the two principal male roles in "Dynamite," the Cecil B. De Mille production from an original story by Jeanie McPherson which the director will shortly place in work at the M-G-M studio. John Howard Lawson has been signed to do the dialogue.

6 Features Set by FBO for December Release

The FBO schedule of feature releases during the month of December is made up of six productions, one of which is a special with and without sound effects and talking.

Foy Here to Make Vitaphone Pictures

BRYAN FOY, veteran sound director of Warner Bros. Vitaphone pictures arrived in New York late last week and will be in charge of Vitaphone production when Warners open the old Vitagraph studios in Brooklyn. It is expected that production in Brooklyn will be started within the next two or three weeks. Foy has been the foremost producer of Vitaphone pictures at Warner Bros. west coast studios. He has directed both feature pictures and short subjects. An extensive production program is planned at the Vitagraph studios.

W. E. Producers Ask Interchangeability

Confer on Plans to Assure More Rapid Disposal of Product

on the music agreement it holds with Mr. Mills."

Western Electric professes to want to help its licensees in every way in disposing of as much picture product as possible and points to the fact that the company has done nothing yet to block such showings as have already been held on outside equipment. It was said at the executive offices of the company Wednesday that not one of the licensees of the company would fail to sign the contract they now hold if they had it to do over again at the present time.

The music angle undoubtedly presents the greatest difficulties. Mr. Mills licensed both Western Electric and RCA to produce and reproduce copyrighted music. The license covers a period of five years on a graduated price scale. The first year provides for a minimum of $100,000 and the second year a minimum of $125,000 based upon the number of seats in the houses equipped. After the second year there is no minimum and the seat basis is increased. Mr. Ludvigh admits that the Mills contracts are somewhat drastic in their content and that they are very much in favor of Mr. Mills.

Dissatisfaction Reported

It is said to be quite an open secret that many of the music publishers whom Mr. Mills represents are dissatisfied with the contracts they hold with him and that they will not renew at the expiration of the present contracts. One of the greatest barriers to interchangeability is said to be the fact that Mr. Mills, if he permits copyrighted music to be played on other than Western Electric and RCA equipment, will be violating his contract with his music publishers. If these contracts are violated, it is said that many of the publishers would be glad to take advantage of it to part company with Mr. Mills.

But One Refusal of Service Recorded On Interchangeability

WHILE negotiations are pending with Western Electric on the question of interchangeability, there has been but one refusal of service to a theatre that has sought to show on other than Western Electric equipment. This was at Danbury, Conn., where Vitaphone refused to serve the Palace Theatre with disc records for a "Tenderloin" showing next week.

Showings have been held without interruption at Hagerstown, Md., and Madison, Wis., of Western Electric disc records over Bristolphone equipment. The Alhambra Theatre at Canton, Ohio started a week's run last Saturday of Tiffany-Stahl's "The Toilers" synchronized by RCA Phonophone on Phonofilm apparatus. The same house expects to run a Movie-tone subject on Phonofilm next week, but this service is said to have been passed up by Fox to decision by Western Electric.

It is said that some of these publishers out of the $100,000 license fee charged by Mr. Mills receive a sum under $100 for the year for the use of their copyrighted music. Even the largest of them receive comparatively small amounts as a result of the contract. Rumor has it that all of them would prefer to free-lance in the motion picture industry as they would undoubtedly receive larger returns. If copyrighted music is placed on a free-lance basis it undoubtedly would cost motion picture producers many times the amount they are now paying for the use of such music. It would place the most popular music on a competitive basis and would probably, under the circumstances, put further restrictions on interchangeability.

Mr. Mills, before departing for Europe had the following to say on the question of interchangeability:

Mills' Stipulations

"It is not the intention of the publishers I represent to obstruct interchangeability. We do insist though, that our copyrighted music be given proper rendition. You can appreciate the value of good rendition to the sale of our music and at the same time you can appreciate how much poor rendition would harm us. We simply cannot have our music butchered and we therefor will insist upon reserving the right to pass upon any equipment on which our music is to be reproduced.

"If certain equipment is satisfactory to Paramount, for instance, for the showing of their pictures, it may be satisfactory to us for the reproduction of music, but we still would have to be satisfied. As matters now stand, there are two and possibly three reproduction equipments that are satisfactory to us. We have licensed RCA and Western Electric and we have negotiations on with Bristolphone which may and may not be completed. I gave a temporary license to Bristolphone to operate in Hagerstown. I sent two men from Washington to report on the showing and their report was anything but satisfactory. Bristolphone explained that the house was operating on direct instead of alternating current or vice versa and that good results could not be had. My agents saw the showing of Bristolphone at the Strand in Madison, Wis., and reported it was marvelous.

Consider the Patents

"We have not yet looked into any of the lower priced devices, but we understand that the majority of them are likely to be infringing on Bell Telephone or Western Electric patents. I think they should prove otherwise if they want to play our copyrighted music. We will be glad to negotiate with licensees of Western Electric and RCA and will do all we can to clear up the question of interchangeability, but I am departing for Europe to be gone two months at least and perhaps nothing will be accomplished in this direction until my return."

Sonora - Bristolphone Forms School

THE Sonora-Bristolphone school for engineers has been formed by the sound device organization. It will supervise installations of the sound machines and now has 25 engineers in attendance who are taking a course of instruction in order to be thoroughly familiar with every detail of the device. Twelve engineers have already taken the course and are directing installations in various sections of the country.

All Boston Houses But One Sound Equipped

WITHIN the next month or six weeks Boston will have all but one theatre equipped for sound pictures. The Keith-Albee Boston wiring has been completed and the Orpheum will also be equipped. This will leave the new Keith Memorial Theatre the only first run theatre without sound equipment in Boston.

West Coast to Have First Theatre Built Especially for Talkies

THE country's first theatre to be constructed solely for the exhibition of talking pictures is rapidly nearing completion in San Diego, Cal., by the West Coast Theatres and will be opened for the first time on January 18, 1929. The house is the North Park Theatre.

West Coast's engineers and architects have long been working on plans for a theatre, the acoustics of which will be most effective for theatre reproduction of sound devices. Their plans call for the use of a special plaster all throughout the building and on all wall surfaces as well as on the ceiling. One of the results of their experiments is a specially designed theatre seat, so constructed as to eliminate any possibility of non-absorption of sound.

Designed primarily for the talking film, the construction of the North Park necessitated many extra thousands, but the additional sum is justified, says Harold B. Franklin, president of West Coast, in the results obtained.

E. W. Hammons Tells Sound Plans for Educational

E. W. HAMMONS, president of Educational Film Exchange, Inc., is a keen advocate of sound comedies and his company will release many of them during the next season, but he has no intention of forsaking the silent field. Educational is busy now lining up its product, according to Mr. Hammons and is not yet ready to divulge its full plans.

"You can say that we have concluded arrangements with Mack Sennett whereby we will release twenty of his sound comedies during the season and there will also be twenty Educational two-reelers. Further than that I do not want to make any announcement as to our season's plans, except that we will have an abundance of silent pictures for the exhibitor who has not yet been able to secure equipment.

"The first of the Sennetts will be a group of four. One of these, 'The Lion's Roar' synchronized by RCA Photophone, has already been previewed and I can truthfully say I never heard of a short comedy meeting with more general approval. It was shown to an appreciative audience at the RCA headquarters and then it had a preview at the Roosevelt Theatre in Chicago and the verdict again was unanimously in favor of it.

"A print of the second Sennett picture has just been received and will be ready for immediate showing. The other two of the first group of four will be ready by the end of this month.

"These comedies, like those of Educational will nearly all have some dialogue, but all will have sound. The Educational short subjects will feature such players as Dorothy Devore, Lupino Lane, Monte Collins, 'Big Boy' and Jerry Drew. Jack White will also make a couple of short operettas.

"We will in all probability release upward of fifty two-reelers as well as a large number of single reel subjects. We have all of our stories ready now and expect to start work on them on December 15.

"Of course there is no telling whether or not talking pictures will supplant silent ones, but certainly the silent picture will never be entirely replaced by the talkie. Educational is not forgetting its duty to the large majority of houses that are not yet wired, nor will we ever forget this duty in the future. We will have silent pictures as long as there are houses that can use that type and we will develop our sound program as rapidly as the sound pictures justify it. Unfortunately the Mack Sennett comedies that Educational has contracted for are available in the talking and sound versions only. They will not be made in the silent form."

Paramount Now Producing "The Hole in the Wall"

"The Hole in the Wall," an adaptation by Pierre Collings of a mystery play presented on the New York stage about seven years ago, went into production last week at the Paramount Long Island studio under the direction of Robert Florey. Claudette Colbert, young leading woman on the Broadway stage who last year appeared in a picture for First National, is playing the principal feminine role and others in the cast of the all-talkie include Edward G. Robinson, David Newell, Louise Glosser Hale, Barry Macollum, Donald Meek, Alan Brooks, George McQuarrie Katherine Emmett and Nelly Savage.

Rehearsals were carried on last week under the direction of Mr. Florey, with Irving Rapper assigned to stage the dialogue. Monta Bell, production executive at the studio, is supervising.

Photophone's First Hearing in Pittsburgh at Harris

RCA Photophone was first heard by the Pittsburgh public at the Harris theatre Monday, December 3rd. The FBO production, "Hit of the Show" was the attraction first three days of the week while "Gang War," another FBO offering was on the silversheet for the last half of the week.

Local theatre and film men were the guests of the Harris Amusement Company (owners of the Harris) at a showing and hearing of Photophone for the trade on the evening of Sunday, December 2nd.

The Harris' are also installing Photophone in their Seranton Square Theatre in East Liberty. This installation will be ready soon.

Jessel to Star in "Lucky Boy" for Tiffany-Stahl

"Lucky Boy," the dialogue and titles by the star himself, will be a Tiffany-Stahl production in which George Jessel, legitimate actor and comedian, will make his first appearance in a singing and talking screen feature. It is expected to be finished in time for a Broadway premiere in January. Jessel has been working at the RCA studios in New York on scenes of the picture. Songs in the picture are by L. Wolfe Gilbert, Abel Baer, Louis Young and Axt. Margaret Quimby is playing in the leading feminine role.

Grapewin Signed to Make Christie Talkie

Charley Grapewin, who performed on the vaudeville stage for a number of years in his sketch, "Jed's Vacation," has been engaged by the Christie Brothers to act in their sound version of the work. The actor's wife, Anna Chance, who always played with him in the sketch, has also been signed to play her stage role. As soon as Walter Graham has finished a Christie talkie, "When Caesar Ran a Newspaper," he will begin work on the new production.

Paramount Technical Staff Perfects Echometer

A device that pursues elusive sound bounds to their source and that works for their elimination has been perfected by the Paramount staff of technicians in Hollywood. They have called their invention the echometer.

The device was first used during the filming of "Tong War" and is said to bring accurate acoustic results.

Pathe Offering Unit Shows in Sound

A COMPLETE show in sound, from overture to exit march, is Pathe's newest innovation in the sound field. The show will be complete in one can and will include a Pathe feature, a Pathe Sound News reel, a two-reel comedy and other short subjects drawn from Aesop's Sound Fables, Topics of the Day Talkers and Grantland Rice Sound Sportlights. The complete show will be about 12,000 feet or more in length and will be mounted on 2,000-foot reels ready for running. Booking details will be reduced to a minimum, it is expected.

Strict care will be exercised in the selection and assembly of the subjects, Pathe announces. The overtures that will be used will be descriptive pictures of musical compositions synchronized with the orchestral renditions. The closing number on the unit show will offer music only.

All sound records are being made by Pathe on the RCA Photophone system. The new unit sound service will not interfere with separate bookings.

New Sound Device Used by Wesco

"Wings" Presented in Unwired Houses With Portable Electric Outfit

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, December 5.—Lack of wired theatres did not prevent West Coast Theatres from playing Paramount's "Wings" throughout the territory with full sound effects equally as effective as the synchronized versions supplied for wired houses.

In playing "Wings" over the West Coast circuit, officials were up against the problem of getting sound effects in the unwired houses in order to take full advantage of the drawing power of the picture. Back stage effects were decided against as they generally did not synchronize with the action on the screen. Finally R. H. McCullough, technical expert of West Coast, solved the problem of constructing a portable electric outfit with four record turntables; each turntable carrying a differently required effect that could be switched on or off as required. A single operator easily manipulated the outfit, having the entire picture cued so that the effects are realistic and synchronous.

The operator is stationed at the sound machine during the time of operation and each record pickup has a separate push button mounted on the control panel so that cues may be picked up immediately. The four turntables operate together or individually and the pickups mounted on the records are kept on the records at all times during the time when the sound effects are being used. The operator watches the picture closely and upon noticing the action in the picture and the cue, presses the button and holds such effects as long as necessary.

The new sound equipment consists of an amplifier with an electric A. C. Supply, using full wave rectification, driving a 227 pickup tube, which supplies three stages of Thordarson audio frequency amplification. The first stage is a 226, the second a 271 and these in turn feed two 210 tubes in push-pull. The speakers consist of two of the dynamic type and two of the exponential type. The action supply consists of four G. E. motors, four magnetic pickups and a system of scratch filter. The entire amplifier and the action supply are mounted in a combined table and shipping case, upon which is constructed the control panel for individual handling of each record and also the four turntables. The control panel is entirely shielded to prevent the alternating current hum. The amplifier is so constructed that two or more turntables may be operated and effects produced at the same time.

Four records are used to gain the effects in "Wings"—one each for American planes, German planes, machine gun fire, and idling planes. Crashes and big gun fire are gained through the regular theatre organ.

The West Coast sound equipment is installed in the theatre orchestra pit, with the speakers placed on each side of the stage. Volume controls are mounted on the control panel so that the volume can be increased or decreased, as required. It is necessary to vary the sound volume of various effects to make them realistic with the picture projected.

The portable sound equipment weighs only about 300 pounds, and is easily installed or removed for showings of the picture. West Coast officials, before using the device, asked Western Electric if it infringed in any way with the Movietone device, and received a reply that it did not. It is likely that West Coast will use this same device for the bookings of First National's "Lilac Time" when the latter starts over the circuit of unwired houses.

Closing of Camera Booth Flashes Silence Signal

When the sound-proof doors of the camera booth at the Pathe studio, Culver City, close the entire studio becomes aware that the silence signal has been given through the flashing of red lights electrically connected with the camera booths. The doors are always closed when the rehearsals for scenes have been concluded and it is only when they have given the signal that the director orders actual filming. Watchmen stationed at the ends of the stages prevent anyone from entering the restricted area until the scenes are finished and the lights have gone out.

FBO Des Moines Manager Making Equipment

Harry Frankle, manager for FBO, Des Moines, is putting out an equipment for talkies. He plans to manufacture them there and place them on the market for $250.

Reeltone Interchangeability is Given Demonstration

REELTONE, a disc recording and reproducing device manufactured by the Poole Engineering Company of Baltimore and distributed by the Reeltone Corporation in New York, gave a demonstration of interchangeability during the week with two subjects recorded by the Western Electric Disc system.

The equipment to be placed in theatres is not for sale, but is installed for a survey charge of $150 and a weekly maintenance fee thereafter of $30. The trade press was invited to the initial showing which proved only that the Western Electric disc could be run on the Reeltone equipment.

The two subjects shown were hardly satisfactorily reproduced but the fault was declared to be with the arrangement of the horns rather than because of any fault with the main equipment. The projection room was a small one and it was declared could hardly do credit to the equipment. The tional quality was fair enough but the reproduction of the dialogue made the lines a bit blurred.

It was explained by W. E. Quigley, head of the Vitaphone offices, that in this case, as in other similar ones, the discs were supplied on request for the purposes of the demonstration as an accommodation to the handlers of the equipment and that it did not mean that the equipment had the approval of Vitaphone. A representative of the company, Mr. Quigley explained, took the discs to and from such showings and that in no case were they allowed to remain.

Reeltone is planning production of 52 single reels and a series of features, it is announced by the company. It is also announced that the equipment is to be placed in the Doric, Star and Strand Theatres of the Kent Enterprises in Duluth, and the string of theatres controlled by the Howard Wells Enterprises in Wilmington, N. C.

Mike May Be Male or Female, Says M-G-M

"MALE MIKES" and "female mikes" are the latest problem in the making of motion pictures. Every microphone, through infinitesimal differences, the vacuum tubes in them, and tiny variations in electrical capacity, have different tricks in recording.

Whenever a new microphone is broken in at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, or even when a new tube is placed in one, it is tested, according to Lew Kolb, electrical engineer, to see whether it records male or female voices best. After the tests it is marked with white paint—"M" for male and "F" for female. An "M" mike is used where masculine voices predominate.

Educational Device Registers Laughs At Preview Comedy Showings

EDUCATIONAL has perfected an unique device which they figure will help materially in strengthening their output of sound pictures. It is a machine placed in a preview theatre to register audience laughs. It will register anything from a giggle to a roar. From these recordings the finished product is revised.

While the device is registering it shows at just what footage the picture is running. If there is a giggle where a roar was expected that spot in the picture is bolstered up after the preview showing. If there is too much lapse between laughs that fact is recorded. If the laughter is too continuous and precludes the hearing of any dialogue, regulations are made. It is a complete barometer of the preview audience reaction to the comedy.

Christies Launching Their First Sound Program for Paramount

A PRODUCTION schedule that takes in 32 all talking short subjects to be pre-released during the coming season in the first run wired houses has been placed into work by the Christie Brothers. These shorts, which will be distributed through Paramount, range from screen versions of Octavus Roy Cohen's stories of colored folk to well-known vaudeville skits. They represent new fields of comedy material that the screen has hitherto never been called upon to exploit.

The first of the Cohen stories to be filmed is "The Melancholy Dame," in which appear colored players who will enact the various dusky characters enlivening the author's fiction. Another Cohen story set for early release is "Music Hath Charms." The Cohen stories have been appearing in the Saturday Evening Post for 13 years. Two more on the Christie roster of releases are "The Widow's Bite" and "Completely Done in Oils."

The first of the vaudeville skits to be filmed by the Christies is "When Caesar Ran a Newspaper," by Waldemar Young and William Jacobs, in which Raymond Hatton will appear as Caesar, Sam Hardy as Marc Anthony, Betty Lorraine as Cleopatra and Carl Stockdale, Maud Truax and others in minor parts.

Comedy talking shorts that are planned to appear soon include "Meet the Missus," by Kenyon Nicholson; "A Bird in the Hand," a farce by Percy Heath; "Post Mortems," a comedy by Charles Divine; "A Cup of Tea," by Florence Ryerson; "Hot Lemonade," also by Charles Divine;

"Dear Vivian," by Waldemar Young; and "Hit or Miss," a bedroom-bath farce written by Miss Ryerson in collaboration with Colin Clements.

Well known stars with stage experience will be starred in the Christie talkies, it is said, Edward Everett Horton having already been announced as scheduled for several pictures. He will probably appear in at least two of them and Raymond Hatton is sure to make one more, at least. Other names will be announced as the productions go into work.

"My Man" Is Next Special For N. Y. Warners

Warner Bros. will next present Fannie Brice in "My Man" at the Warner Theatre in New York, the premiere to take place on December 21. Many notables of stage and screen are expected to attend and Miss Brice will be on hand to say a few words at the conclusion of the performance in conjunction with Archie Mayo, who directed her.

"My Man" is Miss Brice's first screen venture. She is supported by Edna Murphy, Guinn Williams, Richard Tucker and Andre de Segurola.

100 Juveniles in New Gus Edwards Revue

One hundred juvenile singers and dancers, representing every state in the Union, appear in Gus Edwards' next "Colortone Revue," now being produced with Movietone equipment at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio. The composer and impresario is singing several of his own numbers and will appear personally in other scenes of the revue. His songs will include "Lon Chaney'll Get You If You Don't Watch Out." Other features of the subject are a Christmas tableau with reindeer and sleigh and ballet dancing.

Powers Cinephone Is Now Making "White Lilacs"

"White Lilacs," the Shubert operetta based on the life of Chopin, is the first 100 per cent dialogue production that Powers Cinephone is making. The sound picture version of the musical work has been in production for several weeks at the Powers Cinephone studio in New York, the stage players who are playing in the screen version including Guy Robertson, Grace Brinkley, Allan Rogers and Maurice Holland. According to production schedule, the sound film will be completed within the next few days.

Harry Revier is directing and Jack Livingston is in charge of production details. Joe Seiden is chief cinematographer while William E. Garity, Powers Cinephone's chief technical engineer, is in charge of sound recording.

"Highbrow" in Making at Paramount

"Highbrow," a two-reel all-talking dramatic novelty by S. Jay Kaufman, is in production now at Paramount's Long Island Studio under the direction of Joseph Santley, with Joseph Rittenberg doing the camera work. The cast of Broadway stage actors includes Leo Donnelly, Harry Mestayer, Effie Shannon, Ian Hunter, Horace Braham, Marie Williams, Leslie Stowe, Eugene Redding and Frank Taylor.

Warners Buy "Hottentot" for Talking Feature

Warner Bros. have purchased "The Hottentot," to be made into an all-talking Vitaphone picture. Roy Del Ruth has been assigned to direct this comedy which was written by Willie Collier in collaboration with Victor Mapes.

"The Hottentot" will be one of the Vitaphone pictures offered by Warners on their 1929-30 program. It will go into production early in the year with Edward Everett Horton in the principal role.

William Collier, Sr., to Work on Dix Vehicle

William Collier, Sr., actor and playwright, will assist John G. Bachman, Paramount supervisor, on the preparation of Richard Dix' new vehicle for Paramount, a talking picture which is to be made at the Long Island studio. The title is still in doubt. Victor Schertzinger will be the director.

Mr. Collier holds a foremost place on the American stage and is best known for his work in "The Dictator" and "The Hottentot."

Fire

Metropolitan Studios' arsenal had a wee bit of a blow-up and a small fire was similarly caused on Paramount's lot. Damage was slight in the latter instances.

RCA Engineer Invents Sound Attachment

JOHAN C. AALBERG, engineer with the R. C. A. Photophone working at the Pathe Studios, in Culver City, has perfected a sound attachment for the portable Moviola, which now is being used for the cutting and editing of all Pathe talking pictures.

The completion of this instrument overcomes one of the biggest difficulties in the preparation of dialogue and sound screen attractions, making it possible for the cutter to literally "cut a word in half," with very little difficulty.

Lloyd Now Angling for Leading Playwrights

HAROLD LLOYD, who is deep in preliminary plans for his new comedy vehicle for Paramount which will have sound and dialogue, is seeking the signatures of several of Broadway's leading playwrights to write dialogue for the picture.

The comedian last week took a test at the sound stage of the Metropolitan Studio and is assured of the suitability of his voice for recording. He will first complete the silent version of his comedy and will then go back and make the sound and dialogue portions.

Silk Gauze Eliminates Vibrating Rattle

IT has been discovered by sound experts working on "Broadway Melody," first Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer all-talking picture, that the filaments in incandescent lights pick up sound waves, causing a vibrating rattle which is detected by super-sensitive microphones used on the picture. This is eliminated, however, by placing a fine silk gauze over the globe.

Sound Equipment for 2 More Seattle Houses

Talking pictures for two more of Seattle's downtown houses!

Announcement was made last week by K. L. Burk, Northwest manager of Universal Chain Theatres, to the effect that talkie equipment is now being installed in the Columbia Theatre, Universal's dark house on Second Avenue. And Pantages Theatre, at Third and University, closed this week for the installation of talkie apparatus.

Both houses plan to open with the "sound" films early in December. It will present an interesting situation, for Pantages is reported to have bought the entire Universal output for the season, including the sound films. Thus Pantages will run the Universal pictures, while the Columbia Theatre, Universal owned, will have to look elsewhere for product.

The output of Fox, Warner Brothers, United Artists, Pathe, Paramount, First National, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and Tiffany-Stahl is reported to be under contract to other first run houses for the coming season.

F. A. Rice Gets Franchise for Powers' Cinephone

Fred A. Rice, former factory representative of the Marr and Colton Organ Company, and at present operator of the Oakla Theatre and the Warsaw Opera House, Warsaw, New York, has signed for an exclusive franchise for the sales and service of Powers Cinephone in the upper territory of New York State. He will install the Powers Cinephone in his own houses and has already closed several contracts including one for the installation in the Auditorium Theatre, Perry, New York.

Hasting Twins Talk in "Annapolis" Prologue

The Hastings Twins, the two small girls who used to announce the various features of George White's Scandals by voice across the footlights, enact in a similar style in the prologue to Pathe's "Annapolis," which has just been finished at the Sound Studios in New York. The Twins procured the job after many had failed in the test before the microphone.

McInerney Will Handle All Berlin-Richman Publicity

All studio publicity on the new United Artists film, to be made in New York during the next two months and to star Harry Richmond, with music by Irving Berlin, will be handled by John E. McInerney. He recently resigned from Publix.

Upholds Sunday Shows

Montreal Justice Decides Sabbath Film Entertainment Is Permissible; Provincial Government to Appeal Case

THE long-drawn-out legal battle in the Province of Quebec over the question of Sunday shows reached a new stage November 30 in the handing down of a judgment by Mr. Justice Desaulniers in Superior Court, Montreal, the import of which is that a moving picture show is NOT a theatrical performance and, therefore, not subject to the regulations of the Lord's Day Act of the Federal Parliament.

In giving this decision, Justice Desaulniers confirmed a writ of prohibition which had been secured by United Amusements, Limited, Montreal, which injunction restrains the Quebec Provincial authorities from taking criminal action against the corporation for conducting Sunday shows in its 13 Montreal houses. The test case was between this corporation and the Quebec Government, and the first granting of the writ compelled the taking of the action to the higher court.

The judgment of Justice Desaulniers points out that the Lord's Day Act in the Canadian statutes defined a show under the classification of "all plays, sports, fights, representations and entertainments." The latter word was defined as meaning "recreation" or "pastime," according to His Lordship. Further, the judgment asserts that no act of the Quebec Government at any time ever prohibited the showing of motion pictures on Sundays and, at any rate, the matter of Sunday observance was in the hands of the Federal Government and not the Quebec Government because prosecutions under the Lord's Day Act carried with them a penalty and were therefore criminal actions. The United Amusements, Limited, had challenged the jurisdiction of the Quebec Government.

Sunday picture shows are, therefore, permitted in all Quebec cities and towns. The Provincial Government has given notice that it will appeal the judgment of the Superior Court.

Kans. Theatres Picking Up

Havoc of Flood Still Retards Bookings and Exhibitions; Damage Estimated at $35,000

MOST of the one hundred or more theatres in Kansas, which were forced temporarily to close because of the recent disastrous flood in the states of Kansas and Oklahoma, have been reopened by their owners, according to reports reaching Kansas City's film row. The flood damages to the houses were expected to reach near $35,000, although no official report has yet been made.

It is estimated that several weeks will elapse before bookings, now disrupted by flood conditions, can be straightened out, exchange officials of Kansas City said. In several instances, the ground was so muddy and practically impassable for autos and other vehicles that it was found necessary to resort to airplanes to transport films from Kansas City to various points in the territory. Many of the roads were under water and railroad transportation was in a paralyzed condition for a time. Glenn Dickinson, of the Booth Theatre, Independence, Kansas, was among those who ordered shipment by airplane.

In some instances, exhibitors were forced to "trade" films until transportation facilities improved.

Relief funds for various flood sufferers were started in the stricken area. Part of the receipts of the Apollo theatre, Kansas City, went to a relief fund for the victims. L. J. Lenhart, manager of the Lee theatre, Clinton, Mo., obtained some front page publicity in his town through his efforts to navigate the muddy roads to obtain prints for his theatre. He declared afterwards that this was expensive publicity.

U. S. Shortly to Bring Suits Testing Legality of Various Film Phases

THE Department of Justice at Washington, D. C., will shortly bring numerous cases pending to test the legality of various phases of the motion picture industry, it is divulged in the annual report of Attorney-General Sargent. Three suits have already been instituted and others will probably be filed in the near future.

These suits are the result of the investigation in 1927 by the Department of Justice into practically every branch of the industry and the decision has been made to submit without delay to the proper court the determination of specific questions so that stability and certainty could be established in the industry.

Meantime, with Congress re-convened, Senator Walsh of Montana is prepared to press action on his demand for a probe of Department of Justice investigation into the film industry. Little likelihood is seen in the present abbreviated session for the passing of measures aimed at the industry.

Bessie Love's personality shines brightly in talking films. And that's how it should be because she is a clever actress. Here she is shown being welcomed to the New York office of M-G-M by Felix F. Feist, general sales manager.

All screen tots grow up and lose some of their kiddie winsomeness. This mite of a lad, however, is now at his most appealing stage. He is little Davey Lee, dressed up for his part in Warners' "Frozen River."

"The Barker," the boy who pulls 'em in at the carnival shows, is shown here doing his stuff in an ingratiating way. Betty Compson and Milton Sills are the players and will be seen and heard in the First National version of the play.

A contrast in profiles—Kit Guard and Monty Collins size each other up carefully. To judge from their expressions they must be criticizing their respective hats. They co-star together in the new Educational Mermaid comedy, "Hold That Monkey."

The circus ballyhoo—a hint of beauty or the mysterious. Allan Roscoe and Marie Prevost are featured in the Columbia production, "The Sideshow," which Erle C. Kenton is now directing on location at El Monte, Cal. Ralph Graves is the leading man.

Laura La Plante is a badly frightened young heroine in "The Last Warning," the Universal feature thriller. So she needs must have a stalwart hero to protect her. Spookiness, eeriness and shadowy horror are promised.

Mack Sennett is the dean of beauty pickers. His latest charmer to beguile the eyes of movie fans is the young Miss above, Carol Lombard. Besides two-reel Pathe comedies, she has appeared in "Power" and "Ned McCobb's Daughter."

Met With $28,000 Tops L. A. First Runs

House Surprises

As Others Suffer

From Flu Epidemic

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 5.—Los Angeles houses still were off with the flu epidemic still keeping them out of theatres last week. The big surprise of the week was the Metropolitan, where grosses usually are among the lowest for the first runs of the town, but which recently has been steadily bettering its box-office takes.

Gross for the past week at the Metropolitan tops all other local first runs, the figures reaching $28,000 for a bill headed by "Varsity" as the screen feature.

"Interference" at the Carthay Circle picked up last week, getting a total of $12,200 up to its closing Wednesday to make way for "The Barker." Grauman's Chinese ran up a gross of $17,500 for the week with "Noah's Ark" in its fifth week at this house.

Loew's State, with Charlie Murray in "Do Your Duty," and personal appearances of Charlotte Greenwood, grossed $24,000. For some reason or other "Companionate Marriage" failed to take hold with L. A. picturegoers or the reviewers, who didn't like it and said so in the dailies, and the Criterion was down to $10,500 on the week. "On Trial" at Warner Brothers in its third week dropped down to $24,000 as the total take.

Jed Buell Becomes Head of "U" So. Cal. Chain

Southern California Division of Universal theatres. Buell will have seven theatres in as many different cities throughout Southern California under his supervision. His headquarters will be established in Fullerton.

Bruce Fowler, formerly manager at the United Artists Theatre in Los Angeles has been appointed manager of the Westlake. It is a West Coast house.

Barrymore's Sabatini Role

Four years ago, Warner Brothers purchased the screen rights to "The Tavern Knight" by Raphael Sabatini, intending it as a starring vehicle for John Barrymore. The latter suddenly left Warners and went over to United Artists, and plans were abandoned for that picture. With Barrymore returning to Warners, however, "The Tavern Knight" has been dusted off again, and it will be his first talker for that company.

Nick Grinde, M-G-M director for the past several years, has been sent East by the company to direct sound features at the New York plant of M-G-M. Grinde was connected with the vaudeville field before entering pictures, and studio officials feel him fitted to make the Eastern features in sound.

Rooster's Crowing Puts Pathe Back $5,000

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 6.—One of the most expensive roosters in the world was purchased by Pathe's West Coast studios last week, and with no thought of the Pathe trade-mark in mind at the time. The rooster was owned by a family living opposite the studio. The company of "The Missing Man" started night work on talkie sequences. Everytime the big klieg and sun-arcs were flashed, the rooster, thinking it was day-break, started to crow. The result was that the company couldn't synchronize the talking sequence.

The rooster was purchased the next day for a few dollars. Meanwhile, Pathe officials estimated that over $5,000 worth of time had been wasted in delay.

Too Much Money and Time for This Bird

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 6.—A producing director who has made a number of one week independent "quickies" economically, but still with audience value, recently made a deal with a large producer to direct a picture. The former independent was discussing his deal with a friend, and declared he was troubled. When asked why, he replied:

"They're giving me $75,000 and a five-weeks' shooting schedule to make the picture—I'm worried over what to with $60,000 and four weeks' time."

Dotty Jottings

By Jerry Hoffman

"A ROUND the world in eighty days" is offered as another title for the Fox production of "Chasing Through Europe." . . . Since titles are usually changed prior to release . . . this should be as good as any and holds much truth . . . I understand that Dave Butler, director, Harry Brand, writer, and Nick Stuart, star, were incarcerated on several occasions in various nations . . . The cause was their filming scenes which are forbidden under some law or other which prevents motion pictures being made in foreign countries excepting for newsreel purposes. . . .

HOWEVER, the boys had a great time and claim they've got a great picture . . . If they prove wrong . . . they can at least pose as martyrs for art. . . .

THE group of youngsters who sat happily through the Notre Dame-University of Southern California football classic last Saturday . . . can wipe the bewildered look from their faces . . . if by chance this ever falls before their eyes . . . for they were stupefied, and all through the game couldn't believe their good fortune . . . with all Southern California paying enormous sums for tickets . . . a total stranger approached these kids individually and said . . . "Here son, you'd better rush if you want to get in for the first kick-off" . . . and no charge! . . . their unknown benefactor . . . rather benefactress, was Corinne Griffith . . . who may not like this expose . . . but Miss Griffith does thousands of such acts during each year . . . and I think just a tiny little one . . . (little to her, although magnified to others) deserves a little public "Bravo!" . . .

BELIEVE this or not . . . (apologies to Ripley) . . . but on the authority of his very intimate friends . . . I learn that Raymond Griffith took a "talkie" test and proved to have one of the best mechanically reproduced voices in Hollywood . . . those who do not know that Raymond Griffith is unfortunately unable to speak above a whisper may not see anything astonishing in this . . . those who know Ray will realize what a tremendous thing it means not only to Ray . . . but to many who have contracted inferiority complexes where talkies are concerned . . . for it proves something regarding stage-trained voices, resonances vibrations . . . or what have you? . . .

THERE'S a young man from a New York daily bound for Hollywood . . . he has spent many years reviewing pictures on that daily . . . at the same time loudly proclaiming the fact that he was wasting his life . . . that he hates pictures and their personalities . . . and now he's bound for Hollywood because no film company ever made him an offer in New York, thinking that they will swoop down on him with brass bands and tremendous contracts . . . there's a young man bound for Hollywood

Pathe Signs Maugham to Write Claire Story

W. SOMERSET MAUGHAM, the English playwright and novelist, has been signed by Pathe to write an original screen story to serve as Ina Claire's first screen vehicle. The author will remain in New York until he has finished the vehicle.

Incidentally, Miss Claire's most recent stage appearance was in a play written by Maugham, she having had the lead in "Our Betters."

. . . who is shortly going back to New York . . . proclaiming twice as loudly . . . how much he hates pictures and their personalities . . . and what if I did split an infinitive? . . .

NO sooner did Ben Lyon return from Utah where he appeared in a picture of Mormonism . . . than did three different fan magazine stories appear . . . each one engaging him to a different girl . . . one to Ruth Elder, another to Marion Nixon and a third to Lupe Vales . . . is this what is called "absorbing atmosphere" . . . or "the power of environment"? . . .

UNIVERSAL has a new apparatus for the shooting scenes called . . . in honor of the one whose idea it is . . . the "Fejos Crane" . . . for Dr. Paul Fejos suggested it . . . and it is too marvelous to be described in this limited space . . . two extras were given a scene last week which required them to bring in a prisoner . . . one spoke up as they did the action . . . "I caught him" . . . the other extra glared at him and said . . . "Listen bum . . . We caught him" . . . anything for screen credit . . .

PATHE neglected to renew Alan Hale's option on time . . . with the result that Hale will sign with some other company . . . E. H. Griffith leaves for New York shortly to visit theatres . . . Joe E. Brown is enroute there this week to synchronize "Reputation" . . . Becky Gardner says the best way to write dialogue is to dictate it . . . is sat so? . . . Wilbur Morse . . . actually a very capable press agent whose ability to write real news copy might be copied with good results by some others . . . finally succumbs and sends a new twist to the "gatemanager didn't recognize him" story . . . oh Wilbur . . . how could you? . . . they're all Irish in the cast of "Children of the Ritz" . . . with Dorothy Mackaill, Jack Mulhall, James Ford, Kathryn McGuire, Doris Dawson, Lee Moran, Edmund Burns and Aggie Herring . . . and Jack Dillon directs . . . please don't ask the supervisor's name . . . and here's another yarn sent by a p. a. saying that the next development in pictures, adding to "talkies" and the third dimension . . . will be the sense of smell . . . which gives too much scope for certain types of gags . . . hence . . . let's sign off here. . .

First-Hand Information from News Correspondents

Thanksgiving Turk Runs True to Form

Holiday Influence All on Right Side of Showmen's Ledgers

NEW YORK CITY.—The old reliable and annual event of the Thanksgiving Turkey again ran true to form as far as giving aid to theatre attendance is concerned, for the mid-week holiday helped chalk up better marks than were registered on preceding weeks. A better than usual line-up of pictures also helped matters along—to say nothing of the fact that the usual Thanksgiving football games were also in evidence, helping swell the Broadway crowds. This all combined to make the cash registers sing a lustier tune.

The Capitol kept up its fine attendance mark of late with a week's showing of John Gilbert in "Masks of the Devil." Gilbert's popularity was strongly in evidence and business at the close of the week appeared to justify the continuance of the Capitol's recently adopted policy of holding 'em over—but this house let go of Gilbert to take in Columbia's "Submarine," the latter having made a comfortable run at the Embassy several weeks ago. Probably a jam in bookings prevented the hold-over.

The Roxy took a spurt for the better after a couple weeks ballyhoo of the fact that this house would present "Napoleon's Barber" (Fox sound) and all sound program. It is possible that Roxy himself was astounded by the fact that this bill outdrew what this prominent manager has always deemed the ultimate in picture theatre entertainment—recent offerings of a picture plus an excellent orchestra and elaborate presentation by most capable artists. However, it is possible that Mr. Rothafel still has the right hunch and that it was only the novelty of the program that stimulated attendance.

The Strand can find nothing much to kick about with the business done last week with "Outcast" (F. N.) with sound. Trade was very fair with this not-out-of-the-ordinary picture. It is being routed over to the 6th avenue Hipp for a week's stand.

The favorable week had its effect on the Paramount but not to the point where any commotion was caused. The gate here was an improvement over several preceding weeks but the house is still under the excellent marks it used to make. The picture used here was "Manhattan Cocktail" (Par—with dialogue). Frank Fay, the new master of ceremonies, is now installed here.

The Rialto, with "Wings," finished the run of that picture with signs of weakness undeniably in evidence. But why not—after its long run in this town? It can still go out to the neighborhoods and make a creditable showing. The Rivoli will give "Woman Disputed" one more week and then usher in Del Rio and "Revenge" on Dec. 8. Last week's business on "Woman Disputed" was fair—practically the same as preceding week. FBO's "Gang War," during its two-week stay at the Colony, Universal's Broadway white elephant, gave this house excellent business, disputing an assertion that not even a good picture can get a break on what is called an extremely tough spot along the street.

Warner's "Singing Fool" still leads the parade as far as the specials are concerned. No noticeable falling off at the Winter Garden at all. Paramount's talker, "Interference," in its second week at the Criterion, again held to capacity and another good week's business was done by M-G-M's "Alias Jimmy Valentine" at the Astor. "On Trial," rated as one of the best Warner talkies to date, also continues to very good business, while Fox's "Four Devils" at the Gaiety also shared in the general prosperity of the week. At the Embassy, "The Viking" (M-G-M), did well enough on a short week. The Cameo has a British war picture, "The Somme," and last week's trade was good.

After a four and a half months' stay at top prices at the Central "Lilac Time" gave way to "The Barker" (F.N.) on Wednesday night of the current week. The former will go into the Strand Dec. 9th for a run at popular prices.

Baltimore Theatres Do Well; "Masks of Devil" Sets High Mark

BALTIMORE.—Thanksgiving day, coming as a holiday during the week beginning Monday, November 24, was a big booster for practically all the first-run theatres making the majority show good figures on the right side of the ledger.

While "The Singing Fool," starring Al Jolson, still had them coming during its eighth week at Warner's Metropolitan, patronage began to drop off to some extent during the regular days.

Perhaps the best business for the week was done at the Stanley, where "Masks of the Devil," co-starring John Gilbert and Alma Rubens, with Theodore Roberts, did excellently on the week days as well as on the strong days.

"The Wind," starring Lillian Gish, with a Loew-Publix stage show headed by Ted Claire and his syncopators, pulled them in at Loew's Century perhaps on the strength of the Gish name but many complaints were heard about this picture not having a popular appeal.

"Tol'able David," starring Richard Barthelmess, was brought back for another showing after seven years by the Motion Picture Guild at the Little Theatre, and did slowly during the regular days but boosted up during the latter part of the week.

"Nothing to Wear," co-featuring Jacqueline Logan and Theodore von Eltz with Bryant Washburn and Jane Winton, proved one of the best sophisticated comedies of the year offered at the Keith-Albee Hippodrome with five acts of Keith-Albee vaudeville. Business was slow during the first three days but it boosted to very good during the latter three.

"Phyllis of the Folies" was offered on the same bill with Ken Murray's stage revue at the Keith-Albee New Garden and business throughout the week was very good. Ken Murray has a big following in Baltimore.

"Marriage by Contract," starring Patsy Ruth Miller, did not pull so well at the New Theatre during the first three days but the holiday boosted business however and the latter three days were very good. A generally good week for this house.

"Sunrise," the F. W. Murnau production, co-starring George O'Brien and Janet Gaynor with Margaret Livingston, pulled good during the first three days at the Rivoli and ran up to excellent during the latter three.

"Napoleon," the Abel Gance French-made picture, proved a slow business getter at Loew's Valencia during the week.

Business was slow all the week at the Auditorium, a legitimate house where "The Road to Ruin," starring Helen Foster, was on view with a continuous performance daily with 40 and 60 cents prices at night. This was the second week for that picture there. The public may have been disappointed for it is said there was nothing in the film that was startling after it had been examined by the Maryland Censor Board.

Cold Weather Cuts Into Birmingham Grosses

Birmingham, Ala.—A sudden cold snap caused a very decided drop in box office receipts the first two days of the past week and helped to hold down weekly grosses in Birmingham.

The Alabama, with "The Awakening" (United Artists), Vilma Banky's first starring vehicle, drew favorable criticism but drew poorly at the b. o.

The Ritz had probably the best business in town during the week, due to the personal appearance of Nick Lucas, "the crooning troubadour." The Ritz also presented "Dry Martini" on the screen.

The Strand had only fair business on "The Battle of the Sexes" and the Galax did passably well with "The Michigan Kid." The Trianon with "Pep and Prep" got by fairly well.

Columbia's "Submarine Booked Into Capitol

Heavy Business in Albany and Troy

Schenectady Trade Is Also Reported to Be on the Increase

ALBANY.—Tremendous business was done by the motion picture theatres in Albany on Thanksgiving day, with the result that the week as a whole panned out very well from the standpoint of business done. The weather on Thanksgiving day was of the sort that permitted automobilists to enjoy their cars during the afternoon and then sent them to the theatres seeking entertainment in the evening. There appeared to be plenty of persons without cars who found enjoyment during the afternoon at the theatres, and thus evened up the day.

The Mark Strand in Albany used Corinne Griffith in "Outcast" for the week, and while the picture did not do the business expected during the first part of the week, Thanksgiving day marked the turning point and the last three days found capacity business. Aside from the feature the bill contained a Fox Movietone News and two Vitaphone presentations.

The Mark Ritz, which has been setting the pace in Albany for the past several weeks, continued to pack them in during the past week with Lon Chaney in "While the City Sleeps," together with a Vitaphone presentation and a newsreel.

The Leland in Albany used "Mother Machree" to what was termed satisfactory business, although it might have been perhaps a trifle better.

The Clinton Square, in Albany, used a program of double features made up of "In Old Kentucky" and "The Heart of Broadway." Milton Sills in "The Crash" featured above the vaudeville bill, proved a good pulling card for Proctor's Grand in Albany.

A canvass of the neighborhood houses made one night during the week, revealed that while some exhibitors were apparently well satisfied with the business being done these days, others were rather inclined to be a bit pessimistic.

In Troy, "Wings" did a whoopin' business at the Troy Theatre, playing for the first time in that city. Long lines of persons could be seen nightly in front of the theatre, while matinees were topnotch.

The Lincoln, in Troy, did a capacity business with "Fazel," running heavy both matinee and evening, and with hundreds turned away. The American used "The Whip Woman" and "Deadwood Coach" to fairly good business, while Proctor's found "The Crash" a strong addition to its entertainment program.

In Schenectady, business is picking up at both the General Electric and the American Locomotive Works, and as a result the motion picture theatres of the city are also gaining in attendance.

Good Business Continues in Cincinnati

CINCINNATI.—Houses here continue to enjoy phenomenal business despite advanced holiday activities, opposition of other amusements and similar factors which would normally detract from the sum total of business at the movie houses.

The Capitol, presenting its first all-talking picture, "The Terror," together with Vitaphone acts and Movietone features, got off to a flying start and returns have been mounting steadily ever since, so that the picture will be held over for a second week, with the possibility of even a longer run.

"Abie's Irish Rose," which had a capacity week on the original booking, and was therefore held for an extra seven days, is beginning its third and final week, with no apparent let-up in attendance. Claude Saunders, special exploiteer for Paramount, came on from New York for the opening, and has been in the city ever since putting on some effective publicity and exploitation stunts, all of which has helped business immensely, especially since the local dailies have played up Saunders' activities every day.

The Albee, presenting Lon Chaney in "West of Zanzibar," together with some exceptionally good acts, piled up an enviable gross.

Barrymore in "Tempest," with sound, at Keith's, did a big business, and is being shown for another week to meet the demands of local fans.

"Love Over Night" seemed to please the regulars at the Strand, who all turned out and apparently brought their friends along.

The Orpheum, with three changes for the week, all with sound, reports an unusually heavy week, as does also the Palace with "Varsity" in connection with vaudeville.

Neighborhood houses report business better than usual.

"Show Girl" Goes Over Big in Des Moines

DES MOINES.—At the Capitol the feature "Show Girl" did the biggest business which this house has had for some time, due largely to the fact that the story ran serially in the Sunday papers here. The picture showed that it could draw against the sound pictures as it did a bigger week than "White Shadows of the South Seas" at the Des Moines. This picture did a very satisfactory business although a big snow storm cut into the Thanksgiving crowd.

At the Strand "Avalanche" with Jack Holt had perhaps the shade better business than "Midnight Taxi" with Myrna Loy with both pictures doing very good business.

Downtown Milwaukee Is Up on Holiday Trade

MILWAUKEE.—The holiday on Thursday helped to swell proceeds for the downtown theatres. At all houses unusually good business was reported. Generally fair weather helped to bring patronage to the downtown houses.

The Garden ended its long run of Al Jolson's "Singing Fool" this week, and with the announcement that the picture was ending its run came a burst of big business that started with a line outside the box office at 10 in the morning.

The Alhambra with a midnight show on Thanksgiving eve had a very good week with "Lonesome" as the feature picture.

Fair business was the lot of the Majestic with "Show People" on the screen.

The Wisconsin, with two attractions, Francis X. Bushman in person, and "Varsity" as the feature, succeeded in drawing good houses.

"Mother Knows Best" is having a very good run at the Strand. It will be continued some time longer.

"Runaway Girls" did just fair business at the Merrill. The two vaudeville houses down town with first run pictures had an unusually successful week. The Riverside offered "Annapolis" as the photoplay feature, and the feature at the Orpheum was "Waterfront."

Although business was a little better than average in the neighborhood theatres, they did not do as well as the downtown houses did. Strong attractions at the outskirts houses, which were very well exploited, helped to swell the crowds. "Four Sons" had very good patronage at the Oriental and Tower. "The Terror" brought good business to the Garfield, Modjeska and Uptown. "Street Angel" drew well at the National and Egyptian Theatres. "Silks and Saddles" pleased the Venetian patrons.

Conditions Improved in Oklahoma City

OKLAHOMA CITY.—Oklahoma City theatres have enjoyed another week of good business, although any of them could have easily taken care of more patrons. The weather has been in keeping with the season of the year for the first time and receipts at the first run houses seem to have settled to a more even trend.

"A Single Man," co-featuring Lew Cody and Allen Pringle, with the National Players in "The Nervous Wreck," went over good at the Criterion.

The Orpheum Theatre had a good week with five acts of good vaudeville, and the feature picture "A Romance of the Underworld." The public attended very well throughout the seven days.

"Companionate Marriage" at the Empress and "Submarine" at the Liberty enjoyed good business.

The Capitol had a very satisfactory week during their presentation of "The Terror."

The Victoria had good business with Syd Chaplin in "Skirts."

Lull in Seattle; "Outcast" and "White Shadows" Rated Just "Average"

SEATTLE.—There were no new outstanding films in this city last week, and as a result the first run houses had to be satisfied with ordinary business. The Seattle Theatre featured "The Outcast" on the screen, and it was considered just an average production that failed to arouse much audience enthusiasm. Fanchon-Marco's stage revue was very pleasing, and helped put the week over, but business could not be considered anything but fair.

"White Shadows in the South Seas" played at the Fifth Avenue Theatre and was interesting from the technical standpoint but disappointing as to story and treatment. It played to average business only, pleasing many patrons and disappointing many others.

At the Music Box "The Jazz Singer" concluded its eighth and final week, after breaking every existing long run and attendance record ever held by any film in the Pacific Northwest. It played more than 336 performances at 50c and 75c, and the final week registered quite strongly at the box office, all things considered.

It was the greatest box office run picture in Seattle's history.

Hamrick's other house, the Blue Mouse, played "The Midnight Taxi" for a week, and this neat little mystery film kept audiences entertained and satisfied. It was just strong enough for one week, with added Vitaphone and Movietone attractions. Business good.

"Under the Black Eagle" at the Coliseum and "Clothes Make the Woman" at the Embassy were program films that did their share of business, but not much more. At the Orpheum "Show Folk" was an interesting little program attraction that fitted in well at this vaudeville house, and business was very pleasing, due principally, if not entirely, to a good stage show. "Man, Woman and Wife" at Pantages failed to arouse much enthusiasm and played to fair business only.

Neighborhood and suburban business is picking up a little with the coming of less pleasant weather that keeps people from making long trips downtown to the major houses, except for particularly strong attractions.

Holiday Boosts Cleveland First Runs

But Neighborhood Houses Are Still 10 to 30% Off

CLEVELAND—What would, under ordinary circumstances, have been just a fair week in local movie theatre circles, was turned to a week of profits at the first run houses by a holiday. Thanksgiving day was a gala theatre day. All of the first-run houses were taxed to take care of the crowds. Ropes were brought out to keep the foyer patrons in line until seats were available.

"The Singing Fool," in its fourth week at the Stillman, did as much on Thanksgiving day as it did on the opening day. This brought the week's business up and guaranteed a continuation of the picture's engagement for at least several more weeks.

"Masks of the Devil" had a good week at the Allen. Particularly interesting were the double exposures used for the first time to signify a dual character. Magnetic story, coupled with splendid direction and intelligent acting.

"The Haunted House" did great at the State, where it was well exploited by a "spook" house which took the place of the box office, and a "spook" cottage that covered the town on an automobile truck. This is good popular entertainment.

"Adoration" packed Keith's Palace. Even standing room on the main floor was at a premium. The picture, just a fair presentation of the Russian revolution and how it broke up a family, seemed to please. But the big drawing card on the program was the personal appearance of Kenneth Harlan in a dramatic skit. Dan Halperin was also a headliner that helped put the show over.

"The Man Who Laughs," very excellent photoplay, received its just reward at the Hippodrome by being well attended and enthusiastically received.

"The Night Bird," a Reginald Denny picture, pleased the Keith East 105th St. audiences the first half of the week, especially the fight scenes.

"Power," a fine production with William Boyd in the leading role, was also well liked and playing as it did the last half of the week at Keith's East 105th St. it had the advantage of enjoying holiday trade, thus bringing the total business up to a good average.

"Show People," playing its second run at the Cameo, did well, while the Park had a good week with "Revenge" the first three days and "Moran of the Marines" the last half of the week, each of these pictures playing their first subsequent run engagements.

"Foreign Legion" continued to draw big attendance during its second week at the Metropolitan, where it was staged under the auspices of the American Legion.

Neighborhood houses are going through a period of depression. Business is from 10 per cent to 30 per cent off from what it was last year at this time. Sound pictures in the downtown houses is drawing business from the neighborhoods. Legitimate theatre and concert competition was moderately keen, but not tremendously so.

Holiday and Games Boost Portland Trade

Portland, Ore.—It was a most acceptable menu of film and stage presentations that the various houses spread before an eager populace during Thanksgiving week and, as a result, business reached a peak far above the average. To further stimulate patronage several of the houses made a tie-up with the football teams, who brought in a veritable horde of visitors from the adjacent centers.

"The Air Circus" brought out an increased attendance at the Broadway, which was doubly appreciated by the younger sets, and who continue to support the Thursday night dances on the mezzanine. Prominent among the Movie-tone attractions was George Bernard Shaw. Max Bradford and musical revelers continue to merit good business.

At the Portland Gene Morgan presented in his usual snappy fashion the "River Idea." On the screen "Me Gangster."

At the Music Box "The Terror" continued for a second week with ever increasing crowds, especially at the evening shows, and promises to continue a good money-maker for at least another week.

Manager Akin brought to the Capitol Theatre undoubtedly the best offering yet at popular prices, "Midnight Life," with Francis X.

Philadelphia First and Second Runs Report Fair Business

PHILADELPHIA.—Fairly successful attendance records were had by most of the Philadelphia downtown theatres during Thanksgiving week. Weather conditions were good but there were few special features.

Business was fair at the Stanley with William Haines and Marion Davies in "Show People," in which an imposing array of Hollywood stars take part. There was an exceptionally strong surrounding bill featuring Ledova and Ivan Luttman.

"White Shadows in the South Seas" continued its engagement at the Stanton with mediocre business.

The Karlton did a good business with Warner Brothers 100 per cent talking picture, "The Home Towners," a breezy comedy which was well liked by the public.

The Little Theatre presented "Secrets of the Soul," a U. F. A. production, which attempted to interpret the mental life of the leading character rather than physical activity. The acting Bushman in the lead. Good business was the rule here throughout the week.

Eddie Ross and his "African Harp" was the headline act at Pantages. On the screen "Man, Woman and Wife," featuring Norman Kerry, who has always been popular here in his screen offerings.

The usual screen and stage offerings of the clever type were brought on in profusion at Tebbett's "Oriental" and increased attendance were registered on Monday, preview night and Wednesday, the weekly gift night. "The Angel of Broadway" was entertaining screen action.

United Artists held over for a second week "White Shadows in the South Seas," which caused considerable favorable comment, with a slight box office increase.

is of high quality but the picture, while interesting from a scientific point of view, does not appeal to popular taste.

At the Arcadia Ruth Elder stole the honors from Richard Dix in "Moran of the Marines" in which she soared into prominence as a motion picture star of ability as well as good looks. Business was fair.

Business was good at the Fox with "Romance of the Underworld," another gang picture. There was a good surrounding bill, including Bernoff & Eulalie, Elsa Ersi and Michon Brothers.

The Aldine reports fair business with Charles Rogers in "Varsity."

Business at the second run houses was satisfactory all week. The Carman presented "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and a stage presentation, "Indian Love Call." At the Forum "Four Walls" and a stage show "Palace of Jazz" attracted good business.

All First Run Kansas City Theatres Show Gain for Week

KANSAS CITY.—A continuance of healthy business was experienced by practically all first run houses in Kansas City, attendance being either up to the normal mark or slightly over it.

At Loew's Midland John Gilbert in "Masks of the Devil" showed a slight gain over the average weekly mark, the matinee business being exceptionally good, while night attendance held its own. At the Newman, "The Docks of New York," starring George Bancroft, played to a much better matinee attendance than was experienced at the night performances, but the week's total business was good. "Win That Girl" at the Royal offered a strong appeal to the younger generation and school students, the week's attendance soaring comfortably over the normal mark.

"The Crash," featuring Milton Sills, did an average business at the Pantages, the matinee attendance being good, but the nightly business dropping off a bit. "Honeymoon Flats" at the Uptown was another picture which did slightly better than normal business, as was "Outcast," starring Corinne Griffith, at the Mainstreet. The customary newspaper and billboard advertising, along with the usual lobby displays and Thanksgiving decorations, was all that was resorted to by any of the theatres in the way of exploitation.

Chill Weakens Tampa, But Not Enough to Hurt

Tampa.—Chilly weather, the first half of the week, had its effect upon theatre attendance. Most all houses reported a slight falling off in the receipts, but not much below average.

The Tampa had two excellent cards this week. "The Awakening," for the first half, was well liked and drew good business. But for the chilly weather this picture would have shown up well over average. "The Michigan Kid" also pleased.

The Victory, for the first time in several weeks, gave a split-week program. "The River Pirate," with sound, Movietone News and Vitaphone acts, for the first half, failed to pull the average business. "The Perfect Crime" went over better the last half, but the week, as a whole, was not up to average.

The Strand had a good week. "Sally's Shoulders" drew nicely for two days. "The Foreign Legion" did well the following three. For the last two days "The Cardboard Lover."

"Seventh Heaven" Wins Photoplay Medal

"SEVENTH HEAVEN," the Fox production has been awarded the Photoplay Medal for 1927.

The seven pictures to which the medal was awarded in previous years are: "Humoresque," "Tol-able David," "Robin Hood," "Covered Wagon," "Abraham Lincoln," "Big Parade" and "Beau Geste."

Boston Theatres Set November Record

Pull of Keith's and Good Picture Line-up Seen As Cause of Boost

BOSTON.—With the Thanksgiving holiday followed by a stormy week-end, Boston's motion picture theatres enjoyed the heaviest business in their history for the final week of November. Every theatre played throughout the week to practically capacity audiences.

The opening of the new Keith Memorial Theatre has apparently brought more theatre patrons to Boston, for since that playhouse opened its doors three weeks ago, all of the motion picture theatres have enjoyed bigger business than ever although long waiting lines form in front of the new theatre every night and capacity audiences have been the rule. It is interesting to note that when the big Metropolitan opened its doors two years ago, the same situation followed, so that the opening of a new and modern theatre is getting to be a sign for record breaking business at all other theatres.

Al Jolson's "The Jazz Singer" is still hanging up box office records for Boston. For four weeks it ran simultaneously at the Fenway and Washington Street Olympia Theatres of the Publix chain after having made the record run of a dozen weeks at the Netoco chain's twin houses, the Modern and Beacon. Now it has moved along to the Netoco's new Casino Theatre, which opened its doors this week after extensive remodeling, and again it is hanging up box office marks for that playhouse. To date its total run amounts to 32 weeks in Boston and yet lines form nightly at the Casino for an opportunity to see and hear it.

"King of Kings" returns to Boston for a big week at Loew's State Theatre after having been highly successful as a road show six months ago at the Colonial Theatre. It is the first showing at popular prices and bids fair to make a new year's box office record for the State Theatre.

"Outcast" is the film at the new Keith Memorial Theatre, playing to capacity audiences at all performances, keeping up with the mark made by "Tenth Avenue" a week ago.

"Manhattan Cocktail" is the Publix Metropolitan's offering and coupled with the personal appearance of Fannie Brice on the stage, has filled the theatre to capacity all week.

"Marriage by Contract" with Movietone and Vitaphone at the twin Modern and Beacon Theatres is another film which is filling Boston playhouses this week.

With these larger theatres playing S.R.O. most of the week, it might appear that there would not be sufficient patronage to go around, yet the following theatres report unusually good business: Keith-Albee Boston with "Annapolis," Publix's Olympia and Fenway with simultaneous showing of "The Terror," which bids fair to exceed "The Jazz Singer," high run and has met with acclaim on all sides; the Scollay Square Olympia with its anniversary week production of "Caught in the Fog" and Loew's Orpheum with "The Woman Disputed."

Holiday Gives Harrisburg Good Week's Trade

Harrisburg.—The influence of the holiday on the business of the Harrisburg theatres in Thanksgiving week was on the right side of the ledger, and, moreover, the merits of the plays offered in the principal theatres justified the patronage, which showed an increase over even the good averages of the earlier weeks of November.

There was a big feminine attendance at Loew's Regent, which showed "The Masks of the Devil," and two youthful Paramount stars, Nancy Carroll and Richard Arlen, went over big in "Manhattan Cocktail," at the Victoria, where business was above the average.

"Fazil" occupied the screen at the Colonial and was well patronized throughout the week.

At the State the main screen attraction the first three days was "Adventure Mad," and the last half of the week the picture was "The Phantom City." The State increased its average daily receipts for the week by putting on a Saturday morning matinee, consisting of pictures especially chosen for children by a welfare organization. These shows are to be a permanent Saturday morning fixture. The receipts from them are practically "velvet" because they are shown at an hour when, heretofore, the theatre was closed.

The Broad Street Theatre showed "Chicago" and did good business. The offering at the Russell was "The Girl-Shy Cowboy," while the Rialto got good financial results from presenting a second run showing in Harrisburg of "Out of the Ruins." The Capitol gave the city a repeat engagement of Clara Bow in "Ladies of the Mob."

"Show Girl" and "Masks of Devil" Big in Pitt

Pittsburgh.—Loew's Penn had a big week as usual. The screen attraction was John Gilbert in "Masks of the Devil," a typical Gilbert love drama of average entertainment value. Teddy Joyce, m. c., and the Publix unit, "Blue Revue," was well received.

The Stanley also had a big week with "Show Girl." This comedy got much laughter from the audiences.

"The Red Dance" at Loew's Aldine got a good week's business, although the fans didn't rave much about the production.

The second week of "Abie's Irish Rose" got by fairly well at the Grand.

The Liberty instituted its new policy of split weeks. First half played "Beggars of Life" and the last three days saw "Caught in the Fog" on the screen. Business for the week was below average.

The Cameraphone also started the split week policy. The first half "The Loves of an Actress" was the feature and the last half "Mother Knows Best" was the attraction. Business here, too, was below average.

"The Wedding March" did but fair for the week at the Regent.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" did satisfactory business at the Alhambra, this house being in the East End, five miles from the heart of town, where the production played the week previously.

"The Farmer's Daughter," along with six acts of Keith vaudeville, got but average business for the Davis.

The Olympic had Rin-Tin-Tin in "Land of the Silver Fox," and business was but average.

Pathe Rooster to be Seen in Pathechrome Color

Mr. Pathe, the trade mark of the Pathe company, having been given a voice through the Photophone, will in future be exhibited in the films in his natural by means of the color process, Pathechrome. He will be seen thus in a forthcoming issue of the Pathe Review.

Ottawa Theatres Cash In on Holiday Week; Suburban Trade Also Good

OTTAWA.—Amusement seekers of Ottawa, Ontario, had paths worn from one theatre to another during the week of November 26, thanks to the diversity of film attractions, and professional hockey activities did not make much of a dent in theatre patronage. With St. Andrew's Day on November 30, it was a gala week for the local Scottish and they loosened their purse strings to celebrate the occasion.

"The Masks of the Devil," starring John Gilbert, at the Regent Theatre, was plain mush to the men but it had the women clutching the opera chairs.

A peach of a picture was "The Docks of New York" at B. F. Keith's Theatre, where it balanced good vaudeville.

The Centre Theatre had a comedy, "Plastered in Paris," that had everybody talking. It was a popular attraction. At the Centre, Keith's, and the Regent there were news shots of the eruption of Aetna.

Georgia and Capitol Share Honors in Atlanta; Other Houses Are Off

ATLANTA.—Business in Atlanta theatres last week for the most part went to Keith's Georgia and the Capitol.

Although "Companionate Marriage" pulled at the Georgia because of its name only, Nick Lucas proved the real drawing power, plus three other very good vaudeville acts. On Thanksgiving the house broke all previous gross records.

John Gilbert in "Masks of the Devil" brought the Capitol its splendid week.

At the Howard "The Home Towners" fell below what is due that picture, which fact may rightly be attributed to poor title. Gotham alone appreciates such a cognomen, it would seem.

"Wings" played in Atlanta a fourth week, moving from the Howard to the Rialto this week. Considering this picture ran two weeks at the Erlanger as a road show three weeks previous to its return as a first run, the fourth week was good; however, nothing to boast about.

The Metropolitan came out only fair with Rod La Rocque in "Captain Swagger," while Loew's Grand divided the week between "While the City Sleeps" and "Excess Baggage" with fair returns.

The Erlanger, showing "Desert Song," stage production, enjoyed an unusually good week, thus breaking into moving picture box-offices.

Opinions on Pictures

Behind The German Lines

Good But Not the Thrills Expected

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

THROUGH the use of some excellently animated maps the spectator at this picture—which flies the Ufa banner—can appreciate something of military strategy. These are interspersed with some actual war shots and a series of subtitles that try to explain literally what it's all about. It is easy to see that the picture has been extensively edited. The maps attend to that. But these are first rate since they portray troop movements on both sides—the movements being recorded through solid and hollow lines. The advances and retreats are clearly indicated. The Germans make out that they lost the battle of the Marne through transferring their soldiers from the Western front to the Eastern. There are shots of Hindenburg and the former Kaiser—ditto the Crown Prince and Joffre and Kitchener. There are other shots of hostilities and the surprise attacks which occur when there is a lull in the warfare.

The submarine campaign is neglected—which is unfortunate considering the strength of the Germans in this arm of their strategy. But taken altogether it shapes up as authentic except where some sound effects are introduced. These don't belong. The maps really put it over.

Drawing Power: Good for all those who were in the war; for American Legion men and all sorts of military organizations. Exploitation Angles: Use a war ballyhoo; arrange tie-ups with American Legion Posts; stress the great German offensive and how the allies finally checked it and hurled it back. Reproduce some of the stories that the papers ran at that time.

THEME: Germany's side of the late war.

Produced by Ufa. Distributed by Paramount. Length, 8,254 feet. Release date, undetermined.

Outcast

The Original Sting Missing But It Does Very Well

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

WHEN this one appeared on the stage it made 'em gasp a bit because of what in that day was called a shocker. But in this modern era there's nothing to make a shudder pass over the frame of your favorite prissy aunt. As the title indicates it tells of a lady of the evening—an outcast from society who carries her passionate cross without a murmur. Indeed she carries it so well that she shows herself to be more genuine and regular than the sisterhood with whom she is scorned.

This picture moves along very well for considerable of its footage, then it begins to grow wearisome and the response, naturally, is not so keen. It has meat to it—has this story and it gets around its original difficulties in tip-top style. Corinne Griffith is the lady of the streets here and the play develops from the moment that she meets a society man and becomes his light o' love. There is a counter-conflict showing a society woman cheating on her husband. The society man checks out his fair friend for this cheater only to discover that his erstwhile playmate is a true friend and loyal. The result is he returns to her. And so on to the inevitable understanding.

Some may argue that the story is innocent enough. Perhaps these will remember the original situations. Certainly there's nothing off color about it. The picture is smartly upholstered—and the players do exceptionally well, especially the star and Edmund Lowe. And because of them and its title and the promise of a sting to it—there should be a healthy patronage for it. In all a good picture if a trifle tedious.

Drawing Power: Star, cast and title should attract them. For better class houses. Exploitation Angles: Play up title. Build campaign around original play and that it was one of the best of its day. Play up star and cast.

THEME: Drama involving triangle with gay bouncer playing fast and loose with daughter of easy virtue and a wife who would cheat her husband.

Produced and distributed by First National. Length, six reels. Released, Dec., 1928. Directed by William A. Seiter.

(Universal—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by George J. Reddy)

TWO entirely separate continuities seem to have been spliced together, in order to make up this Stern Brothers "Snookums" comedy, but the action runs along fairly smoothly, and the comedy is peppy. A rather good number that should please.

The newlyweds read in the newspapers about the operations of kidnappers in their neighborhood, and are sure "Snookums" has been stolen, when he is missing from his crib. The frantic parents race all over the apartment house and cause much confusion before they discover that their angel child has stolen the elevator and was giving himself a continuous ride. They finally catch the mischievous kid in time to rush him to a baby parade. Snookum jockeys his decorated auto into first place, and then sets about putting pep into the parade. In his efforts, he successfully wrecks the whole affair, and is given first prize for his "cuteness."

"Spartan Diet"

(Pathe—One Reel)

"SPARTAN DIET," one of the latest issues in the Grantland Rice series of Sportlight films, proves pictorially that many modern sports are just as severe on the human system as those practiced by the ancient Spartans. The prominent sports authority in plugging the compilation of this single-reeler surely must have the combed the field of athletics, for the film runs the gamut of sports events.—GEORGE J. REDDY.

Someone to Love

Light But Fairly Entertaining

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

A PICTURE reminiscent of "The Charn School," which reached the screen several seasons ago is on view here and it shapes up as tolerably entertaining. It's one of those boy-and-girl affairs, which is to say that the love interest is the important note. And since Charles Rogers and Mary Brian carry on this romantic appeal their public (the Buddy boy has some following) will be pleased. It should find response with most of the youngsters who have gone into the sweetheart business.

This particular film is adapted from Alice Duer Miller's story and reveals one of those mild conflicts when a youth with little background has to make good in order to win the daughter of a millionaire—and to convince him in the bargain that he isn't a fortune hunter. So he gets the air from clerking in a music store and becomes a director of a girls' boarding school. Do you see where the similarity to "The Charn School" enters here?

There are some mild complications from which the youth escapes before he can elope with the girl of his heart. And there it is—a celluloid sweetmeat, but competently played by the cast which comprises James Kirkwood, William Austin and Jack Oakie. The producers have given it a neat mounting, the exteriors and interiors showing up neatly enough.

Drawing Power: Rogers' popularity as a male star getting the most fan mail. Bound to please the younger set. Suitable for all types of houses. Exploitation Angles: Play up star's popularity. Feature Mary Brian and James Kirkwood. Bill as romance of young go-getter, etc.

THEME: Romance of poor youth who develops go-getting qualities and wins a young heiress.

Produced and distributed by Paramount. Length, six reels. Released, Dec., 1928. Director, F. Richard Jones.

"Hubby's Week-End Trip"

(Pathe—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by George J. Reddy)

A TYPICAL American domestic problem serves as the background for some comedy in this Mack Sennett two-reeler. The story revolves around the determined efforts of a slightly hen-pecked husband, to take a week-end spree at the gay Tia Juana, and the equally determined efforts of his fair spouse to prevent him. A number of choice laugh situations have been gagged into this release by Edward Adamson and Jefferson Moffit, and are capably put across by the featured character, Billy Bevan, and a well balanced supporting cast, including Dot Farley, Vernon Dent and Carmilita Geraghty. Harry Edwards directed.

Riley the Cop

Playful But Pleasing

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

THE title sure gives it away. It's one of those comedies wherein the central character must register a typical Irish personality and do his stuff in a typical Irish way. And who among the Fox forces is better entitled to play the title role than Farrell MacDonald? With his expressions and gift of pantomime he makes it better than it really is—and first thing you know it's over and you admit to yourself that it's pretty good even if you won't remember it long.

The cop in this story is sent to Germany (Irish and German comies have gone together since the first "burleyque" days) to capture a suspected embezzler. But the big bluecoat develops a yen for Munich beer and forgets his mission. Between MacDonald and Louise Fazenda as a coy German girl they extract the necessary amount of laughs.

It's a story which just gallops along not asking much concentration on your part to get excited over it. The cop is the whole works here, though there is a subordinate love interest to provide something of a balancing note. Two youngsters on Riley's beat fall in love with intention of marrying. But the girl is packed off to Europe by a wealthy aunt. The youth gathers up his savings to follow her. But the bakery in which he worked discovers a shortage in the funds. With the boy under suspicion it is Riley's job to bring him back, although he knows him to be innocent. It all ends with the real guilty culprit caught—with romance beckoning between the youngsters and the cop and his German flapper. So it fares as an average comedy, made amusing by the players.

Drawing Power: Suitable for average houses. Should draw well if rest of program is strong. Exploitation Angles: Tease the title. Play up principals. Bill as amusing comedy of a cop.

THEME: Comedy romance of cop who saves youth from arrest and gets real crock, besides finding romance to boot.

Produced and distributed by Fox. Length, six reels. Released, December, 1928. Director, John Ford.

"Sailor Suits"

(Universal—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by George J. Reddy)

SID SAYLOR gets across some good comedy in this issue of his "Let George Do It" series, assisted by a capable cast of Universal funmakers. Saylor is a hard worker, and when given material to work with usually turns out commendable results.

George (Sid Saylor) and his "Buddy" are two sons of rest, and while wandering in the park discover that they rate less than zero with the girls, for it is sailors' day off, and the femmes can't see anything but the Navy. The pals hit upon the ingenious idea of swiping a couple of smocks from some artists and sailor hats from two small boys. All set for action they soon see a "sweetie" rowing on the lake. Their efforts to double-cross each other and make a date with her lead to many laughs. Finally George wins just as the Navy "M. P.," who mistakes the boys for sailors, orders them back to the ship. They get out of this mess just in time for George's date. When they arrive at the girl's house they find that she has double-crossed them both, and invites them to attend her wedding with a real sailor. This one should click with most any type of audience.

"Sleeping Through"

(Universal—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by George J. Reddy)

A FAIR enough comedy release is the classification that may be given this newest release in the "Horace In Hollywood" series of Universal comics, featuring Arthur Lake. Lake again appears as an assistant prop in one of the big studios, which on this occasion happens to be filming a big race track story. Arthur becomes very much interested in the scenes and neglects his duties, with the result that the director and actors get sore and cuff him around. Horace is so dazed that he accidentally drinks a sleeping powder, and falls asleep standing up. An unfortunate accident puts one of the jockeys out of commission, and the frantic director looks for Horace to take his place, and finds him in the land of dreams. The director somehow manages to get Horace aboard the horse, and by a trick of fate he wins. No one was quite sure just what had happened, least of all Horace, for he was nine-tenths asleep. His one idea was to stretch out under the nearest tree and sleep it off. This number will please Arthur Lake followers, and will register well enough with average audiences.

"Watch the Birdie"

(Universal—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by George J. Reddy)

A NOTHER Buster Brown comedy, that succeeds in maintaining the fair laugh pace that previous offerings in this series have set. The gags and stories that go to make up these comedies are such that will go over immensely with the kiddies and this, of course, is more or less of a guarantee that the adults will visit the theatre.

The Browns, on this occasion, are seeking an apartment where dogs are welcome, but have little luck. In spite of the pleas of Buster and Mary Jane, Father decides that their dog Tige must go. Father rents an apartment in an exclusive house, and Buster manages to sneak Tige in the place in a suit case. The suit case is delivered to the wrong apartment, but the crafty Tige escapes and seeks the children, during which he upsets several households. Buster and Mary Jane find a camera, and pose Tige for a picture. The explosion of the flashlight powder almost wrecks the house, and the landlord gives the kids and dog a merry chase.

"Two Tars"

(M-G-M-Roach—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

THERE is some splendid elaboration on a simple idea in the new Hal Roach comedy, co-featuring those lovable dubs, Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy. So well are the ideas in the Roach comedies carried out that it would well profit other comedy-makers to study the method employed. Here all the comedy revolves around a fight on the highway—and what a fight!

Some of the gags are old and slapstick shows her face frequently but the humor is presented with deft touch, nevertheless, the fine team work of Stan and Oliver provoking considerable merriment. Stan achieves expressions of absolute vacuity, while Oliver exhibits a slyer type of fun and uses with good effect glances of embarrassment at the camera. These boys have a comedy style all their own and one that's hard to beat.

"Two Tars" is fine comedy for audiences everywhere.

"The Fishing Fool"

(Pathe—One Reel)

PAUL TERRY and his assistant cartoonists have created another good chuckle-getter in this one, which shows Waffles, the cat, and his master, old Farmer Alfalfa, out on a fishing trip. Waffles is successful with the rod, while Al is equally as successful in courting trouble. The farmer falls into the lake several times, loses his bait, gets bitten by a turtle, rides the high waves, flirts with a mermaid and accidentally kisses a walrus. Al finally is chased over the hills by a huge fish, when the latter discovers the old man catching small fish with a mouse trap. In all a very cleverly animated subject.—GEORGE J. REDDY.

By Charles E. Lewis

of the Alfred Gottesman Theatrical Enterprises, New England

Newspaper Tie-up and "Laff Week"

D. F. Stevenson of the Lincoln Theatre in Trenton, N. J., writes to report a fine merchants-newspaper-theatre tie-up on "Laff Week" in his city. We are always glad to call attention to such tie-ups because they create a lot of good talk and publicity for everyone concerned and shows that the manager is on the job.

As Stevenson describes it: "A card containing two numbers (these selected by the merchants) was placed in the window of each of twelve large stores in the city. Each store was represented by an ad. on the special page tie-up and in its advertisement copy gave two numbers which corresponded with those displayed in the windows."

Each window also contained a special display on the "Laff Week" working in the name of the theatre and all three angles were well covered and since Stevenson reports that he found this entire idea very productive along business lines we do not hesitate to pass it along and at the same time recommend it. If further details are wanted we gladly refer you to him and we are sure he will send you all the "dope" on the entire scheme.

With such a start we are going to look forward to hearing from D. F. Stevenson again and often.

Summit, New Jersey Hits Again

From the Roth-Strand, in Summit, N. J., we again get some sidelights of new ideas in exploitation and by this time we are beginning to suspect that the Roth-Strand is, indeed, fortunate to have its present manager at the helm. This time he tells us about offering a gold lined, silver cup as a special prize to the winning team of the football game between Summit and Chatham. And to prove that it was a success from the standpoint of free publicity he sent me a copy of the newspaper story about it. In addition he took pictures of the game, the crowds, etc., and made it known at the field that these pictures would be shown at his theatre. Result: Good will from both schools and their faculty. Plenty of extra business shunted into his box office from the crowds wanting to see themselves in the picture and lots of valuable word-of-mouth advertising.

There are plenty such opportunities in practically every city and town in the country for just such tie-ups and the expense,

"Kiddies Xmas Party"

THE fun's started, boys. Already the word has traveled that every member of the ROUNDTABLE CLUB will hold a kiddies Xmas Party in his theatre, cooperating with his local Chamber of Commerce, the local newspapers or other organizations, all willing to dig in and make Dec. 24th a happy morning for the youngsters.

We are going to publish an "Honor Roll" of every member who successfully puts one of these shows across. So start the ball a-rolling and make your plans now. If you want further information as to the various angles of this "stunt" drop me a line and I'll shoot it along. BUT, don't forget to keep me posted as to progress and how it turns out.

as compared to the added business, etc., is hardly worth talking about. Why not tuck this away where you can find it quick, because your mind should be on the alert for any such chances as this offers.

The Roth-Strand also informs us of a "Birthday Party" at the theatre, when, in conjunction with the showing of the first two chapters of "Fighting For Fame" (a serial) featuring Master Ben Alexander, they offered to admit, free, all children bringing letters from their parents certifying that the child's birthday was the same as Master Alexander's. In addition to the marvelous business this created, he also cashed in again on some free newspaper publicity.

I don't mind admitting that I like to tell about such exploitation stunts. They are easily fitted to most any picture and most any picture can be easily fitted to run it with.

Thanks Roth-Strand, we want to hear more from you.

A Men's Style Show

Women's Fashion and Style Shows, but it remained for W. H. Bergmann, of the Columbus Theatre, in Columbus, Nebr., to spring a new one on us in the way of a Men's Fashion Show. And what's more it clicked—and how! The stunt cost him nothing at all and he received free window display, free newspaper space and the store furnished the models, stage settings, etc.

Here is one, boys, that should make you

There are, indeed, very few angles that could be called new when it comes to talking about

"hop" to the chance of putting it over. Just grab your typewriters and send a letter to Mr. Bergmann asking for full details. And after you get them, go to work on it, because it's distinctly different and will cause no end of comment in your town. More about Bergmann next week.

A New Member Introduces Himself

Julius Chalif, manager of the Elton Theatre, in Brooklyn, sends his application together with an attractive house program from the Elton. The only thing I can say about his program is that he takes an ordinary affair and makes it interesting by reason of using little readers here and there to tell about his theatre and shows.

We are expecting to hear some interesting things about The Elton now that it is represented in the CLUB and knowing the section as I do I'm certain Chalif must keep stepping to stay on the job. Lots of luck and follow the CLUB for some good tips.

Farash Theatre Corp. of Schenectady

We are in receipt of some fine newspaper publicity regarding Mr. William M. Shirley, President and General Manager of the corporation, but unfortunately he sent us a mat of himself and this we cannot reproduce. Please send me a regular photo Mr. Shirley as I want to tell the CLUB members something about you, but I will hold the story until I receive the photo.

The Farash Corp. is one of the fast steps operating the following theatres up New York State: Strand, Albany, State, Hudson, Wedgeway, Van Curier, and Barclay. And, incidentally, I want every house manager on that circuit to join the club. Follow the "chief's" example, boys. I have had my eye on some of your houses and know that there is a wealth of good stuff that you have been pulling. Don't keep it a secret.

Illuminated Stand Erected by Neosho Exhibitor

An illuminated 24-sheet stand has been erected by Hugh Gardner, Neosho, Mo., exhibitor, on the Concrete highway leading to his town, advertising his theatre. Recently bookers, salesmen and exchange managers of Kansas City decided to "sell" exhibitors one idea each month which might aid in obtaining greater attendance at theatres.

:: "The Check-Up" ::

"The Check-Up" is a presentation in the briefest and most convenient form of reports received from exhibitors in every part of the country on current features, which makes it possible for the exhibitor to see what the picture has done for other theatre managers.

The first column following the name of the feature represents the number of managers that have reported the picture as "Poor." The second column gives the number who consider it "Fair"; the third, the number who consider it "Good"; and the fourth column, those who consider it "Big."

The fifth column is a percentage figure giving the average rating on that feature, obtained by the following method: A report of "Poor" is rated at 20%; one of "Fair," 40%; "Good," 70%; and "Big," 100%. The percentage ratings of all of these reports on one picture are then added together, and divided by the number of reports, giving the average percentage—a figure which represents the consensus of opinion on that picture. In this way exceptional cases, reports which might be misleading taken alone, and such individual differences of opinion are averaged up and eliminated.

No picture is included in the list which has not received at least ten reports.
